ANNA E. BEAHM

On January 2, 1943, Mrs. Anna E. Beahm entered her eternal rest. Apparently in the best of health, her sudden death came as a shock to her friends, whose heartfelt sympathies go out to her faithful daughter and son.

She was the widow of George Beahm, and is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Jack Clements; a son, Willie Beahm; three grand-children; also by a brother, Mr. Malcolm E. Croson. Mrs. Beahm was a lovely woman, devoted to her family and friends, and her social interests.

She was buried from St. John's Episcopal Church, Centreville, where members of her family worship. Rev. O'Ferrell Thompson officiating.

The beautiful floral offerings and large gathering of neighbors bore mute testimony to the love and respect in which she was held.

A. C. HART

Archie Carmichael Hart, aged 72, passed away at his home, near Manassas, on Friday, January 8th, after being in poor health for several months.

Mr. Hart was the son of the late Robert and Isabella Hart, of Fauquier County, his father having been a member of the famous Black Horse Cavalry.

On April 26, 1899, he married Miss Mamie Covington, of Strasburg, Va., and for the past twenty-three years they have resided on a small trucking farm near Manassas, having moved here from Capitol Heights, Md.

Active almost till the last, Mr. Hart attended Grace Methodist Church of which he was a member, as long as his failing health would permit.

His Pastor, Rev. W. O. Luttrell, conducted funeral services at the Baker Funeral Home on Sunday afternoon, and interment was made in Warrenton Cemetery.

Surviving are the widow, one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Seeley, of Takoma Park, Md., and one brother, M. T. Hart, of Warrenton, Virginia.

Also included will be the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Because life is God, life must be eternal, self-existent. Life is the everlasting I am, the Being who wa-

Wrong Woman

By R. H. WILKINSON
Associated Newspapers.
WNU Features.

IT WAS Candida's idea to be married in England. Every member of her family except herself had been born in a little town called Laurelheath, so it occurred to her that being married there would give her a distinction that the others didn't have.

Johnny was wholly in favor of the idea.

So they set sail on the Urban-tania—Candida and her mother, and Johnny and his aunt, Mrs. Gill. Everything was serene when the Urban-tania left the docks in New York. Everything remained serene until that evening. That evening the wedding party found that two other people were assigned to the same table in the dining salon. The two others were Mrs. Jasper Jummel and her daughter, Lita.

Lita was a blonde with lustrous blue eyes and a perfectly featured face. Johnny decided she was about the most beautiful woman he had ever seen.

After dinner, in the main salon there was dancing, and Johnny, out of sheer courtesy, naturally danced with Lita. She was personified rhythm in his arms, she was an electric current that warmed his blood and caused his nerves to tingle. He was glad when the dance was over.

The next day Johnny was taking a constitutional around the deck and he met Lita. The wind was in her hair and the wind was whipping her white silk dress close about her body. He stopped and talked with her, acutely conscious of her eyes and her smile and the warm flush of health on her cheeks.

That night at dinner Johnny tried not to notice that every time he looked at Lita she was watching him. He promised himself that after dinner he wouldn't dance with her. But he did. Twice. After the second dance he pleaded a headache and went to his cabin. He lay on his bed and thought. He asked himself what would be wrong with a harmless flirtation. Lita, of course, meant nothing to him. When they reached Liverpool he'd never see her again. Candida was the girl he loved.

He wondered if he could carry on a harmless flirtation without hurting Candida, without making his interest in Lita seem obvious. He decided that he could.

The next night he was halfway through a dance with Lita when suddenly he stopped. He took her by the arm and without explanation led her through a door onto the deck. There was a moon, but deep shadows lay beneath the superstructure near the bow. He led her toward the shadows.

"Lita!" he said huskily, and took her in his arms. She yielded. The kiss lasted an eternity. They broke away at sound of voices close by. One of the speakers was Candida's mother. Johnny grasped Lita by the hand and dragged her swiftly away. They had not, he was sure, been observed.

Two nights later Johnny again yielded to temptation. He made a secret rendezvous with Lita. With her in his arms it was easy to forget. He said things that he knew he didn't mean. He told her that he loved her. He told her that he had given life a meaning. He told her that he didn't want to go on living without her.

Lita reciprocated nobly. She gave back answers of a like nature, only differently put. They kept it up for an hour or more, babbling nonsense to each other, assuring each other that no one else existed in the world.

Repetition began to rob the conversation of its savor. There were long pauses, while each tried hard to conjure a new angle. The conversation that had started off with delightful little intimacies, began to pall. Johnny became annoyed. It occurred to him that it was a pity they couldn't talk about something else. It flashed across his mind that the guy who married Lita would have a pretty dull time, if this were the extent of her intelligence. He began to think of some excuse to get away. A couple of words with Candida at the moment would be refreshing.

Descending the companionway stairs, Johnny cursed himself for being seven kinds of a fool. Now the possibility that he hadn't succeeded in keeping his flirtation from appearing obvious, struck him brutally. What if Candida had noticed? What if she . . . He dared not think of the possibilities.

Two minutes later he knocked on Candida's door. She opened it and came out into the corridor. "Darling, what's happened? You look queer." "I feel queer," Johnny laughed. He took her into his arms. You can cure me though," by assuring me that you still love me."

"Silly! Of course I still love you!" Hungrily he held her tight against him. He couldn't see her eyes, which were just as well, for there were tears in Candida's eyes. She was glad now—oh, so glad—that she had relied on her instinctive judgment of women, rather than carry on and make a scene and spoil both their lives.

HENRY FONDA AND LUCILLE BALL STARRING IN "THE BIG STREET"

Peopled with the eccentric Broadway types whom he has made famous in fiction, Damon Runyon's RKO production, "The Big Street," deals in sparkling fashion with the quixotic romance between an imperious night club queen and a devoted bus boy.

Henry Fonda and Lucille Ball have the stellar roles in the offering, which has its setting along the "Runyonville" section of Manhattan and in Miami. Fonda portrays a bus boy, known as Little Pinks, and Miss Ball has the role of the beautiful but avicious Gloria Lyons, whom Pinks has long worshipped from afar.

Gloria is the girl friend of Case Ables, a racketeer and gambler, and ignores Pinks' abject devotion. After a quarrel, Ables knocks Gloria down a flight of stairs and cripples her so that she can never walk again. Her other friends desert her, but Pinks rallies nobly to her support, impoverishes himself and begs from his pals to pay her hospital bills, finally moves her to his rickety lodgings to reduce expenses. Unaware that Pinks is doing all this, Gloria continues to treat him arrogantly, and insists that he take her to Florida for the winter.

Pushing her in her wheel-chair and thumbing occasional rides on a truck, Pinks gets his fair charge to Miami, where her delusions of grandeur swiftly bring about the film's dramatic climax and Gloria's belated recognition of what Pinks has done for her.

SHERWOOD FOREST DAIRY LEADS STAFFORD ASSOCIATION IN NOVEMBER

The registered Guernsey Dairy Herd at Sherwood Forest Farm stepped into first place among dairy members of the Fredricksburg Dairy Herd Improvement Association for the month of November 1941. This is the first time this herd has lead the local association since the sale of the original herd on October 27, 1941. The average butterfat production of the Sherwood Farm Herd for November was 35 pounds, which was 38 per cent above the average for the local association for the month. There were 24 cows in production during that month and they averaged 36 pounds of milk and 50 pounds of butterfat.

The present Dairy Herd at Sherwood Forest is under the management of Thomas Staples and J. D. Owens. Mr. Staples was employed with the original herd while Mr. Owens is a newcomer to the dairy at Sherwood Forest, although he has been otherwise employed at Sherwood Forest for the past ten years.

THE SCREEN IN "FLYING TIGERS"

Those picture fans who applauded the work of the lovely, serene "Bronwyn" in "How Green Was My Valley" will welcome the return of her creator, Miss Anna Lee, in Republic's "Flying Tigers."

Miss Lee was born at Ightham Rectory, Kent, England on a new Year's Day.

She was educated in private schools but ran away at the age of fifteen to join the London Repertory Players. She occupied the lowly position of understudy at first, but soon was given roles of increasing importance until she soon had the leads in such plays as "The Constant Nymph," "Parnell" and "The Immortal Hour."

She made the inevitable progression in pictures, and among the earlier pictures she made in England are "Service for Ladies," with Leslie Howard, directed by Alexander Korda; "King Solomon's Mines," "Return to Yesterday" with Clive Brook, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," with Conrad Veidt, and "Ohms," and "Man Who Lived Again."

She is married to the famous English writer and dramatist, Robert Stevenson, and is the mother of two little

Even though our food dealers' shelves are likely to take on the appearance of Old Mother Hubbard's cupboard during this wartime period, it is still up to the homemaker to keep the family fare in balance with sufficient vitamins, minerals, and other body-building indispensables.

FOR YOUR DAILY QUOTA OF VITAMIN A

Look to your dairy products, eggs, sundry meats such as liver, heart and kidney, oily fish, leafy green and yellow vegetables. If one "A" food is not available, then turn to another.

GET YOUR VITAMIN B

From whole grain cereals, enriched flour and bread, milk, eggs, liver, kidney, fruits, and vegetables.

YOU'LL FIND VITAMIN C

In oranges, lemons, grapefruit, tomatoes and berries. Leafy uncooked vegetables, especially cabbage, can be called upon for "C."

MINERALS ARE SO NECESSARY
Calcium—Of course dairy products, especially milk and cheese, are the best source, but the pinch hitters are molasses, carrots, cabbage, broccoli, and dried figs.

Iron—Liver, heart and kidney are about the best sources of this all important mineral. But too, there's whole grain cereals, enriched flour and breads, lean meats, egg yolks and leafy green vegetables.

PROTEIN AND ENERGY FOODS

Proteins—These are the sustaining foods around which our menus are usually built. Meat, of course, is most universally favored. But when the family quota is exhausted, then think of the menu in terms of cheese, eggs, dried beans, and nuts.

Energy Foods—Somehow or other, we seem to get our share of these, so there's no need for worry here. Breads, desserts, potatoes, in other words, starches and sweets, are seldom neglected on any menu.

YOUTHS OUT TO POCKET RICH TRAPLINE PROFITS

With the country's war effort having taken much of the man power which formerly harvested the annual fur crop, this job will fall to a considerable extent upon the sturdy and willing shoulders of youth. It is they who will be called on to maintain the national fur catch—one of America's great natural resources—as a valuable source of income.

While it's squarely up to the younger trappers to "carry on," the situation offers them several highly pleasing advantages. First of all, there's scarcely any other endeavor that offers such a combination of wholesome recreation, healthful exercise and a neat cash profit to boot! Compared with farm products, generally, raw furs yield a decidedly satisfactory return.

Crop Ready for Harvest
The raw fur crop is there—along the streams, in the woods and fields—literally waiting to be taken. Practically no investment is required—only a bunch of traps and the effort needed to run the trapline. And as for the effort, if desired it can be limited to spare time—a feature which fits in beautifully with the school boy's daily routine.

More Furs Per Trapper
One apparent attraction this season is the potentially greater catch per trapper afforded by the thinning of the trap-line stands. In other words, where a break formerly supplied two or three trappers with their winter's catch, it is likely to become the exclusive domain of one trapper this winter—a veritable bonanza hunting ground for the less experienced but rapidly-learning lad.

Speaking of learning, most trapping say that "there's almost nothing to it." The sheer fun of being out of doors—matching wits with the way far beaver—provides such a pleasurable thrill to the beginner that he considers trapping more of a sport or game than actual work.

Every pelt taken is as though the trapper had bagged a wind of actual money. There is a regular, steady market for raw furs—so come what may, Mr. Trapper can be sure of pocketing a stack of dollars in return for his catch.

Little children, keep yourselves from idols.—1 John 5:21.

THE NEW OPA CHIEF

It is hoped that the current description of Senator Prentiss M. Brown as a "square-shooting, determined individual who can say 'no' as readily as he can say 'yes' and who is admired by his opponents" is an accurate picture of the new head of the office of Price Administration, for we need such a man in this difficult position.

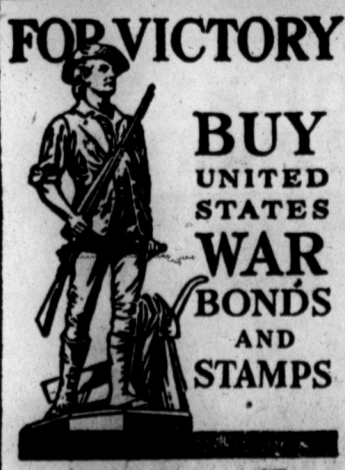

It is not necessary to do a "tough" job in an ugly way—has seemingly been characteristic of Leon Henderson's procedure. Since rationing depends greatly upon voluntary cooperation for success, it naturally follows that the American public should be treated like patriotic ladies and gentlemen until proven otherwise—for the great majority of the people can be thus described.

For a long time many folk have been wondering why it is that almost every selection by the President of men for key positions has come from a weird conglomeration of theorists and crack-pots, largely tainted with the infection of socialism or communism.

Here, seemingly is an appointment, which is of the lame-duck variety, but nevertheless comes from the ranks of men who have been endorsed at the polls by a large constituency. Let us hope, therefore, for the good of all, that he will be capable of restoring a public confidence in OPA, which either had never been inspired under the passing leadership, or had been largely dissipated by his administrative methods. There is no doubt whatever of the need for effective rationing and we must all work together to make it successful.

DON'T THINK YOU WON'T BE MISSED

Have you forgotten something? ... Forgotten to pay for the Christmas Seals you received last month from the Prince William County Tuberculosis Association.

If you did forget, it's not too late to send the money now to the association in care of Mrs. George Turberville, local chairman. Your money is needed more this year than any year since 1917.

War and tuberculosis work closely together. In certain overcrowded industrial areas in this country tuberculosis is rising. Tuberculosis will NOT increase in Prince William if the association can help it. So we must help the association.

The Seal sale is the sole support of the association. It needs our financial, as well as moral, support to carry on its expanded program throughout the coming year.

Don't think your contribution won't be missed! Practically all of the income from Seals is made up of one and two-dollar contributions. It takes a lot of such contributions to carry on the year-round work of the association—its year-round fight to save lives in Prince William from disease that kills more persons between 15 and 45 than any other disease—a disease that is increasing in the United States due to war-time conditions.

ARMY MEN AID LOCAL OBSERVATION WORK

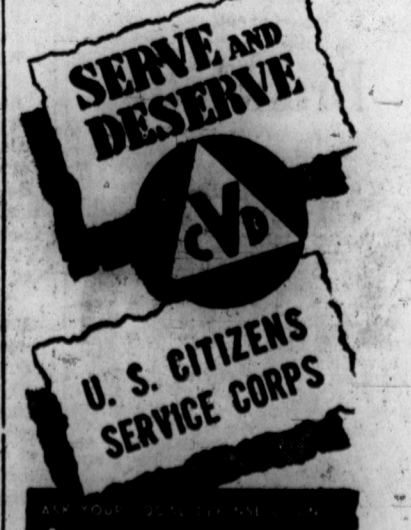

Recently the Observation Post at Haymarket received a visit from Lieut. S. S. Speake, Corp. W. Riordan, of Baltimore; the Hon. Senator Heller of the Virginia Office of Civilian Defense and Mr. E. G. Parrish, of Manassas. These influential gentlemen came with the hope of stirring up more interest so that the post might be able to operate on a daily schedule of twenty-four hours. For those present they answered questions and gave explanations that quickened the zeal of those who had given regular service as observers.

They plan to be present at the Parent-Teachers meeting to be held on Tuesday the 19th, in the School Auditorium at 8 p.m. A moving picture will be a feature and it is hoped that a goodly number of the men of the community and district will be present and that more will volunteer to aid in this important work.

It Takes Both, War Bonds and Taxes, to Win—Victory Tax Special Direct Levy Asked to Help Meet Heavy War Costs

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Approximately 50,000,000 American workers began to make an added contribution to the War cost this month in the form of a 5% Victory tax.

For many millions of Americans the Victory tax and the 1943 income tax are the first direct levies to be made by the Government to meet the staggering War costs. And it will take both... taxes and War bonds... to provide the supplies and materials to win the War and the peace afterwards.

The Treasury Department estimates that the Victory tax will raise approximately $2,000,000,000. Every person receiving more than $12 per week must pay the Victory tax upon that part of his income over and above the $12. For example, a married man with a salary of $50 per week, with two dependents, would make only a net payment of $1.06 per week after allowance for post-war credit.

The Government has made every effort to make the impact of the new tax as light as possible. The law, in effect, provides that in the case of married persons whose sole income is from wages or salary, 40 percent of the Victory tax paid (up to a maximum of $1,050) plus 2 percent for each dependent (up to a maximum of $179) may be used as a "credit against whatever Federal income taxes the individual may owe at the end of the year—provided he leaving 73.5 billion dollars of disposable income. During 1943 total income payments are expected to rise to 125 billion dollars and total personal taxes under existing revenue legislation will be 15 billion dollars—leaving 110 billion dollars of income at our disposal as against only 73.5 billion dollars in 1940.

In 1943 Mr. Average American will still be carrying a much lighter tax load than his Canadian or English brothers-in-arms. In Great Britain total national and local taxes paid by individuals at present amount to 31 percent of the national income. In Canada, total individual taxes amount to 25 percent of the national income. In the United States, total personal taxes, Federal, state and local, will amount in 1943 to 18 percent of national income. Our English allies invest an additional 10 percent of national income in War savings. Our Canadian allies invest an additional 11 percent of national income in War savings. We Americans, to match the record of our Canadian neighbors, would have to invest this year 20 percent of our national income in War savings. To match the English record we would have to invest 23 percent of national income in War savings.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

Highlights of last week on Capitol Hill were the announcements from Governor Darden that he had allocated to the boards of education through out the State $232,500 of State funds to assist localities in raising the salaries of teachers and meeting the teacher shortage, and the Governor's first proclamation without a 'whereas' in which he set aside January 12th, as Farm Mobilization Day.

The allotment anticipates by half a year the increase from $660 to $720 per teacher unit voted by the 1942 General Assembly and effective July 1, 1943.

Commenting on the new funds Dabney S. Lancaster, State superintendent of public instruction said that while individual increases under the new set-up will be relatively small "it will show the teachers that we are cognizant of their needs and that we are taking steps to aid them financially whenever possible".

City and county school boards which match the new funds on a fifty-fifty basis will be able to increase the present allotment of $15 per teacher unit to $30 for the remainder of the present school year. The matching provision of the new allotment will place an added financial burden on the localities but when the new law becomes effective July 1, 1943 the State will assume the entire increase.

The letter which went out from the Department of Education to all division superintendents stated that:

"Since nearly one-fourth of the teachers of Virginia are receiving $700 per year or less, and since the average salary of all teachers is approximately $850 per year, it is apparent that with the increased living costs, new taxes, contributions to the retirement fund, and the purchase of war bonds, the situation has become alarming. The Governor has agreed to make available to county and city school boards the additional sum of $15 per teacher unit for the last half of the current session, provided the county and city school board will match this amount and the total will be used for teachers' salaries, preferably for the salaries of those teachers who are in the lower financial brackets. This means that an amount not to exceed $232,500 will be available from State funds for increasing teachers' salaries if these funds are matched by the local school boards.

AMERICA

America! America! stand forth in righteous might,
With Allied prowess we'll fill the hours
In fighting for the right.
We'll rid each sea of treachery
The earth of serpents trail
We'll fight—we'll pray—Gain faith each day;
With these we cannot fail.

America! America! hold fast unto your God,
And He will see you through the fight
And He will save your soul.
If we but look to God on high,
And in Him place our trust
No yellow Hun beneath the sun
Can win this war from us.

Basil, the Man

By BARBARA BENEDICT

Associated Newspapers.
WNU Features.

BASIL WINTHROP'S father had always made his decisions; had conducted the boy's affairs, organized his life, superintended his doings. Basil was an only child. His mother was dead.

His father was wealthy and generous, so why not let the old man run the show? Basil thought.

He ceased to think thus when he met the girl with the red hair and blue eyes. She was selling kisses at a U.S.O. bazaar. Five dollars a kiss. Basil only had thirty dollars in his pocket, but he stretched out the six kisses that amount would buy.

After the bazaar, he drove the girl with the red hair to the hotel where she was staying. He didn't ask her name; she didn't volunteer it. But they made a date for the next night.

Drunk with emotion Basil went home.

As he entered the front hall his father called to him.

Winthrop, senior, seemed in a good mood. "I've just met an old friend of mine, son. Sarah Mortimer. She and her daughter, Elaine, are spending a few days in town. Son, I want you to meet them. Nothing would please me more than to see you and Sarah's daughter married."

Basil stared. This he thought was the payoff. His father had arranged everything else in his life, but by golly he wasn't going to pick his wife!

"Dad, you're taking too much for granted. I can't marry Elaine. I'm in love with someone else."

"Someone else? Who?"

"I—er—don't know her name."

"I see." Winthrop, senior, rose and pulled his son on the arm. "I've arranged a dinner party for tomorrow. You'll meet Elaine then."

But Basil didn't meet Elaine then. For the first time in his life he felt the electrifying qualities of manhood warming his blood. Instead of attending the dinner party, he held a clandestine meeting with the red-head. They had a swell time together. By mutual and silent agreement they decided not to confide in each other their identity.

Winthrop, senior, was furious. He called Basil on the mat. But Basil stuck out his chin and orated in his own behalf. He felt like he'd had a shot in the arm, and because the feeling was new and thrilling, his defiance amazed the old man.

"Son, I can't understand you. Something's happened. You don't seem to tell me what it is, but if you continue to ignore my wishes, I'll be forced to take such drastic steps as firing you from your job, cutting off your allowance, disowning you, striking your name from my will."

"Swell!" cried Basil. "Then I'll be my own man, free to do as I like, with no obligations."

Afterward, Basil had some regrets. His father was a powerful influence. He could make things decidedly uncomfortable. And the red-headed girl who, apparently, had been used to nice things, might not be so interested in him if she knew he were penniless.

On the other hand, Winthrop, senior, hadn't expected such a reaction from his son. The boy had looked serious. The old man regretted his haste. But he was stubborn and a stickler for principles. He couldn't retract his words, no matter how much he might want to.

Time passed. Basil continued to see the red-headed girl and each time he saw her he loved her more. But he lacked courage to explain the situation to his father. If she refused to marry him, he'd feel like ending it all.

Winthrop, senior, arranged another meeting with Sarah Mortimer and daughter. It was, he decided, to be the test. If Basil refused to follow his wishes this time—well, he'd have to get under way in taking his drastic steps.

When Basil heard about the arranged meeting he came to a decision. He would meet this Elaine and tell her in front of his father that he loved another. Then he would keep an appointment with the red-headed girl and propose marriage. That, he decided, was the only manly thing to do, and Basil had suddenly become a man.

So with his father Basil went to the hotel where the meeting had been arranged. Mrs. Mortimer and Elaine received them in their suite of rooms. Basil took one look at Elaine and almost collapsed.

She had red hair and freckles and duck teeth. She was about the homeliest looking creature Basil had ever seen. Moreover, she giggled.

Basil didn't wait for the dinner to get under way. He made his speech then and there, then headed for the door. His father accompanied him into the corridor.

"Son," said the old man, "forgive me. I didn't know what I was getting you into. Go marry your red-head. She couldn't be any worse than that."

"Thanks, dad," said Basil. And he went off and kept his date with the red-head, whose name, it proved, was Mary Smith. He proposed and she accepted and they lived happily ever after.

THE RENEWAL OF "B" AND "C"
GAS RATION DATES FIXED IN FAIRFAX COUNTY

Registration for renewal of "B" and "C" Gasoline ration books has been scheduled to start Monday, January 18, 1943, at the Hillwood Community Center, on Cherry Street, near East Hillwood Avenue at Falls Church.

Motorists of the County will be asked to register between the hours of 12:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, January 22. County residents whose ration books for gasoline have to be renewed are urged to register as early as possible each day. Motorists whose names begin with the letters A through E will be asked to register on Monday, F through J on Tuesday, K through O on Wednesday, P through T on Thursday and U through Z on Friday.

Plans for the registration are being circulated to the Fairfax County Federation of Citizens Associations and questions may be put to the heads of member associations. The Federation will place posters and signs to direct motorists to the Boards Headquarters in Hillwood Square.

Officials emphasize that motorists should have their mileage requirements at hand to speed the issuing of the approximately 15,000 supplementary coupon books.

The Federation of Citizen Associations sincerely hopes that all communities in the County may find it possible to send volunteer workers to assist the Board with the work of the registration. Volunteers should call Mrs. C. B. Newman at Chestnut 9110. The Board, with the help of the Federation, plans to use about sixty volunteers in two shifts to assist the regular members of the board, each day.

Mom

"Sausages for breakfast! Sausages for breakfast! I can smell 'em!" Small Joe came tumbling downstairs fastening the belt of his shorts as he came. He made a beeline for the kitchen. Pop was already sitting at the table, reading the paper, while Mom held the handle of the frying-pan over the stove. Small Joe came close and sniffed the delicious smoke, wriggling all over with early-morning joy.

"Better be thankful for them while you can still get them." One glance at Mom's face told small Joe this was one of her tight-lipped days. "Not a drop of coffee in the house, and no sugar left to put in it if there was. Some war!" Small Joe kept still.

"Letter for you, son." Pop said in his quiet voice. Small Joe made a leap for his place at table. There it was, a private personal letter for him alone, propped against his milk glass.

"Hey, Pop! It's from brother!" Small Joe was pulling the envelope apart and diving into the contents.

"Hey, look what he sent me." He passed over an oblong of thick, crinkly paper while he leaned over the sheet of writing-paper.

"A twenty-five dollar War Bond." Pop said slowly. Mom turned and looked at it over Pop's shoulder, with the frying-pan in her hand.

"Listen what he says. 'How are you doing, kid? Hurry and grow up so you can help me slap the Japs. Aren't you most big enough to get into the Army? Here's something for you in your name. Let's the whole family gang up and help to win this war.'"

Pop and Mom were silent. But small Joe didn't notice that. He was full of his letter and his War Bond.

"Gee, Pop, in six years I could get into the Army, couldn't I, Pop? Gee, Pop, I want to be a soldier like brother and fight in this war. Gee, isn't that bond nifty? Look, it was issued in Honolulu. It's mine."

But Pop was looking at Mom and Mom was looking at Pop. There were tears in Mom's eyes. She shook her head sharply. Pop reached out and patted her hand gently.

"Well, can't let our soldier boy beat us to buying War Bonds, can we, old lady?" was all he said. She shook her head again. "I guess if he can give up his job and go off to war I can do some fighting back at home," she said in a queer voice.

Small Joe looked up at her in surprise. She saw him looking at her and spoke sharply. "Well, Joe. We're about ready to eat. Say grace."

Small Joe folded his hands and bent his head as he had been taught. "Oh Lord, we thank thee for this food and all thy bountiful gifts. . . ."

"Amen," Pop said. "Now eat your good sausages."

(Story from an actual report in the files of the Treasury Department.)

Amen! Say yes. Take your change in War Stamps. The least you can do is the most you can buy in War Bonds.

GOVERNOR DARDENS FIRST YEAR saving to the State was upwards of five million dollars. Before the last measures were passed the Governor had signed the No. 1 Debt Bill. The State was well started on its road of putting to work upwards of fifteen million dollars in idle funds, saving upwards of five million dollars, bringing about the eventual retirement of the entire State debt of more than 18 million without further cost to the State and, by investing in Federal securities, giving the government use of the funds when it so desperately needs them. "Stroke of genius" said the press—"Outstanding example of unusual leadership"—and, from the Atlanta Journal, "It was a perfect program, devised by a Governor who had ability and imagination and a sense of duty to his State rather than to politics for whose sustenance a lesser leader would have disturbed it."

Among the twenty-two measures passed at the special session was a bill further reducing the speed limit to 35 miles an hour.

Of reforms, social and legislative, immediate and in the distant future there have been many. Spotlights among these, in early April was the Governor's announcement that he planned to refer to the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council a plan to establish a youth correction authority.

ending toward rehabilitation of offenders between 18 and 21 years of age. The possible use of abandoned CCC camps as forestry camps for delinquent boys; the proposed establishment of a Maritime School in the Hampton Roads area, and his approval of arming the ABC men as a part of his defense plan. In May, as forest fires ravaged the State the Governor called for unrelenting prosecution of "firebugs" and announced to his press conference he would "recommend to the next General Assembly that new legislation be enacted to strengthen the Old Dominion's forest laws." He was hitting the unsupervised use of the highways and approved the use of plain clothes men in unmarked cars for the apprehension of speeders, and promising "iron enforcement."

In June speaking before the state Planning Board the Governor told them it was "primarily their duty to plan for post-war Virginia, and placed emphasis on land use and tenure studies. June was a month of appointments; approximately 350 new pieces of legislation became law on June 26th and various State Departments, their re-organization plans completed, prepared to start a new fiscal year. At the close of the fiscal year the Commonwealth's treasury was reported at $18,639,880.00 and in many instances the amount reported breaking all records as the fastest revenue year the State had ever known. As State officials warned of lean years ahead ABC figures showed that Virginians spent $31,872,816.14 for wines and spirits during the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1942; in the 102 liquor stores of the State. This was an increase of 39.79 per cent over the amount spent during the preceding year.

The Governor announced to his press conference he planned to name a commission to study the question of land ownership and tenantry, with an eye to eliminating the evils of farm tenantry in Virginia.

In August, with the problems of the housing of derelict women before him, the Governor started negotiations to secure one or more of the abandoned CCC camps to relieve conditions in the already overcrowded jails, particularly in the defense areas.

During September, while citizens rushed to collect all the scrap metal available and the removal of the fence around Capitol Square was urged, the Governor's logical decision to let "the Capitol fence and the White House fence go into the furnace together, was the editorial "stir" of the moment. In September he announced the appointment of the Director and members of the newly authorized Parole Board and the last of the major "battle stations" was assigned.

In October he approved the establishment of a Woman's Auxiliary State Police to release the already diminished number of State troopers. Care Committee was also named, in for work on the highways. A Child cooperation with the Federal Government, to have supervision over the welfare of small children of the employed mothers.

As the Armistice Day celebrations began, the Governor announced plans for removing the chains at night from the legs of the more than 2,000 prisoners in the 29 road camps of the State—termining this ancient practice "a relic of barbarism."

Quickly on the heels of this came plans for the purchase of "electric eye" devices for automatic checking of speed on the highways. When it was found these could not be obtained because of priorities, he put the stamp of his approval on the "V-scopes" devices built by the State Police and sent out a warning—speeders beware—On and after January 1st the speed detector will be officially "in business."

In November, the Governor expressed his opposition to mass industrialization of the Old Dominion and, to his press conference proposed that plans be undertaken now for the establishment of a State farm for inebriates after the war is ended.

At the November meeting of the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council he referred to them for study, various phases of child welfare work; Taxation of Cooperatives; Comparative costs in State supported institutions of higher learning to Virginia and out-of-state students; requirements concerning the publishing of certain ordinances having the effect of law; reclassification of property for purpose of State and local taxation; provisions of law controlling appointments upon various examining boards; review of the provisions as to method of appointment of members of the State Library Board; review of the financial organization of the office of trial justices and the establishment of a farm for inebriates.

Virginia's Governor for World War II is letting nothing interfere with its prosecution insofar as he and the affairs of State are concerned. "There is no peace in this struggle halfway down the road" the Governor said. "It will be a long war—perhaps many months, perhaps many years." "If we are to survive as a great country, if our institutions are to live, the hour has come when we must pay the price." Governor Darden has shelved for the duration much of his original program for the State—construction, hospital improvement and many other things. Of utmost importance to him now are even the smallest plans for defense, and the handling of State affairs with wisdom and foresight. As he nears the close of his first year in office, a year filled with such constructive achievement as seldom falls to the lot of any one man, he might well bring it to a close with the final sentence of his inaugural message, "We must face the future united and unafraid, and may God in his infinite wisdom and mercy guide and protect us in this perilous hour."

Busiest Little Railroad Only Seven Miles Long

"Busiest little railroad in the world" is the title given to the seven-mile freight line which serves the Hawthorne, Ill., works of the Western Electric Company, the Bell Telephone System's supply unit.

Mile for mile, according to statistical evidence, the road is carrying a heavier load than any of the companies operating some 235,000 rail miles in other railroads of the United States.

This line, known as the Manufacturers Junction Railroad, delivers raw materials from the five major railroads with which it connects. It carries materials from one building to another within the 120 acres of ground of the huge works, then returns the manufactured products to the commercial lines. It also serves some 250 other industries in the vicinity.

VIRGINIA WEEKLY WAR ROUNDUP

PAY UP OR GIVE UP—Householders who have refused to redeem "Coupon Credit Notes" issued to their dealers for purchase of fuel oil have been given a final warning by General J. Fulmer Bright, State OPA Director, that they face suspension of their ration cards. This warning came with the announcement that OPA is authorizing local boards to honor unredeemed credit notes held by fuel oil dealers or suppliers who have been unable to obtain payment in ration coupons, and General Bright has fixed January 13 as the deadline for the redemption of all such promissory notes.

FOR MEN ONLY—Beginning February 1, all Virginia men in the 18 to 45 age groups, who for six months or more have been subject to registration under the Selective Service Act for possible military duty will be required to carry their classification cards—showing whether they are 1-A, 4-F, etc.—to prove that they are in communication with their local boards and have been classified as to availability for military service. Anyone who has not received or has lost his classification card should immediately get in touch with his board and receive another, for after January 1 anyone not carrying his classification card will be subject to a $10,000 fine or five years imprisonment or both.

SEDAN BAN LIFTED—Sale of four-door, hard-topped Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth sedans to civilians who are getting ration certificates can now be resumed, the State OPA has announced. A ban on such sales had been put in effect last August in order to hold the limited supply intact while the Army and Navy filled their requirements.

MORE GO, LESS STOP—The Office of Defense Transportation is now considering ways and means of putting more "go" and less "stop" in Virginia's traffic lights, which must be adjusted to wartime conditions to eliminate waste of rubber; fuel and will meet in Washington this week to consider the problem and to formulate a program for changing traffic light time cycles rendered obsolete by the reduced use of private automobiles, for coordination of lights to assure progressive traffic flow, and for eliminating lights altogether in some cases.

FOR THE FEED BAG—Because of the larger demands throughout the country for livestock, dairy and poultry feeds during the winter months, the War Production Board is encouraging the importation from Mexico of as much cottonseed, sesame and similar types of cake and meal as is possible. These imports should help greatly in satisfying the seasonal requirements for feedcake and meals, WPB feels confident.

CASUALTY LIST ADDITION—It looks as though no new publications can be started in Virginia for the duration, for new graphic arts (printing) machinery has been added to the war casualty list by the War Production Board. Effective Jan. 30, such machinery may be produced only for the armed forces outside the continental limits of the U. S. WPB says the existing stock of used machinery, and the fact that the manufacturer of replacement parts will be permitted will be sufficient to meet the needs of the printing industry.

TRUCKING OUTLOOK—The outlook for Virginia's approximately 100,000 commercial vehicles appears fairly bleak for 1943, according to State ODT officials, and here's the way the situation stacks up: tires in the main will be made of crude and reclaimed rubber, which means that they won't wear well, and in addition military requirements for rubber will leave only 45 per cent as much rubber for commercial motor vehicles in 1943 as they did in 1941; manpower shortages will become steadily more serious, and women must take over wherever possible, and the parts situation can be summed up in four words—"Tight and getting tighter." ODT also reminds Virginia truck owners that January 31 is the deadline for getting temporary gas rations from local boards.

THERE'LL BE SOME CHANGES MADE—We Virginians have been experiencing and will continue to experience deep and drastic changes in our living habits. We are going to be asked to accept—better, as free people, we are going to impose on ourselves—a reduction in the number of kinds of things that we have enjoyed as commonplace in our daily living. This is the outlook for 1943 as seen by the en responsible for guiding the State Office of Price Administration. As for the gas shortage, OPA asks Virginians to remember that "When the enemy torpedoes our tankers and our ships laden with fuel, it is just as though a bomb had been dropped on the main street of every town in the State."

TONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

U. S. Treasury Department

"Don't Kid Yourself! We could lose this War!"

MISTER, if you think this war's a cinch, better read your paper or listen to the radio. You'll change your mind—quick.

If you think we're going to march to Berlin and Tokio just because we're right—forget it!

People just as clean and decent as we are—just as righteous—just as patriotic, have been ground to the dust under the hobnailed boots of other people trained and toughened for one purpose—war.

Choose now. Either we give our boys the planes, tanks, guns, and ships they've got to have to win—or we're letting them march to their defeat and our destruction. Planes cost money. Tanks don't grow on trees. And the storks don't bring sub-chasers.

We've got to pay for them. "We" means all of us—including you.

How? By buying WAR BONDS. By putting 10 percent of every dollar we earn into the Pay-Roll Savings Plan. A dime out of every dollar—a dollar out of every ten—every payday. And every time our savings amount to $18.75 we get a Bond, worth $25 in 10 years. That's $4 back for every $3 we put in. Isn't that the least we who stay at home can do to help win the war? Stop and think about it—

next time you're tempted to buy something you don't really need. Remember the President's words—"We cannot have all we want if our soldiers and sailors are to have all they need."

And if, every payday, we don't set aside every nickel, dime, or dollar we can possibly scrape together for War Bonds, we're letting our boys down.

That's the truth, every word of it—and we know it!

DO YOU KNOW?

When you buy WAR BONDS, you're saving, not giving! Series E WAR BONDS are worth 33½ percent more in 10 years! You get back $4 for every $3 you invest!

You can start buying WAR BONDS by buying War Stamps for as little as 10 cents.
