The Bible Now

One of the cultural results of the Second World War is that of an increased interest in the Bible. The explanation is obvious. Thousands of men and women in the armed service of many different countries have carried "the Book of Books" with them wherever they have gone in the line of their duty. During long voyages on the ocean or through the air, during tedious days and nights of watchfulness on far-flung fighting fronts and especially during weeks and months of hospital experience, the Scriptures were a source of comfort and courage to a uniformed multitude of people who perhaps otherwise might never have consulted them. Meanwhile, civilians at home likewise in the emergency turned to the traditional fountain of religious idealism.

But the American Bible Society has urged that readers should follow a systematic plan in their study of the Gospels. Mere "dipping" into the Holy Word "at random" may be confusing. Possibly each individual needs to "build" a Bible for himself. Thomas Jefferson attempted something of the sort. Other persons have compiled anthologies of quotations which appealed particularly to their own instinct of appreciation. Such a book is the volume entitled "Treasures From the Bible," recently published. Its contents were selected by chaplains and pastors for Nation-wide rural while the global conflict continued, but they have equal significance now that peace theoretically has been restored. The first page carries the fourteenth chapter of Saint John: "Let not your heart be troubled"—the beautiful teaching of Jesus on the evening before His crucifixion. And the last page also is from Saint John—the letter beginning: "My children, these things I write unto you" and closing, "If ye know that He is righteous, ye know that every one that doeth righteousness is born of Him."

Each of the selections deserves to be called great literature. Many of them come near to being great music. Psalm 23, for example, begs to be sung. The Sermon on the Mount, from the Gospel of Saint Matthew, on the other hand, almost automatically prompts an oratorical delivery. But it also is a magnificent specimen of organized and disciplined logic. The late Justice Holmes could have expounded it with a perfect distinction. So, too, any of a score of generals might pronounce with the impressiveness of their authority as commanders the Twenty-seventh Psalm: "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear?" Or any of as many admirals might recite with a special significance the verses of the One Hundred and Seventh Psalm, commencing unforgettablely: "They that go down to the sea in ships."

However, a man or a woman need not be famous or lofty of station in order to make the Bible his or her own. It is everybody's book, and the more so now, providentially, than ever in the past.

—The Evening Star.

SALLY SHOWS SARAH SOMETHING SIMPLE!

How to make Hallowe'en fun for all

Youngsters traditionally think of Hallowe'en as their very own for fun-making, but it's no surprise to find the adults aiding and abetting them in hilarious pranks. That is why Hallowe'en is an especially good party-night at home where family and guests may participate in games, and—in the spirit of the thing—the simplest repast is regarded as a banquet.

There are no elaborate refreshments required on Hallowe'en; even though the spooky-clad guests have hearty appetites, they don't expect fancy foods. However, weird names add atmosphere and flavor to hearty foods, and many a menu can be concocted for all guests, large or small, from the following suggestions:

MAIN COURSE

RED HOT POKER ROAST: Allow two weiners per person, arranging them side by side; run a string through top and bottom. Broil; tie, curved side out, around a mound of potato salad, pressing the weiners into the salad so that it resembles a crown.

SPOOKS SPECIAL: Macaroni salad with diced or shredded American cheese, shredded carrots, pickles and celery. Garnish with ripe olives.

GOBLIN'S DELIGHT: Baked beans and brown bread.

DESSERTS

PHANTOM FINISH—Doughnuts and Cider.

WHEEL OF FATE—Gingerbread with orange icing and balls of orange ice or orange ice cream.

BEVERAGES

WITCHES' BREW—Coffee, SPRITES' NECTAR—Cider, hot or cold, plain or spiced.

THE WORD OF GOD

By Robert H. Hays, Jr., Editor

No man knows the time nor the place nor the manner of Christ's coming. If you live right you may welcome him into your life every day. Ye observe days, and months and times and years. I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labor in vain.

Gal. 4:10, 11.

"Editorial Policy"

"Editorial policy" is a difficult phrase to define because of its many ramifications. In addition, there are so many subjects about which editorials can be written that it is difficult to set up a standard policy to cover all situations. Certain generalizations can be made, however, to show the Journal intends to speak editorially.

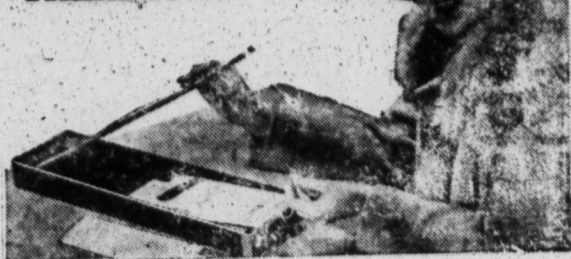

Strictly speaking, a newspaper should not be used to guide public opinion. It is true that many newspapers do not subscribe to this view of thought, but it nevertheless is a correct statement. The duty of a newspaper should be that of guiding public opinion, to reflect public opinion, or rather to furnish sufficient facts so that public opinion can be formed.

Insofar as politics are concerned, the Journal will follow the above rule. The Journal at present is an independent newspaper politically and will continue to remain so if it is at all possible. All candidates will be treated alike, regardless of party or program. The Journal will endeavor to place before the voters the good and bad points of each candidate—or nothing if this is not possible—and leave the decision to the electorate.

There are certain fields, however, in which a newspaper can attempt to guide public opinion without becoming harmful. Such an editorial appears in this issue, endorsing the Community Halloween Party. Similar endorsements have appeared in the past for the Community War Fund and the Community Center. Endorsements will appear in the future for such drives as the Victory Loan and the Red Cross.

Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed as long as they represent constructive criticism, not destructive criticism. Letters to the editor will not be published which determine the character of any individual, living or dead, regardless of his station in life.

In short, the "editorial policy" of the Manassas Journal will be what the people of Manassas and Prince William County make it.

Our Heartfelt Thanks

Mrs. W. L. Lloyd has resigned as chairman of the Prince William County Chapter, American Red Cross, after serving in that position for 17 years, and to say that Mrs. Lloyd has contributed generously of her time and effort would be making a gross understatement.

Despite frequent references to the Red Cross as a "closed corporation," Mrs. Lloyd has carried on in a superior manner the work which is so important to the world in time of peace as in time of war. Her retirement from the chairmanship is regrettable, to say the least.

It is Mrs. Lloyd, and millions of others like her, who have been responsible for much of the comfort given to men in service during the war. Certainly the lot of soldier overseas in many places would have been a sorry one had it not been for the Red Cross. In addition, the Red Cross may be credited with saving the lives of thousands of our men who were prisoners of war, who would not have survived without the Red Cross.

Despite the many factors which could have influenced her against it, Mrs. Lloyd heeded requests that she remain in office until a successful termination of war. She has proven her ability many times during those years of stress, and her service has been outstanding.

Now that Mrs. Lloyd has decided to retire from the rigorous duties as chairman of the Red Cross, the least we can do is to wish her the best of luck, as well as her worthy successor, Mrs. E. H. Marsteller.

The Pigskin Parade

Manassas is going slightly crazy these days and for once it's not over politics, money, the war, or anything else of that nature. This time Manassas has gone football crazy—and small wonder.

Osborn High School has suddenly come up with a football team which threatens to be the scourge of Class C high schools throughout Northern Virginia. Not only that, but Osborn High School has come up with a football coach who is making a very good team look even better than that.

This editorial is not designed to give the players a swelled head; it is intended only as a friendly pat on the back from a well-wisher for success during the remainder of the season. And we believe, as do the citizens of Manassas, that success is awaiting those players.

But if Osborn should not win another game this season, its football team has given the town of Manassas a chance to return to a semblance of normalcy after almost four years of war. No more do grim-faced men talk of the horrors of war; now they talk with smiling faces of the fortunes of a group of boys battling over a pigskin.

Coach Leo has done a wonderful job with the players since he took over the coaching reins. It is unfortunate that the first game had to be forfeited, but it is better to lose a game than to have boys injured for life by something which at the time seemed unavoidable.

According to the schedule, Osborn has five more games to play. By winning a majority of these games, the team can establish itself as one of the foremost eleven in its class in Northern Virginia, perhaps in the State. Not only can the team accomplish that this year, but with a large majority of the players returning to high school next year, it perhaps can go on to even greater glory.

Yes, Osborn High's football team is slowly putting Manassas on the map in a way which no politician or millionaire could ever hope to do. And the football team is doing it in an enthusiastic manner without hoping to gain any more than a few moments of passing glory.

Our hats are off to Moss Jacobs, Lester Pullin, Worth Peters, Armistead Sinclair, Earl Breeden, Bo Williams, Callie Stipe, Stuart "Stinky" Vetter, Ralph Burke, Sydney Bryant, Andy Andrus, Bobby Lymburner, Tommy Tomlinson, Page Beale, John Henry Stauff, Rembert Parler, Eddie Daffan, Gary Woods, Bobby Roof, Eddie Batschelet, Victor Carattini, Billy Brower, Bobby Stickle, Bert Rosebery, Teddy Peters, and all the rest. They've all done a swell job on the football field.

Osborn's eleven deserves the support of all persons in Manassas who can possibly get to its games. Football is a rough sport, it is true, but is a means of preparing the boys of today to be the men of tomorrow.

It is a lot more pleasant to watch a group of boys collecting bumps and bruises fighting over a piece of pigskin than it is to see men shedding blood fighting over a piece of stone or a mound of earth.

Eliminating Danger

Halloween, like the Fourth of July, is becoming "safer and saner" for the children of Manassas. Thanks to the Community Halloween Party, mothers now can feel at least a little more reassured when their children start out on this night famous for its many pranks.

It used to be that Halloween was a night when anything could happen. It still can, for that matter, but the Community Halloween Party has lessened the dangers considerably. To be sure, there is no harm in having a few windows soaped up, a few trash cans overturned, etc., if the pranks stop at that. But, like many other things in life, these sports become boring and tiresome after they have been repeated a certain number of times.

There have been many instances where Halloween pranks overstepped the mark of decency and caused personal injury, both physical and mental. It is this kind of prank which has no place in the life of a child, and measures to combat it should be heartily endorsed. The Community Halloween Party is such a measure—and a good one.

By providing entertainment, a parade, and various other forms of recreation and refreshment, the many organizations of Manassas which annually support the Community Halloween Party are combatting the dangerous elements which occasionally mar Halloween Night. At least a majority of the children of Manassas are furnished with a diversion which is at least equally as interesting as playing pranks all night.

The Halloween Party is a good thing. It deserves the support of every organization in Manassas. Judging by previous years and the program lined up for this year, it has that support and can be truly called an asset to the community.

Dr. Podolnick Explains Health Program At Parent-Teachers Association Meeting

Dr. Nelson Podolnick, Prince William County health officer, outlined the health program in the schools and the part which the Parent-Teachers Association can take in this work at last Thursday night's meeting of the association in the Osborn High School auditorium.

The meeting was called to order at 8 P. M. by the president, Mrs. Leslie Bourne, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Clark Johnson. There was no financial report because of the absence of the treasurer.

Mrs. Dick Graham of the Objectives Committee read six objectives for the year as suggested by the Northern Virginia District of the Parent-Teachers Association. A motion was made and passed that the committee work out its own objectives for the year, keeping in mind the six objectives suggested.

Miss Johnson's Room Wins

An award for obtaining the largest number of members was won by Miss Frances Johnson's room, which turned in $84.60 in membership dues. It was announced by Mrs. Higgs Lewis of the Membership Committee, Mrs. Jane Carter's room took second place in this contest, and Miss Pauline Smith's room was third. The organization obtained 206 members during the drive.

The recent meeting of the Community Council was reported on by Mrs. A. O. Beane of the Civic Committee. She said the council was planning to work toward a community center, and that a survey will be made in an attempt to obtain ideas from the people of the community concerning what they desire in the way of a community center.

There was a discussion of this plan and approval of the project was voiced. Mrs. L. L. Lomas moved that this project be adopted as one of the objectives of the Parent-Teachers Association for the year, and the motion was approved.

Miss Pauline Smith's room was awarded the banner for the month for having the largest number of parents present at the meeting. The meeting then was turned over to Mrs. Warren Coleman, Program Chairman, who introduced Dr. Podolnick.

Follow-Up Work Necessary

Dr. Podolnick explained that the Board of Supervisors had agreed to pay for the health examinations in the schools, but that it was most important that follow-up work be done after these examinations. He pointed out that it is also important that parents of the children be present at the examinations to give facts concerning the child's health, habits, peculiarities, etc.

An agreement has been reached with R. C. Haydon, superintendent of schools, according to Dr. Podolnick, so that school buses may be used to bring children and parents to the examinations. The parents should be taught that they should assume more responsibility concerning the health of their children, he said.

The doctor will explain to the parents what is wrong with the child and what should be done to correct this, the health officer continued. Records concerning the history of the child will be filled out before the doctor's examination to avoid delay at the time of the examination. Notes concerning the recommendations of the doctor should be mailed home to the parents.

Dr. Podolnick said that all defects of the child could be corrected although it may take considerable time.

He suggested several places where the child could be taken to be examined by an oculist, and said that he was trying to obtain the services of an expert ear doctor.

Dental work could be done in Washington if necessary, the health officer commented. The medical profession no longer recommends wholesale tonsillectomies, he added, but there are some cases where it is absolutely necessary that the tonsils be removed.

Hot Lunches Valuable

For orthopedic work the children could be taken to Arlington County, where there is an excellent clinic for children under 18 years of age, Dr. Podolnick said. Concerning nutrition, he said that children in schools where hot lunches are served (as in the local schools) are both healthier and more alert mentally.

Declaring that the county has had an excellent record concerning the correction of defects in children and that our records compare favorably with those of other counties, Dr. Podolnick suggested that children with special defects be referred to Miss Sabina Neel, County Health Department nurse.

Dr. Podolnick said that Dr. Stewart McBryde had agreed to make the physical examinations for the first, fourth, seventh, and tenth grades, the grades which are to be examined this year. He said he believed that in about half the cases of defects transportation will have to be provided or some financial aid given.

He suggested that the Health Committee could aid this work by obtaining transportation, assisting at the time of the examinations, and by assisting with the clerical work which will be required in filling out the health records of the children. One of the most important tasks, he said, will be to acquaint the parents with the case and obtain their cooperation.

Monthly Meeting Held By Bethlehem Club

The Bethlehem Good Housekeepers Club held its monthly meeting last Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Prince William Hotel with Mrs. Clarke Johnson and Mrs. Victor Haydon as hostesses. Thirteen members and one guest were present.

During the business meeting the club voted to contribute to the Yellow Jacket to send copies to boys and girls in the services. An appeal was made for volunteers to sew garments for the Red Cross, and a card was signed by all present to be sent to the secretary, Mrs. Dudley Martin, who has been in the hospital.

After the business session the program committee, consisting of Mrs. Joe Eagle and Mrs. Elizabeth Wine, took charge. Mrs. Eagle introduced Mrs. Len Weston who sang three charming lullabies, accompanied by Mrs. Jack Breeden.

Mrs. Wine entertained the members with an amusing reading of hints to gardeners by a sadder and wiser Victory Gardener. Most of the members seemed to have a fellow feeling as the different vegetables were discussed, not to mention the garden pests.

Delicious refreshments, including some home-made cakes, were served by Mrs. Clarke Johnson, aided by Mrs. R. C. Johnson in the absence of Mrs. Haydon.

Located in Osbourn High School, the library has served for a number of years as a combination public and high school library and has been open each school day from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. and on Thursdays until 5:30 p. m. The Thursday evening hours have been added to these hours for the convenience of those who cannot use the library during the daytime hours.

Peril of Corn Borer Increases in County

A recent survey of corn field in Prince William County by C. R. Willey of the State Department of Agriculture showed that the European corn borer was present in 90 percent of the fields examined. A similar survey made last year by Mr. Willey showed only 30 percent of the crops examined to be infested.

The percentage of infested stalks ranged from 4 to 76 in the different fields inspected in various sections of the county. This is a considerable increase in the presence of the corn borer, which is becoming a menace to corn growers of the county.

Control measures include complete plowing or harrowing under of corn stubble, shredding the fodder, feeding fodder in one place where the residue can be raked up and burned, and ensiling the corn. Manure, unless in a heating condition, will not kill the borers when fodder is used for bedding.

World War II Group Started by Legion

An American Legion committee composed entirely of World War II veterans has been formed to contact recently discharged veterans who wish to become members of the Legion. Chairman of the group is S. Garland Boatwright.

The committee held its first meeting Friday night in Stanley A. Owens' office to hear from the commander of Prince William Post 158, M. S. Burchard, who explained that the Legion needed a committee of younger veterans to further their interests and to bring new blood into the Legion.

Others present at the meeting were James "Dee" Vetter and W. Marshall Johnson. Theodore Ritter, chairman of the Legion's war service committee, also was present and will serve in an advisory capacity to the newly formed group.

News Of 50 Years Ago In Manassas

The following article was printed as a memorial to the late Dr. J. Willet Leache in the Manassas Gazette of March 1, 1895. It is reprinted here as a favor to Mrs. E. B. Gladings, to whom the copy of the paper from which this article is taken belongs:

"The many friends of Dr. Leache, in this county, were much grieved to learn of his death, which occurred on the 21st inst., in Pulaski City, Va., at the home of his son, Mr. C. H. Leache, whom he was visiting at the time.

"Dr. Leache was born on the 10th day of December, 1809, in Rockville, Md., where his earlier life was spent. His family in that section, were prominent and wealthy. During his boyhood days he was a frequent visitor to Georgetown, D. C. (now West Washington) where his father was the president of a bank, and many were the reminiscences he could relate of how in size and commercial importance that town then excelled her rival sister, Washington, the National Capital.

Graduated in Medicine
"Dr. Leache graduated in medicine at Jefferson College in Philadelphia, and to complete his education in his chosen profession spent several years in one of the leading hospitals of New York City. Afterwards he located in Baltimore, Md., and practiced his profession. In that city he married a young lady of wealth and the highest social position, but she was a frail flower and destined soon to fade. She did not survive her marriage more than a year. As her health failed, together they sought to win it back by a visit to some of the famous watering places of Virginia. During one of these visits, great kindness and gentleness was shown to the frail sufferer by Miss Hunton, daughter of Senator Charles Hunton, of Fauquier. Mrs. Leache, who was then in the last stages of consumption, and realized her condition, exacted a promise of her husband, that when she had passed away, he should marry Miss Hunton, if she would consent. When his first love had said 'good night to earth' and passed beyond the stars, he fulfilled his promise by courting Miss Hunton, and was accepted on the condition that he should give up his Baltimore practice and settle in Fauquier County, Va. Dr. Leache was married to Miss Hunton and moved to Fauquier County, where he lived many years enjoying a very large and lucrative practice. In fact his practice was only limited by his ability to attend to it.

"From the union with Miss Hunton, a large number of children were born. Among them are several noted for their literary attainments. After many years of happy married life, he was called to mourn the loss of his second wife, the victim of consumption. Dr. Leache then moved to Front Royal, Va., and practiced his profession. He was there married to Mrs. Armstead (nee Green), the widow of Col. Armstead of C.S.A. and from this union was born C. Lytton Leache, now of Waco, Texas, and Miss Leah Leache, of Manassas, just budding into womanhood and noted for her beauty.

Moved to Brentsville
"In about 1872 Dr. Leache moved from Strasburg, Va., to Brentsville, in this county, where he lived over twenty years, and in fact until he went on a visit fall before last to his son's home in Pulaski City.

"Dr. Leache was a man of fine literary culture, and composed many poems of much beauty. In appearance he was erect, of medium height, and had a fine forehead with open, frank countenance. His manners were courtly, and he might justly be described as a polished and elegant gentleman of the 'old school,' but his most striking feature were his wonderful eyes, bright sparkling and brilliant, especially when lit by emotion.

"Dr. Leache was a genius in medicine. No votary of art, music, poetry, or eloquence ever wooed their mistress with a more intense passion than he his chosen profession.

"The great and crowning feature of Dr. Leache's character was his high and delicate sense of honor, and the steadfastness of his friendships. Those who enjoyed his friendship next to his immediate family realize how great has been their loss and sincerely mourn that they have beheld for the last time, on earth.

"Dr. Leache, though not a member of any church, was yet a believer in the Christian religion and we are informed accepted Christ as his Saviour. During his last years he devoted much time to the study of the Bible."

First Installment of the History of the 200 Years of Dettingen Parish

(Ed. note—The following is the sermon delivered on October 21, 1945, at Trinity Episcopal Church, Manassas, by the Rector, the Rev. Thomas G. Faulkner, Jr. It is a history of the 200 years of Dettingen Parish, the Episcopal Charge in Prince William County. It is being run with the thought that many of the readers of the Manassas Journal will be interested in it from a historical viewpoint, if not from a religious viewpoint.)

Two hundred years ago, in the year 1745, James Genn, with whom George Washington had his first engineering experience in the field, surveyed the Hamilton Dettingen Parish line. This was in accordance with an act of the Virginia Assembly in the previous year, whereby Dettingen Parish was formed from a part of Hamilton Parish which had been taken from Overwharton Parish in 1730. The Parish lines as designated by this act were as follows: "A line to be run from the dividing line of Stafford and Prince William Counties in a straight course to the head of Dorre's Run; thence down the said run to Cedar Run; thence to the fork of Broad Run near the lower line of Colonel Carter's tract called Broad Run Tract; thence to the north of Bull-Lick Run, opposite Jacob Smith's, in Fairfax County."

This newly formed parish was given the name Dettingen in memory of the second battle of Dettingen, in fought on September 27, 1743. In this Beaverline, Germany, which was battle Prince William, Duke of Cumberland, for whom Prince William County is named, was wounded after he and his father, George II, had acquitted themselves with conspicuous gallantry. King George, on foot, at the head of his infantry, completely won the hearts of his subjects and Prince William shared the honors with him. A victory on land by English troops had not been known since the days of Marlborough. The entire county was exultant. Dettingen was the theme of the time in prose and verse, in ballad and song. It was quite fitting, therefore, that a parish created in 1744, within the borders of Prince William County, should be given the name Dettingen.

According to an old Vestry Book dating from 1745, at the time of the actual establishment of Dettingen Parish by the survey, there was "an old and indifferent" church building located near an old warehouse on Quantico Run at Dumfries. This, in all probability, was a chapel of ease built in 1667 under the jurisdiction of Aquia Church. Though this is the only church mentioned in the Vestry Book, Fairfax Harrison mentions in his "Landmarks of Old Prince William" another church at "Ocoquan Ferry," or what is now Woodbridge, built prior to 1745, and probably another near Brent Town, the site of the second courthouse. Whether these were still standing at the time Dettingen Parish was formed is a matter of speculation. If they were standing, they evidently had fallen into disuse, for the Vestry Book of 1745 makes no mention of them. Since this is the case, so far as can be authentically stated, there was only one church building of the Church of England located in Dettingen Parish at the time of its formation.

Evidently there was some peculiar fear and destitution of Peper among original members of Dettingen Parish, for the old Vestry Book begins with following statement to which every vestryman must subscribe: "We do declare that we do believe there is not any transubstantiation in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, or in the elements of bread and wine, at or after the consecration thereof by any person whatsoever." Since, as Bishop Meade suggests, the Papists were making a last effort to regain power in England around 1745, this may explain the reason for this statement. That as may be, the first Vestrymen of Dettingen Parish had to be strict Protestants.

The first rector of Dettingen Parish was the Rev. James Scott. Of him Governor Gooch wrote that he was "a man of discretion, understanding and integrity and in every way qualified to discharge the sacred office satisfactorily." Mr. Scott lived in Stafford County at the time of his election. He agreed to move into Dettingen Parish as soon as a blebe and a house were provided. A glebe of 400 acres on Quantico Creek near Dumfries was purchased for 135 pound sterling from Mr. Thomas Harrison. Mr. Scott began his thirty-seven-year rectorship in 1745.

In 1752 the old church at Dumfries was sold for 1,500 lbs. of tobacco. The same year the following notice, dated April 10, 1752, appeared in the Virginia Gazette:

"To be let to undertakers at a vestry in Dettingen Parish on Whit-sun Tuesday, the 20th of May (or if bad weather the next fair day) two brick or stone churches, to be contained in the clear 1,800 (sq.) ft. Any persons inclinable to undertake one or both may bring their plans and proposals at that time."

Signed: WILLIAM TABBS, LEWIS RENOE

N. B.: There is great plenty of fine stone in said parish."

In same year Mr. Thomas Waite contracted to undertake these two brick churches, one to be at Dumfries (on the same site as the church which burned down in 1934) and the other to be near Broad Run and Slater (Slaty or Slate) Run. (The foundation of this church can be seen today on the land owned by Mr. J. Boyd Beard.) In due time these churches were completed and paid for after a suit had been brought against Mr. Waite for failing to fulfill the contract.

The church at Dumfries, according to the Vestry Book, was to cost 100,000 lbs. of tobacco. No mention is made of the cost of the Broad Run Church, but in all probability this cost the same amount. Mr. Thomas Harrison, the County Lieutenant, it seems was most influential, both financially and otherwise, in the construction of this church. Bishop Meade notes that Mr. Harrison had a gallery constructed in the Broad Run Church for the use of his family. The Vestry had others constructed which were sold to the "rich and noble" families of the community. The regular pews were for the common folk. As Bishop Meade says, it was many years before the aristocrats could be persuaded to come down from their high perches and mingle with the common folk.

Bishop Meade mentions one very unusual fact in connection with the Broad Run Church, namely, that provision is made in the Vestry Book for this payment of the sexton to make fires. If this referred to fires in the Church, then the Broad Run Church was unique among the colonial churches, for they seldom had any provision for heating. Nothing was done gratuitously by any members of the churches in Dettingen Parish or elsewhere. Layreaders, clerks and other officials were regularly paid as shown by the Vestry Book. Furthermore, the Vestry acted as the welfare board of the community. Records of regular payments to persons for the care of orphans or illegitimate children are found in the Vestry Book. Such children were known as indentured and were bound to the person caring for them until they reached the age of twenty-one years. The master in each case was closely supervised and required to instruct persons under his care in the principles of the Christian religion.

Rev. James Scott remained rector of Dettingen Parish until his death in 1782. Nothing is known of the size of the congregation at Dumfries and Broad Run during his rectorship. In all probability they were quite sizable until the Revolutionary War when the Established Church fell into disrepute among the patriots. How greatly this affected Dettingen Parish we do not know. All we know is that in 1782 the Vestry was able to call another man, the Rev. John Scott, son of the Rev. James Scott. John Scott had been back in this country a few years, having for many years been living in England as a result of his connection with a duel. He was rector of Dettingen Parish only a short time when he died in 1783.

In 1784, Rev. Spence Grayson, who had been Chaplain of Grayson's Additional Regiment in the Continental Army during the Revolution, became Rector of the parish. He continued in this capacity until his death in 1798. Since the Vestry Book ends in 1785, little definite is known about the Church in Dettingen Parish until about the middle of the nineteenth century.

Mr. Grayson was succeeded by the Rev. Thomas Harrison in 1798 and remained Rector until 1810 (or 1802), when he died. The Rev. Charles O'Neill succeeded him and continued as Rector until 1811. He left after failing to resuscitate the church at Dumfries. From 1811 to 1816 there seems to have been a period when Dettingen Parish was without a Rector. In 1816 the Rev. William Steele became rector. Most of his efforts seem to have been concentrated at Brentsville, the new location of the courthouse, where he built a small church in 1822. (What happened to the Broad Run Church near old Brent Town is a matter of speculation. It may have been destroyed or abandoned during the Revolutionary War or when the courthouse was moved to Dumfries.) The last years of Mr. Steele's Rectorship found Rev. Thomas G. Allen, 1818-1820, and Rev. Stephen Prestman, 1823, laboring at Dumfries. According to the Diocesan Journal of these years there were no more than thirty communicants at either Brentsville or Dumfries. Mr. Steele resigned from his work in Dettingen Parish in 1823.

Following Mr. Steele's departure there seems to have been a lapse of twelve years during which time Dettingen Parish had the services of no regular minister. In all probability it was during this period that the brick church at Dumfries was abandoned (because of its condition) and as Bishop Meade states the old court house was fitted up for worship, but was abandoned later because of the lack of worshippers. From 1835 to 1836, when his health failed and he resigned, the Rev. Philip Slaughter was minister of Dettingen and Leeds Parish (i.e., Dettingen and Haymarket, which was in Leeds Parish). Bishop Meade notes that he "preached with more success at Brentsville, the new county seat, and at Haymarket in the old courthouse building that had been purchased and converted into a handsome and convenient temple of religion." In this connection Bishop Meade says that while he was preaching at Haymarket, horses could be seen being made ready for racing on the race track near the church.

A history of Dettingen Parish prior to 1836 would not be complete without making mention of Macon Locke Weems whom Bishop Meade classified as an "oddy." Macon Weems or "Parsons Weems" as he later became known was born in Maryland in 1759. He with Edward Garrett, Jr., had the distinction of being the first citizens of the United States to receive ordination to the priesthood by the Church of England. In this connection it is interesting to note Mr. Weems' connection with the American Episcopate. Before he could be ordained by the Church of England, Parliament had to pass an act empowering English bishops to ordain candidates who were to exercise their ministry in lands other than those owning allegiance to the crown. Through Weems' influence this act was passed on August 13, 1834 and that fall on September 12, Weems and Garrett were ordained. As a result of this act and the subsequent ordinations, the way was open and made more easy for the consecration of Samuel Seabury as the first Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States in November, 1784.

Mason Weems returned to this country after his ordination and became Rector of Mount Vernon Church. However, because of his eccentricities—among them being a fondness for telling jokes in the pulpit—he gave up the regular ministry and devoted his entire attention to writing and peddling books and pamphlets. Among his writing is a quaint biography of George Washington, in which is to be found, for the first time, the legend of the cherry tree and the boy who could not tell a lie. Parson Weems also wrote an abridged Bible, for reading to children, as well as numerous pamphlets such as "The Drunkard's Looking Glass" and "The Bad Wife's Looking Glass", which were profusely illustrated. All of them he peddled over the countryside in various states. He married Miss Fannie Ewell, daughter of Jesse Ewell of "Bel Air" in Prince William County. When he died in South Carolina in 1825, his remains were brought back and interred at "Bel Air" where they lie today. This ended the life of Parson

Weems, a most unusual character whose life was closely associated with the religious life of Dettingen Parish in its early years.

After the Rev. Philip Slaughter gave up his work in Dettingen Parish in 1836, the parish was without a rector until 1838 when the Rev. William Scull became minister of St. James' at Brentville and St. Paul's at Haymarket. Dumfries seems to have been without a rector and for a number of years St. James at Brentville seems to have been the only regular place of worship in Dettingen Parish. Mr. Scull stayed only one year. He was succeeded in 1839 by the Rev. John Towles who became Rector of Dettingen as well as Leeds Parish, serving both St. James, Brentsville, and St. Paul's, Haymarket. Under his leadership Bishop Meade states that "a new and excellent stone church was built at Brentsville". According to Bishop Meade, in 1857 the old church at Dumfries was in ruins. While on a visit there he was presented with four pieces of well-worn church plate, one piece of which is at the Diocesan office in Richmond at this time.

Mr. Towles owned his own home, "Vaucluse" near Brentsville. The following is taken from a short sketch of his life written by his daughter, Ella Towles Poole: "Mr. Towles was a Virginia Seminary man. His churches were St. Paul's, Haymarket, and St. James, Brentsville, and various other missions as at Ocoquan, Dumfries, Manassas and near Dumblane, the home of the Ewells at the foot of the Bull Run Mountains. In 1862 'Vaucluse' was taken as headquarters for a Northern general, which forces Mr. Towles to refuge with his family (those who were not in the service) to his native count of Lancaster. There he gave St. Mary's White Chapel his services until the war (which took the lives of three of his sons), had almost ended. Hear that the enemy had left 'Vaucluse', and feeling homesick for his old parish, his beloved parishioners, and his home, he came back to Prince William in 1864, and again took up his ministerial work. He found his two churches dismantled and indeed wrecked by the war. They had been used as hospitals and barracks. He preached in school houses and in private homes until 1867, when, receiving a call to Maryland and seeing no chance of a restoration of the churches, he resigned his beloved parish and moved to Maryland."

According to a sketch of Dettingen Parish found in Mrs. C. A. Sinclair's history of Trinity Church, "in 1865 there was nothing left of St. James Church, Brentsville, except the walls and roof. The building had been stripped of windows, doors and floors. This building was partially restored through Mr. Towles' efforts. He was assisted in the work by the people of Brentsville, especially by Mr. Allen Howison, whose family was among the few Episcopal families left in the community. Windows, doors and floor were partially restored and the building was occasionally used by Mr. Towles and other ministers of the Piedmont Convocation, among whom were William Dame and John McGill." (Ed. note—Because of its length, the history of Dettingen Parish will be concluded in next week's issue of the Journal.)

3 Persons Are Hospitalized, 5 Injured Slightly In Three Automobile Accidents Over Weekend

Three persons were hospitalized, five more were injured slightly and a Negro from Gainesville has been fined $155 and costs for three traffic violations, as a result of three different automobile accidents in Prince William County over the weekend.

Oslia Johnson, Negro, of Gainesville was fined $100 and costs and had his driving privilege revoked for a year for drunken driving, was fined $50 and sentenced to 15 days in jail for hit-and-run driving, and was fined $5 and costs for driving without a permit by Trial Justice C. Lacey Compton Monday as a result of an accident near Gainesville Sunday afternoon.

The accident occurred just west of the railroad crossing in Gainesville on Highway 211 about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, according to State Trooper P. P. Herndon. A car driven by Johnson, going toward Washington, ran into the rear of a car driven by two ladies from Arlington, also going toward Washington, Trooper Herndon said.

After getting out of his car at the scene of the accident, Johnson ran into some bushes and was not found for half an hour, Trooper Herndon said. The ladies were not hurt, and property damage to the cars was slight.

Three Negroes were kept in Emergency Hospital, Washington, and another was released after treatment as a result of another accident about an hour earlier on Sunday afternoon at Stone House, Trooper Herndon said. The accident occurred about 3 p. m. at the intersection of Highway 234 and 211.

James E. Pollard, Negro, and his wife and the Rev. Radford, Negro, and his wife, of Rochelle, Va., were taken to the hospital by Baker's Ambulance after the car in which they were riding was struck by a milk truck belonging to C. C. E. Strothers of Culpeper and driven by Byrd Frazier of Remington.

According to Trooper Herndon, the milk truck was on the left side of the highway when it struck the car, which was driven by Pollard. Frazier was booked on a charge of reckless driving and will appear in Trial Justice Court on November 5.

The third accident occurred on Highway 234 about two miles south of Manassas, when a car owned by Ella Nave, 25, of Weedonsville, Va., was driven by her husband, Harry Nave, 35, also of Weedonsville, struck a car driven by Dolpus H. Poole, Jr., of Manassas, according to Trooper Herndon.

Trooper Herndon said both cars were going in the same direction when the car driven by Mr. Nave attempted to pass the car driven by Mr. Polen as Mr. Polen was making a left turn into the driveway of his home. The Nave car hit the Polen car on the left rear fender and body with its right front fender and bumper, Trooper Herndon said.

Injured in the accident, all slightly with cuts and bruises, were Harrison Nave, Jr., 7; Joan Nave, 3; Larry Nave, 4; and Homer Nave, 43, all of Weedonsville. Both drivers were booked on a charge of reckless driving and will appear in Trial Justice Court on Monday, October 29, Trooper Herndon said.

and on the next play Vetter went the remaining 15 yards for a touchdown. Jacobs' kickoff went to the Aldie 26 and it was returned to the 37. Al Armistead Sinclair intercepted the die completed a 13-yard pass, but next one on the Osborn 40-yard stripe and raced it back to the 45 as the third quarter ended.

Starting the fourth quarter, Burke went all the way to the Aldie 23-yard line on a reverse. On the next play, Vetter faked a reverse and ran 23 yards through the whole Aldie team for his second touchdown of the afternoon. Vetter then passed to Bobby Lynburner, sub end, for the extra point.

One-Man Show by Stickle

Bobby Stickle, sub halfback, personally engineered Osborn's final score of the game. He kicked off to Aldie's 30 and the kick was returned to the 40. Bert Roseberry intercepted a pass on Osborn's 45-yard stripe and returned to the Aldie 48.

After Osborn failed to gain, Stickle went to work. He kicked to Aldie on the 25-yard line and got down under the punt so fast that he recovered at that point when the Aldie safety man fumbled the kick. On the first play, Stickle went all the way to the 6-inch line before he was halted. After two line plays failed, Stickle rolled over Williams at tackle for the final touchdown. The try for the extra point was blocked.

Jacobs kicked off to the Aldie 25-yard line and it was returned to the 35-yard stripe as the game ended with Osborn out in front, 39-0.

The line play of William, Sinclair, and Earl Breeden was especially outstanding as Aldie was forced to take to the air to gain any yardage at all. Every time an aerial drive seemed imminent, however, Osborn came up with an interception to stall it.

Backfield Runs Wild

Osborn's backfield ran wild during the entire game for 323 yards, 341 of them on the ground, and nine first downs compared to Aldie's five first downs and 56 yards gained, 52 of them on passes.

Burke was the leading ground gainer with 103 yards in nine attempts for an average of 11.4 yards every time he carried the ball. Vetter picked up 93 yards in nine attempts, an average of 10.3 yards a try. Batschelet gained 24 yards, Stickle 20, Roseberry went for 18, and Andrus picked up 8.

Osborn's next game will be played tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at Marshall. The Blue and Gold eleven defeated Marshall, 20-0, here three weeks ago and is hopeful of making it two straight over the Loudoun County boys and four straight for the season since forfeiting the opening game to Falls Church.

Magician Entertains As Kiwanis Members Stare Open Mouthed

Paper turned into eggs, goldfish materialized practically out of thin air, ducks appeared from people's clothing, and a lamp rose out of a table at last Friday night's meeting of the Kiwanis Club as the members stared open-mouthed at the tricks conjured up by magician George Weisenel.

Brought to the meeting as a guest of "Bill" Saylor, who was in charge of the program, Mr. Weisenel amazed his audience with his feats of magic. He is a member of the Society of American Magicians and the International Brotherhood of Magicians.

Time Changes Again

The Kiwanis Club is getting to be almost as confusing as the lady and the dog on Center Street except that nobody's life is at stake. After voting to change the weekly meeting time from 7 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. two weeks ago, the Kiwanians reached a temporary compromise agreement at last week's meeting and the time is now 6:45 p. m., effective immediately.

Mrs. Kitty Baker was the first victim when Mr. Weisenel pulled a handkerchief from her dress, and C. Lacey Compton became a later victim when the magician pulled a duck from the back of his coat. Kiwanis President J. Carl Kincheloe probably had the most anxious moments, however.

When the magician requested a bill, it was Mr. Kincheloe who brought forth a five-spot and then apparently watched it burned to ashes. Mr. Weisenel, however, eventually found the bill in his wallet, bound by rubber bands, in between two small tin plates, also bound by rubber bands.

Nominations Committee Chosen

Before the program, Mr. Kincheloe appointed a nominations committee composed of Hunton Tiffany, Edgar G. Parrish and Mr. Compton to bring in names for the election of officers. These names will be read at this week's meeting, and the elections will be held the following week.

Members of the Boys and Girls Committee and the Underprivileged Children's Committee met after the regular session to discuss plans for the annual Community Halloween Party of which R. Jackson Ratcliffe is chairman.

Two new members, Leslie Bourne and W. Marshall Johnson, were inducted by R. Worth Peters, who pointed out to Kiwanians that he had taught both in different schools, Occoquan and Manassas.

Among the guests introduced were Luther Alpaugh, Earl Young, Ashby White, and Jackie Saylor.

Shoemaker, Mulholland Given Army Discharges

Sergeant James R. Shoemaker and T-5 Raymond T. Mulholland, both of Manassas, have been discharged from the Army recently. Mulholland was released at Fort Meade, Md.

Shoemaker, who served 11 months and 8 days in the European Theater with the 84th "Rail-Splitters" Division, fought in some of the toughest battles in Germany and received several outstanding awards. He sent home and brought back with him quite a collection of souvenirs from France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

Large Fish Caught

The largest big-mouth bass caught in this section was landed Sunday by Keith Cook of Goldvein, Va., while fishing in Lake Jackson. The bass weighed seven pounds and measured two feet. Cook used artificial bait and fished from a motorboat.

Cleveland H. Flory Earns Second Award Of Bronze Star Medal

Technician Third Grade Cleveland H. Flory, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Flory, was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroic achievement on March 8, 1945. Again Cleveland has gone beyond the call of duty and has been awarded a Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster. His citation reads as follows:

"Technician Third Grade Cleveland H. Flory, Medical Department of the 7th Inf. Div., U. S. A. For heroic achievement in connection with military operations against the enemy on April 28, 1945, during the Okinawa Island operation. When during the assault on an enemy strong point in the Kochi sector, a call for litter bearers came to the battalion aid station in which Technician Flory served, he volunteered to take a litter squad to the front lines to evacuate the wounded. Enroute the squad came under intense fire from both sides of the valley which they were seeking to traverse, and were forced to take cover. Technician Flory, realizing that delay might cost lives, took an aid kit and litter and crawled forward alone to the side of the wounded men.

After treating the wounded, he ordered his squad forward to assist him in evacuating those who could not walk. His courage and leadership, displayed under fire, was an inspiration to those who witnessed the action and reflected great credit upon Technician Flory and the military service."

Chamber of Commerce Holds Weekly Meeting

The Prince William County Chamber of Commerce held its weekly meeting Tuesday at the Prince William Hotel with the president, C. C. Cloe, in charge.

President Cloe announced that the Quantico Chamber was holding a dance at the Dumfries School tomorrow (Friday) night and that all members of the Prince William Chamber were invited to attend.

It was announced that a speaker from the Office of Price Administration would be present at next week's meeting to discuss the OPA's proposal to place ceiling prices on old and new houses.

J. Carl Kincheloe announced the annual Community Halloween Party to be held next Wednesday, and also reminded members of the Chamber of the horse show to be held Sunday, November 4.

It was suggested by C. W. Alpaugh that the program committee work out a program for each week. Mr. Alpaugh also suggested that the Chamber set up a board of directors, and it was agreed to discuss this proposal at a later meeting.

War Fund Quota

The war is over, but the peace has not yet been won, and until this is done, our job on the home front is not finished. We must continue to help—not only our own people, but those of our Allies.

A few thousand dollars is a very small price to pay for our share of the peace that our soldiers fought for so valiantly—and when 17,000 residents of Prince William County chip in to raise this amount, it will mean a very small portion for each one and the dividend from such an investment will be a lasting satisfaction in realizing that we had a little share in sustaining the morale of our servicemen and relieving the suffering of war victims after the war was over.

civilian home service, reported that her committee had a balance of $127.74, but that the committee had received very few requests from needy persons requiring shoes.

A continuing need for scrap yarn still exists, according to the Rev. Thomas G. Faulkner, Jr., who reported as chairman of the camp and hospital service. He reported that the Blue Ridge Camp and Hospital service Council had received few requests, but that articles had been sent to some of the hospitals in this area.

After Mr. Faulkner said there was a need for gifts for some 100,000 servicemen who will be on the high seas at Christmas, Mrs. Marsteller introduced a motion which passed authorizing Mr. Faulkner to investigate the needs and carry out any practical suggestion along that line.

Miss Sue Ayres reported 100 percent of the school children in the community had joined the Junior Red Cross and said that a council, made up of a representative of each school, was being set up along lines similar to the County Red Cross executive board.

To Make Afghan

About 75 boxes have been prepared by the children to be shipped by October 15, Miss Ayres reported, and she continued that the Junior Red Cross has plans under way to purchase wool with which to make an afghan.

Explaining that one of the needs of the Junior Red Cross is some method of telling the children what their projects are accomplishing, Miss Ayres said that she had received a letter from the captain of a battleship saying that the Christmas menus prepared last year had been used aboard his ship.

Mrs. E. D. Wissler reported that 93 men's sleeveless sweaters and numerous mufflers and gloves had been prepared by her committee and mailed to destinations requested by higher Red Cross headquarters.

Healthy Young Boy Will Be Depicted On Christmas Seals

A healthy young boy, symbol of the youth of America, is depicted on the 1945 Christmas Seals which have arrived at headquarters of the Prince William County Tuberculosis Association, according to Mrs. Frank D. Cox, seal sale chairman. The seals will be distributed throughout the county as part of a Nation-wide campaign to be conducted between November 19 and December 25 to raise funds for tuberculosis control.

"Funds raised throughout the country," Mrs. Cox said, "will be used principally to support local health programs. All but five percent is spent within the State in which it is raised. The five percent is forwarded to the National Tuberculosis Association, the parent body of 2,500 voluntary tuberculosis associations.

"Since tuberculosis is a communicable disease, it is more than a local problem and must be attacked on all fronts. Though local associations are autonomous, they may draw upon the experience and advice of the National and also benefit from medical research supported by the National.

"The National Association was organized in 1904 by a group of laymen and physicians who, alarmed by the tuberculosis mortality in this country, banded together to plan a campaign against the disease. At that time, tuberculosis was the leading cause of death. It now has fallen to seventh place, but still kills more persons between 15 and 45 than any other disease."
