A new religious congregation, the Manassas Home Church, will hold its first service on Easter Sunday, about 2 1/2 miles outside Manassas on Route 28, near the intersection of Route 28 and the Manassas Turnpike. According to the pastor, "there will be good singing and old-time preaching. A religious service will be held on Easter Sunday, April 15, at 10 a. m. on, come all."

Furnishing of the new V.F.W. headquarters is going on apace. In fact, the post in Manassas is talking in terms of furnishing. Gene Worley has asked that the post be willing to donate sofas, tables, etc., get in touch with him or with the post commander, Archie Jordan.

Robert Cornell, Jr., writes from Manassas that he has been promoted to private first class to corporal in the Air Force, and that he has been made assistant shop chief at the base on the mid-Pacific. Cornell, son of the manager of R. J. Wayland's store in Manassas, has been in Guam for the last six months and reports that he "likes it fine."

Sergeant John E. Embrey, of the 101st Airborne Division, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Embrey, of Manassas. "Good news" release from the Air Force in Japan, Embrey, the sergeant, is on his way back to states for discharge. A 1947 date of Calverton High, Embrey has been in Japan since December of 1945.

John Jones, 6, of York, Pa., did not get home from school Monday. His mother called the principal of the school and found out about Matthew's whereabouts and learned that he had been in Manassas when he was taken to the hospital. Matthew was taken to a friend's house, watched television. At last reports he was replying at leisure what he had Monday in haste.

The Chamber of Commerce gets away from Manassas County to the famous forsythia as Manassas is for poppies. At its weekly meeting, the chamber designated Mrs. Stewart McBryde, Edgar Parrish and Mrs. Esmeralda Wightman as a committee to select homeowners in planting and selling the attractive, early-blooming yellow flowers.

More vernal news: the flower display in the window of Keith Lyons' bouquet Mart in Manassas is well worth looking at. Especially at night, when floodlights bring out the white beauty of every imaginable Easter flower.

Credit where credit is due comes from Miss Alice Whittemer of the grade, John Marshall school, Arlington. Miss Whittemer, a basketball player for her class, has written Jim Meyers, superintendent of the battlefield park, to thank him for the lovely time we had at the museum and battlefield on March 15. "I think we all enjoyed the electric map more than anything there," she wrote. "It was raining that day, and she thanked Meyers, too, for letting the bus eat its lunches in the building."

Health Center Seen Facing Pigeon Holing

The plan for a public health center in Manassas as a memorial to Prince William County's World War II dead appeared headed for a pigeon hole this week for at least another year. Final action on the question of what to do about such a center was scheduled to come up at a Thursday meeting of the Board of Supervisors, and a decision to solve the matter for a year was considered likely.

On Tuesday, the Chamber of Commerce voted, 6 to 0, at a meeting, to urge the board to exclude appropriations for construction of the health center from this year's budget.

Confusion about the status of the health center meanwhile beclouded the future of the building, which was originally envisioned shortly after the war as a place where all residents of Prince William County could receive emergency medical aid and such rare services as X-rays.

At least three efforts in as many years have been made to raise funds for the memorial health center. With a total of about $23,500 now raised, the fund is still short about $8,000 of the amount needed to provide the local share of cost of a $71,000 health center.

Whether the center will ever be built in any form is still a big question mark. That it will not be built in the form in which it was originally conceived is definite. The state and federal governments, which will give a total of 55 percent of the cost for certain types of health center, will not participate in one of the type for which money was solicited from the public here. In effect, the type of health center for which federal aid is available would be a new quarters for the

Father Gives A. W. Sinclair Oath As Judge

Arthur W. Sinclair of Manassas was sworn in Saturday as the first associate judge of the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit.

Sinclair's father, County Treasurer C. A. Sinclair administered the oath by which the young Manassas lawyer undertook to "support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the State of Virginia and faithfully and impartially perform" all duties in connection with the judgeship. Both Sinclairs were visibly moved.

Judge Paul H. Brown, senior jurist of the circuit, presided at the ceremony, which was held at 11 o'clock Saturday morning in the court room. About 65 persons attended, among them most of the lawyers of Prince William County.

After the swearing-in, Attorney H. T. Davies addressed Judge Sinclair in the name of the Prince William Bar Association and presented a handsome leather brief case to the new judge.

"On behalf of the bar," Davies said, "I now present this brief case in the hope that it will be great service to you. I wish also to express our deep gratification and the hope and expectation that your service will be an honor to the state."

Replying to Davies' presentation address, Sinclair thanked the members of the bar and "all my friends who have come out here today." Smiling slightly, he looked at the brief case and added:

"I wondered yesterday what I would get big enough to carry the Fairfax docket in. Now I have what I need."

Sinclair added that to say he was "honored and scared" would be a masterpiece of understatement. "I can assure you," he added, "that every day I serve on the bench my efforts in cooperation with Judge Brown will be for the continued fair and impartial administration of justice."

The oath administered by the elder Sinclair covered two consecutive terms, the first running until Feb. 1, 1951, and the second for the eight years following that date.

After the ceremony, Judge Sinclair was honored at a luncheon given by the Bar Association at Stone House Inn.

12 Killed, 259 Hurt in Autos Here in 1949

Twelve persons were killed and 259 injured in motor vehicle accidents in Prince William County in 1949, according to official State Police statistics made available Wednesday by Trooper P. P. Herndon. Property damage in 317 reported accidents totaled $92,345.

The detailed report showed the statewide totals to be: accidents, 16,707; deaths, 810; injuries, 17,850; and property damage, $10,580,409. Of the county mishaps, 273 occurred on primary highways and 44 on secondary roads, but seven of the 12 fatalities occurred on secondary roads.

The meticulously detailed report broke down data on the accidents in every conceivable way. Highlights:

Nine of the 12 dead were male and three female; ten were white, two Negro; eight were under 35, three were over that age, and the age of one was not stated.

Six of the 259 injuries were suffered by infants under 4 years old and 42 of those hurt were under 20 years of age.

Six accidents involved pedestrians, but no fatalities occurred in these accidents. Of the six pedestrians hurt, five were crossing not at intersections, three of them during the hours of darkness.

There were 505 drivers involved in the 317 accidents, 4 of them in the 12 fatalities. Giving the lie to some popular beliefs about young persons and women as drivers, 312 of the 505 drivers were between 25 and 55 years of age, and 476 were men. All fourteen drivers involved in fatal accidents were males. By

County-Wide Unit of Guard Near Reality

A National Guard unit for Prince William County came a step nearer to reality this week following a recruiting and financing questions were discussed. The meeting, called by M. S. Burchard, representing the American Legion, attracted 19 civic leaders from all parts of Prince William County.

On motion of R. Jackson Ratcliffe, the group decided to form a recruiting committee composed of

If You Want to Join The National Guard—

If you are a male, between 18 and 35, with or without prior military service, and would like to apply for membership in the National Guard unit being formed in Prince William County, get in touch with one of the following persons:

The Rev. E. Guthrie Brown, Manassas.

Billy Hale, Nokesville.
Charlton E. Gnad, Quantico.
Or go next Monday night to the American Legion Hall, Center Street, Manassas, where your application will be received. Annual pay rates for enlisted men in the National Guard range from $163.17 to $617.40. Prior military service is counted toward longevity, and opportunities for advancement are good.

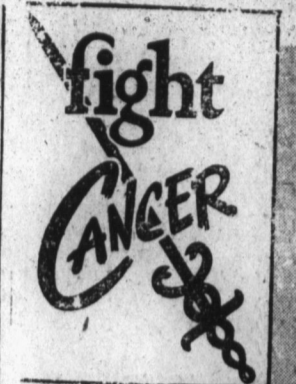

The Rev. E. Guthrie Brown, chairman; Billy Hale, and Charlton Gnad, as soon as full recruiting information is available, Hale will canvass the Osborn and Brensville High schools and Knadt will visit the Occoquan District High school, to seek members for a guard unit. Legion posts in Manassas and Quantico will be invited to supply experienced former officers and noncommissioned officers for the outfit.

According to Burchard, state National Guard officials from Richmond have indicated that Prince William County can have a 40-mile unit with aircraft battery provided that suitable housing for the unit is furnished. Full strength of such a unit is six officers and 125 enlisted men, but the organization can get under way with only two officers

Council Asks Public View On Fast Time

The Manassas Town Council has asked for an expression of opinion on the issue of daylight saving time for Manassas this year, and has requested that The Journal conduct a poll of public opinion on the subject.

Mayor Harry Davis and Vice-Mayor G. Wallace Hook indicated last week that fast time will be adopted by the town if popular sentiment shows that daylight saving time is desired. In order to determine the nature of public feeling, The Journal is printing at the bottom of this page this week a blank which readers may fill in and mail to The Journal for forwarding to the Town Council. Duplicates of the blanks published in this newspaper will be distributed among Manassas merchants, and shoppers may fill in blanks and leave them with these merchants for subsequent collection.

In agreeing to conduct the poll The Journal insisted that the Town Council entertain expressions of opinion from all Prince William countians, are not only residents of Manassas.

If adopted, Daylight Saving Time here will begin at 2 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, April 30, and will continue through the last Saturday in September. Adoption is contingent not only on public feeling ## Discovery of three mysterious graves in an isolated pine woods five and a half miles east of Buck-hall this week spurred county authorities to investigation of a possible triple murder or existence of a weird, Druid-like cult.

The graves, carefully mounded and marked by tree-branch crosses, were found on Sunday by a Manassas family which had walked into the woods in search of spring flowers. They were located some 1,250 feet in from Route 663 on the land known as the old Davis place, now owned by Brown & Hooff lumber company. The eerie surroundings indicated that the graves might have been dug for felonious purposes, but other things in the immediate vicinity pointed to the site's possible past use by a strange cult. Report was made to Sheriff John P. Kerlin and Commonwealth Attorney Stanley Owens.

On Wednesday afternoon, Kerlin, accompanied by William M. Hines, Sr., editor-manager of The Manassas Journal, visited the site. Kerlin deputized Hines to open the graves and to report to the sheriff immediately if he discovered remains in the graves.

Hines, his son and Photographer Howard Churchill returned to the gravesite the same afternoon, carrying with them picks and shovels. Churchill took photographs of the graves in case they turned out to be needed as evidence, and after he made his pictures, the two newspapermen examined the graves closely and began exhumation operations.

The three graves were located approximately 150 feet back from a narrow lumber road, and at the end of a path delineated by parallel lines of felled saplings. It was his clearly-marked pathway that

Charts Aid Given

By G. Wallace Hook

Easter Scals speak! Yes, Easter Scals speak through the more than 500 Virginia children possessing speech handicaps which were aided during the past year through grant and assistance provided by the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults in its statewide program in speech correction.

The services provided, were of two types, diagnostic and remedial. Among the diagnostic services were seven clinics conducted in Newport News, Lynchburg, Danville, Bristol, Bedford, Fincastle, and Waynesboro. The clinics were arranged by the speech specialists of the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Benjamin S. Andrews and James A. Hageman, and conducted by the staff of the University Speech Clinic.

These projects served to supplement and reinforce the regularly scheduled clinic program by supplying services to areas which otherwise might not have been covered. The highlight of the remedial program for 1949 was the organization of the first annual speech improvement summer camp, Camp Woodrow Wilson. This camp, accommodating twenty-five children in spacious quarters at the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center at Fishersville, was sponsored jointly by the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults and the University of Virginia.

The success of its eight-week program assured its continuation in 1950. As to the academic program in speech correction, the critical shortage of trained personnel is the most serious problem facing the profession at the present time. But the program at the University of Virginia, in doubling the number of students in training within the space of one year, is one sign which may be used to gain a new ray of hope and optimism that the demand eventually will be met. To provide an incentive to enter this field of specialization, the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults provided seventeen scholarships for Virginia teachers last summer. These teachers and other previous recipients of the awards are teaching in many school divisions and are now aiding hundreds of speech handicapped children.

Handy Dyeing Chart

Here's helpful information for the wise home maker to keep in mind before sending garments to her cleaning shop for dyeing. Garment Dyers Guild of America compiled this information.

Materials to be dyed yellow and tan can only be dyed over very pale shades. The colors of the garments or materials sent in to be dyed grey or light shades must be lighter than the color desired. White materials can be dyed any shade, providing there are no stains or sunburns. Black can only be re-dyed black. Corduroy does not dye black as well as colors.

Faded materials as a rule can be dyed several shades darker than their original tones. On materials that are very badly faded, navy blue or black is recommended. There is considerable risk involved in dyeing spots on silks that have been rubbed causing material to be chafed. All garments should be measured before dyeing.

ner party at Colchester Inn on Saturday night were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Jule Knad, Mr. and Mrs. Waddell Fraley, Elizabeth Gladys, Elmer Jacelyn, and Dorothy Bawner, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pick, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Sewell and Mr. Kenneth Steele.

KING-BRAWNER

Miss Joyce K. Bawner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Bawner, and Staff Sgt. Edwin King, U.S.M.C. of Dixie, Georgia, were married at the Post Chapel in Quantico on Friday afternoon, March 31. Mr. and Mrs. Elwood McInerney attended the bride and groom. Chaplain Brennenman performed the double ring ceremony. The bride wore a light beige suit with navy blue accessories and wore a gardenia corsage. Mrs. McInerney wore a navy blue suit with navy accessories and pink roses corsage. The couple spent the weekend in Luray, Va. at the Mimsy Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvan Keys have as their guests from Worcester, Mass., Mrs. George DerFallo and son, Billy who are here on a two weeks visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Smith had as their dinner guests on Friday, Mrs. M. E. Brennen and Mrs. D. C. Thornton from Hillsdale, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover King had as their guests on Sunday, their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy King and their two children, from Alexandria.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Garland visited Mr. Garland's mother, who is ill in Milford, Va., on Wednesday.

More Brevities

To set the record straight: Mrs. Fred Shepherd, our Nokesville correspondent, asks us to point out that the Nokesville Senior Women's club donated all refreshments for blood donors at the recent Bloodmobile day in Nokesville. She so reported last week, and we changed her copy, on advice of a Red Cross spokesman, to give credit for donating to the Occoquan Red Cross canteen. At any rate, the Occoquan group was instrumental in helping out the Red Cross folk on bloodmobile day. Further clarification: The Nokesville Junior Women's club donated luncheon for staff members.

For the information of all who like dogs around the place (and who do not, except cats?) the Old Dominion Kennel Club is announcing an all-bred dog show to be held April 22 at Alexandria. If you would like to enter your dog, get in touch with Mrs. Albert Ellis at Falls Church 1607.

Real springtime weather like this week's make one think of Alfred Noyes' lines. "The cherry trees are seas of bloom and soft perfume and sweet perfume; the cherry trees are seas of bloom, and oh! so near to London." Not exactly cherry trees perhaps and about 3,000 miles from London, but tree blossoms are beautiful in gait all over. A beautiful display of white blossoms—pear blossoms, a dirt-dobber tells us—showed up Tuesday behind the Stonewall Jackson Hotel.

By LEE ROY PETERS

I cannot help but pass along to you some of the enthusiasm expressed by the advertisers in the Shoppers and Buyers Guide. From every quarter I have received comment that your interest as readers in the products they advertise has been beyond their expectations.

It is interesting to chat with Mr. W. C. Merchant of the Firestone store, on Potomac avenue in Quantico. He has such a wide variety of appliances that a study of them really makes one appreciate what is being done these days to make work easier in the home and for that matter to bring entertainment into the home. This applies to both the Hot Point appliances and the Motorola television sets which Mr. Merchant carries. Of course Firestone means tires and automobile accessories so there is nothing in the way of transportation comfort that Mr. Merchant is unable to furnish.

You should meet W. S. Borne, of the Nation-Wide Grocery. Mr. Borne is an authority on the things that go to furnish a good meal. This week he is giving special attention to freshly dressed chicken ready for the pan. And what would Easter be without the traditional ham? Mr. Borne is aware that an Easter without ham wouldn't really be Easter and he has a plentiful supply of Esskay and Cudahy for every family in this end of the county.

I have found the kiddies looking in the windows at the Stevens Store in Quantico at the Easter bunnies and other delights of the season. Lou Ferlazzo, the proprietor, has a knack about getting just the right things and at the right prices so it is not difficult for you to find a bargain there.

Willie Williams of the Dixie Grill calls his noon day meal a luncheon, but it is really a full meal because he is very generous with the portions served. He features this luncheon Monday through Friday and the popularity of his idea is attested by the great numbers of persons who drop in from all over Quantico, Triangle and from the Marine Base. I'll bet if you try one of his Southern Bar-B-Ques you will come back again and again.

When I am not selling advertising, writing this column, or gathering news for the Manassas Journal I work at the Paris Auto Company, with their car sales department they operate one of the most modern and complete repair shops in all Virginia. May I suggest a bumper to bumper check up on the old car before you take it out for those long rides these coming spring days.

Fred Kitchner is a friendly soul. He runs Fred's Electric Shop and is the authorized General Electric dealer of Prince William County. You can count that Fred is an expert in all lines of appliances because otherwise he would not be the General Electric representative. Fred tells me that the new GE television set with the rectangle tube is something to see, and I am willing to believe him. I suggest you drop in to see Fred and if you live up Manassas way wait until Fred opens his Manassas store in the very near future. I'll let you in on a secret. It may be in a couple of weeks.

A lot of people who don't get over to Woodbridge are missing a treat. The center of everything at Woodbridge in my opinion is the Woodbridge Grocery which is operated by Mr. D. C. West. You know the spring fever is getting upon all of us but when you go into Mr. West's store and see all those fine garden implements the urge to get out and do something in the soil to help along the seeds and plants really gets upon you. I am sure you will find Mr. West very helpful when you call at the Woodbridge Grocery to make your garden implement selections.

As most everyone knows Mr. D. J. Martin the Chevrolet Dealer at Triangle has just celebrated his 13th anniversary as the General Motors representative in this area. But in thinking of an automobile dealer most people fail to look into the back shop. Mr. Martin is a back shop as well as a sales floor automobile man. And in his back shop he has Cecil Hunter as manager and there is none who excel Mr. Hunter in products that he allows to be turned out from the shop. The suggestion is made, and it appears to be a good one, that now is the time to have your car undercoated or porcelainized.

Tony and Julius Ferlazzo, of the Quantico Pharmacy, are a happy pair of merchants. I went down to see what they had to advertise this week and what do you suppose they said? "Wish everyone a happy Easter." That is perhaps the rea-

Thompson Edrige returned home to Quantico this week after a three-week period of training at Bear Mountain, N. Y. (training camp of all big fighters for Madison Square Garden) and Chicago, the scene of the Eastern and Western golden gloves championship matches. Tommy had the privilege to train under Coach Jimmy O'Donnell (coach of Jimmy Flood).

The reason Tommy did not get to fight in Chicago was that he had worked so hard and lost so much weight that he was in the middleweight class instead of the lightweight class that he fights in. Tommy's next appearance will be in the National AAU championships in Boston where the boxers

day. After that he will return to Washington for the International fights and is slated to fight Giovanni De Segni from Italy.

The Quantico Marines opened their 1950 baseball season this last week and have as yet to go down in defeat. Played five games already this season against John Hopkins, Dartmouth, Swarthmore, Ursuline and Akron Universities. There are only five hold-over from last year's all-Navy runner-up team. The Marines' schedule will include over 165 games this season which is comparable to minor league ball. In Spring practice, the Marines beat the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Association.

The Occoquan District High School announces its 1950 baseball schedule, as follows:

Nokesville, April 25 (Home); Stafford, April 28 (Away); Quantico, May 2 (Home); Fairfax, May 5 (Home); Nokesville, May 9 (Away); Stafford, May 12 (Home); Quantico, May 16 (Away); James Monroe, May 19 (Pending) (Home); Quantico, May 23 (Home); Fairfax, May 26 (Away).

OVERDRIVE

YOU ACTUALLY "pocket" up to 15% of every gas dollar of highway driving. Because in Ford "Automatic Overdrive" your engine speed relaxes 30% while your road speed remains unchanged. Your car hustles at 50 m.p.h., for example, while your engine loafs at only 35. This saving, plus extra long engine life, adds up to a smoother "4th gear" ride that pays its own way. And for added safety, a slight touch on your gas pedal releases a powerful surge that makes passing and hill-climbing a breeze.

Some $400 is tagged for use of the Boys and Girls committee, headed by James Myers. Top project for the committee this year is the reorganization of the Boy Scout troop. An annual Halloween party will be held, and Santa Claus activities, as a result of which 200 children received gifts, will be continued.

Miss Joan Alpaugh,

Robert Whetzel Wed

Simplicity marked the wedding of Miss Joan Armistead Alpaugh, daughter of Eloise Giddings Alpaugh and Luther A. Alpaugh, of Manassas, to Robert Pershing Whetzel, which was solemnized Wednesday afternoon, March 29, in the National Baptist Memorial Church in Washington. Dr. Edward B. Williamson, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Lee Whetzel of Manassas.

The bride wore a street length dress of navy blue silk, fashioned with a high neckline, fitted bodice, and softly draped skirt. Her bonnet-styled navy blue straw hat was trimmed with a delicate pink nylon tier. She carried a bouquet of pink and red rosebuds. Her only ornament was a rose and gold carved necklace, set with tiny diamonds.

The wedding was attended by only members of the immediate families of the bride and groom. After the ceremony, Mrs. E. H. Giddings, grandmother of the bride, entertained the wedding party at Hogates under the delightful atmosphere of nuptial organ music. The couple left for a wedding trip to New York immediately following the dinner, and for traveling the bride added a rose and blue tweed top coat with a mink scarf. Upon their return to Manassas, they will reside on Lee Avenue.

Busy Week For Co-op Offices

Nearly eighty percent of all rural America is electrified today, against only ten percent fifteen years ago, according to Roland A. Blass, field representative of the Rural Electrification Administration's management division. Blass, visiting the Prince William Electric Cooperative Tuesday, told Manager Reuben Hicks and other co-op leaders that electrification has increased in Virginia as well as elsewhere in the United States.

The national average for electrification is 78.5 throughout the nation and 78.4 in this state, he said. As of the end of last year, 70,657 Virginia farms were receiving power. The new REA headquarters had a busy week following the opening last weekend.

On Monday and Tuesday, Mrs. M. Rotruck, home economist for International Harvester, gave a demonstration sponsored by R. J. Wayland Company. Among those in attendance were Mrs. J. R. Eagle, Mrs. J. E. Barrett, Mrs. Paul Espen-shade, Mrs. L. N. Mitchell, Mrs. M. C. Robbins, Mrs. Truman Long, Mrs. G. B. Griffin, Mrs. C. F. Mud-diman, Mrs. Paul Madill, Mrs. Leo Miller, Mrs. N. N. Free, Mrs. W. R. Free, Mrs. J. F. Hale and Miss Leona M. Kline. Refreshments were furnished by R. J. Wayland Co.

On Wednesday the demonstration kitchen was open to the general public, and on Thursday women of Quantico, Woodbridge and Bethel were invited. A dinner Thursday evening for the REA was scheduled, and Friday was set aside for the Haymarket, Gainesville and Wellington areas.

Health

county health officer.
Resume of Activities

Although much water has gone over the dam since the health center plan was first proposed, here is a resume of activities up to date, as recalled by one of the leaders of the fund-raising drive of 1947.

Following the end of World War II, civic leaders proposed that some more suitable memorial than the wooden plaque on the courthouse lawn be erected in memory of county war dead. A recreational center was proposed, and a standard, non-utilitarian monument also was suggested, but at length the memorial in the form of a health center was proposed.

At that time, as how, X-ray services were available only in Washington, and it was planned that an X-ray laboratory would be installed and arrangements made with a Washington X-ray firm to give service in Manassas. A nurse would also be available for first-aid service 24 hours a day, and doctors of the area would be free to practice there if they so desired.

Paul Nelson, whose son died in the war, agreed to give land for the center on condition that it be of the type then proposed. Cost of the building then was estimated at about $60,000.

Fund raising teams were named and several thousand dollars was collected for the center by means of public donations.

Some time later, Dr. E. H. Marshall called a meeting of fund raisers and designated these men as "200-dollar men," each of whom would give $200 of his own money and obtain a similar sum from another individual. A relatively small amount of money was also given by civic and service groups from proceeds of benefit dances.

In 1949, the Board of Supervisors was called on to contribute to the health center, and a $10,000 appropriation was made.

It became evident about that time that the health center, as originally conceived, could not be built with federal and state grants-in-aid. When it was learned that the center would be, for practical purposes, a new office for the health department, Nelson withdrew his gift of land.

$3,000 Site Bought
An alternative site on Sudley road, near the Nelson land, was bought for $3,000, and architects drew plans for a health center at a cost of about $2,000.

These plans were the ones discussed last week at the board of supervisors meeting.

When, at the chamber of commerce meeting on Tuesday, Mayor Harry Davis moved that the supervisors be urged to take no budgetary action on the health center, two alternative proposals were raised. One was that because the memorial aspects of any type of building are soon forgotten, the memorial should be in the form of a conventional monument to World War dead. A second suggestion was also discussed; that the money collected for the health center be transferred to a recreational center fund provided donors to the original project could be prevailed upon to alter the conditions of their gifts.

Those who might decline to change their gift conditions, it has been suggested, could be refunded the money they gave. To this idea has been raised the objection that some contributions were made on which records were not kept. According to Mr. Eula Bourne, who was active in the fund-raising campaign, receipts were given to donors. Another campaigner recalls that it had been planned to install in the center a plaque bearing the names of individual and organizational donors.

Mrs. Bourne told The Journal this week that 674 receipts for money collected were still on file in her office in the court house. She was not certain, she said, whether the list was complete, but indicated that it was substantially a full list of donors.

At the Board of Supervisors meeting last week, it was agreed that donors who did not wish to participate in the building of any type of center other than that originally planned would be entitled to the return of their money. E. R. Conner, at that time, applied for return of $125 which he said he gave under the impression that it would be used for a memorial of a certain type on land donated by Nelson.

What will happen to the $18,000-odd in cash remaining in the fund, if the health center is shelved this year, was not clear at the time of going to press.

Crash

car was third in the line of halted cars. Just behind Stiner's car was the crest of a hill, over which the Trailways bus came, swerving at the last minute sufficiently to avoid a telescoping collision with the Stiner automobile.

As he turned his bus to the left, Oliver apparently got his first glimpse of the halted school bus.

He turned the heavy bus even farther to the left, and passed completely around the school bus on the left-hand shoulder of the road, running into a ditch and then bouncing out of it before coming to a halt on the right-hand side of the road some distance beyond the scene of the original collision.

Poor visibility due to the rolling character of the road was considered to be the primary cause of the accident.

No charges were filed against the bus driver.

Graves

had taken the Manassas family to the gravesite on Sunday.

One of the graves had two deep holes at the side, as though badgers, dogs or other digging animals had attempted to get into the grave. The others were unmoistened. "All were carefully mounded, covered with moss, and carefully marked by crossed sticks, tied together with string in the shape of a Christian cross."

A stone cairn, shaped something like a crude oven, stood nearby. Across the woods road a crude amphitheater, capable of seating perhaps thirty persons, had been constructed. At the bottom of the amphitheater was a double-tiered square of charred logs, apparently the base of a communal fire.

When the diggers opened the first grave—the one that bore signs of having been molested—they found that the soil had never been disturbed below ground level. Opening the second grave, they found five two-inch logs, each about four feet long, lying parallel lengthwise in the grave a few inches below the surface. Going down to hard clay about 2½ feet below the surface, they uncovered nothing but dirt. The third grave, like the first, was merely a camouflaged mound over the untouched earth.

A little closer investigation of the entire clearing showed:

A piece of rope spliced into a small loop; a piece of rope tied into two half-hitches; a piece of rope tied into a defective square knot, popularly called a "granny"; a garbage pit containing a Campbell's Beans can, several Lucerne milk cartons, a Clark Bar wrapper, a Hershey Bar wrapper;

Also two steel tent pegs, an O. Henry Bar wrapper; a small paper that once contained a Band-Aid; a Baby Ruth wrapper and a large box label reading, "Protecto Safety Matches, Six Packages, 120 Boxes Each."

It was this last label that gave the newspapermen the final clue. Carefully rationed, 720 boxes of matches probably would suffice for an organized group of camping-out boys to light a bonfire. Elementary, my dear Kerlin.

8 More Firms In Fair Lineup

Eight additional firms, a civic organization and the U. S. Army Recruiting Service have agreed to take part in the American Legion Exposition scheduled for July 10 to 15 at Longview Speedway, according to John Shireman, chairman, of arrangements for the fair. Twelve businesses, including The Journal, were named in an earlier issue of this paper as participants. Additions to the list, according to Shireman, are Manassas Frozen Foods, Crawford Door Sales of Warrenton, McMichael's Service Center of Nokesville, Birmingham Dairy, Cocke's Pharmacy, Brown and Hooff, Manassas Lumber Company and R. J. Wayland. The Yorkshire Civic Group also will take space in the exhibit area.

Arrangements have been completed, Shireman said, for the rental of a "big top" in which commercial exhibits will be located. A feature of the exposition will be the Jole Chitwood Daredevil Show, in which automobiles are rolled over, collided, and jumped from platforms.

My Favorite

Thought For Easter

By Mrs. Fred T. Shepherd

Let me share with you my favorite Easter thought.

Easter causes us to pause each year and trace the career of a Babe born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He worked in a carpenter shop until He was 30, and then for three years He was an itinerant preacher.

He never owned a home. He never had a family. He never went to college. He never traveled 200 miles from the place He was born. He never did one of the things that in present-day opinion accompanies greatness.

His friends forsook Him. One of them betrayed Him. He was nailed to a cross between two common thieves. After He was dead His body was taken down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend. His mourners were few. Nineteen centuries have come and gone since the short life span of hat young man. Yet all the armies that ever marched, all the navies that were ever built, all the parliaments that ever sat, all the kings that ever reigned, all the wise men that ever pondered—all these put together have not affected the life of men and women upon this earth as powerfully, as beneficially as deeply as the Nazarene carpenter—Jesus Christ.

We do well to sing hallelujahs as again we celebrate the day when the Son of Mary cast aside his mortal garments for the glorious raiment of immortality.

Ringler Will Open

Office April 11

Manassas' dire need for additional medical attention will be relieved next week by the opening April 11 of offices by John G. Ringler, M.D., at 302 North Battle street.

The youthful physician, son-in-law of Dr. Fred Dowell, recently completed general residency at the Wilson Memorial Hospital, Johnson City, New York, where he interned before the war. A graduate of Notre Dame University and Georgetown University, he served in the Army and spent several years in the Army of Occupation in Japan with the 11th Airborne Division. He is a captain on inactive status in the Army of the United States Medical Corps.

Dr. Ringler's wife is a trained laboratory technician and will assist him in his office.

Office hours established by Dr. Ringler will be from 9 to 11 in the morning and from 4 to 5 and 7 to 8 p. m. He also will receive patients by appointment.

C. A. Bauserman, Air Enthusiast, Dead at Age of 47

C. A. Bauserman, former Manassas resident who opened to development a revolutionary new "air age" community at Pomonkey, Md., was buried in Manassas last week. He died March 28 in Pomonkey at the age of 47. Mr. Bauserman had suffered a heart attack.

Mr. Bauserman left his wife, the former Miss Beulah L. Whitmer of Manassas; a son, Gilbert Lee, 6; his father, Lemuel T. Bauserman; a sister, Mrs. Merle A. Gines, and a brother, Roy C. Bauserman, all of

A longtime-air enthusiast, he began development of an airport at Pomonkey in 1945, and by this year had made many improvements in the 1,000-acre area. His plan was to bring together amateur fliers in a community whose existence would center on the flying field.

A native of Detrick, Va., Mr. Bauserman was educated in Manassas. His wife formerly taught in the Bennett School here.

Is M. A. Rollins

Our Oldest Reader?

The Manassas Journal is still looking for its oldest subscriber from the standpoint of continuous readership, but the paper thinks it may have found him this week.

Some weeks ago The Journal ran a story to the effect that Walter Akers of Manassas had been reading The Journal steadily since 1900.

At the end of the story there was a question: are there any more long-time readers of this newspaper?

Mrs. M. P. O'Callaghan, of 565 Prince Avenue, Athens, Ga., says yes; she is a long-time reader—since 1898, to be exact. The Journal was the Gazette then.

Monday afternoon M. A. Rollins, of Bristow, dropped into the office to say hello, and as the conversation developed it began to look as though he might be the man we had been looking for. Says Rollins:

"I was born in 1860 and I guess I learned to read about 1870. My father always took the paper and I read it from the day I could read in the spring of 1889 as the Manassas Gazette, the paper would have been only about a year old when Rollins started reading it. He will be 90 on April 17."

No Percentage in Setting Your Watch By a Painted Sign

Warning to passersby: the clock-sign over the door of Wenrich's Jewelry Store on Center Street has been hanging there for about 10 years and has never varied a tick from 8:18.

Eighteen a. m., that is, if you want to be specific. According to W. N. Wenrich, whose family has been in the jewelry and watch-making game for 62 years, there are a lot of people who set their watches by the painted sign over his front door. "They probably come to me for giving them the wrong time," Wenrich reflects.

Jewelry's clock signs are set at 8:18, Wenrich says, because that is the hour at which President Garfield was shot by one Guitau in the old Sixth Street Station in Washington. At 70, Wenrich is old enough to remember the Sixth Street Station—though not President Garfield—and also to remember one of the oldest jokes in the world about clocks:

Prisoner in jail house, to school-boy passing by: Hay, son, what time is it?

Schoolboy: What do you care, you ain't going anywhere.

If daylight saving time goes into effect here again this year, Wenrich will have a rat race on his hands. He has several dozen clocks and watches on hand—some for sale, some in for repairs—and it will be up to him to advance the hands of each clock one hour.

Last year, when the Town of Manassas went on daylight saving time, Wenrich was called over to the court house to change the clock hands. A week later the supervisors called him back to reset the hands to standard time. Seems the farmers squawked about the faster time, which takes them early from their chores if they have to do business in town.

Clocks, to Wenrich, are a very important thing. And he points out that they are important to everyone, not just to watch repairmen. "During the war," he says, "congress decided that no more watches would be made for civilians—that civilians didn't need them. Maybe congressmen and senators don't—they don't go to work until eleven or noon—but most people rely on clocks a good deal."

Railroadmen have to have their watches regulated so as to keep time to the near-perfection of thirty seconds a week. Wrist watches, he says, and tiny watches

RAT FOOD BILL COSTS $265,000,000

Suppose you and 264,999 other farmers worked like beavers last year and pooled all your grain and produce in one big pile. Suppose then along came a stream of rats, 14 abreast, and 1,000 miles long, which ate up the entire pile. Sounds fantastic, doesn't it? Yet last year rats ate more than 150,000,000 bushels of grain and wasted many millions more—equivalent to the production from the labor of 265,000 farmers. Each rat alone ate a bushel of grain and ruined three or four bushels more. And this loss goes on year after year!

Besides robbing each farmer of about $50 or more each year, rats are responsible for many diseases of both farm animals and man. Typhus, jaundice, rabies, tularemia and trichinosis are only a few of the ailments they carry around.

Rats like to make their homes near their food supply. That is why they prefer to live under granaries, poultry houses and dairy barns. Equipped with teeth as sharp as a buzz saw, they can cut their way through almost any wood floor and reach the food they want.

The best way to control them, say farm building authorities, is to cut off their food supply and shelter. This can be done by constructing buildings of material that they can't gnaw through.

New flooring, foundation walls and floors of concrete will make old buildings ratproof.

Concrete foundation walls carried down 2 ft. or more prevent rats from burrowing under a building. The wall should be supported by a good substantial footing. For small buildings, such as milk houses, poultry houses and hog houses, footings are made 16 in. wide and 8 in. thick. For larger buildings such as barns, granaries and corncribs, the footings should be 24 to 30 in. wide and about 12 in. thick. Foundation walls can be 8 to 12 in. thick and may be made of concrete masonry or cast-in-place concrete. When concrete masonry is used, the block should be laid up in a strong cement mortar.

Floors are usually made about 4 in. thick. Where driven over by heavy machinery they are made 6 in. thick. An apron wall about 18 in. deep under the edge of feeding floors prevents rats from burrowing under the floors.

A concrete mix of 1 part portland cement, 2 1/2 parts sand, 4 parts gravel and 5 1/2 gal. of water is used in constructing footings and foundation walls. A mix of 1 part portland cement, 2 1/2 parts sand, 3 parts gravel and 5 gal. of water is used for floors and walls above grade. Both mixes should be made of a mushy consistency.

When you use ratproof concrete for farm buildings you serve the only eviction notice rats understand.

for women can't be regulated that exactly, and nowadays, with all the electricity and magnetism the average watch encounters, it is hard to keep any timepiece in perfect regulation.

Funny thing, Wenrich says: A woman will come in, insist on having her watch regulated perfectly—"I just can't do without it, so fix it for me quick"—and then she turns around and shows up half an hour late for an appointment.

MANASSAS

George Washington's own instructions for the paint-protection and beautification of his beloved Mount Vernon are still faithfully followed, using the best and most beautiful of today's fine finishes for the purpose.

BY LONORE KENT

Mount Vernon, Virginia—Mount Vernon, priceless and beloved heritage of the American people, might well be a shambles today if it were not for the careful maintenance and frequent painting it receives at the hands of its faithful guardian, the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association.

"Decay is the ever-present enemy of old buildings," comments Charles C. Wall, Superintendent of Mount Vernon, "and paint is the most effective weapon for combating it. Here, at Mount Vernon, we are fully aware of its protective function. The last time we had the Mansion repainted, we had occasion to remove all the previous coats of paint in some areas. Under these many protective coatings, we found the wood to be structurally sound and in excellent condition."

At first glance, many visitors to the home of George Washington think that the structures are built of stone because the exterior has a stone-like appearance. Actually, however, the exterior is of charred wood blocks. As in Washington's time, these blocks are periodically given a coating of white paint to which white powdered limestone is applied while the paint is still wet. In 1796, Washington specified the use of powdered limestone for this purpose, after he found it difficult to obtain sand of a uniform whiteness from the beach at Point Comfort.

Today, instead of throwing sand or powdered stone against the wet paint—or blowing it on with hand bellows—the chosen powdered stone is sprayed on mechanically. While every effort is made to conform with the original colors and surface appearances determined by Washington—indoors and out—the best modern types of protective finishes are used so that America's heritage—Mount Vernon—may survive the coming centuries in the finest possible condition.

Fast Time

here, but on congressional authorization of daylight saving time for the District of Columbia.

Legally, the Town Council has no right to decree the time at which individuals' clocks will be set. However, it can do practically the same thing by directing that all public activities of the town government be run on daylight saving time. In such a case, most merchants will follow suit, it is understood.

The council is expected to call a meeting prior to April 30 to evaluate popular sentiment on the issue. Blanks submitted to The Journal and to merchants will be presented at that time.

Guard

and 25 men, building up gradually to authorized strength.

Ratcliffe told the meeting Monday that it would take something like $5,000 to erect what the National Guard considers suitable quarters for the unit. This building, probably in the form of a 48-foot quonset hut, would be built adjacent to the Osborn High school gymnasium, on school board property, and the gym would be used as a drill hall.

Ratcliffe was to approach the county board of supervisors at its meeting with a request that the county furnish all or part of the money for the structure. Plans will be made for the appointment of a finance committee to seek public subscription if the board declines to underwrite the cost of building. Among those present at the Monday meeting were Burchard, Ratcliffe, Brown, Hale, Gnadt, Ted Ritter, E. D. Gothwaite, J. Carl Kinchele, John Shireman, William Hines, Jr., Benjamin Muse, Dr. M. C. Robbins and Wheatley Johnson.

Accidents

Defective vehicles—cars with faulty lights, brakes, steering, tires or engine trouble—accounted for only 46 of the 317 accidents.

Road defects contributed to the cause of 27 accidents, as follows: slippery road, 7; road under repair, 2; loose material on surface, 7; holes in road, 1; soft or low shoulders, 10. More accidents, however, happened on straight, level roads than on any other single type of highway. And, all but 40 of the accidents occurred in open country.

Contrary to popular belief, late hours were not the most dangerous hours. Of the 317 accidents, more than 200 occurred between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. More accidents occurred between 4 and 5 p.m. than in any other hour of the day, Sunday was the danger day of the week, with 75 accidents. However, Saturday brought about more fatalities—five—than any other week day.

Months at Longview Speedway, according to John T. Counts, president of the track association. First race of the season will be held April 23, when big cars will race under auspices of the National Automobile association. On April 30, a roadster race sponsored by the Eastern Racing Association will be held, followed by these events:

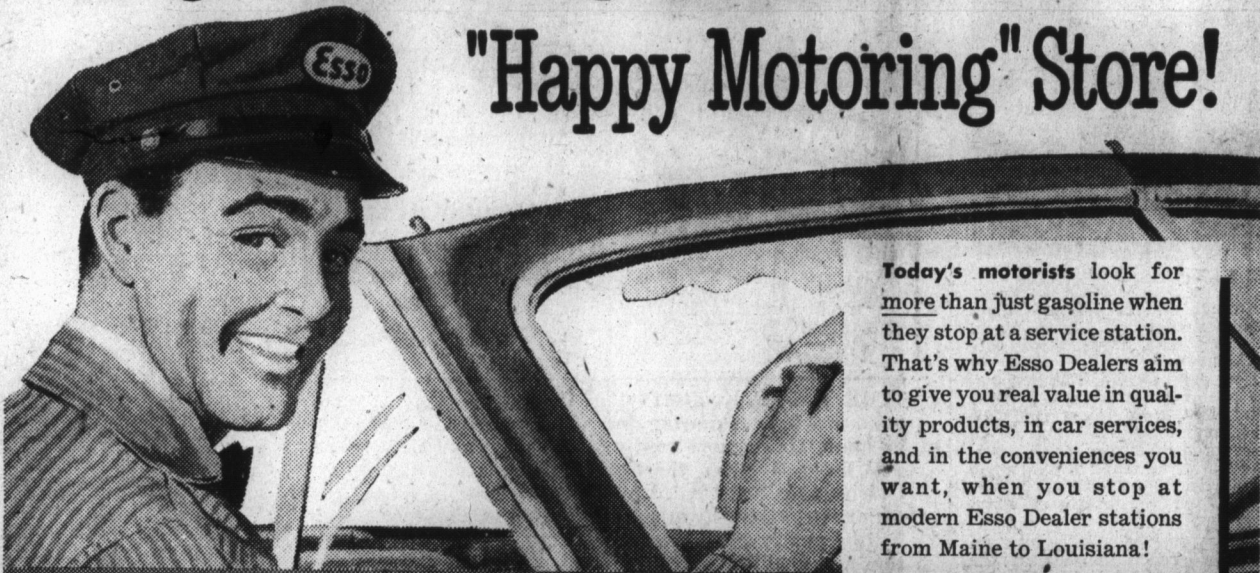

May 7, big cars, National association; May 14, roadsters, thrill show; May 21, motorcycle American Motorcycle Association; May 28, stock cars, Eastern association.

WHAT ABOUT DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME?

The question of Daylight Saving Time is up again this year.

Objectively, The Journal has no particular stand pro or con about daylight saving time, feeling that any clock time observed by a group of people is more or less phony. The only subjective sentiment The Journal has about fast time is that, since trains always run on standard time, the institution of daylight saving time will give us an extra hour on Thursday afternoon to get our out-of-town subscribers' newspapers into the mail.

We mentioned above that any yardstick of time is more or less artificial. The only true clock in the solar system is the sun itself. What Joshua did before Jericho is quite beyond the means of modern man, who strives for a similar effect by turning back the hands of his $3 alarm-clock.

The sensible thing to do about time—all over the world, all year round—is so radical it probably won't become general in the lifetime of any of our readers. But it is already done universally by merchant shipping.

Every chronometer on every ship afloat is set to Greenwich Mean Time. Whether the ship is tossing in a South Pacific storm or riding gently at anchor in the River Thames, its clock is set identically with every other shipboard clock in the world.

Of course, this means that for some ships midnight comes at noon and for others noon comes at three in the morning. But what's the difference?

Some seventy years ago every little town and village in the United States had its own standard of time. When one went by train from New York to Albany, one had to set one's watch back exactly one minute. From Washington to Baltimore there was a time change of something like two minutes. Then, in the 1880's the railroads dreamed up standard time belts to eliminate all this confusion, and standard time became the order of the day. Daylight saving came into effect during the first world war as a stratagem to get people up an hour early.

On the immediate issue of standard vs. daylight time, The Journal couldn't care less. It will go along with anything, firm in the knowledge that producing a weekly newspaper is a 168-hour job, no matter what kind of time is observed.

And when the people of Prince William County decide they want to go whole-hog and adopt Greenwich Mean Time as their standard, The Journal will tag along also. It might mean getting-up when the old tin alarm clock says two in the morning, but we don't care as long as the sun is up and the birds are singing in the clear springtime air.

WE EXPECT LETTERS

It may come as a shock to readers who know The Journal's "no-liquor" policy on advertising to see a large beer advertisement in these pages. We expect letters on the subject. Let us explain in advance that our policy is unchanged; we have been carrying beer advertising consistently and will continue to carry it in future. We will continue to turn down liquor advertising. The reason: we do not consider beer, which is sold in grocery stores and over-the-counter almost everywhere, to be in the same category with whiskey and other ardent spirits.

Hatters at Home After Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Ben W. Hatter have returned from their wedding trip through Kentucky and Ohio and are making their home with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Dellinger, on Prescott Avenue.

Mr. Hatter, who is in the Marine Corps, and the former Mary Alice Dellinger were married March 19 at the Manassas Lutheran Church, with the Rev. R. W. Scholtzhauser officiating. Altar flowers, palms, and candlesticks decorated the altar.

"I Love You Truly" and the "Lord's Prayer" were sung by Miss Vee Roper, and the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white wedding gown and veil, and carried roses with tuberose.

Miss Mary A. Blakemore, the Maid of Honor, wore blue taffeta with white organdy over it, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Two other attendants, Mrs. Bob Nelson and Miss Anna Marie Hibbs wore pink taffeta and carried pink rose bouquets.

A reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dellinger followed the ceremony, after which the Hatters left on their wedding trip.
