$400 Donated To Aid Project For Recreation

Supervised recreation for the youth of Manassas has been given substantial financial support by the Manassas Town Council in response to a plea from a group of leading citizens that the town recognize the importance of adequate recreational facilities for its younger citizens.

Despite limited finances fixed by a budget to provide only the bare necessities for government operation the Town Council at a meeting Monday night scraped together a contribution of $400 for the Manassas Recreational Association for the coming year.

Indications were that the council would take steps in the future to provide greater financial support to this movement.

The committee of citizens for which Stanley Owens appeared as the spokesman told a story of how the association's activities had been kept alive mainly through private donation, which the committee indicated would continue to supplement town support, but it was pointed out that the recreation program had developed beyond the responsibility of a single group and had become a community problem.

A minimum budget showing a requirement for $775 was presented to the town council with the request that the town meet all of that amount except $102 which the committee had available from other sources, leaving a balance of $673 which needed community rather than individual financing. This balance as presented by the committee's budget called for $300 for a recreational instructor for girls, $150 for replacement of equipment, $200 for new equipment, $100 for finance trips and $25 for incidental expenses.

In view of the fact that the council had been unable to provide funds in its budget calculations for a recreational program the council continued on Page 6

For The Record

Virginia VFW Originally Condemned Dill Burial in '47

This is for the record. The Manassas Journal is not the originator of the opposition to giving an acre of land in Arlington for the burial of Sir John Dill, the British Field Marshal, at the order of General George C. Marshall, former Chief of Staff and Secretary of State.

Credit for uncovering the illegal conspiracy, disclosure that an acre of land was set aside to bury the Britisher and the proposal to erect an equestrian statue at the grave site belongs not to the Manassas Journal, but to a group of former Virginia soldiers. The first call to stop the desecration of Arlington Cemetery as a National Shrine, should be credited to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Department of Virginia. All of whom fought honorably on foreign soil for their Country.

Today is 1950. Back in 1947 it is now revealed the Department of Virginia delegation to the 48th National Encampment, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in Cleveland, Ohio, first took up the cudgels against Secretary of State Marshall, and the John Dill Memorial committee and passed resolutions "vehemently" opposing the "continued interment of Sir John Dill at the Arlington National Cemetery."

Therefore, The Journal gives credit where credit is due. At the same time it calls attention to the fact that although three years have passed, an arrogant group of United States Army brass headed by General Marshall continues to ignore the men who made the Army great, —men who fought on the battlefields of Europe and from island to island in the Pacific,—all Veterans of Foreign Wars.

So for the record The Journal prints the full resolution introduced by the Virginia Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and adopted by the National Encampment in 1947. The Journal is proud to follow the Veterans of Foreign Wars and to have given renewed impetus to their determination to preserve Arlington as a place for burial of American soldiers and not

Wood Carving Window Display Attracts Crowds

An exhibit of wood carvings in the window of the law offices of W. Hill Brown, Jr. adjacent to the National Bank of Manassas is attracting wide attention. It is a number of wood carvings by Andrew Larsen, of Catharpin, a former letter carrier of Beaumont, Texas, who is a bachelor living with his only relative, a sister, Mrs. E. O. Balter, also of Catharpin. Mr. Larsen follows wood carving as a hobby and twice won the grand prize at the East Texas State Fair.

With a broad sense of humor Mr. Larsen has produced from pieces of yellow poplar and bass wood images of his fellow creatures. One of his original carvings, that of a postman on his route being attacked by a bulldog has a place in the historical museum of the Postoffice Department in Washington where it was placed by former Postmaster General Farley.

About 30 carvings make up the exhibit and except for a few of world known characters most of his work centers around the locale of Texas. Mr. Larsen is a native of Denmark and he has lived in Catharpin about four years. He is retired.

Paved Streets Here Turned Over to State

Five and a half miles of Manassas streets,—all streets in the town which are hard-surfaced,—were ordered turned over to the State Highway Department for future maintenance, improvement, construction and reconstruction, at the meeting of the Town Council on Monday night.

The action was under the authority of Senate Bill No. 70, which became section 33-80.2 of the 1950 Virginia code.

Macs Beat Sox, Are Odds on To Win Series

The Manassas Macs defeated the Manassas Red Sox by a score of 4-1 last Tuesday before about 300 fans at Swavely Field. The Macs also outthit and generally outplayed the losers, to become the odds-on favorites to cop the town championship which will be decided by two later games of a three-game series.

The Macs got 10 hits off "Squeez-er" Polen, while the Red Sox could get only 5 off Jack Leachman, who not only pitched a fine game, but scored two of his team's runs and batted in another.

Neither team scored until the fourth inning when the Red Sox pushed across a run on a single by Merchant, a sacrifice, and another single by Parr. About this time Will Kerlin, long-time Sox fan, left his seat on the bench and began to jump up and down, shouting in great glee, "Here we go, boys, here we go." But as it turned out, one run was all the Red Sox were to get that day, and one was not enough.

With two Red Sox out, one run across, and Parr on first base, Tyson singled, Parr holding on second. Then in rapid succession Parr stole third, Tyson stole second, and Leachman hit Hawes with a pitch to load the bases. It looked like real trouble for the Macs, but Leachman made Shelton ground a slow ball right back at the mound and threw him out at first to end the inning.

The Macs after two hits in the first frame were slow until the fifth when Saylor's opened the inning with a short fly that fell for a double in left-center. Leachman, the next batter, promptly tripled over the right fielder's head to score Saylor's. Leachman, then scored, a moment later on a passed ball to right field.

In the seventh the Macs scored again as Leachman walked and held at second on Slusher's single. Then with the hit-and-run on Vetter grounded to short and Leachman scored on the play for Vetter at first.

Jim Leo hit a line drive to short right field in the eighth that looked like a hit, but Edde Tyson came in fast and made a shoestring catch. Macs players badgered the umpire, saying Tyson had trapped the ball (that is, caught it on a short hop), but the umpire ruled it an out. The inning ended and Tyson came to the Red Sox bench, some of his teammates asked if he had really caught the ball on a fly. He stated that the ball had never touched the ground. After the game, the Macs were still of the opinion that the ball had bounced. Maurice Smith, Mac third base coach, said he had heard the ball bounce.

Fourth and final Macs tally came in the ninth when Saylor's beat out a hot grounder to short, and went to second on a sacrifice by Leachman. Continued on Page 6

This Is The Story of Mr. Carnise M. Street And a Car Which Came to His Home at Night

By LAWRENCE WEEKLEY

Carnise M. Street has always been a friendly man who would go out of his way to avoid trouble, and the welfare of his wife and four small children has been his chief concern. So when late one night two weeks ago an automobile rolled into the driveway of his Atheyville home and unidentified men leaned out of the windows to shout obscenities and curses, he became alarmed. Street was also puzzled. He knew of no one whom he considered an enemy.

That was Thursday and the car returned on Friday and Saturday nights, each time coming silently up the drive without lights. Stopping opposite the house, the men would shout foul utterances, Street says. On Sunday morning he notified the police, who told him they were powerless unless he could get the license number of the car so the owner might be traced.

Nothing happened on Sunday, but Monday, May 22, a car came again. Instead of turning into the drive, it went slowly by the house and six shots rang out as it passed. From that time on, Street says, he was afraid.

Expecting trouble, he moved his family's sleeping quarters upstairs and oiled and loaded a .32 calibre revolver. The following nights he spent sitting by the front window.

He kept his vigil through the week and about 11:45 last Saturday night a sedan passed along the gravel road in front of his house and men shouted from the windows, just as they had done before. Street called upstairs to calm his frightened children, and peered out of the window. The car was gone, but it came again in a few minutes, this time followed by a coupe. The sedan turned into Street's driveway and the other stopped in front of the house. Street walked out on the porch, revolver in hand.

The car continued slowly up the drive and Street shouted out, ordering the occupants to halt and identify themselves. He was afraid the riders were trying to surround his home. What their intentions were, he didn't know, but he was frankly scared after the previous experiences.

Once more he ordered the car to halt, but it kept creeping up and Street jumped off the end of the porch. Standing beneath a shade maple, he sighted his gun and fired. He didn't remember how many times he fired, but testimony in court fixed it at three.

One of the bullets smashed the windshield of the sedan and the driver stopped, hastily reversed to the gravel road and sped away. A few minutes later the police arrived at Street's house and shortly afterward rounded up two cars containing a total of five men.

A sedan, registered in the name of Floyd "Pinky" Cornwell, was found to have a bullet hole in the windshield. The bullet was discovered lodged in a door frame of the car. The other car, a coupe, was listed as the property of Edward C. Simpson, who, according to police, showed the authorities a hole in his rear window which he claimed was made by Street's gun. Police said, however, that the hole was "as big as your fist" and probably was not made by a .32 calibre pistol bullet.

Both Cornwell and Simpson were arrested and taken to the Town Hall by trooper Harold Lanahan and deputies Joe Garner and Rex Hoskins. Also arrested were Oren Miller, Melvin Wade and Paul Jacobs. The five men were held at Town Hall from about 12:30 a. m. until about 3 a. m. Monday, when they were removed to the County Jail. Cornwell and Jacobs each posted $100 bond.

At a hearing before Trial Justice C. Lacey Compton on Monday morning the five men were charged with disorderly conduct. In addition, Simpson was charged with illegal possession of ardent spirits.

Justice Compton dismissed the disorderly conduct charge against the five men, but found Simpson guilty of the whiskey charge and fined him $100 and $7.25 costs.

In dismissing the disorderly conduct charges, Justice Compton noted a "lack of evidence" against the five men, who claimed they had driven up Street's driveway only to turn around and retrace their path to a wider road.

Monday, after court was dismissed, Street said he bore no grudge and only hoped that he might get some sleep now. Back at his home, he looked at the sky and at his garden and expressed a hope that ground would dry some so he could hoe his onions.

Public Is Invited To Hear Talk By Japanese Rector

Diagnostic Lab Site For Warrenton

BULLETIN

Warrenton has been awarded the site of Virginia Diagnostic Laboratory which will be under the State Department of Agriculture. The announcement was made by Commissioner of Agriculture Parke Brinkley over the long distance telephone to The Journal at noon Thursday. Besides Manassas, other towns competing for the diagnostic laboratory were Culpeper, Front Royal and Orange.

A committee from the Virginia board of agriculture visited Manassas Tuesday as they toured the area making a survey of possible sites for a cattle and poultry diagnostic laboratory to be located in Northern Virginia. About 40 persons went to the office of County Agent Frank Cox to hear the committee and give reasons why the laboratory should be built in Manassas. Points in favor of a site in Prince William County near Manassas were the good railroad and mail service and the availability of two lots, both of which meet the board's specifications for water and sewage facilities.

"Believe it or Not"

Yes, "Believe it or Not," The Journal is printing advertising on its first page. Why? Because we want to accentuate safety on the highways. Safety on the highways means perfect inspection of your automobile by competent mechanics authorized by the Virginia State Police to put a stamp of approval on your windshield showing your automobile to be in perfect condition and safe on the highway with you in it and safe for the other fellow too.

If The Journal can contribute to highway safety by calling your attention more dramatically to the short time before final inspection closes then The Journal will be satisfied with this departure from usual newspaper practice. The Journal can recommend these automobile firms as authorized to inspect your car according to requirements of the State police. Don't forget inspection closes June 15.

IN MEMORIAM

A tribute of love to my father who passed away four years ago on June 1, 1946. You are gone but not forgotten. You are ever in my mind. Every day brings back memories. Every memory brings a tear.

Away upon a journey to a land so bright and fair
And though I miss him here,
I know he will be happy there.

I do not need a special day to bring you to my mind.
The days I do not think of you are not very hard to find.

Loving granddaughter, Lola.

Memorial Day

Ears. Behind them were the Ladies Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and next the speaker of the day, Lt. Commander Manson, accompanied by Rev. Guthrie Brown in the uniform of a Navy Lieutenant.

Majorities and the Osborn High school band in their bright uniforms came next followed by Troop 219 Boy Scouts and Troop 6 of the Girl Scouts, with members of the latter carrying a flag which stretched the width of the street.

Where once Memorial Day parades included the "thinning ranks" of soldiers in Confederate Grey, this parade had moved forward 47 years with time and the "thinning ranks" on Tuesday last were those of Veterans of the Spanish American War and the Philippine Insurrection. They were represented by C. H. Wine, Sr., R. O. Bibb and W. R. Thomas.

Following them was the American Legion Auxiliary in a buddy-puppy decorated automobile, and then the Manassas Lion's Club and the Nokesville band with its attractive majorettes.

Next came the Yorkshire 4-H Club and then Gainesville's delegation proudly displaying the new pumper and fire truck of the Gainesville-Haymarket Volunteer Fire Department.

The Manassas Volunteer Fire Company, headed by Fire Chief Davis, and E. H. Rohr with his newly acquired electric automobile, and the two pumps of the fire company followed.

From the speaker's position on the high school ground one looked down upon a scene of peace and quiet. Ahead were sloping lawns and across the playground of the high school was the Manassas Cemetery, with the Memorial shaft to fallen Confederate heroes proudly rising in the distance. Beyond freight trains carrying the fruits of industry and labor rumbled past.

Amid this scene the people prayed and hoped for peace while warnings to prepare for war poured upon their ears.

As always the most striking part of a Manassas Memorial Day ceremony is the part played by the Daughters of the Confederacy to keep alive the heritage of their fathers. Of special significance this Memorial Day was the presentation of Confederate Crosses to a father and two sons by Miss Isabelle Hutchison, president of the Manassas Chapter, UDC. These were given to Charles H. Wine, Sr., and his two sons, Charles H. Wine, Jr. and Carroll Winston Wine, Sr., veterans of World War II. All were due the Confederate Cross as descendants of Charles William Wine, a private in Cooper's Battery of the Confederate Army.

Others who received the Confederate Crosses from Miss Hutchison were William C. Reid and his son, William Clement Reid, Jr., as descendants of Reuben Oetford Hiden, of the Confederate Army; John Hixson Adams, World War II veterans, as the descendant of George Washington Hixson; Stewart McBryde, Jr., as the descendant of Robert James McBryde and Allen Howison Barbee, a descendant of James Monroe Barbee.

The salute to the Confederate flag was given by Johnny Fishbaugh.

Paved Streets

menting upon the action said that manassas would be relieved of a heavy expense which it has been under for street maintenance while it has had a contrasting lack of funds. He also advised property owners who desire to have streets opened in the future for utility connections that applications for permission to do this type of work will in the future have to be made at the state highway office in Warrenton. He advised that it frequently takes several weeks time before a permit may be issued.

The transfer of authority over the paved streets of Manassas becomes effective July 1. The new law provides that action of this nature may be taken by all towns under 2,500 population, as determined by the latest census figures.

The State Highway department for some time has been responsible for the maintenance of Center street but its unrepaid condition brought embarrassment on Tuesday to Keith Lyons, proprietor of the Bouquet Mart. On Sunday a soldier and his companion had entered the store to purchase flowers and when leaving their clothes were splattered with water when a passing automobile struck a hole in the street. Lyons took the patrons back into the shop and aided in their rehabilitation, so on Tuesday when water again filled up the hole in the street because the fire truck was being washed in the street in violation of a town ordinance Lyons placed a barrier across the mud-hole to prevent a recurrence of the Sunday incident as people were coming to get Memorial Day flowers. Officer Twyman gave Lyons a summons for obstructing traffic. When haled into court Judge Lacy Compton remitted a fine to Lyons but charged him with costs of court.

We are sure we express the opinion of many when we say that we wish we could have become better acquainted with the Restuccia family from Garfield, New Jersey. About 90 folks enjoyed the Junior-Senior banquet at the Fire Hall on Saturday night. The supper included mixed fruit, ham a la king on biscuit, buttered peas, rolls, butter, potato sticks, tea, coffee and lemon pie. The supper was planned and served by the junior class. In charge of the evening's activities was Randolph Cowne, Jr. During the program Herbert Wood gave the response on behalf of the senior class when Randolph Cowne welcomed all those present.

The theme for the evening was Career Night. The tables were appropriately decorated with various signs of occupations. # et of Memorial Day Talk By Navy Speaker etter Than Even Chance of Another War"

The complete text of the Memorial Day Address of Lieut. Frank A. Manson, USN, at the public ceremonies at the entrance to Osbourne High School in reading these remarks to remember that Commander Manson's speech was a board of review in the Pent of Defense in the Pen- therefore what he says the probability of war has of- approval. Commander Ma- marks follow:

Pentagon office the Navy display two yellow life rafts the unarmed U. S. Naval plane that took off from Wies- Germany on a routine train- to Copenhagen, Denmark. His wounds were so recent that the color was still in his cheeks. His lips were parted slightly and he looked like he wanted to say something like this:

"In God's name fellow won't you please go home and help stop these stupid wars. I didn't want to kill anybody and I didn't want to get killed either. Would it be too much fellow? You see I had something I wanted to do back home but some sniper be- hind that hill, that little peace- hill over there, I didn't even see him. He kicked me in the heart and stopped me."

I kept staring at his lips and a small spot of fresh red blood on his khaki shirt and I could tell that he wasn't through talking so I did my best to listen.

"Go back home and tell my folks and my friends if you hap- pen to see them, that I did what I could and that I wasn't shot in the back. If you see my coach tell him to stop saving my old jersey for my senior year because that was my last touch- down, that one I ran back on the kickoff for 95 yards. Oh, yes, fellow, would you come a little closer—this is something private—See those letters in my shirt—they're from the girl that's waiting for me back in the states—She's waiting for me fellow—So you'll have to tell her—tell her that she wouldn't want to be married to a guy like me—tell her anything to help her forget me and to make her happy—tell her, tell my folks and my friends not to grieve about me—I can't hear those guns anymore, I can't feel any pain or see any sadness—I can't hear the cries of the wounded. I'm at peace with the world. Can't you see I'm smiling."

I walked along row after row of the talking dead. Each with a message on his lips similar to the one I have just repeated, similar in fact to a letter received by Mrs. Robert E. Lee, from her distin- guished soldier husband, after the first victory on this historic battle- ground of Manassas, July 21, 1861—"Do not grieve for the brave dead," wrote General Lee. "Sorrow for those they left behind, friends, relatives, and families. The former are at rest. The latter must suffer. The battle will be repeated there in greater force."

The men who laid down their lives at Lexington, at Manassas, at Pearl Harbor, at Anzio and at Okinawa did not commit suicide. They died that the ideals and prin- ciples they were fighting for might live. Those ideals and cherished principles will never die.

I regret that this Memorial Day offers us no opportunity to relax after a tragic and desperate inter- lude of war, a war that created will exceed the speed of sound, —Miss Pauline Peacher, 19, Manas- susses as accurate as the radio waves that guide them, ships that will out shoot and out-manuever the enemy, tanks that are second to none. But more than that, our strategy calls for trained person- nel. The best equipment is of no benefit unless we have experienced men to handle it. We must have a nucleus of well trained personnel to train others.

Our strategy calls for teamwork among the services, teamwork in industry, teamwork in government, teamwork on the grandest scale. Remember that teamwork does not always require unanimous agree- ment. In fact for best results real teamwork almost always involves the compromise of honest and sin- cere convictions. Highest achieve- ment, and freedom of expression run on parallel tracks, for it is only through such enlightened dis- cussion that progress is made.

Differences of yesterday have pro- vided us with the straight of today. I can offer no better example of teamwork than the United States Navy itself. That service must combine its total resources to con- trol the sea. This involves control of the air over the sea, airpower; control of the surface, surface power; control beneath the surface, under- seas power; and control of beachhead, landpower. Although employing fewer facets of powers the teamwork the Army and the Air Force is equally an impressive and equally as important.

The time may come when armed strength will not be necessary. We sincerely hope so. We hope the day will come when the world will operate under rules of law; when controversies among peoples will be settled, either out of court by dis- cussion, or in court by judicial de- cision. We must have faith that the conduct of mankind will ultimately reach such a level of behavior. Such a condition is not in immediate prospect nor even on the horizon. Un- til that time comes, the peace lov- ing citizens of the world must rely on their own armed strength to save us from destruction. Such is the overwhelming responsibility thrust on the Department of Defense, The Army, the Navy and the Air Force on this midcentury Memorial Day, 1950.

The Town Council has received copies of a standard building code from the Virginia League of Municipalities and also a code of ordinance of the Town of Williamsburg, which the League of Municipalities considers to be a model one. At its meeting Monday night the council members expressed themselves as only favoring a building code for large structures and not residential buildings. It was pointed out that adoption of a building code would require employment of an inspector to enforce it, a cost for which the town has no provision.

The State Highway department reports that travel on primary highways, those numbered under 600, is increasing in Virginia, and there is little likelihood of travel conditions being improved due to lack of funds for the improvement of over-loaded roads.

Miss Fleishman, Mr. Restuccia Exchange Vow

By Hazel Shepherd

Miss Melva Fleishman, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Fleishman of Nokesville, became the bride of Mr. Dante Restuccia, son of Dr. and Mrs. D. Restuccia of Garfield, N. J., in an unusually beautiful ceremony at the Nokesville Church of the Brethren on Saturday afternoon at 3:00. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Edna Armstrong gave a recital of nuptial music on the electric organ. Mr. John Caputo, cousin of the groom, from Brooklyn, N. Y., sang "I Love Thee" and at the close of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

Mr. Fleishman performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with palms, ferns, and large jardinières of iris and mock orange. Tall lighted candles completed the background. In each window of the church were four large lighted candles surrounded by white ribbon and orange blossoms.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Allen Fleishman, the bride wore a lovely gown of white lace, over satin, fashioned with a tight-fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, and long set-in sleeves. Her veil was waist-length, held in place with a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a large bouquet of white roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Jane Bashore of Pennsylvania, wore a gown of lavender marquisette over satin and carried a bouquet of yellow and red roses. Her headband was a halo of matching roses. The two bridesmaids were Miss Anita Restuccia, sister of the groom and Miss Frances Owens. They wore flowing dresses of pale green marquisette over satin and carried bouquets of tall-tapered roses with matching headbands of roses.

Joseph Lettice of Brooklyn was the best man. Fred Kaiser and Eddie Collins of Garfield, N. J., were ushers.

Immediately following the ceremony a receiving line including Mrs. Fleishman, the groom's parents and the newly-married couple greeted the guests as they left the church. Mrs. Fleishman was lovely in a dress of navy with white accessories. Mrs. Restuccia wore an enchanting dress of navy with blue accessories. Both wore corsages of white roses. The reception followed at the nearby parsonage, home of the bride.

Assisting with serving the wedding cake were aunts of the bride, Mrs. Hazel Wine and Mrs. Mary Wright of Bridgewater. Misses Marie Kerlin and Alice Wright also helped to serve the guests. Presiding over the bride's book was Mrs. Lenna Rhodes of Front Royal, cousin of the bride.

After the reception, the young folks left for their honeymoon and will make their home in Garfield. For her going away outfit, Mrs. Restuccia chose a sheer dress of navy blue and white, a hat of yellow straw, and a light yellow coat. She wore a white orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Juniata College, Huntington, Pa., and until recently held a position in the Personnel Office of the Federal Light and Power Commission in Washington. The groom is also a graduate of Juniata College. Both graduated in 1948. He is now employed as a chemist for Lever Brothers.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding and the reception were

Dr. and Mrs. D. Restuccia and daughters of Garfield; Mrs. Lena Caputo of Brooklyn, sister of Mrs. Restuccia and mother of the soloist; Miss Lucy Lettice of Brooklyn; Mr. Reginald Peterson of Garfield; N. J.
