PRINCE WILLIAM CHOSEN

Awarded The Health Campaign By State Board For Its Prompt Application.

Prince William county has been awarded the "new unit" organized by the State Board of Health, with the cooperation of the International Health Commission, for an intensive campaign in behalf of better sanitation. Dr. R. W. Garnett of the board's field staff is already in Prince William and is meeting with the most cordial cooperation.

This announcement, made Wednesday, by the State Board of Health, is the "award" of one of the most unique "contests" ever held in the state. Some weeks ago, the State Board of Health procured the promise of the International Health Commission to assist in financing another field campaign for rural sanitation. Under this plan, a trained health officer, with ample assistants, was to be put in a selected field and was to devote from two to three months to a detailed survey of all farms, to the treatment of hookworm disease and to the eradication of filth-borne diseases, such as typhoid fever, intestinal worms and infantile diarrhoea.

Knowing that many communities would be glad to have the "unit" and to pay the $250 asked of the locality for the living expenses of the field assistants, the State Board of Health requested the press of the state to announce that the work would be done in the county which made the first

Notice to this effect was printed on Thursday, May 27th. Among other papers which published the statement of the board was the Manassas Journal, coupling with it an appeal to the board of supervisors to make the necessary appropriation and to "go after the unit." The board responded immediately and within forty-eight hours, the formal application of Prince William for the "unit" was on file at the State Board of Health.

"This splendid response to the board's appeal," said the Health Commissioner to-day, "was extremely creditable to Prince William county and most gratifying to us. It indicated an interest in public health that guaranteed in advance the success of the undertaking. Dr. R. W. Garnett has been placed in charge. His reports all show that the progressive county of Prince William is cooperating finely. We hope the community in which the work is done, will become a model of good health for the rural sections of Virginia. It certainly deserves to be.

"Other applications for the work will be accepted in the order in which they are filed. Our only regret is that means are not available for the state to assist all the counties that are now anxious to rid themselves of filth-borne diseases."

CARE OF INFANTS

The State Board of Health announces the early publication of a new edition of 50,000 copies of its standard bulletin on the Care of Infants. This bulletin, which has been one of the most widely distributed of the state's publications, has been revised and reissued for the mothers of the state. It deals with the care of the infant from birth to the age of two years, and contains many practical suggestions for the care of the child. The bulletin will be sent to all mothers of whose infants have been reported as required by law, and to all others who request it. Like all the bulletins of the board it is mailed without charge.

WEST VIRGINIA MUST PAY

United States Supreme Court Rules That Virginia Must Be Paid Old Debt.

(Extract from Baltimore Sun)
The 50-year-old state debt controversy between Virginia and West Virginia was finally adjudicated Monday when the Supreme Court of the United States held that West Virginia shall pay $12,393,929.50 as her share of principal and interest of Virginia's ante-bellum indebtedness. Of this amount $4,215,622.28 represents West Virginia's share of the principal as of January 1, 1861, and $8,178,307.22 is interest on this sum for 54 years and six months. If West Virginia does not pay over the money by July 1 next, the state must pay 5 per cent. interest on the total of $12,393,929.50 until it is paid.

All of this money will be paid to the holders of the old Virginia debt certificates. One million dollars worth of these certificates are held by Baltimore bankers and individuals, and about $3,000,000 are held in New York. Many of them are in the possession of West Virginians. When Virginia readjusted her ante-bellum debt 32 years ago, she issued new bonds for two-thirds of this obligation and gave certificates for the other third, at the same time promising the bondholders to use her good offices to compel West Virginia to pay the certificate, with interest.

HOW CONTROVERSY AROSE
The debt controversy arose over the separation of West Virginia from Virginia at the outbreak of the Civil War. After the war Virginia contended the new state should assume an equitable share of the former's debt. West Virginia's admission to the Union, West Virginia recognized this claim at that time, and wrote into her state constitution a provision that she would assume an "equitable share" of the mother state's indebtedness. The two states, after this, could never agree upon the amount of West Virginia's share, despite the appointment of many commissions to conduct negotiations with the hope of reaching such an agreement.

THREE BULLETINS ISSUED

State Board of Health Has New Publications on Fleas, Typhoid, and Sanitation.

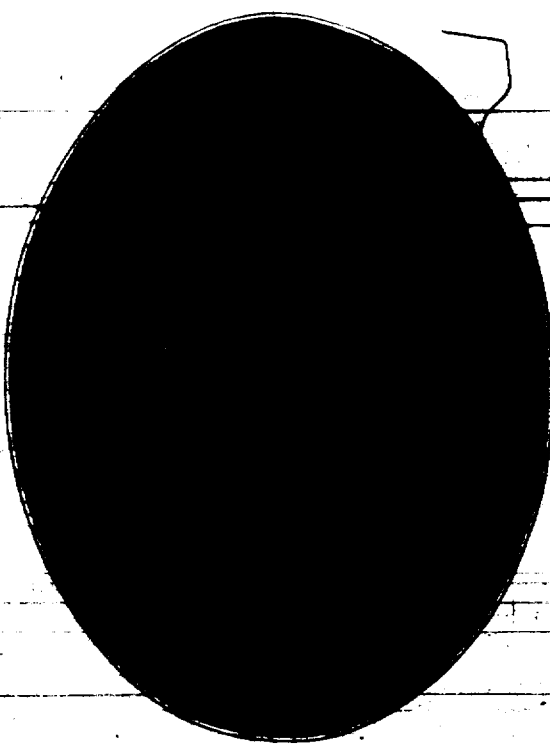

The State Board of Health recently announced the publication of three new bulletins for use in the summer campaign against typhoid fever and other filth-borne diseases. These bulletins, issued in very large editions, are being distributed to all persons on the mailing list of the board and will be sent free of cost to others upon request.

The new bulletin on typhoid fever is one of the most extensive the board has yet prepared and contains a detailed account of the methods by which typhoid fever is spread and may be prevented. With it is issued a new version of the standard "Bedside Directions for the Care of Typhoid Cases" which is sent physicians for the guidance of families in their practice where typhoid fever occurs. The new bulletin on "The Fly" which is intended to be used with the pamphlet on typhoid fever, contains among other features a new and detailed account of the giant fly-trap and larva-trap.

The third bulletin is on Sewage Disposal and contains in compact form the various publications of the board on this subject. It lists a large number of sanitary devices to be used where there is no public sewerage system and shows how these may be installed at small cost.

Trustees of Richmond College have selected Lieutenant-Governor J. Taylor Elyassa, president of the board.

DR. HENRY MAZYCK CLARKSON

Dr. Henry Mazyck Clarkson, who was taken critically ill on Sunday with congestion of the lungs, died yesterday afternoon at three o'clock in his home at Haymarket. For the last few years, Dr. Clarkson has been in feeble health, but up to last Sunday the nearness of his end was not dreamt of by anyone. Present at his bedside when death came were his wife and five of his living children, the two who live in California not being able to get here.

The surviving members of his family are his wife, before her marriage in 1863, Miss Jennie Irvin Sayers, of Haymarket; Walter R. of Elizabeth, Pa.; Thomas R., of St. Washington, Md.; Hugh T., of Washington, D. C.; and Lee M., of California; two daughters, Mrs. R. L. Reading, of Redding, Cal., and Mrs. T. R. Robertson, of Raleigh, N. C.

The funeral services are to be held this evening at six o'clock from St. Paul's church at Haymarket, by the rector, the Rev. Robb White, and interment will be in the church graveyard. The honorary pallbearers will be the fellow members of the vestry of St. Paul's—Messrs. A. St. E. Thorp, T. J. Chew, F. B. Price, G. G. Tyler, C. E. Jordan, M. White, R. Tyler, W. M. Jordan, T. B. Thomas, E. Keyser and M. Cave, with the addition of Dr. W. R. Tullos, Edward Low and Mr. W. L. Houser.

The active pallbearers are Messrs. C. R. McDonald, Thomas Boswell, Chas. Keyser, C. C. Dalaney, J. E. Beale and Charles Gilliam. Ewell Camp of Confederate Veterans, of which Dr. Clarkson was a member, will attend the funeral in a body.

A SHORT BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Dr. Clarkson was born in Charleston, S. C., on November 6, 1855. He was the son of Thomas Boston Clarkson, a large Southern planter, through whom his ancestry can be traced back to men of England and Scotland, especially notable among these being Thomas Boston, a distinguished Scotch divine, who was an ecclesiastical writer of much note in his day. Young Clarkson attended school in Charleston, S. C., until 1859, when he went to Columbia, S. C., in order to prepare for college. Two years later he took up work at South Carolina College, graduating from this college in 1855 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts and the following year taking the Master of Arts degree. After this he studied medicine and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1859.

Now it was that he returned to South Carolina. Those were exciting times when secession was brought up and Dr. Clarkson soon followed his state into the war.

He first saw service in the Confederacy as a private, later in 1862 as assistant surgeon and the following year he was promoted to the full rank of surgeon. He was one of the three men who fired on the Star of the West and the only shot from Fort Moultrie was fired by him, he being the gunner. He later served as gunner at the battle of Fort Sumter.

During the war Dr. Clarkson was in Virginia a great deal and while in Alexandria he met Miss Jennie Irvin Sayers, to whom he was married in 1863. At the close of the war, he went to South Carolina where he took up the practice of medicine. Later, in 1870, he came to Prince William county, Va., and here he resided for the remainder of his life.

Small about ten years ago Dr. Clarkson had a very wide practice in the vicinity of Haymarket. In the medical profession he ranked very high, being a member of the Medical Societies of Virginia, and contributing several notable papers on professional subjects to the periodicals of the societies and the profession. Feeling the weight of years, however, and the duties of superintendent of schools for Prince William County, which office he held from 1892 to 1909, he gradually retired from the active practice of his profession, and since 1909 he has not been actively engaged in any special work.

Dr. Clarkson is better known as a poet than as a physician, for his poems have been widely read throughout the Southland and very favorable criticism has been made both by the press and by individuals who know good poetry when they see it. The first poems which Dr. Clarkson was willing to publish were written in the year 1859. Intermittently from this time up to his death he has been a most ardent patron of the muse.

Two editions of his poems have been gotten out by THE MANASSAS JOURNAL PUBLISHING COMPANY, the last one of which was published in 1910 and contains all of his published poems up to that time. Since 1910 Dr. Clarkson has written a few poems but the second and enlarged edition of his "Songs of Love and War" contains the major portion of his poetic endeavors and in this edition will be found the best and most representative poems of the "Poet Laureate of the South."

Dr. Clarkson was a highly respected and much beloved citizen of Prince William. A quiet, unassuming man, he was liked by all, and especially admired by those who can appreciate the true inner worth of a man. He was a true Christian gentleman, the senior warden of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Haymarket, and allied with all that was best and most uplifting in community life.

THE JOURNAL, in common with the citizens of Prince William, extends its most heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family of the deceased. We feel that a good friend of ours has laid down his earthly burden to enter upon that greater glory that God has in store for all who live as his faithful servants. May his noble life be set up as an example to those whom are to follow.

J. G. KINCHELOE SUCCEEDS

Well-known Manassas Man Dies After Operation Following Recent Accident.

On May 27, Mr. J. G. Kincheloe suffered a very serious accident near Manassas in which his left leg was broken and badly shattered below the knee. The next morning he was carried to Sibley hospital in Washington and there he received all the attention and care that medical science could bestow. At first his condition was regarded as being very serious but later he seemed to mend and strong hopes were held out for his recovery.

Towards the latter part of last week, however, blood poisoning began to set in and an operation for the removal of the injured member was performed. Despite the operation he failed to rally and on Saturday night he passed away.

Mr. Kincheloe, who was forty-one years old, was born in Fairfax county and was the son of Capt. and Mrs. C. Kincheloe. In 1899 he was married to Miss Maudie Conner, the marriage ceremony being performed by Rev. D. L. Blakmore. Since his marriage he had resided either in or near Manassas.

Mr. Kincheloe is survived by his mother, his wife and six children, three boys and three girls, two brothers and two sisters. His two brothers who survive him are George and Will, and his sisters, Miss Irene Kincheloe and Mrs. Canada, all of Fairfax county.

The funeral service was conducted at Grace Methodist church on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. D. L. Blakmore, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, Washington. Among the Reverend Blakmore were Rev. E. A. Bonds and Rev. C. E. Simmons. Interment was made in the Manassas cemetery.

The Journal joins the many friends of the family in expressing its sympathy in this sad hour of bereavement.

JUDGE THORNTON IS HOST

Bar Association of Sixteenth Judicial Circuit Lavishly Entertained on Wednesday.

The members of the Bar Association of the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit of Virginia were most hospitably entertained by Judge and Mrs. J. B. T. Thornton at their residence on Grant avenue Wednesday. The lawyers were to have held a short business session in the morning but on account of the delay of Hon. John S. Barbour, president of the association, the business feature of the program was deferred until later in the day.

In the morning an interesting ball game was played between Fairfax and Alexandria city on the one side and Prince William and Alexandria county on the other side. The game, which lasted for five innings, was barely won by Fairfax and Alexandria city by the score of 11 to 10. Attorney Claude Thomas, of Alexandria county, pitched for the losers, while Messrs. W. M. Farr and F. R. Richardson, both of Fairfax, were the star artists for the winning team.

During the early part of the afternoon, the guests assembled at Judge Thornton's residence where they were served a very sumptuous and delicious luncheon. After this, many of the guests made a trip to the battlefield, and while there a short business session was held. The body adopted a resolution thanking Judge Thornton most graciously for the splendid hospitality that they thanks be recorded on the minutes and that a certified copy be sent Judge Thornton. The party then returned to town and departed with many kind recollections of a very pleasant day spent in Manassas.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

President Wilson expects to spend July 4 at the summer White House at Cornish, N. H. It will be his first vacation since the foreign situation became acute.

The defenses of the Panama canal are such that no hostile fleet could pass through the waterway, according to a statement made by Maj. Gen. George W. Goethals, governor of the Canal Zone, who was in Indianapolis recently.

Henry St. George Tucker, of Lexington, former President of the American Bar Association and an authority on international law, has suggested Richard Olney, of Boston, Secretary of State under Cleveland, for Mr. Bryan's place in President Wilson's Cabinet.

A vandal Saturday afternoon stole the silver autograph plate bearing Washington's signature from his pew in historic Christ Church, Alexandria, where Washington was a worshiper. This is the second plate stolen since the pew was occupied by Washington.

Forty thousand dollars in deposits and withdrawals has passed through the Business High School Bank, of Washington, in the school year which will close next week, according to the annual report. The institution is now believed to be the largest school bank in the United States.

Following the Virginia Day exercises at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, on July 8, Governor Henry Carter Stuart, of Virginia, will talk to friends in Richmond over the transcontinental telephone. It will be the first demonstration of coast-to-coast telephony attempted south of Baltimore.

The monument to Francis Pickens, author of "The Star Spangled Banner," was unveiled last Saturday at Terra Rubra, the family home near Keyville, Maryland. It was erected through the efforts of the Patriotic Order Sons of America of the State and from contributions from school children from Frederick and Carroll counties, Md.

Westmoreland Davis, of Loudoun County, for eight years president of the Virginia State Farmers' Institute, Sunday announced himself a candidate for Governor of Virginia, subject to the Democratic primary in August, 1917. In a formal statement issued at his home in Leesburg, Mr. Davis outlines his ideas for the conduct of the State's business, and pledges himself if nominated and elected, to an administration characterized "by economy, constructive legislation and efficient public service."

The sum of $685,700,000 was distributed in 1914 by life insurance organizations in the United States and Canada, according to the Insurance Press. This is the greatest amount ever distributed in one year, and exceeds the amount disbursed in 1913 by $42,150,000. The largest individual claim paid last year amounted to $1,000,000. The policy was held by George W. Vanderbilt, of Washington, D. C. The policy was on the twenty-year plan, and Mr. Vanderbilt carried it for seventeen years, paying premiums amounting to $256,000.

New Agricultural Bulletin.
The June Agricultural Bulletin is now being mailed out by Commissioner Koser to the farmers over the state. This month's bulletin contains some timely and valuable articles. The one on twig blight comes when this trouble is on hand now in some sections; an article giving plain instructions how to spread lime so as to get the quantity per acre desired; a valuable article on the value of the silo to the farmer; how it increases the feed; one on making sprays for insects that are now on hand. The Commissioner will be glad to send these bulletins to any one who desires them each month.

Important and Recent Regulations Regarding Baggage.

The following editorial, which appeared in the Washington Star of June 4th issue, will be of interest to all who travel:

The new regulations just put into effect under the Cummins law regarding the valuation of interstate baggage will probably, for a time, cause some confusion at railroad stations, and perhaps lead to the missing of trains. Under the new statute interstate passengers must declare the value of their baggage before receiving checks and pay at the rate of ten cents for every $100 of value over the permitted $100. Thus, a trunk containing property worth $500, will cost the sender forty cents. Hereafter baggage losses were chargeable against the railroad companies only up to the extent of $100, but now full losses may be recovered on proof, and the tax of ten cents for every hundred over the first hundred dollars is an assessment to stand as an insurance premium to protect the company against subsequent claims. Without question this new rule will work out satisfactorily as soon as the traveling public become accustomed to it. The incidental delays in declaring and signing and paying excess fees are to be reckoned as part of the time of getting to the train.

Make Prompt Report of Early Typhoid Cases.

If epidemics of typhoid that make their appearance in Virginia towns are to be handled promptly this summer, early notification of the health authorities is necessary. Without this, Health Commissioner Williams stated, it is often impossible to attack the epidemic in time to prevent its spread. The best success always attends these investigations of typhoid which are begun as soon as the disease threatens epidemic form. Physicians and health officers are urged by the State Board to report without delay all outbreaks of typhoid that seem in any way to have a common cause. The board, upon notification, will at once dispatch its investigators to make investigations.

IN MEMORIAM

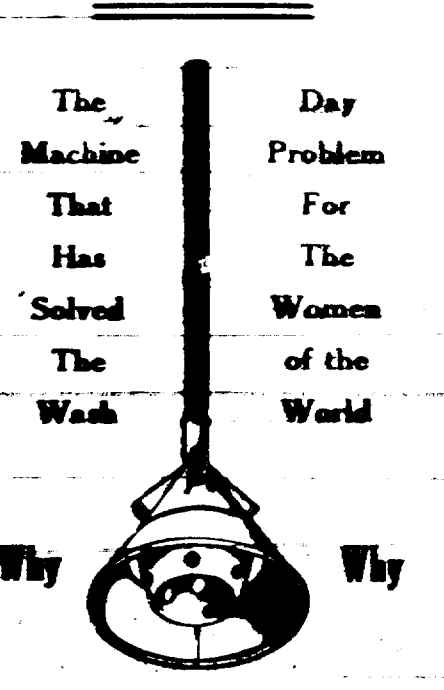

In the death of Miss devoted wife of James R. Woodard who departed this life at Brentsville, on June 12, he leaves a family and loving wife, her mother, a most unselfish and devoted mother and the community a most good and useful woman. The high esteem in which she was held was attested by the large congregation that assembled at The Old Stone Church at Brentsville to do her reverence. A most appropriate and forceful sermon was delivered by Dr. Quarles, of Manassas, from Rev. 14-28. Her body is sweetly resting in Valley View Cemetery, awaiting the Resurrection morn. The deceased was married 26 years ago in the Union Church at Brentsville to her native wife, by the saintly and devoted Mrs. B. P. Dunn, and many, remembering the young and blushing bride just entering womanhood. Though the mother of fourteen children, she retained to the last her youthful beauty. She was a woman of strong mentality, and much force of character. Though strong in her prejudices, she was never known to speak ill of anyone, and faithfully followed the right, "as God enticed her to see the right." Her untiring attentions, even to the detriment of her own domestic affairs, through many long weary months upon the mother of the writer proved her Christian worth, and are still most gratefully remembered. Her faith in her Savior sustained her through long months of pain and agony, and when the last moment came there was no fear, no terror, she quietly fell asleep. "Take one who wraps the drapery of life about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams." M. H. R.

STEP FORWARD AND SPEAK UP

Last week through the columns of THE JOURNAL you learned of the effort which was being made by the State Board of Health in trying to give every single rural community in Prince William an equal showing in this matter of health improvement. You perhaps recall that in several separate and distinct places in THE JOURNAL of last week's issue emphasis was laid upon the fact that any community which was not scheduled for a talk (and we named those that were) could have the matter presented if someone in that community would write for the talk. How many communities do you suppose have written asking to have the matter laid before their citizens? Not a solitary one at the time this article is being set up.

Is it possible that no communities outside of the eight first selected have any interest in the betterment of public health? Is it possible that we are so well satisfied with "well enough" that certain of us will not so much as even express a desire to hear what a wonderful offer the State Board is now preparing to give three communities of our county? Is this how Prince William receives one of the greatest uplift movements for a portion of the county and its citizens? Truly certain of us should apply the pin point to ourselves to see whether we are awake or asleep.

A very short time remains in which to hear of the plan. The work is soon to be inaugurated in full blast and if you, you the individual who now reads this, wish to help your community speak out at once so that your neighborhood can enter the contest before the three places are chosen. Don't forget one very important thing in connection with this work, i. e., it's not going to cost you one red penny. Everything is already paid for and it's yours for the asking, but you must ask enthusiastically to show that you are interested enough to encourage the work should it be established in your neighborhood.

Do not imagine for an instant that this matter is to drag on for some time. We are not mentioning names but it is very definitely understood that some of the places at which the matter has been presented are working very nicely and the interest which is being shown is very gratifying. So it can be expected that the three communities that get this survey will be deserving ones. And we can add that they will be very lucky ones.

Your community has now a last and final opportunity of entering this contest. The question now before you is, do you desire to further the interest of your own community (not some other community) by making a very slight effort on your part? As we have said you must decide now, as this is the last invitation. If you want to have your neighborhood hear about the sanitary survey take it upon yourself to speak up. The time may come when you will most seriously regret not having expended a little energy in behalf of your fellow men with whom you are personally acquainted and for whom you should labor untiringly.

A LITTLE CONSIDERATION NEEDED

In life we do not enjoy a blessing very long before we begin to regard it as commonplace. We soon accept it as a matter of course that the many blessings and privileges bestowed upon us are due us and that we are here to enjoy them to the fullest. Some of us even go to the point of thinking that these blessings are to be used to our own individual satisfaction without taking into consideration the fact that in the manner we make use of our blessings and in our conduct towards others we determine very largely the joy our neighbors are going to obtain from these same blessings. That there are still some forgetful and inconsiderate people left in our community has been brought out quite plainly during some recent very educational and pleasing musical concerts. At several of these concerts little acts of thoughtlessness and of inconsideration have tended to mar otherwise very pleasant and agreeable programs. We recall in especial a great deal of noise, commotion and talking during the rendition of several numbers on the program on Monday evening. We mention this particular evening because at that time we were very forcibly impressed with a display of bad manners on the part of several of the audience.

We have said that the misconduct was due to thoughtlessness and inconsideration. It hardly seems probable, however, that thoughtlessness can be advanced as an excuse in these instances, for each evening preceding the program the audience was kindly requested to be as quiet as possible during the rendition of the different numbers. Most certainly anyone who disturbs a program is inconsiderate and on the evening in question the number of inconsiderate people was large enough to make the program a very difficult and trying one for several of the performers.

From force of habit, if nothing else, the boys who perch in groups in the rear of the hall will not keep quiet under normal conditions. It is often thought their sole object in coming to a great many of the concerts and recitals is for the purpose of having a "good time," and if there is any way open for the carrying out of their plan they can be counted upon as being 100% efficient in this line. If these boys will not behave they must be peremptorily ejected.

But the blame for this annoying state of affairs does not rest solely with certain ill-bred boys. Too frequently men and women are found talking, moving seats, or walking about during the performance of a number on the program. This was the case on Monday evening and certain men and women share the blame equally with certain "roosters of the rear-guard." In an adult we look for more than he do in a growing boy. Some boys find it?

The hardship which such ill-mannered conduct imposes upon those in charge and those participating in the program is hard for the average person to imagine. It is particularly difficult to give a musical rendition when a great deal of distracting noise is going on in the audience. Quietness, if not undivided attention, is certainly justly due from every person in the audience, and unless a person goes with the intention of being quiet, he or she had far better stay away.

Be considerate of the likes and dislikes of others. Would you like to have a great hubbub going on in the audience while you were performing? Certainly you would not. Then treat others as you would have them treat you. If all concert goers would observe this little rule what an improvement over present conditions would be brought about! Consideration is a little thing but when it is lacking its absence is very noticeable.

THE DEATH OF A BELOVED CITIZEN

In the passing away of Dr. Henry Mayrick Clarkson on yesterday afternoon Prince William, the state of Virginia and the Southland lose one of its most beloved and talented men. Although born in South Carolina and not a resident of Prince William until his early manhood no son of the county has ever gained greater love and admiration from its citizens. Prince William for many years has drawn this most charming and versatile son close to her bosom and has showered upon him her greatest blessings.

Dr. Clarkson did noble work in each of the many fields of his endeavor. As soldier, physician, educator, poet, and Southern gentleman he has justly won the esteem of all, and many are the persons who have found life all the sweeter because of his having lived. He was a man of the noblest feelings, the kindest heart and the most self-sacrificing service, and Prince William cannot help but feel his loss most keenly. How true are those words of his in his own case!

"Ah! blessed sleep, from which the righteous dead Ah! blessed truth—the good man never dies!"

Do you approve of boy scouts? Then see that your boy makes application for membership in the local troop. The strict discipline and the out-door exercise will work wonders in the case of your boy.

TAKE NOTICE

The way to make two blades of grass grow where one does now: Buy the celebrated Magnesium Lime from Leesburg Lime Co., the lime that has been sold in Loudoun and Fairfax for the past twenty-five years, and out produced them all, and the reason for it is because it contains Magnesium and Oxide of Iron in right proportion to Calcium Carbonate, and the United States Agricultural Department in Year Book 1902, page 161, states that Magnesium is absolutely necessary to plant growth and nothing else will take its place. Send orders to W. T. Thompson, Leesburg, Va., or direct to us and same will have prompt attention.

WAR-TIME MEMORIES

BY ELEANOR M. B. EWELL.

I have been asked to write my recollection of the War between the States, or, as we generally call it, the "Confederate War." In order to do this intelligibly I must begin with a description of my home and its near surroundings.

My father, Dr. Jesse Ewell, lived at "Dumblane," about half-a-mile, more or less, from the foot of the Bull Run mountains which formed the western boundary and shelter of the farm. On the east, between us and the Carolina road which was nearly parallel with the mountain, was "Edge Hill" the home of my brother, John Smith Ewell; the two houses within sight and call of one another. On the Carolina road, at the entrance of the Ewell tract, was a small church which figures in my narrative, then called "Ewell's Chapel," now Grace Episcopal church. At the foot of the mountain was, and still is, another public highway called the mountain road, protected by woods and much used throughout the war. Our family homes were therefore between and very near two main thoroughfares; five miles from Aldie, Loudoun county, on the north and eight miles from Haymarket, on the south, in our own county of Prince William. The present near village of Hickory Grove did not then exist.

Dumblane was a retired place, sheltered by woods at the back and by shade trees and much shrubbery on the other three points of the compass. We found this cover of shade at times an advantage, at other times a drawback, in the troubled days of the war. It favored some unpleasant surprises and aided some escapes. So much for our general situation.

I now begin some account of ourselves, needful to a proper understanding of what follows. In 1860 I was the only daughter of my parents, then well advanced in life. With us at Dumblane was my little nephew, now Dr. Jesse Ewell, of Ruckersville, Va. His father, living at Edge Hill, a young married man with several children, was my elder brother. A younger brother, Albert Mortimer Ewell, about twenty-five years of age, was in business in Washington city, where we had many relatives who were warm Southern sympathizers.

In the fall of 1860, I made a visit to these Washington kinsfolk, and while there heard of the election of Abraham Lincoln. Soon after that came the secession of South Carolina. There was of course much excitement, a great deal of talk—but no peace that I can remember. I heard at Trinity Episcopal church a sermon from the Rev. C. M. Butler. He, an ardent Union man, deplored the rash act of South Carolina, but hoped in conclusion that wise patriots such as Stephen of Georgia, and some other moderators mentioned, would bring about a peaceful solution of the difficulty. No one spoke of such a thing as war. Trouble was in the air, but everybody hoped for the best.

While in Washington I dined with Mr. and Mrs. Kingman, well-known literary and society people. Mrs. Kingman was a first cousin of my father and of Gen. R. S. Ewell; her husband, Elijah Kingman, was from Massachusetts, but had long lived in Washington as a journalist of the old school. He was an important and influential political correspondent for various leading newspapers. His opinions were therefore worth something. On this occasion I met Mr. Henry Watterson, afterwards the prominent Southern editor, then young but very clever; and also Mr. and Mrs. Jack Savage. Mr. Savage was an Irish refugee of some distinction. He had left Ireland on account of political troubles, and come to America as a peaceful refugee. He was a bright, intelligent man; his wife an attractive lady dressed in the style then fashionable, with flounces to the waist and open hanging sleeves.

After some desultory chat the talk at this dinner party drifted to politics. The gentleman had much to say. I listened with an anxious interest that must have made an impression on our host, for before I took my leave he embraced an opportunity to converse with me aside, and said I must not be alarmed for he depended on the loyalty of Virginians, both the white leaders and the slaves. He hoped there would be no war, nor its attendant much-dreaded servile insurrection, then a great bugbear.

On returning home I found some changes. My elder brother had decided to spend the winter in Texas where he expected to settle a plantation. Slave property in Virginia was too near the reach of the government to be considered safe at this time. My sister-in-law with three little girls moved to Dumblane. Thus began for us the winter of 1860-'61. Christmas was brightened by a visit from my brother Albert, but afterwards the war-cloud still lingered and threatened.

My mother was a woman of strong mind and character—with a fine historic sense and a high respect for the Union founded by Washington and his contemporaries. She foresaw the ruin that menaced us through secession. My father, a Virginian by long descent, decided to stand by his state. He was the most prudent of men, but inflexible when his mind was made up. Our friends and neighbors were nearly all ardent secessionists, who thought the "Yankees" might soon be whipped out. My parents were not so sanguine; but my mother played the part of Cassandra in vain.

But in the spring of 1861 events rapidly shaped themselves. Lincoln was inaugurated in March and very soon after issued his proclamation calling for seventy-five thousand men to invade the South. About this time I read in the Baltimore Sun over Mr. Kingman's signature that our country "was drifting rapidly into moral, social, and political ruin." There had been in Richmond in the past winter a peace conference, in which conservative men were trying to arrange the avoidance of an outbreak, but Lincoln's extreme and unjust measure put an end to all this. By its very principle of states rights was violated, and many more Southern states, Virginia among them, left the Union. To furnish men to fight against other Southern states was an alternative not to be contemplated. From this time on preparations for war began.

My brother Albert came home in April, resolved to go into the Confederate army. While living in Washington he had joined a military organization called the National Volunteers, composed of young men living in the city. The young men of Southern birth and sympathies in the spring of '61 withdrew from this organization, came to Virginia, and formed three companies of "Washington Volunteers" in the 7th Regiment of Infantry under General Kemper, C. S. A. My brother stayed with us some days. He had given up bright prospects in the business world of the capital; but was resolved to serve his country at all hazards. He left us after a short visit to join his commander at Culpeper Court House. There all were formally mustered into the Confederate service.

Federal Reserve Banks Report Business Growing Steadily Throughout Country.

The Washington Star. Officials of the 12 Federal reserve banks, in submitting to the Federal Reserve Board a survey of the commercial conditions throughout the country during the month of May, report business is increasing in volume, though not yet normal, and the feeling of confidence and optimism continues to grow.

Industrial centers, filling European war orders, appear to be enjoying a high degree of prosperity. Prospects of big grain crops in the West, more corn and other cereals and less cotton in the South, better tone of the retail trade, and larger and more orders for the wholesale houses, together without the placing of business on a solid basis by the practice of economy, have served to inspire more confidence in domestic commerce than that which prevailed some months ago.

The Fifth district bank officials of Richmond, report that "economy is the watchword, and its practice, while ultimately most beneficial to the consumer, has not contributed to the profit of those ministering to their wants." They also report that timely rains and diversified crops, especially in the cotton belt, have increased the hope for good times in the future. They also declare that while the volume of business is not as great as it was during the same month of last year, material improvement is shown over conditions of three months ago. Bank credit is reported quiet, and local institutions appear to be able to take care of their clients without borrowing from other banks.

University Summer School Again Offers Course of Lectures On Ancient Art.

A free course of lectures on ancient art, which Professor Thomas FitzHugh inaugurated five years ago in the University of Virginia Summer School, will be resumed this summer with a thousand new lantern slides recently provided the Latin department by a special appropriation of the authorities of the University for that purpose. The collection of slides, which were made from original negatives taken of the monuments and their sites, were gathered last summer by Professor FitzHugh during his sojourn in Europe. They furnish exact photographs on all important works of art in the museums of Europe together with views of the important sites of excavation in Egypt, Babylonia, Asia Minor, Crete, Greece, Italy, and the provinces of the Roman empire, thus telling the story of man's handiwork from the earliest flint instruments of pre-glacial man down to the glorious achievements in art by the Greek and the Roman.

These lectures will be open to the public free of charge. Summer students doing the prescribed reading and passing the examination will receive the regular college credit for such a course. The course will be especially valuable for students and teachers of ancient history and of Latin and Greek, and for all who are interested in the origin and history of art. The lectures will be given daily during the summer school immediately following assembly hour. The public is cordially invited to attend. Those who take the examination will be required to pay the regular fee for a summer school course. Those who wish merely to attend the lectures will be admitted free of charge.

CRIMSON CLOVER

Seed Farmers Bulletin No. 275 on Crimson Clover. From Address: U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. A bushel of Crimson Clover Seed sows in four acres of ground will increase the production of corn or cotton about the same amount as would a ton of complete fertilizer applied at the rate of 50 lbs. per acre. A good stand of Crimson Clover sown under will ordinarily double the yield of the crops which follow. The physical condition of the soil is also materially benefited. The soil is also enriched in Nitrogen and Phosphorus. The soil, heavy clay soils are rendered more open and friable. Crimson Clover makes an excellent grazing crop, hay, ensilage and pasture for all classes of live stock. Milk cows make considerably more milk when pastured on Crimson Clover. It is also valuable as a honey plant, furnishing an abundant supply of nectar in the spring. Crimson Clover is valuable as a Winter cover crop. It is especially valuable in the South where it is generally planted under a green manure crop. The plants are for the use of the soil the following season and the raising of the soil, and the blowing of the soil by the wind is greatly lessened. The plants also serve to hold the snow to a greater extent than if the field were left bare during the Winter. More and more each year farmers are realizing the importance and value of this plant.

It is especially fine. It has large well watered plants that stand up to the winter. If you want the best field clover of any kind always select on getting Baltimore's Best Brand Standard Clover and Seed. We Offer Numerous Stocks: Cow Peas, Winter Vetch, Sudas Grass, Timothy Seed, Red Clover, Alfalfa, Lucerne, Blue Grass, Pure Kentucky Blue Grass, Orchard Grass, Winter Oats, Tall Meadow Oats Grass, Millet, Perennial Pasture Mixture, Dwarf Essex Rape, all varieties of Turnip Seed, including Cav Horn Turnip, Southern Sweet Top, Yellow Globe, etc., Cabbage, Kale, Spinnage, Winter Squash and all Fancy Seed Wheat. Seed Samples. Instruction Booklets: Field and Poultry Seed Catalogue, also our 16 page Poultry and Poultry Supply Catalogue, containing valuable information for all poultry raisers. Five Dollars in Gold. For the largest and best developed Red Top White Globe Turnip grown from our seed and delivered at our store on or before November 15th 1915. This is the handiest and most valuable Turnip. It is a large rapid growing sort, with globular shaped roots, flesh pure white. The skin is white and purple. The under portion is white and the top bright purple. Seed on ten cents in stamps. Mention this paper and you will receive a free package of this material turnip so you can enter this contest.

FAST GIFTS TO CHARITY

Americans' Liberty Has Never Been Equalled in History Gifts During 1914.

[From Leslie's Weekly]

Americans are the greatest philanthropists in history. During the last year Europe has been deluged by a tornado of blood, but America has been flooded with gifts of gold. Europe, staggering beneath its burden of hate, has fallen down on the stairway of progress; but America, with a passion for human service, has made bright her way by her lavish gifts of wealth and love.

Wealthy Americans gave away during 1914 to educational and charitable institutions $315,000,000—almost twice the amount in 1913. Eighteen different Americans bequeathed sums ranging from $1,000,000 to $16,000,000. While Europe's surplus wealth has been devoted to training and equipping men to slaughter efficiently, America has been devoted to feeding the poor, clothing the naked, healing the sick and enlightening the minds of men, and the largest, but one, of these gifts was bequeathed anonymously. This "aged millionaire" asked no other pleasure than the joy of giving. Emerson says: "A great man is always willing to be little."

John D. Rockefeller gave a total of $5,802,908. His largest bequests were $3,500,000 to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and $1,019,908 to the University of Chicago. Andrew Carnegie gave $2,000,000 to international peace propaganda. Edwin Ginn, the Boston publisher, bequeathed another $1,000,000 for the same work. Francis A. Ogden, a Texan, bequeathed his entire estate, valued at several millions, to building hospitals and improving the condition of the poor. A grand total of more than $75,000,000 was left to the colleges. King-riders, hate defied Europe is reaping the chaos and agony of war, but money-making, service-inspiring America is achieving true grandeur. Carlyle was right: "Oh, it is great and there is no other greatness—to make one nook of God's creation more fruitful, better, more worthy of God; to make some human heart a little wiser, manlier, happier—more blessed, less accursed."

MAKE USE OF OUR PAPER

Farmers Should Cooperate With Us in Giving Good Ideas To Their Neighbors.

[Waterboro Press & Banner]

The Record-Advertiser, published at Houston, Va., is urging its rural subscribers to do just what we should like for our farmers to do—give us the news from their farms—to make our paper a sort of clearing house of ideas for farmers of this vicinity. Farmers do not use our local paper enough, and yet the paper affords the best and quickest ways to build up our farms and communities. Every farmer should tell his local paper about his successes at the farm and how they were achieved. We are always glad to get a "farming story," for it enables us to spread the news of progress in our vicinity. And no one needs a flow of eloquence to tell of his success. The facts of a farming success are eloquent in themselves. So write us. The editor can rearrange the wording of it if such need be done. No farmer should be too indifferent or too engrossed in his own work to pass a good idea along to his fellow men, thus giving them the benefit of his experience. Such articles are always an inspiration to others. We will know the true and lasting advancement of our community can come in no other way than through the upbuilding of our farms, and so it is not political and social news we want any more than it is news from the farms.

Temple School of Music Gave Several Pleasing Programs At Close.

The Temple School of Music has closed for the summer. The commencement programs were given on Friday and Saturday evenings of last week. The program rendered each evening was varied, pleasing and well received by the audience.

Lack of space forbids the mentioning of the individual playing of all the performers but we must mention two in passing. Little Virginia Aderholdt, aged 4 years, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Aderholdt, attracted the greatest attention and drew the greatest applause of any one player.

Miss Kathleen Spies played exceedingly well for a person who has taken lessons only three years. Her playing was highly commented upon by everyone who heard her and her reputation as a good pianist was made at these commencement exercises.

The programs as a whole were of a nature to reflect much credit upon the school and the school management and all the pupils are to be congratulated upon the very successful performances which have been highly enjoyed by the townspeople the past week. On some of the evenings the programs were slightly marred by unnecessary noise and commotion, which proved to be very annoying to all participants.
