WISE MAKES GOOD MOVE

First County in Virginia to Employ Sanitarian for His Entire Time.

From State Board of Health.

The first local health officer to be employed to give his entire time to the improvement of sanitary conditions will soon begin work in Wise county according to an announcement made Wednesday by the State Board of Health.

Along with other counties of the Southwest, Wise has shown much interest in the public health and has cooperated very fully with the State Board of Health in the various educational and sanitary campaigns recently conducted in that part of Virginia. The results of what has already been done and an appreciation of the further possibilities of health work led the board of supervisors at their last meeting to appropriate $3,000 for the salary and expenses of a full-time health officer. The county will allow $2,100 for salary, with a contingent fund of $900 for expenses. A health officer will probably be elected at the next meeting of the board of supervisors.

The State Board of Health, in announcing the action of Wise county in its weekly bulletin, issued Wednesday, comments as follows on the significance of the county's action in its general bearing on the health situation in Virginia: "As one of the richest and most progressive counties in the State, Wise has taken the lead in a movement of the greatest significance to the health of the entire Commonwealth. Heretofore one of the most serious health problems with which the people have had to contend was that of procuring efficient health administration in rural districts.

"In most counties, all the health work is left to a board of three physicians who are usually paid but a small amount for their services and cannot afford to give much time to their duty except to the prejudice of the private practice on which their incomes are dependent. In this situation, it has been extremely difficult to work out a plan by which the counties can procure efficient health administration at a cost within the figures most counties are at present disposed to pay.

"Wise County has chosen the course which will most commend itself for lasting economy. It will soon have in its employ an officer who will not be embarrassed with private practice and can devote his entire energies to the preventive problems of the county's health.

"With success in its choice of a man, Wise County will find this the best-paying investment it has ever made. The board feels that Wise County is not only to be congratulated on its action but is to be commended by the entire State for progressive leadership in this most important work."

BRADLEY NEWS NOTES.

Mr. Will Thomason and family, of Cannon Branch, were guests at the home of Mr. Elias Woodyard on Sunday.

Mrs. Ernest Beahm and Miss Mamie Priest returned to Fairfax Sunday evening after spending several weeks visiting relatives near Manassas and in Warren county.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Ramey's little son, Carness, was taken suddenly ill Sunday evening and gradually grew worse until three o'clock Monday morning when he began to rest easier. He has gradually improved since that time and is now nearly recovered. RED WING.

PLANT TREES IN GULLIES

This Method Advocated for Reclaiming Gullied or Poor Land—Cost Trifling.

(By H. C. Jones, State Forester)

Trees can be made to grow in the bottoms of gullies, and this is a practical way to reclaim the now almost worthless hill-sides which are so common, especially in the Piedmont section of Virginia and other Southern states. The surest way to get successful results is to build stout dams in the gullies, ten to twenty feet apart, this summer, and by next spring a supply of dirt will have accumulated above the dams. In this dirt little trees can live, because the dams will prevent the soil washing away from the roots. Black (or yellow) locust trees have many advantages over black walnut, red oak, yellow poplar, etc., which might also be used. One-year old locust seedlings, from six to eighteen inches high, are large enough, and can be purchased very cheaply.

LOCUST SEEDLINGS COST ONLY $1.00 OR $2.00 PER THOUSAND
Locust seedlings, six to eighteen inches high, can be bought for $1.00 to $2.00 per thousand, depending on the size, or they can be very easily grown at home, with no expense.

The seeds can be bought for fifty cents per pound (25,000 seeds per pound) or they can be easily collected from the trees when they are ripe, which is in August, September or October, in different parts of Virginia, and kept over winter in a cool, dry place. In early spring they can be sown about one inch apart in drills one foot apart in ground prepared like an ordinary tobacco or onion bed. There are about 1,800 locust seeds to the ounce, and an ounce will cover about sixty linear feet of seed-drill. Ordinarily from fifty to seventy-five per cent. of the seeds germinate, and they should be one and one-half or two feet high at the end of the first year. They are then ready to set out in their permanent places the next spring.

OLD FIELDS PLANTED WITH TREES

The parts of an old field which have not gullied yet, or any steep, steep, or poor field, which is not needed for farming, might as well be growing trees as lying idle, and such fields are being planted up more and more as the farmers realize the increasing scarcity of fence-posts, etc. It is also being more generally realized that the scarcity of water on a farm is often due to the cutting off of the timber on the high ground. Farmers can replant such fields as they do not want to farm with red oak, locust, short-leaf pine, loblolly pine, white pine, etc., at very little expense, if they raise the seedlings themselves, which is easy to do. The State Forester will discuss in another press bulletin the right kind of trees to use, where to buy them, and how to raise them.

DEATH OF MRS. HEINEKEN

Wife of Former National Bank President Died Sunday at Home Near Haymarket.

Mrs. Marie J. Heineken, wife of Mr. Christian A. Heineken, died at her home, "Mill Park" near Haymarket, on Sunday evening after an illness of several weeks. Funeral services were held at her late home on Tuesday morning, the service being read by Rev. Robb White. The remains were then taken to Haymarket and interred in the family lot in St. Paul's church yard. The funeral was very largely attended and many beautiful floral tributes were placed upon the grave.

The pallbearers were Messrs. J. E. Beale, Chas. R. McDonald, Lanier Berkeley, W. M. C. Dodge, E. Kruger and W. L. Heuser.

Mrs. Heineken is survived by her husband, two sons and three daughters. The sons are Mr. C. A. Heineken, jr., of Manatee, Fla., and Mr. Herman Heineken, of Haymarket, and the daughters, Mrs. Walter Lann, of Aberdeen, Miss. Mrs. Franz Peters and Miss Mary Park Heineken, of Haymarket.

Mrs. Heineken was a well-known resident of the Haymarket neighborhood, having spent the best part of the almost fifty years of her married life at her home, "Mill Park." Since the death of a son and daughter, whom she so greatly mourned, she has lived a very quiet and retired life. She was a woman of attractive personality and had many friends who sympathize with the bereaved family.

TRAIN KILLS STRANGER

Strange White Man, About Seventy Years of Age, Killed Near Manassas To-day.

About six-thirty this morning a man, bearing an identification card upon his person giving his name as George S. Buckley, was instantly killed in the cut just this side of Bloom's when he stepped from the southbound track over to the northbound track and was struck by the Norfolk & Western passenger train No. 42. In avoiding an incoming freight he failed to notice the passenger train which bore down upon him before he knew anything about it.

Coroner Meredith was called to the scene where he found the body horribly mangled, especially about the head. No money or valuables were found upon the body, only the card mentioned above. The card stated that in case of accident notify Mrs. Helen Zlickie, 623 South 11th street, Newark, N. J.

"Every Member Canvass."

Two meetings of interest will be held at Trinity Episcopal church, Manassas, Sunday, July 26th. These services will be held at 11 o'clock and 3 o'clock. Two speakers of the diocese will come to address the members in the interest of the church at home and abroad. The main object of these meetings is to furnish valuable information, to emphasize the needs of the church, to encourage more liberal giving, and to awaken a deeper spiritual life in the church. Every communicant, every individual in any way associated with the church, is invited and urged to attend both of these services.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Nokesville Extends Its Thanks to State Board and Assistants in Health Work.

EDITOR MANASSAS JOURNAL:

The work of the State Board of Health, through Dr. Garnett and Mr. Tuttle, at Nokesville, is nearing completion and the people of that community wish, through your columns, to express their appreciation of the efforts of these men. We feel that the community in general has been benefited. Especially were the lectures of Dr. Garnett enjoyed, and all of us, we believe, were enlightened on many points.

We have learned to treat the common fly, not only as a troublesome pest, but as a deadly enemy. The mosquito, we are told, is the only medium through which malaria is distributed. These things cannot help but bring about good results in the future, as we become better educated along these lines and as we learn better ways of fighting the deadly pests.

To the Board of Health we wish to express our thanks for the consideration shown us in choosing our community as a center of activities, and especially to Dr. Garnett and Mr. Tuttle we express our sincere appreciation of their excellent work done here.

There is one more lecture, so far as we know now, scheduled for Nokesville, which will be especially for mothers. This will be Monday, July 26, at 3:30 p. m. This promises to be, and should be, one of the most helpful numbers. It will be rather a conference on everyday problems that confront the mother in rearing her family. Every mother in the community should not fail to avail herself of this opportunity of getting first hand advice on this very vital subject.

MANASSAS HORSE SHOW

Wednesday and Thursday Will Be Given Over to Big Annual Affair of County.

Preparations in many fields of activity are now under way for the nineteenth annual exhibition of the Manassas Horse Show which will be held near Manassas on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. These two days of outing and enjoyment are looked forward to each year with much eagerness by the citizens of Prince William, and the attendance at this year's show bids fair to equal, if not exceed, the attendance in years past.

The entries, which are now closed, insure an abundance of enjoyment for the horse-lover, while other amusements on the grounds will give an added charm to those who like to "keep on the move." Contests of speed, or as better known, races, will be run at the end of the show each day.

The grounds are being put in good shape and by the first of the week many exhibitors will have their horses here ready for the opening day. Many local horse owners have entries which should make the show of especial interest to the people of Prince William. The most prominent of the social activities incident to the show will be the annual horse show german which will be given in Conner's Opera House Wednesday evening.

Larger Packages Mailable.

The size limit for packages by parcel post has been increased from 72 to 84 inches in length and girth combined. The principal effect is to bring the commercial crate within the regulations. After September 1, the sender of a package may obtain a receipt for it on payment of one (1) cent.

The treasury department hereafter will construct postoffices and other Federal buildings in accordance with the needs and importance of places where they are located instead of spending all that Congress appropriates.

Miss Ella Rowzie Passes Away.

About one o'clock Wednesday morning Miss Ella Rowzie, aged about 42 years, passed away at her home several miles from Manassas. Miss Rowzie, for a long time has suffered from goitre, for which she recently underwent treatment at a hospital. The treatment failed to help her and she returned to her home a few weeks ago.

Miss Rowzie, who was a native of Rappahannock, had lived in Prince William 18 or 20 years, making her home with her brother and sister, Mr. J. E. Rowzie and Miss Julia Rowzie. She is survived by two brothers and several sisters, two of whom reside out from Culpeper.

The funeral services were conducted at her late home Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock and the remains were carried to Culpeper on No. 9 yesterday morning, out from which point interment was made.

FIELD DAY BIG SUCCESS

Over Five Hundred Attend Annual Event at Catharpin on Wednesday.

(Communicated.)

Baseball reigned king at Catharpin on Wednesday. The annual field day of Stonewall Council, No. 43, O. E. A., was not a field day but a "baseball day." Everyone became so wild over the two games that no one could be induced to take part in the races and other events scheduled for the afternoon.

Over 500 loyal fans and visitors turned out to see Catharpin win two of the most exciting games ever witnessed on the home ground. Catharpin took the first game from Greenwich by the score of 8 to 6 and defeated Centerville in the afternoon 15 to 13 in 11 innings.

The pitching of Reid for Greenwich and the pitching of C. Brower and batting of C. Brower, K. Lynn and J. Pattie for Catharpin were the features of the morning game. The game of the afternoon, which was played between Centerville and Catharpin, developed into a bat fest. On Centerville's side Woodyard was knocked out of the box in the third inning and Wade Hutchison in the sixth, when Dr. Baylor, of Romney, W. Va., took up the task and finished it in good form until the eleventh inning when Ritenour hit for a double after Brower had been walked. This resulted in a double score when A. C. Ellison made his sixth hit of the game.

Robertson, a port-sider, started the game for Catharpin and held Centerville to five runs, but he weakened in the eighth and Centerville made eight runs with the help of several errors. This put Centerville two runs ahead and then "Big Six" Brower was called to stem the tide, which he did to perfection. He fanned seven out of the next ten batters to face him and caused the other three to fly out, including three pinch hitters.

Catharpin tied the game in the ninth and won out in the eleventh after one man was out. At this juncture the heavy hitting of A. C. Ellison, C. Pattie, Ritenour and J. Pattie featured. Both teams used many substitutes and pinch hitters in the last part of the game. When Catharpin tied the score the crowd went wild and many good hats were torn up in the hilarity.

WEATHER RECORD

Weather record for week ending July 21, maximum temperature, 99 on Friday, the 16th; minimum temperature, 60 on Wednesday, the 21st. Total precipitation for the week: .94 inch. OBSERVER.

The Virginia Association opposed to Woman Suffrage, it was announced last week, has added to its membership roll the name of Miss Mary Custis Lee, only surviving child of General Robert E. Lee.

A SUICIDE LAST FRIDAY

Mrs. Granville Keys, of Orlando Neighborhood, Drowns Self—Ill Health The Cause.

Shortly after noon last Friday, Mrs. Granville Keys, who lived near Orlando, committed suicide by drowning in a stream on her husband's farm. Mrs. Keys had been in ill health for some time and had been told by a physician that her ailment was incurable. Of late, however, she had been told that by following a certain treatment she could regain her health and it was thought that she was getting better.

It has been reported that Mrs. Keys had threatened to kill herself several times of late, but this report lacks the confirmation of those who were closely associated with her. In her nervous condition she had been relieved of the care of her eleven-months' old child and her husband had been in the habit of taking her along whenever he left the farm. Last Friday morning Mr. Keys had to take a business trip and asked his wife to accompany him but she declined saying that she had some cooking to do.

During the morning she attended to several household duties, including the preparation of the dinner. When this was ready she notified the hired man who said he would wait for Mr. Keys to return. Shortly after this Mrs. Keys left the house. She could not be found upon the return of her husband, who started a search for her. After some time a note was found upon the table which stated that it was all her fault and that in no way was her husband to blame for the deed. She also stated in the unsigned note that her body would be found upon the place.

After some further search tracks were found leading to the stream on the farm, and shortly afterwards her body was found, partly submerged. Mrs. Keys had drowned herself about one o'clock and her body was found soon afterwards.

Burial services were held at Bell Haven church on Sunday afternoon shortly after three o'clock, the service being conducted by Dr. Rixey, who was assisted by the Order of Fraternal Americans. The funeral services will be held at some future date.

Mrs. Keys, who before her marriage was Miss Clara Wine, was 26 years of age at the time of her death. Besides her husband and little child she leaves her father and mother, Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Wine, two sisters and four brothers. Mrs. Keys was a niece of Mr. C. H. Wine, of Manassas.

THE JOURNAL extends its heartfelt sympathy to the family of the departed one.

Berkeley Camp Reunion.

The Reunion of the Berkeley Camp will take place on August 5, at Little River church, where the 8th Virginia Regiment was so delightfully entertained by the ladies of the neighborhood in 1861. The meeting will open at 10:30 a. m., with an address by one of our prominent speakers. All veterans will be the special guests of the 8th Virginia Regiment Chapter of U. D. C. and the public are invited to participate in a basket picnic. All sons of veterans of the Camp are entitled to become members of the Camp. E. BERKELEY, Com. G. L. HUTCHISON, Adm.

SOMETHING ELSE THE COUNTY NEEDS

Prince William is being congratulated on all sides for the great progress she has made of late in all matters pertaining to the betterment of the health of her citizens. The advance in the school inspection work during the past year was most gratifying, and the sanitary survey, which is now being made in the county by the State Board of Health, is eliciting much favorable comment upon Prince William's progressiveness. But such work, as has been done, should be as a stepping stone to greater efforts; no work of this nature will have fulfilled its mission if it does not spur us on to greater activity.

In line with our recent and present activities in improving health conditions in the county, THE JOURNAL wishes to call attention to another step which, if taken by the Board of Supervisors, would be of the utmost benefit to every citizen of the county. It is a matter which we wish to present to the county fathers and we feel confident that they will give it the very careful consideration which it merits. In short, we wish to see the appointment of a full-time health officer for the county of Prince William.

Read the following clipping which shows what the Board of Supervisors of Wise county has just done:

Wise, Va., July 13.—The Board of Supervisors of Wise county at their last monthly meeting employed a full-time health officer. The duties of the health officer will be much the same as those of the officers heretofore appointed, but he will give more time to the schools and give instruction in sanitation. All the county doctors signed a petition asking for the appointment of this officer.

This is nothing new to the South. Several counties of North Carolina, for some time past, have been employing health officers who devote all their time to improvement of the health conditions in every nook of these counties—and they keep busy the year round. Wise county has recognized the great value of such an office and has made the necessary appropriation. Prince William has shown she is alive to the need of better health conditions and the sentiment of the county, we feel confident, would be that our board would do well to follow in the footsteps of Wise and employ a full-time health officer.

The duties of a full-time health officer are varied and his position is one of great responsibility. The prevention and suppression of epidemics, the examination of the health of school children, the strict enforcement of sanitary laws throughout the county and public instruction in health matters are among the important things which a full-time health officer finds to keep his time occupied. Of course, he is not allowed to carry on any private practice of any nature. All of his working hours belong to the county.

In the selection of such a full-time health officer only a "live wire" should be considered and for this reason the counties are advised to make an appropriation of $2,500, or more, per annum. With this amount an expert, with a good record, can be employed and good work can reasonably be expected. In this matter of a full-time county health officer, the man selected must be a top-notch, if he is to be satisfactory, and for that reason a smaller appropriation than that stated above can not be expected to attract a good man.

It may be argued that $2,500 would be a large sum to spend annually on the health of the citizens of the county, but, Mr. Supervisor, in what way can the county's funds be better spent? The board spent over $13,000 during twelve recent consecutive meetings on temporary road improvement; can you from this argue that it can not spend $2,500 annually on health improvement?

We are getting ready for annual medical inspection in the public schools of the county, and this means that the physicians who will conduct the examinations, will have to be paid. We are never insured against the appearance of an epidemic in our midst, and in such an event the full-time health officer saves many lives and much money. Isle of Wight county has just spent $8,000 on a smallpox epidemic which could have been suppressed in much less time and at far less cost had a full-time health officer been in charge of the situation. What would a serious epidemic cost Prince William?

For these and many other reasons, Prince William needs a full-time health officer, and such can be had, we earnestly believe, with the approval of the county's citizens, if the Board of Supervisors will grant the necessary appropriation. Prince William is a great old county and her greatness lies, in the final analysis, in her people. To insure the continuance of this greatness, the health of her citizens demands the first attention. In no way can the county guarantee greater happiness and prosperity to its citizens than by the employment of a full-time health officer.

COUNTRY PEOPLE AND PREPAREDNESS

While the weekly of the small town and country district can not hope to rival the city daily in the setting forth of public opinion, it can, and occasionally does make use of its God-given opportunity of expressing the views of the small but nevertheless weighty circle of those whom it knows quite intimately. It is generally conceded that the city daily has a better opportunity of portraying public opinion upon any momentous subject after it begins to crystallize, but when public opinion is in the embryonic and formative stages the small-town paper has a better opportunity of portraying it truthfully and in a cool and sane manner.

No issue can be said to become national until it is backed by the people of the rural districts. But once an issue is backed by these slow but thorough thinking folks it becomes national in importance. Right now there is much concern expressed as to how this country stands upon preparedness, and the large cities are endeavoring to sound the sentiment of the rural districts. The fact that the country people are being sounded upon this subject goes to show that the issue has not as yet grown to be a vigorous national one, and that the country people hold, as it were, the key to the situation.

The country folks are the great peace lovers of the nation. War is abhorred by them to such an extent that they, of all people, wish to see it avoided. We believe, however, that the rural population is getting in line for preparedness and that before long their stand in this regard will be made clear. No one is in a better position that the countryman to know that to be prepared is to be safe-guarded and respected, and no one can show a better record of patriotic devotion to his country than the humble man of the soil. Trust to the country districts; in a deliberate manner they are going to support preparedness and give it the backbone which will make of it a national issue of the greatest importance.

OCCOQUAN VOTES FOR GOOD ROADS

Occoquan Magisterial District has taken a great step forward in voting favorably upon the $16,000 bond issue for road improvement in that district. There is only one thing to be regretted and that is that the bond issue is not for a larger sum. The people of Occoquan district have shown that they are believers in good roads and are willing to pay for them (though at not so high a rate as they have been indirectly paying for bad roads).

We hope that the $16,000 which Occoquan district will spend upon her roads will be spent carefully and in a manner that will insure as permanent results as possible. It's not the amount of money that will be spent that counts; a dollar wisely spent will be more effective than two that are squandered. If part of the $16,000 voted is spent for the salary of an expert practical road builder you can hope for better roads than if the work is supervised by some home man who has many distracting business interests.

The steamer will stop at Quantico next Wednesday morning at 11 a. m., and on the return trip will reach Quantico at 8 p. m. —The retail merchants of Alexandria are indignant over the clause in the new tax law which requires retail merchants to go back five years in their reports of purchases and have decided to test the constitutionality of the law. The cost of the case, it is said, will be about $1,000. —The upper section of Prince William, especially around the Hickory Grove neighborhood, and the vicinity of Aldie, Loudoun county, were visited by a heavy rain and wind storm last Friday afternoon. In a short while many heavy trees were uprooted and the streams rose to a great height. —The Photographers' Association of America opened its annual convention at Indianapolis, Ind., on Tuesday with an attendance of 1,500 delegates, according to R. W. Holsinger, of Charlottesville, treasurer of the association. Mr. Holsinger, who for years has been the leading photographer of Charlottesville, at one time conducted a studio in Manassas. —Rev. Walter E. Mcbath, formerly a Missionary to Guatemala, who preached in Manassas several weeks ago, will preach at Presbyterian church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The subject for the morning will be "The Increase of Christ" and for the evening, "Guatemala as a Mission Field." Everyone is invited to attend both of these services. —A few days ago the Manassas Civic League addressed a letter to the superintendent of stations, Southern Railway, in which a request was made that drinking water be furnished the traveling public at our depot. A letter received by the president of the league this morning from G. W. Taylor, general superintendent of transportation, gives assurance that the matter will be taken up for correction at once.

—The election held in Occoquan Magisterial District last Saturday to determine whether to bond the district for $16,000 for road improvement passed with the overwhelming majority of 69 to 18. The vote in Occoquan precinct was 48 to 2, while in the Hoadley precinct it stood 21 to 16. —A series of revival meetings will be ushered in at Grace Methodist church on the first Sunday in September. Dr. J. A. Bowen, of Birmingham, of the Alabama conference of the M. E. Church, South, has promised to be present. The meetings will last for about ten days and it is earnestly requested that all other churches of the town will lend their cooperation and help to make the series a notable one. —A heavy rain, wind and electrical storm did much damage in Alexandria and vicinity on Monday. The greatest damage was that done the giant hydro-aeroplane which has been in the process of construction for some time. The damage done this $30,000 machine is estimated at $15,000. Many cellars and lower floors were flooded and the railroad tracks were washed over and loosened in several places. —Monday morning shortly after one o'clock Mr. James E. Legg, 80 years of age, a Confederate veteran of Alexandria, passed away. Mr. Legg, who was born in Prince William county, was for several years engaged in the livery business in Alexandria. The funeral took place in Alexandria Tuesday night and the body was shipped to Upperville Wednesday morning for burial. He is survived by one son, a daughter and a sister. —The Marshall Players, who were in Manassas during the latter part of last week, left on Sunday for Orange. On Friday evening they opened the doors but so few people came that they decided to give a free show for the evening. "Too Many Babies" was very comical and the company presented it very cleverly. On Saturday evening they gave another good show, but the meagre attendance did not justify giving the performance. It is regrettable that these performers met with such a cold reception in Manassas. —Thomas H. Welch, of Alexandria, formerly of Manassas, was seriously injured yesterday morning about 11 o'clock. He was braking on a Southern freight when a drawhead, pulled out as he was passing from one car to another. He fell between the cars and broke an arm and a hip, sprained one of his hands, suffered a bad scalp wound and was cut severely about the face. He was carried to St. Andrew's Hospital, Lynchburg, where his injuries are being cared for. A rapid recovery is hoped for by his many Manassas friends.

Mahlon Seese on "Roads." Being a candidate for the nomination for Supervisor in Brentsville District, I wish to express my views concerning a question of much interest to the citizens of this section. In a rural community scarcely a subject can be of more interest or more related to our general well being than that of the public roads. There are several factors entering into good road construction and upkeep and on some of these I shall endeavor to state my opinions. I hold the view that no argument is needed on the proposition that the appropriation for road work in any district should be spent without reference to any personal or individual desires and preferences, but that it should be spent so that it will best serve the citizens as a whole in the district. The amount available for upkeep each year should be equitably distributed over all districts. When the question of using the money available for permanent road building is considered, a much more difficult question is confronted. It must be conceded that unless all the roads of the district are made permanent, a policy of gradually building roads should select such roads so people in general will get the most good from them. There are two railroad stations in Brentsville District to which practically every citizen in the district travels. It is my firm conviction that Bristow and Nokesville should be the places from which permanently good roads ought to be built in both directions from each place. Nokesville, of course, has a start in this particular but that piece of road is in such need of repair that it should be done with little delay in order to save what has been done. These roads, of course, will extend only so far as available funds can be had. Another factor of much import is the culvert. I think that it would eventually be a great saving to the district if these, as the old ones rot out, were replaced with concrete ones. The first cost would be slightly more but the expense of replacing every few years would be eliminated. It might not be expedient to put this kind of culvert in at every point but there are a great many. Steep grades in many places might be lessened by cutting down some and grading up with comparatively little cost as our hills are not long. It is well known that a load must be guaged by the steepest grade and deepest mud-holes through which it must pass. Many people could haul a third more to and from the station if it were not for a single mudhole or steep little hill, possibly a few rods long. What an immense economic benefit to them if these places were remedied. The road drag is a comparatively late addition to our road equipment and when used properly, is very valuable, but if not used at the right time, the money it costs to operate is largely wasted. After the roads have become hard in the spring, the heavy road scraper, with plenty of power to pull it, is the most effective means of working roads. This machine should be put to work just so soon as possible after frost is out of the ground. A better system of road management is needed in our road work. In our district about $16 is spent annually per mile in upkeep of roads. I know of some roads that have little travel on them, receiving $25 per mile, which, of course, means that some sections more traveled, have to be slighted. It is evident that to secure better results and most satisfactory roads, the roads most traveled must have more than these seldom used. As the system now exists, each man who has a section of road to work, does on it what he thinks it needs and as a result some roads, which are not main thoroughfares, are worked more than those which are. Such haphazard work is poor business principle. Many counties, which have excellent dirt roads and many miles of permanent roads, have their road commissioner out on his roads all the time they are being worked, and I advocate the same system being inaugurated in our district. If favored with your nomination, I pledge that I will see that a good business system is inaugurated in our road work; that a commissioner will be selected who will be on the road machine when it is working, and that the funds for upkeep of the roads will be appropriated in such a manner that the greatest good will be done the people and that the persons working the roads will know how much they can spend on each section before they begin to work. "Money Talks" but it won't say much for you unless it's your money. You'll be surprised to see how a few dollars in a good bank like this will coax other dollars in, how soon you'll have a nice little sum laid away without missing it, how eloquently it will talk for you when the chance comes to put it at work digging up dividends on a good investment. It's safe here, too. Yes, and as "ready" as cash in your pocket, without offering the same temptation to spend it. Come in and talk it over. Our slogan is, "It is a pleasure to serve." In the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court for Prince William County, in Vacation, July 23, 1915.

Jeffries' Executor vs. Jeffries' Administrator IN CHANCERY

The object of this suit is to have it determined that James P. Jeffries, now deceased, acquired and held as trustee for Eustace Jeffries, deceased, the legal title to certain real estate in Fauquier county, consisting in part of a farm known as Rhode Island, a farm formerly belonging to John P. Jeffries, as well as of other real estate purchased by said James P. Jeffries under decrees of the Circuit Court for Fauquier county in two chancery suits therein pending, one styled Galbraith Executor vs. Jeffries, and the other Fletcher vs. Gaines, as well as the legal title to certain judgments and choses in action, formerly belonging to Eustace Jeffries, and to follow the same or the proceeds thereof into the hands of his wife, Mary H. Jeffries, to whom the said James P. Jeffries conveyed the said property or its proceeds with notice of the trusts attached to the same and to secure an accounting thereof; and it being suggested to the Court that J. A. C. Keith, the executor of the last will and testament of Eustace Jeffries, deceased, and the plaintiff in this suit, has also departed this life, and that George Latham Fletcher has been duly appointed administrator d. b. n. w. v. a. and has qualified as such before the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Fauquier county, Virginia; and the said James P. Jeffries having died since the institution of this suit, leaving as his heirs at law two infant children, James P. Jeffries, Jr., and Nannie S. P. Jeffries, since intermarried with one Antonasanti; and said infants having heretofore been duly made parties defendant to this suit; and C. M. White having been appointed guardian ad litem as to them and he having since departed this life and said James P. Jeffries, Jr., and Nannie S. P. Antonasanti having attained their majority, it was ordered by the Court that all of these facts be suggested upon the record and that this suit be abated as to all of said deceased parties. And, on motion of said George Latham Fletcher, administrator d. b. n. w. v. a. of Eustace Jeffries, he was admitted as party plaintiff and this suit was ordered to be revived in his name as such administrator d. b. n. w. v. a. and herewith proceeding with in his name as plaintiff; and upon his further motion, a scire facias was ordered to issue against the said James P. Jeffries, Jr., and Nannie S. P. Antonasanti summoning them to appear and show cause why this suit should not be revived and proceeded with against them as parties defendant, which has been done, and the said scire facias having been twice returned not executed though the same was twice delivered to the Sheriff of Fauquier county, whereas they each formerly resided more than ten days before the return day, and it further appearing by affidavit that the said James P. Jeffries, Jr., and Nannie S. P. Antonasanti are non-residents of the State of Virginia and that diligence has been used on behalf of the plaintiff to ascertain in what County or Corporation, if any, within this State, they or either of them are, without effect, it is ordered that they do severally appear within fifteen days after the publication of this order and do what is necessary to protect their interests. And it is further ordered that this order of publication be published once a week for four successive weeks in the MANASSAS JOURNAL, a newspaper published in the county of Prince William, and that a copy thereof be posted at the front door of the court house of Prince William county on or before the next rule day.

CRIMSON CLOVER

Send Farmers Bulletin No. 276 to Crimson Clover, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

A bushel of Crimson Clover seed sown in four acres of ground will increase the yield of corn or cotton about the same amount as would a ton of complete fertilizer applied at 25
lb. per acre. A good stand of Crimson Clover turned under will ordinarily double the yield of the crops which follow. The physical condition of the soil is also improved. The heavy clay soils are rendered more open and friable.
Crimson Clover makes an excellent grazing crop, hay, ensilage and pasture for all classes of live stock. Milch cows make considerably more milk when pastured on Crimson Clover. It is also valuable as a honey plant, furnishing an abundant supply of nectar for bees.
Crimson Clover is especially valuable as a winter cover crop. It is especially valuable in orchards where it is generally plowed under as a green manure crop. The plants remain for the use of the trees the following season, much of the plant food which would otherwise leach out of the ground during the winter and early spring. A good stand of Crimson Clover not only reduces the erosion and the gullying of the fields, but the sandy soils, the blowing of the soil by the wind is greatly lessened. The plants also serve to hold the snow to a greater extent than if the field was left bare during the winter. More and more each year farmers are realizing the importance and great value of Crimson Clover.

WAR-TIME MEMORIES

BY ELEANOR M. B. EWELL

CHAPTER V.

We have now come to the closing scenes of that long and trying strife. They were marked by suspense, privation, and anxiety. With my father at home again life apparently went on in a sort of routine, but it was not the same as before his departure. No women, however courageous, could go through what we had endured without some loss of hope and energy. We realized this. And it daily grew harder and harder to subsist, to make two very frayed ends meet. "What shall we eat and drink? What shall we do for clothes?" were questions pressing more and more for consideration.

Our dresses were of homespun, and the spinning was done mostly by our own hands. Our shoes and hats were also home-made. Many amusing stories were told of makeshifts in the attempt to be fashionable. "Better be dead than out of the fashion," was a saying still quoted, as it probably always will be. Big hoops were still a-la-mode, and some ladies were accused of wearing white-oak splits, greenbrier and barrel-hoops in a vain effort to keep up to the required size. We did not do this but we labored in other directions, helped by the faithful slaves, who carded wool and so forth. The weaving was done by a skillful neighbor. Things long laid aside had to be brought out and used. Now and then a small bundle of dry goods would be smuggled through the lines.

As for the eating and drinking, that also was a problem. We drank rye coffee and raspberry-leaf tea, except when some lucky accident threw a little of the real article into our hands. Foodstuffs were both scarce and absurdly high. At this time in the city of Richmond people were paying as much as twelve hundred dollars for a dinner. The relation of a few more incidents will give an idea of the state of the times.

One morning, in the absence of both my father and brother, several hungry men appeared asking for food. We had never refused it to friend or foe. These men were neither in blue nor gray—were not indeed in uniform; but seemed Southerners, and struck us as probably soldiers. They did not tell their names, nor did we ask. The custom of spying and the terrible punishment meted out to captured spies, made people unnaturally cautious. They ate in silence. My sister must have feared a surprise for she went out to keep watch. She soon returned in haste, having seen or heard something which made her think them pursued. "I advise you to leave the house at once! Men are coming!" was her excited cry. In a trice they disappeared through the back door. It turned out a false alarm after all, the supposed enemy passing by. One of the men returned later and asked leave to finish his breakfast. Gaunt and haggard, he evidently needed it. He seemed grateful but gave no information concerning himself. We never knew whence he came or whither he went.

On another occasion my mother stood at the open front door. An officer in blue appeared, opened the gate and rode up. He seemed excited, and asked if we had seen any soldiers lately—also on being answered, "yes," said, "how many" and "which way they were going." Then came the question, "On which side?" My mother hesitated, looked at the speaker and decided not to use the obnoxious word "Yankee." She was a lady of the old school and this man seemed a gentleman. "They were Northern soldiers, sir," she said. On the instant he wheeled his horse and rode off rapidly. As in the other case we heard no more about this man. Some vague rumor of a skirmish reached us; that was all. Even then the fact was recognized that the terms "Yankee" and "Rebel" were not as oil upon the waters. Later I was made very indignant by a strange use of the latter word.

We heard one day that a large body of troops under Gen. Wade Hampton were to pass up the Carolina road as another band of South Carolinians had done several years before. Again we went out to see our defenders on the march; but here were no gay salutes to the ladies, no songs or cheers. These men were grim and war-worn veterans. They passed in silence, except for an unlucky question asked by one of them. Looking at us just across the worn fence which bounded the road, he said, "So you have come out to see the Rebels, have you?" We were much taken aback. Did he really think that we were Yankees? His tone implied as much. Was it possible that he or anyone could make such a mistake? We stood dumb with horror and resentment—amusing now but not then.

Our one pleasing recollection afterwards was the beautiful battle flag, seen by us for the first time. It was a very handsome one, very large, and borne by a man on horseback at the head of the troop. With swelling hearts we saw it—and with thoughts of Bull Run, the Second Manassas and Gettysburg. Surely what that cross, those stars, stood for could never be quite conquered. We could not believe it possible.

The year of 1863 ended and '64 began with the usual raiding and riding, the skirmishing near us and the reports from far-off armies. Mosby was still active and prominent. We felt proud of his exploits and the few successes elsewhere; but the war had now grown to be a weary and bitter thing.

As time went on the great battles became more deadly and slaughterous. With the early spring came my brother. The need was great for him at home, and Edge Hill house was again occupied by him and his family. This left us more lonely and unprotected at Dumblane. My father was much away. The last search of our house was in his absence one day, with my mother, myself, and little nephews the only white people on the premises. The officer in charge held his cocked pistol full in our faces while it was going on. When I expressed fear, he said, "You shall not be hurt;" but it was not a pleasant experience.

In the early fall of '64 my brother, John Smith Ewell, was seized, carried off, and held in the Carroll Prison, Washington, for several months. I have heard him say that hard as the prison life was he left it with regret, the cause of this being his inability to finish Wilkie Collins' fascinating "Woman in White." The book was borrowed and had to be left behind. New books were scarce with us then. I will add that he made friends among both jailers and prisoners, and met with kindness from the former as well as the latter. Again our relatives in Washington proved valuable friends. He came home after Christmas, and from that time on we began to see the beginning of the end. He had letters from Richmond that convinced both him and us that the Southern Confederacy was drawing to its close.

The causes of this downfall are too well known as a part of general history for me to go into them at length. But we shared to its fullest extent the poverty, the desolation, the loss of hope and heart which at last brought the South to its surrender at Appomattox. Our land was a waste, our fencing was down. Horses and cattle had been stolen. My father as a physician was allowed one riding horse. We had in the family a donkey. One ax had been spared; but farm work, under such circumstances, was impossible on any but the smallest scale—and there were many mouths to feed.

Still we heard at last of Lee's surrender with distress and incredulity. It seemed to bad too be true. A neighbor and friend staying with us at the time was first skeptical and then indignant. "But the people," she cried, "the people will not accept it. They will rise. Why, if I were a man I'd go up on this old Bull Run mountain and I'd rise, myself!"

We laughed, but ourselves shared the feeling. However—

"No blast of that wild horn On Fontanbian echoes borne" came to call such enthusiasts to the mountain tops. This defeat was a grimly final reality.

A few more weeks and we heard of Lincoln's assassination. It was the deed of a sorely misguided hand; but to be killed at a playhouse on Good Friday seemed a logical end for such a man as Lincoln. Whatever good qualities he may have possessed reverence was not among them. As a friend of the South he was ineffectual, as an enemy deadly. His call to arms was the direct cause of a long and bloody civil strife. Had he behaved as well as McKinley did at the time of the Spanish War, or half as well as another President of the United States is behaving now, there might be a different tale for history to tell. As it was we felt that the words of Booth, though melodramatic, were true. Virginia was at least partly avenged.

CITIZENSHIP OF AMERICA

One of Greatest Privileges Conferred in Modern Times—Demands Duties Also.

(Minneapolis Journal)
Roman citizenship was a privilege, conferred upon non-Romans as a distinction and reward, carrying with it rights, such as that of appeal to Caesar, which Paul of Tarsus invoked. And as the world became Romanized citizenship spread. It was conferred at first upon the Latins outside the city, when they had become loyal to the city; then upon cities in Italy and later outside Italy, which were allies and true friends of Rome; afterward upon all Italians, when all Italy was grown thoroughly Roman; and finally upon the whole world within the empire, when that world had been entirely Romanized.

American citizenship is the modern privilege. It admits a man into a vast brotherhood of equals, endows him with civil and political rights that make him a factor in a great self-governing state whose ideal is human betterment and individual welfare. As a citizen of Rome was a peculiar person, possessed of what no alien noble could equal, so is a citizen of the United States peculiar in a spiritual sense, inasmuch as his citizenship dedicates him to serve in a higher scheme, to join in a better project than is to be seen anywhere else upon earth.

There are rights and privileges which are attributes of American citizenship; but there are also duties and obligations of an exalted character. The former are obvious, but the latter should be seriously realized by us all. And those who are born here, quite as much as those who have voyaged hither, need new instruction in the significance of American citizenship and a reconsecration to its service.

For, as we construe it, American citizenship vows the citizen to patriotism, but to patriotism that is more catholic, more generous, more noble and fine than is patriotism as elsewhere conceived. American patriotism has a richer and higher content than have the patriotisms of Europe. And this truth should be realized. The American citizen is a soldier not merely of the United States, glorious as is the function of that. He is also a soldier for humanity, enlisted for life in "the war of liberation for mankind." He is a knight of freedom, a crusader for equality, a paladin of justice. He has a social mission, as well as a defensive duty.

"That government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth," said Abraham Lincoln. That it shall not is our principle, our cause, our obligation, our enthusiasm, for which we live and are ready to die.

The appeal of that proposition is to all of us equally, to him who is born here, to him who comes here. It is the unifying cause; it exceeds any European patriotism, any call of blood, any sympathy of creed. Or if it does not, then Americanism is a failure and our citizenship is a convenience, a mere economic opportunity.

But Americanism is not a failure. It triumphs, it waxes from generation to generation. It excites a passionate devotion, an enduring, widening, wonderful loyalty.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

This year's convention of the National Association of First and Second-Class Postmasters will be held in Washington Oct. 20, 21 and 22.

Virginia commercial orchards in 1914 produced and shipped about 1,350,000 barrels of apples. From Southern Railway stations on its main line and on the Harrisonburg line shipments amounted to about 340,000 barrels.

Illustrating in a comprehensive way the attractions of the city of Washington and summing up the resources of the Southern States, the Southern Commercial Congress has just issued an attractive book entitled "New Washington and the South."

With a fertilizer famine threatening American farmers as a result of the cutting off of supplies of German potash, officials of the State and Commerce departments have undertaken to arrange for the development by American capital of a potash deposit recently discovered in southern Spain.

The Southern Railway is arranging to put into service about forty miles of new double track between Lynchburg and Charlotte, N. C., before August 1st, and when this is accomplished the system will have only about fifteen miles of single track between Amherst and Charlotte, a distance of about 225 miles.

On August 20 the Federal five stock quarantine against sections of Frederick and Henrico Counties on account of the outbreaks of foot-and-mouth disease last winter will be lifted entirely, leaving the Union Stock Yards in Richmond the only restricted area in the State against interstate shipments. All danger has been passed now.

The blind population of the United States in 1910 numbered 57,272, or 62.3 to each 100,000 of total population in that year. Blindness is less common in America than in most other countries; it has apparently decreased among the youngest classes of the population in the last half century; it is more prevalent among men than among women; it is very much more prevalent among Indians, and considerably more prevalent among negroes than among whites.

The European war has played havoc with exports of agricultural implements by the United States during the fiscal year 1915, declares the Department of Commerce. Exports of these implements during 1915 totaled approximately $10,000,000, as against $40,600,000 in the record year 1913.

From 80,000 to 100,000 lives have been lost in the floods in the vicinity of Canton, China, according to a cablegram to the State Department Tuesday from Peking.

The street car companies of Washington, D. C., carried 159,200,083 passengers last year. Virginia's typhoid record for the months of May and June shows vast improvement over the record for the same period last year, according to a statement issued last week by the State Board of Health in Richmond. The reports filed by physicians show that there were fewer cases of typhoid by 139 than were reported for the corresponding months in 1914.
