SOME LIVELY BALL GAMES

Catharpin Won From Greenwich and Warrenton and Lost to Rectortown Last Week.

The Catharpin base ball team with its faithful rooters, journeyed to Greenwich last Friday, August 13th, and played the best game it has had this season with Greenwich which ended with the score of 1 to 0 in favor of Catharpin.

Sam Giddings, late of Winston-Salem, N. C., league, pitched for Greenwich and held the heavy hitting Catharpin boys down to five hits, walked five and fanned eleven.

"Big 6" Brower was in fine form and only allowed three hits, walked two and fanned thirteen. Giddings lost his own game by walking C. Brower in the fifth and failing to back up third base when they had Caton (running for Brower) between bases. Caton scored the only run of the game when C. Pattie hit a fly to right field.

It was a pitchers' battle and if Caton had not escaped at third in the fifth when they had him between bases, they would have been playing yet. The all round playing of Freddie Ellison featured for Catharpin.

Catharpin, with the help of several of the Greenwich boys, defeated Warrenton that evening by the score of 6 to 3. Reid and Eilenour, the Greenwich battery, worked for Catharpin and Reid would have had a shut out but for some errors in the eighth inning.

Too much praise cannot be given Reid as he had the Warrenton boys at his mercy all the time, and only allowed three hits and fanned ten, while Clatterback, of Warrenton, allowed twelve hits and fanned eight. Currell Pattie getting four hits out of five times up.

Some of the Catharpin boys went out in Mr. F. H. Sanders' motor truck and all had a good time, if some of the boys did insist that the truck got off the track several times.

The Catharpin team wishes to extend a vote of thanks to the Greenwich boys for their courteous treatment, especially to Mr. Mackall, and hope to meet them several more times this summer.

And now for the shady part of this story.

The next morning the staff, sore and scared-up Catharpin boys that could go and three from Greenwich entrained on No. 49 at Gainesville to meet Rectortown at Marshall for a battle. But here is where "Big 6" met his Waterloo as he had just about steam enough for the boys to hit good, and they surely did do it to perfection. "Big 6" was batted out of the box in the fifth inning and then Reid took up the task and held them in check until the eighth and then he got his.

After the game was over and the boys were done rubbing with liniment, arnica and turpentine, some one had the nerve to ask the score. And it was found while Catharpin was making eight hits and three runs that Rectortown had made thirteen hits and fourteen runs. Unless the score keeper does better the next time there will be a change in the score. For to go that far and not get the bit of a man out scores the man that Catharpin had had. And he had a long walk and only put down three scores.

But the game at Rectortown comes next. Then you will see the result.

Catharpin will play Warrenton at Rectortown on Saturday (Saturday).

ENTRANCE TO EASTERN COLLEGE GROUNDS

BIG COLORED ASSOCIATION BIG MEETING TO-MORROW HELD MEETING ON MONDAY

Report of Wayland Blue Ridge Baptist Association Held in Orange County Aug. 11-13.

(A. W. Ricks, Local Field Agent, Manassas Industrial School)

That the colored people of Culpeper and adjacent counties are steadily gaining in self respect was evidenced at the meeting of the Wayland Blue Ridge Baptist Association, held at True Blue, Orange county, Virginia, Aug. 11-13, where upwards of a thousand persons were in attendance. This claim is made on the ground of how orderly and intelligently the sessions of the Association were conducted for the three days, both in respect to the business proceedings as well as the religious exercises.

By vote of a substantial majority the officers of the past year were retained for the ensuing year. As usual much emphasis was put on the importance of education, the subject being frequently injected into the sermons and prayers; and as a tangible evidence of the Association's faith in the efficacy of education, $55.00 was contributed to the Manassas Industrial School, which was the largest individual donation to any particular object.

The Moderator, Rev. W. J. Madden, diverted from the regular order of set sermons or religious discourse by introducing the subject of sanitation and health, using "The Chinch and Tuberculosis" as the special topic.

With due deference he pointed reverently to the ignorance and neglect of our people of the past generation; then he most earnestly addressed the audience, making point of the great danger of the chinch, suggesting eternal vigilance in the way of sanitation as the only sure prevention.

He condemned the chinch on the ground that the presence of chinch in the home is the occasion of untold misery, such as the breaking of one's rest, bad sores and ugly scars; secondly, that he is a disease carrier, consuming from the blood of one's body the very property calculated to immunize it from tuberculosis. After having presented a most convincing argument in support of his contention that the chinch conduces to tuberculosis from the standpoint of physiology, he then clinched his contention by citing what he called circumstantial or indirect evidence. For instance, he stated that in nearly every case where death is caused by tuberculosis, according to his observation, the corpse had occupied a house pestered with chinch. The audience was also reminded of the tubercular appearance of some chinch.

Naturally enough, this novel subject proved to be the sensation of the Association, and apparently was really taken to heart by all present. The address provoked loud applause, having been warmly endorsed by Rev. Lee Davis and H. B. Field.

Farmers and Dairymen to Meet at Courthouse for All-Day Session - To Bring Lunch.

Farmers and dairymen from all over Prince William are expected to be present at an all-day meeting at the courthouse in Manassas to-morrow. The business features of the day will be a farmers' institute and a dairymen's convention. A picnic atmosphere is being worked for, especially at lunch time. The merchants of Manassas have contributed towards a treat for their farmer friends and are anxious to see a good turn out.

The morning session will be given over to a discussion of dairy problems by Dr. Helmer Rabild, of the dairy division, Washington, and members of the dairy and food division of the state department of Virginia. In the afternoon the best methods of growing grains will be discussed. Good speakers will make it well worth your while to be present.

At to-morrow's meeting an effort will be made to effect some kind of a dairy organization which can handle the dairyman's problems satisfactorily. This is a pressing need in our section and every dairyman should work for the organization of a good club.

There is really no reason why this meeting should not be well attended. The farmers and their families are given this opportunity of combining a day of profit and pleasure in one, and at a time when they are not pushed with the farm work. Manassas will be glad to welcome a large crowd of country people to-morrow. Make it a point that you will be one of the many to attend this meeting.

Sunday Afternoon at Grace Methodist Church.

Every one is cordially invited to the regular monthly meeting of the Loyal Temperance Legion which will be held at Grace Methodist church on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The members of the Legion will be addressed by Rev. E. A. Roads.

Those who have not paid their dues will please come prepared to do so Sunday afternoon as this will be the last meeting of the convention year. All members of the Legion are requested to meet at the church to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon at three o'clock.

County School Board Made Several Appropriations - Census Reports Laid Before Board.

The semi-annual meeting of the Prince William County School Board was held at the courthouse on Monday, August 16. Present at the meeting were Superintendent Geo. G. Tyler and the following:

Manassas - Messrs. Boston Steele, C. E. Nash and D. J. Arrington.
Brentsville - Messrs. J. R. Cook, R. H. Davis and J. T. Flory.
Gainesville - Messrs. R. A. Rust and W. L. Sanders.
Occoquan - Messrs. Corbin Thompson, L. Ledman and Walter Kidwell.
Dumfries - Mr. W. W. Abel and Dr. D. C. Cline.
Coles - Messrs. James Luck and Theo. J. Wolfenden.

Mr. C. Thompson was elected vice-president for the year 1915-16 and Mr. D. J. Arrington, clerk.

A resolution was offered and passed that a committee of five be appointed by the president to examine and pass upon the report of the auditing committee and to receive pay for the time they give to the matter. This resolution arose over the complications caused in the county accounts by the recent litigation of a number of tax bills, thereby making it impossible for the auditing committee to make an annual settlement with the county treasurer in time for a report at the meeting on Monday.

An order was also made where the teachers would be granted five days' leave of absence for attendance at teachers' meetings.

It was also ordered that one copy of the Virginia Journal of Education be sent to each school in the county.

An appropriation of $20 was allowed to Miss Emily Johnson for expenses of carrying club girls to Harrisonburg and the Virginia State Fair at Richmond.

Census reports from the districts were laid before the board and same were accepted.

$15 is allowed each district school board for the expenses of a delegate from each board to a big school convention which meets in Richmond this fall.

An itemized bill for salary and expenses, amounting to $317, was presented by Superintendent Geo. G. Tyler and same was ordered paid.

Each district clerk was also allowed $2 for attendance upon this meeting.

WILL GIVE A FESTIVAL WERE WEDDED AT TRINITY

Civic League so Votes - Date Friday, Sept. 3. - To Ask Council for $10 for Clean-Up.

The meeting of the Manassas Civic League of Tuesday evening was characterized by considerable enthusiasm and the turning off of much work of a business nature. At the opening of the meeting a call was sent out for the second quarter dues which were payable by the members on Aug. 1. Several of those present responded by paying up, and those not present will be given a chance to pay shortly when a collector calls.

The principal business before the body was entered into right in the beginning. The president advanced the idea of turning the courthouse lawn into a simple park and invited the discussion of the members upon the subject. It was quite generally agreed by those present that such an idea would be an excellent one, both for the town and county. Practically none denied the great need of some such place in Manassas where rest and shade could be enjoyed by townspeople, county residents and strangers alike.

During the discussion of the turning into a park of the courthouse yard the remarks swerved off to a talk over placing of the cannon and cannon balls. Hon. C. J. Meetze pictured very graphically the three proposed positions and in a concise and well-supported argument suggested that the cannon be placed on the east side of the courthouse about where Taft and Mann stood at the time of the National Peace Jubilee in 1911.

Two other positions for the placing of the cannon have been contemplated. One position is for a cannon to be placed on each side of the walk leading up to the courthouse door. This plan seemed to gain the greatest favor among the ladies present. The other suggestion, and one which the league heartily disapproved of, was the placing of the cannon in the corner of the lot where Lee and Grant avenues intersect. For many reasons the league thought this suggestion not a good one. After this the talk went back to the idea of a park.

This time a motion was made to the effect that a resolution be drawn up expressing that it was the wish of the civic league that the board of supervisors would give a careful consideration to the idea of converting the courthouse lawn into a simple park at this opportune time. This motion was seconded and passed and Hon. C. J. Meetze, Mr. C. Raymond Ratcliffe and the president were appointed as a committee to draw up this resolution.

The proposition of having another "clean up and paint up" week was now brought before the body. In order to foster this good work among the people of the town and that the efforts of the spring clean up be not lost the league unanimously passed a motion that Mr. C. C. Leachman appear before the next meeting of the town council and in the name of the league ask for an appropriation of $10.00 to carry on this work.

If the council grants this appropriation the league will ask that the week of Sept. 6-11 be another "clean up and paint up" week; the first three days to be devoted to the cleaning of one's premises, the last three to the hauling out of the trash. Another good clean up at the beginning of fall will add greatly to the healthfulness and attractiveness of the town and will do much towards making such work of some permanence.

It was also decided by the Miss Beulah Kincheloe, Formerly of Brentsville, Married to Hon. Geo. H. Shultz.

A pretty wedding ceremony took place Wednesday afternoon in Trinity Protestant Episcopal church, when Miss Beulah Kincheloe, of Washington, became the bride of the Hon. George Washington Shultz, of Shamokin, Pa. The church was decorated throughout with ferns and golden rod, the high electric lights shedding a soft glow over the profusion of flowers in green and gold. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Robb White, of Haymarket, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. John M. Young, of Washington. Her wedding gown was of white silk tulle over Duchesse lace, with trimming of pearls, and she carried bride's roses and a shower bouquet.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. J. Frank Small, of York, Pa., wore white embroidered chiffon, with hat of white, and carried pink Killarney roses. The bridesmaids, who wore white tulle over pink satin and carried pink asters in baskets with graceful bows of pink, were Miss Viola Davis, of Manassas; Miss Helen Erdley, of Harrisburg, Pa.; and Mrs. Willard Greene, of Washington.

The little ring bearer was Miss Virginia Erdley, of Harrisburg, Pa. Little Miss Gladys Wine, of Manassas, was flower girl and the little trainbearers were Miss Virginia Conner and Master Dabney Waters, both of Manassas.

Dr. J. Frank Small, of York, Pa., attended the bridegroom. The ushers were Mr. Walter L. Souder, of York, Pa.; Mr. Roy A. Cooper, of Pottsville, Pa.; Mr. Cliff Bear, of Aden, and Messrs. Mackall Elha and Raymond Davis, of Manassas.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alice Kincheloe, of Washington, and the late Wyldman Kincheloe, for many years treasurer of Prince William county. For several years Mrs. Shultz has conducted a very successful millinery business at Shamokin, Pa. Mr. Shultz is a member of the Pennsylvania legislature.

Immediately after the ceremony, the wedding supper was served at the New Prince William Hotel, where members of the bridal party were entertained at a banquet the evening before. Mr. and Mrs. Shultz left Manassas on a wedding tour to the Pacific coast, after which they are to reside in Shamokin, Pa.

The Bradley baseball team was badly defeated last Saturday afternoon in a seven-inning game played with the Aden-Brentsville team. The game, which was played upon the Bradley diamond, resulted in a score of 16 to 5 in favor of the Aden-Brentsville boys.

The league to give an ice cream festival on Friday evening, Sept. 3rd, and to this end a committee was formed of the ladies present. Mrs. J. L. Harrell was appointed chairman of the committee and has already laid out extensive plans for this benefit feature. The league hopes it can count on a lively interest being shown in this festival.

Finally, Hon. C. J. Meetze read, by request, a short article on "A Town That Was Ruined." This reading was warmly received by all present. The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Col. George W. Goethals has tendered his resignation as Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, to take effect November 1st.

A special election will be held at an early date in Bransville District, Fairfax county, to pass on a bond issue of $200,000 for the improvement of roads in that district.

Checks aggregating $200,000 will shortly be distributed by the Ford Motor Company to owners of Ford cars in the state of Virginia under the profit-sharing plan inaugurated by the company Aug. 1, 1914.

The League of Virginia Municipalities, of which City Manager R. Stuart Royer, of Fredericksburg, is president, will hold its annual convention in Fredericksburg for a two-days' session on Oct. 12 and 13th.

Stretched out in a single line the roads of United States would encircle the globe more than eighty times. Traveling at the rate of 150 miles a day, it would take thirty-six years, or 13,000 days, to travel their length.

Thomas Hardy Todd, who was one of the crack football players of the University of Virginia two or three years ago, has just been appointed to succeed William Gilchrist as assistant chief clerk in the office of United States Attorney John E. Lasky in Washington.

Unless America sends help to Paris, many persons there will starve to death when winter comes and many will perish from cold. Coal now sells for $21.50 a ton in Paris. Of the eighty-six coal mines in the country all but nine are in territory held by the Germans.

Members of unions employed in breweries, saloons, hotels and restaurants in Montana, it was announced recently, have assessed themselves 25 cents monthly for a fund to fight prohibition in the state. The assessment will be collected until November, 1916, when the people are to vote on prohibition.

A bowlder and bronze tablet has been dedicated on Stratton mountains in Vermont to the memory of Daniel Webster, who in 1840 addressed an audience of 15,000 persons near the spot. Mr. Webster's visit was in support of the candidacy of William Henry Harrison, for President, in the "log cabin and hard cider" campaign.

United States railways performed the greatest safety first feat in their history in the three months, October to December, 1914, when they carried 230,500,000 passengers 7,834,000,000 passenger miles without the loss of life to a single passenger in a collision, and a total of only seventy-eight fatalities to passengers, employes on or off duty and other persons due to train accidents.

Harris Hart, superintendent of schools in the city of Roanoke, is seriously considering entering the race for the Democratic nomination for State Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1916. It is generally understood that R. C. Stearnes will be a candidate for another term, but up to the present time no candidate other than Mr. Hart has been mentioned as a possible opponent of the incumbent.

According to some figures that the Manufacturers' Record worked out, more than 87 per cent of the world's total of railroad tracks are in the United States, the aggregate being over 684,600 miles, of which this country has about 254,700 miles, these figures being up to the end of the year 1913 as compiled by the Prussian Department of Public Works, and recently published here by the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics at Chicago.

The United States spends $200,000,000 every year on tobacco it is estimated—more than any other nation in the world, says the Southern Tobacco Journal.

More than sixty of the one hundred counties in the State of Virginia will have individual exhibits at the Virginia State Fair in Richmond, October 11-16, under the direction of Mr. T. O. Sandy, State agent, who has probably done more to assist the material progress of the farmers of Virginia than any one other single agent during the history of the commonwealth.

Virginia is the leading Southern State in the production of apples and ranks fourth among the great apple growing States of the Union. When all her commercial orchards begin to bear she will forge ahead to second place, perhaps. Charlottesville is located in the home country of the famous Albemarle Pippin and the selection of this section for the home office of "The Virginia Fruit Grower and Farmer," a new monthly publication devoted to fruit growing and general agriculture, is a very happy one.

A Sprinter Made At First Bull Run.

Colonel B. O. James, secretary of the commonwealth, last week received a personal communication from the champion long-distance sprinter of the world, who appears to have covered a distance of forty miles in the space of 28 1/2 minutes, the man at the same time being burdened with a musket.

This remarkable feat of arms and legs is said to have occurred in Virginia in July of 1861, at a time when the Union army was falling back at Bull Run upon the national capital. The name of the man who admits making this unprecedented retreat is Oscar F. Lochhead, of Flint, Mich. Mr. Lochhead wrote to Colonel James to learn if there was such a village in Virginia as "Liberty Hill."

The following postscript was attached to his inquiry:

"It may be proper to state that the writer was in your state in July, 1861, and on July 22 of that year made the trip on foot from Bull Run to Washington—forty miles—in 28 1/2 minutes, and carried a musket at the same time."

MANASSAS, VA., FRIDAY, AUGUST 20, 1915.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO IT?

There was at one time an organization in Manassas which had within itself the power of being very useful to the business men of the town. Indeed, this organization, had it been properly supported and pushed by our local business men, could have done much in the way of advertising Manassas to the home-seeker and the man desiring to make a business investment. Furthermore, had this organization not gone to pieces, there would have been a much more unified method of doing business in Manassas, especially credit business. Since so much in a business way rests upon a league of the local merchants, we ask, "What has happened to the Manassas Business League?"

We ask this question not with the purpose of stirring up petty differences and lack of interest which may have caused the decay of the former business league of our town but in the hope that every business man in Manassas will rub his eyes of any indifference and contrary notions in this matter of cooperation and prepare to help himself and his town by urging the formation of a real business league. There is little to be gained by sitting around and saying, "It can't be done; we've tried it." When you express yourself thus you are not only committing mental suicide but for the fellow who does little thinking for himself you are setting a bad example.

We believe that every business man of Manassas realizes that conditions of trade are none too good at present. All agree that the credit business of to-day is the one big drawback. Any merchant who is willing to credit any and every one can do a slashing business, but when it comes to collecting—that's another proposition. Now the "bad credit" individual is nothing new to this part of the country. Right now, however, special vigilance against his inroads is necessary, for when times are dull he studies up more ingenious ways of successively and successfully "beating" one merchant after another in a town until he has completed the rounds. Such a condition it was aimed to break up in Manassas a few years ago and such a condition a live business league can break up now. Mr. Merchant, do you want to be informed on your customers' credit? Then push for an efficient business league.

Again, when it comes to the matter of getting new business even the best merchants in Manassas have little to brag on. Of course, there is no boom on here which would cause a great increase in business but we feel confident that the mail order houses have within the last few years lost no ground in Prince William. Certainly it is hard for one merchant, single-handed, to fight the mail order business in his vicinity, but when all the merchants in a given community put their heads together over such a proposition (tough as this one is) good results can be expected. It sounds strange but competing merchants by cooperating can do a hundred times more in the fight against the mail order houses than when they tackle the problem single-handed. Mr. Merchant, do you want to get more home business? Then push for an efficient business league.

A town the size of Manassas can not well support a chamber of commerce. But some may wonder why such a reference. Well, a live chamber of commerce has been the one stimulating factor in the growth of many a town and city. A business league in Manassas can and ought to take over the work of a chamber of commerce. The secretary of the business league should be compensated for the time he spends at work for the league. If he is a worker and a hustler he can do more towards keeping the league in a healthy state than any one else connected with the organization.

Such a secretary could keep an outlook for new business enterprises and put in a strong bid for their location in Manassas. He should have at his fingers' ends all facts of industrial, financial, educational and social importance about the town and should be an enthusiast of the deepest dye for all that pertains to the advancement of the town. With a wide-awake secretary a business league could serve also as a chamber of commerce for Manassas. Mr. Merchant, do you want to see Manassas grow? Then push for an efficient business league.

We believe that there are great things in store for Manassas if the people of the town will only bestir themselves occasionally. In these days it is absolutely necessary to push if any progress is to be made. In the realm of business (and this is the backbone of our town life) there must be greater cooperation, less of this petty narrowness that stagnates business. A live business league can do wonders for the individual business man if he will enter into its work with a broad spirit of cheerfulness—not in a spirit of untrustiness. A live business league can also do wonders for the town as a whole, if it would take over the work of a chamber of commerce. Let's have such a league in Manassas and let's have it now.

THE SOUTHLAND DEEPLY STIRRED

In one particular the year 1915 will go down as a black one in the annals of the Southland. Every year there are several cases of lynching in the United States, a large number of which occur in the Southern states. The Southland in 1915 not only promises to have its usual share of lynchings but in her list will be one of the most malicious and despicable pieces of mob work that has ever been enacted. The South, and especially the state of Georgia, could well afford to have its entire history for the current year blotted out could the lynching of Leo M. Frank, which occurred on Tuesday morning, be entirely obliterated.

Leo M. Frank, an educated Jew of good reputation, superintendent of a Georgia pencil factory, was tried and adjudged guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan, a fourteen-year-old girl employed in the factory. The case, over which feeling ran high, was appealed to the highest courts but the verdict of the jury remained unchanged. Just before the time set for his hanging, Governor Slaton, as one of his last official acts, commuted Frank's death sentence to one of life imprisonment. Thereupon Frank was taken to the state prison farm where shortly afterwards a weak-minded fellow convict came near ending Frank's life by slashing his throat. Just as he had about recovered from this attack, on Monday night, a heavily armed mob overpowered the warden and guards of the prison, took possession of Frank, carried him for a distance of nearly 100 miles and then hanged him from a tree.

In the majority of the cases of lynching the action taken by the mob is due to the running of high feeling immediately upon the detection of the crime. And in nearly every case the crime is one which plays upon the very heart strings of men. We are not attempting to justify lynchings under any circumstances; we are able to see, however, a partial reason for the commission of many mob outrages while men work under intense rage and excitement. The lynching of Frank was of an entirely different nature. Deliberation and cool level-headedness characterized every action in this case. The men who took part in Frank's hanging can not be even partially excused for their crime on any conceivable grounds.

Now that the heinous crime has been committed against the courts of Georgia and against the very character of the entire Southland nothing should be left undone by the authorities of the state of Georgia to bring every mob member before the bar of justice. Every person who participated in the lynching of Frank is guilty of murder and should be hunted down as the most debased criminal. No let up on the search for, and the conviction of the guilty parties should be thought of by the courts of Georgia. Too much is at stake. The Southland must prove that such an act is not that of her citizens but the work of the scum who by the very act have alienated themselves from the love and blessings of the fair country in which they live.

Brower and Lynn did good work for Catharpin, not allowing Greenwich to score. Giddings and Ritenour also did fine work for Greenwich, allowing Catharpin to score but once.

The second game, which was between Catharpin and Warrenton, was also an interesting game, Catharpin winning by a score of 6 to 3. Reid and Ritenour battery for Catharpin, Clatterbuck and Strother battery for Warrenton.

The 100-yard dash was won by Currell Pattie, of Catharpin. The boys race was won by Dennis, of Buckland, and the half-mile race was easily won by Currell Hansborough, of Greenwich.

After the meeting of Tuesday the company was served to a delicious out-of-door watermelon feast.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 21 at the home of Mrs. Boston Steele.

The members of the society should keep in mind that September is state mission month and should lay by accordingly for the great work in Virginia.

The second excursion of the summer to Luray was well attended. At Manassas eighty-three tickets were sold and the train was heavily loaded when it pulled in.

About two o'clock Sunday afternoon twelve or fifteen cars of a freight train were wrecked when a flange broke on one of the cars about a mile west of The Plains.

This pile of wreckage was not cleared entirely away until about nine o'clock Monday morning. The wreck caused the excursionists from Washington to make the trip home by way of Harper's Ferry.

Those from Manassas and points on the Southern were brought home on No. 28 which reached Manassas shortly after one o'clock Monday morning.

THE EVACUATION OF BOSTON AND THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

As soon as Washington had been formerly installed as commander-in-chief of the forces before Boston, he began a personal and thorough survey of all the divisions in order that he might know the strong and weak points of his army, both as to offense and defense. This survey soon revealed to his experienced eye many difficulties to be overcome. The whole army consisted of but fourteen thousand men while at least twenty or thirty thousand were needed. They were but poorly clad in civilian clothes with hardly a uniform among them. Their organization was very imperfect; hardly a semblance of military discipline was maintained in their ranks and with their free and independent spirit it would be a hard task to compel them to render the strict obedience to their officers required by the necessities of military life. Moreover, there were already jealousies among the officers themselves which must be soothed; some of the men in the ranks thought they had been slighted in the selection by Congress.

It having been resolved by a council of war because of the great shortage of ammunition to continue the blockade of Boston instead of attacking the city, Washington made his headquarters at Cambridge, in the center of the American lines. From there he directed the task of bringing order out of chaos. In command of the center was placed Major-Generals Putnam and Heath while at Roxbury, on the right was Artemus Ward; General Charles Lee, at Prospect Hill, commanded the left. Brigadier-Generals Greene (who in spite of his early Quaker training, had learned the art of war and joined the Continental forces after Lexington) and Sullivan assisted Lee; under Ward were Generals Spencer and Thomas.

The patriot army was now joined by a large body of sharpshooters under the command of the Virginian, Daniel Morgan, who made picturesque and impressive figures with their long rifles and buckskin hunting-shirts inscribed with the motto "Liberty or Death."

Seeing that the custom of the troops from one colony wearing different garments to distinguish them from those of other colonies was liable to cause sectional jealousies, Washington when he made his report to Congress on the state of the army, recommended that it furnish ten thousand hunting-shirts to clothe the soldiers. This was the origin of the Continental uniform.

Meanwhile the patriots in New York had not been idle. As the forts captured by Allen and Arnold in their expedition were on territory claimed by New York, Allen wrote to the Congress of that State for money and supplies to guard them. The matter was referred to the Continental Congress which authorized New York to call upon New England for the supplies. In response to this, Connecticut sent Colonel Hinman with one thousand men to join Arnold. As their term of enlistment had expired the Green Mountain Boys were disbanded and their leader asked Congress for authority to invade Canada. This was granted and New York was asked to receive the "Boys" into her ranks. In an election of officers, Allen was entirely slighted and instead Seth Warner was chosen their leader. After the departure of Allen from "Fort Ty" Arnold claimed supreme authority over the fortresses and, when compelled to give up his command to Hinman, disbanded his men in a rage, threw up his commission and departed for Cambridge.

Actuated by reports that the British in Canada were making preparations for an attack upon the colonies, Congress determined upon an invasion of that province. Troops from New York and New England were assembled at Lake Champlain where they were separated into two divisions; one under the command of General Schuyler was to advance by way of the lake, the other under Arnold by way of the Kennebec and Chaudiere rivers. Schuyler had as his second in command, Brigadier-General Richard Montgomery, a man of the highest caliber, while Arnold had as his, Daniel Morgan.

After taking Lake aux Noix, the key to Lake Champlain, on September 5, 1775, Schuyler attempted to take the important post of St. John's but was repulsed. Sickness overtook him; he was compelled to return to Albany and the command devolved upon Montgomery.

After a relief expedition under Sir Guy Carleton, the Governor of Canada, had been defeated by Colonel Warner, St. John's surrendered to Montgomery of November 3. Montreal quickly followed suit.
 Meanwhile, Arnold, after a march of six weeks, during which his army had been reduced to a mere remnant of six hundred fighting men by the terrible hardships it had endured, appeared before Quebec. Clambering up to the Heights of Abraham by the same path Wolfe had used, he laid siege to the garrison. Here he was joined by Montgomery. Seeing that their cannon were too small for a successful bombardment, they determined to gain possession of the town by a sudden attack. But in the charge, just as victory was within his grasp, Montgomery was mortally wounded by a shrapnel bullet and his troops overpowered, while Arnold was disabled by a wound in his leg. Morgan in vain tried to rally Arnold's division. He, himself, was made prisoner with many of his men. Arnold, with a mere remnant, was compelled to retreat. Thus was ended the hopes of the Americans for the capture of Canada.

Meanwhile, at Boston, a long and tedious winter brought the year 1775 to a close. Deterred by want of ammunition, Washington remained inactive; the British did likewise from choice. Washington saw that in order to take the city he must have more cannon, so Henry Knox, a book-seller of Boston who had joined the patriots and manifested an unusual aptitude for artillery work, was commissioned Colonel of Artillery and authorized to proceed to New York and bring to Washington's army as many cannon as could be spared from the defenses of Fort Ticonderoga. The enlistment of many of the Continentals had now expired and it was only by the greatest tact and exertion that Washington could keep his army from disbanding.

But toward the spring of 1776, circumstances began to assume a brighter aspect. The depleted army was reinforced by ten new regiments of militia and a large supply of powder was received from various sources. Moreover, to the great joy of the whole camp, Knox now returned with a long train of sledges laden with cannon and ammunition. Washington then commenced active operations. On the evening of March 17, 1776, eight hundred men with intrenching tools moved to the winter headquarters at Cambridge in order to make the movement a tremendous attack upon Boston was commenced. From that part of the American lines, which was required to watch against the morning the fortifications on the Heights formed a strong strong menace to the city itself and to the battleships in Boston Harbor, that General Howe saw at a glance that he must either take them immediately or evacuate Boston. A night attack was resolved upon, but a severe storm made the harbor impassable for several days. When it had cleared, the fortifications had been made so strong that it was seen that it would be useless to try to take them. An evacuation was then resolved upon, and the entire British army accompanied by fifteen hundred loyalists embarked on board the British fleet, which sailed away. On the 20 of March, Washington made a triumphal entry into the city amid general rejoicings. When it heard the news, Congress was so delighted that it unanimously gave Washington a vote of thanks and ordered a gold medal to be struck in his honor.

This victory actuated Congress to take a step ever memorable in the history of the world and which in effect was second not even to the Magna Charta in severing the chains of human bondage and securing the inherent right of individual liberty to mankind.

We have seen the spark of dissatisfaction of the colonies with the rule of the mother country begin with a passage of the Navigation Laws. It had been fanned by the Stamp Act and other unjust tax laws, and had finally burst forth into flame. But still, only a few patriots like Samuel Adams, and Patrick Henry saw the necessity for complete separation from England before there could be freedom from oppression. The great mass wanted only their rights as English citizens and still fondly looked upon England as "home." But the victory at Boston opened their eyes, and soon independence became a burning topic in the provincial assemblies and among the people themselves.

Actuated, to a large degree by Thomas Paine's celebrated pamphlet, "Common Sense," which gave a forcible and logical argument in favor of separation, the people finally began to petition to Congress to declare independence.

In response to their demands, Richard Henry Lee of Virginia, on June 7, 1776, introduced a resolution declaring that the "United Colonies are, and of a right ought to be, free and independent States." After a heated debate further consideration of the resolution was deferred until July 1. A committee, however, composed of Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania, John Adams of Massachusetts, and Roger Sherman and Robert Livingston of New York, was named to prepare a formal Declaration. On June 28, the committee reported a draft (almost the entire work of Jefferson, save for a few interlineations) to the House. A spirited debate ensued, during which some of the more violent clauses liable to offend the friends of the colonists in Britain were stricken out.

Finally, on July 4, the vote was taken and the Declaration of Independence was formally adopted, and the great bell of the State House by its loud ringing "proclaimed liberty throughout the land." Everywhere there were the wildest rejoicings. Copies of the Declaration were scattered broadcast throughout the colonies. Popular demonstrations were the order of the day. During one of these in New York, the leaden statue of King George in Bowling Green was pulled down and cast into bullets for the patriot army. Washington ordered the Declaration to be read at the head of each brigade in his army.

The patriot cause was now further advanced. By the capture of Boston it had won its first great success. But more than that—more than all the successes it could ever achieve were the principles of life, liberty and happiness set forth in the Declaration of Independence—principles well worthy of the support given them by the patriots when they pledged to them "our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

LEARNING TO HATE FLY

Best to Destroy Fly in Larval Stage—Powdered Hellebore Highly Recommended.

(The Times-Dispatch.)

When the modern mother sings "Baby-bye, here's a fly" to her infant, she changes the second line of the old nursery song to read "Let us swat him, you and I." The common house fly is no longer an object of tolerant interest, but has become an object of hatred and distrust. He is known to be the principal factor in the distribution of the germs of typhoid, says the Children's Bureau, United States Department of Labor.

Especially is he regarded as the enemy of the baby, as there is reason to believe that he carries about the germs of summer diarrhea, and leaves them behind him, with other filth, when he lights on the nipple of the feeding bottle, or crawls over the saucer of cereal, or falls in the milk. Thus, he is a real danger, not only to the baby, but to the whole family, and every effort should be made to do away with him.

HOW TO PREVENT STOMACHING

Flies may be kept out of the house to a considerable extent by using screens at the doors and windows, and those that get inside may be trapped, poisoned or swatted. But better than any of these methods is to destroy the flies in the larval stage, and thus prevent them from hatching. The following information is furnished by the Department of Agriculture:

"A safe and effective weapon against the typhoid or house fly has been found in powdered hellebore by scientists of the Department of Agriculture. Flies lay their eggs chiefly in stable manure. Powdered hellebore mixed with water and sprinkled over the manure will destroy the larvae which are hatched from the eggs. Since powdered hellebore is readily obtainable, this puts in the hands of every one a remedy for one of the pests that has been found dangerous as well as troublesome. Powdered hellebore, however, will not kill adult flies, which must be swatted or trapped.

"It has been long known that flies breed in manure, but previous methods of destroying the larvae there by the use of strong chemicals have been opened to the objection that the treatment under some conditions lessened the fertilizing value of the manure or actually injured vegetation. This is not true of powdered hellebore. Government experiments have shown that hellebore is entirely decomposed in the course of fermentation of the manure, and that even in excessive quantities it does no harm except to the larvae it is intended to destroy. Chickens picking in manure treated with it suffer no ill effects.

HELLEBORE CHEAP AND EFFECTIVE

"One-half pound of powdered hellebore mixed with ten gallons of water is sufficient to kill the larvae in eight bushels, or ten cubic feet, of manure. The mixture should be sprinkled carefully over the pile, especial attention being paid to the outer edges. In most places hellebore is obtainable in 100-pound lots at a cost of 11 cents a pound. This makes the cost of the treatment a little less than seven-tenths of a cent per bushel of manure. A liberal estimate of the output of manure is two bushels a day per horse. The money involved is, therefore, trifling in comparison with the benefits to the individual and the community from the practical elimination of the disease-spreading fly.

"Although fresh manure is the favorite breeding spot, flies lay their eggs in other places as well, such as outhouses, refuse piles, etc. In these places, from which no manure is taken to spread on the fields, considerable saving may be effected through the substitution of borax for powdered hellebore. Applied at the rate of 0.62 pounds per eight bushels of manure, borax is as effective as powdered hellebore in killing the larvae, but costs less than half a cent for each bushel of manure treated. In larger quantities, however, or when the manure itself is spread at a greater rate than fifteen tons to the acre, some damage to crops may result. Large quantities of manure are often used by market gardeners and others, and there is always danger of carelessness in applying the borax. The use of the more expensive but safer hellebore is therefore recommended for the treatment of manure. Borax is recommended for all other refuse in which flies may lay eggs.

PUBLIC DUTY, SCIENTISTS SAY

"Scientists who have been working for years to eliminate the fly are convinced that the use of one or the other of these simple measures is a public duty wherever manure and refuse exist. Sanitarians, however, strongly advise the removal of refuse heaps or other unnecessary rubbish or breeding places for flies.

In breeding places which cannot be thus disposed of—such as manure of stables—the daily use of powdered hellebore will keep the flies from breeding in these favorite breeding grounds. The best results are obtainable in a community where every one cleans up his premises, traps or kills the flies, and systematically treats the manure and other breeding places with powdered hellebore.

"The fly is not only a nuisance to human beings and live stock; it spreads disease and filth and is a menace to public health which cannot be tolerated in the face of a demonstrated remedy. Details of the experiments with other information on the subject are contained in a professional paper, Bulletin 248 of the United States Department of Agriculture."

IS A FINE HUMAN FOOD

Skim Milk Recommended by U. S. Dept. of Agriculture—Look Out for Contamination.

(The Washington Star.)

Skim milk is a very economical food material, in the opinion of experts in the Department of Agriculture, and might well be more largely used as human food—this in spite of the fact that it is nine-tenths water. The argument for economy is based on the price at which it is usually sold, and upon the composition of the remaining tenth, or the nutritive portion.

The only nutrient taken from milk in skimming is the butter fat. There is left, therefore, in the skim milk not only all of the sugar, which amounts to about four and one-half parts in every 100, and all of the mineral substances, but also all of the protein. The last-named substance is important because, besides serving as fuel for the body, as fats, sugars and starches do, it also supplies nitrogenous tissue-building material. The proportion of protein in skim milk, as well as of the mineral constituents, which are also valuable for body-building, is even greater than in whole milk, the department experts declare.

In recommending skim milk as food the fact should always be kept in mind that it has gone through one more process in the course of its preparation for family use than whole milk has—that of separation or skimming, the department warns. This, in the case of a food material so liable to become contaminated and to be the carrier of disease, is a very important matter, and the consumer should take even more pains than in buying whole milk to know that it has been carefully handled, particularly if it is to be used raw.

A BUSINESS COURSE NOW

A Full Business Course to be Offered at High School - Advantages of Normal Course.

(Communicated)

In addition to the three courses already given, academic, agricultural and normal training, Manassas Agricultural High School will offer this year a full business course leading to a diploma. The course will be open to students who have had two years of high school work, and will include bookkeeping, business arithmetic with rapid calculation, penmanship, business English, stenography and typewriting. Effort will be made to standardize the work as rapidly as possible in order to give the diploma full practical value.

The academic and agricultural courses, which are designed respectively to prepare for the greater colleges, and to interest the student in the possibilities of farm life in its modern developments, are too well established to need particular mention at this time; but attention is especially called to the highly developed normal course and the unusually good facilities it offers.

The work of the normal course not only includes the usual study of the theory and art of teaching and a full review of the grammar school subjects together with courses in agriculture and domestic science, but also affords unusually good opportunity for practical training. From one to two weeks is given to observation work in the schools of Washington, D. C., and abundant opportunity for observation and practice teaching in Manassas General School. Arrangements have also been made by permission of the board of Trustees to turn one of the district schools into a model rural school with full opportunity on the part of the normal students for observation and practice teaching. The students will thus be put in touch with the actual conditions of the county school; will have the opportunity to realize its problems and receive the training to meet them.

In planning this course the High School realizes the greatness of the call to service of the teacher in the rural community; and effort is continually made to enrich the course, to add to its efficiency and, to give to the students themselves a realization of the possibilities of community development that their work holds out.

The normal course is open to third and fourth year high school students and also to teachers holding first, second, and third grade certificates. It may also be taken by high school graduates as a year of post graduate work.

Death of Mrs. Ida C. Arthur.

Mrs. Ida Cornelia Arthur, mother of Rev. Philip A. Arthur, assistant rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Richmond, and a former rector of Trinity P. E. Church, Manassas, died at 11:10 o'clock Wednesday night at St. Luke's Hospital, Richmond.

The death of Mrs. Arthur, who lived in Manassas while Rev. Arthur had charge of Dettingen parish, is a great surprise to her former friends, many of whom did not know of her late illness. Mrs. Arthur was the daughter of the late Miles P. Phillips and resided in Richmond the greater part of her life.

Funeral services will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock from St. Andrew's Episcopal Church and interment will be in Hollywood cemetery, Richmond. The sympathy of Rev. Arthur's former parishioners is extended to him in his hour of bereavement.
