SECOND HEALTH ARTICLE

Causes of Sickness, Preventable Sickness, Need of Better Sanitation, Etc., Discussed.

[By Dr. R. W. Garnett, Director, Intensive Community Health Work]

Having in my last article tried to give some description of the campaign for better sanitation in Prince William county, it is my purpose now to endeavor to draw some general conclusions and to emphasize some public health principles which need constant emphasis.

CAUSES OF SICKNESS

During the past thirty-five years more has been found out about the cause of sickness than in the whole history of the world up to that time. The microscope, a powerful magnifying instrument, has made it possible to study those forms of life too small to be seen with the naked eye. It has been learned that little plants called germs or microbes are the causes of the acute catching diseases. Since we know the causes of these diseases, much can be done to prevent them from acting. Therefore, we do not hesitate to say that more than half the sickness that we suffer is preventable.

Formerly it was thought that sickness was a dispensation of providence, a punishment for sin. We know now, however, that most sickness is caused by germs and is not caused by sin, except by the sin of neglect—neglect of the laws of health. The great apostle Paul wrote, "If a man neglects so great salvation, how can he escape?" May we not learn from the great spiritual lesson taught a great health lesson also? If a man commits physical sins against his body, he lowers his vitality, his resistance and thereby lessens his fighting chance against the microscopic foes so ready to attack him. If a man neglects the laws of health, how can he escape? Nature is just, terribly just, she never allows the violators of her laws to go unpunished. If a community neglects the laws of health, how can it escape the consequences?

PREVENTABLE SICKNESS

The conquests over smallpox and diphtheria and yellow fever, read like romance. In Virginia, through better education and better sanitation, the typhoid fever sick rate has already within the past seven years been reduced one-half. It is a conservative statement to say that at least half the sickness which afflicts the people of our state is preventable. Knowing the causes of these diseases, we also know how to prevent these causes from acting. Germs to do us harm must get into our bodies and in order to get into the bodies of well people, they must come from the bodies of sick people.

The causative agents of consumption, pneumonia, grippe, diphtheria, colds etc., come from the mouths and noses of persons sick with those diseases. Therefore the dangers of the common drinking cup and of promiscuous spitting and of coughing with the mouth unprotected, should be apparent. Typhoid fever, dysentery, summer diarrhea of little children, are due to germs thrown off from the bowels of those sick with these diseases. To keep well persons from swallowing these germs and to prevent the spread of hookworm disease, the use of fly proof privies is of tremendous importance.

NEED OF BETTER SANITATION IN RURAL DISTRICTS

Reports coming into the office of the State Board of Health show that the cities have less sickness and a lower death rate than the country districts of Virginia. This fact is a surprise to many people living where they have plenty of room, where they can get plenty of fresh air (but often don't) and where every man thinks he has the purest spring or the best well in the whole state. Why then is there more sickness, with all its attendant suffering and economic loss in the country, than in the city? It is because in the city the purity of the water supply is looked after, the city which also sees that the wastes from the bodies of its people are safely disposed of.

P. P. CHAPMAN SUCCUMBS

Well-Known Resident of Town and Native of County Passes Away Sunday Morning.

After a great fight for life since last Friday morning when he was expected to pass away at any moment, due to the rapid succession in which he had suffered four hemorrhages of the lungs, Philip Pendleton Chapman succumbed at his home on West street Sunday morning. Mr. Chapman, who was born in Prince William on September 8, 1860, had for many years been a sufferer from tuberculosis.

Mr. Chapman lived in Manassas for about thirty years, where he served for a long time as agent for the Southern Express Company. For two years, beginning with 1911, Mr. Chapman served as Mayor of Manassas, during which time the town enjoyed a good administration. He was a member of Bull Run Council, Order Fraternal Americans, having joined the same during the first year of its formation.

In June, 1887, Mr. Chapman was married to Miss Eva Peake and from this union three daughters survive, Misses Faith Pendleton and Mary Lee Chapman, of Manassas, and Mrs. N. L. Turner, jr., of The Plains. After the death of his first wife in February, 1897, Mr. Chapman was united in marriage to Miss Ella Weir in March, 1899, by whom he is survived.

The decedent also leaves his mother, Mrs. Martha Chapman, of Roanoke; two sisters, Mrs. Nannie Weedon, of Roanoke, and Mrs. George Payne, of Newport News, and a brother, Mr. W. J. Chapman, of Baltimore.

Funeral services were held at Trinity Episcopal church Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. W. H. K. Pendleton, of Sparta, S. C., officiating. Rev. J. F. Burks, the pastor, assisted in the services. The pallbearers were Messrs. James E. Nelson, Albert Spiden, W. C. Wagener, Dr. J. M. Lewis and F. E. Morris, of Manassas, and Mr. Walter Shannon, of Norfolk. The funeral and burial services were largely attended by many friends and relatives. Interment was made in Manassas cemetery.

GET CIRCULAR ON CORN

Southern Corn Growers Told How To Harvest, Store and Market Corn—Send for it.

[Special Bulletin]

The United States Department of Agriculture has just sent out a circular to the corn growers of the South that contains much valuable information about the harvesting, marketing and storing of corn. Copies of this circular have been sent to the demonstration agents in each county and any farmer may get as many as he wishes from these agents. Or he may write to the Department of Agriculture at Washington for them and for any further information on the subject that is not given in the circular.

Some of the directions given for preparing corn for early market are: "Husk in the field as soon as the corn is mature and thoroughly dry, don't snap, unless snapped corn sells at a premium in your locality; do not top or strip, it lowers the yield—topping by as much as 15 or 20 per cent—pull or pick out while husking all the soft, moldy or weevil-bored ears, and keep these out of your corn; they lower the grade."

The circulars give the farmer explicit directions as to how to store his corn, the best methods for killing weevils, how to prepare it for market and how to sell to the best advantage. Rules of the Federal Food and Drugs Act as to the shipment of corn from one state to another are also set forth in the circular and the treatment of seed corn in the field is handled as a subject of great importance. Now that the harvesting of the corn crop in Virginia is at hand and, as the price the farmer will get for his crop depends largely on the way it is prepared for market, no corn grower should delay getting a copy of this circular from his county agent or the department at Washington.

MISS CONNER WINS TRIP

Misses Elizabeth Harley, Eleanor and Marion Lewis Win At Canning Exhibit.

Friday and Saturday of last week the girls' canning clubs of Prince William had on exhibition specimens of their work of the past season. The exhibits were placed on the lower floor of the new addition at the Ruffner building where they showed to much advantage in the well-lighted room.

Included in the various exhibits were canned vegetables and fruits of many kinds as well as jellies and other canned products. And the encouraging thing about all the work was that it was work that will stand those who were engaged in it in good stead in after life. The various entries were of very high order and every exhibit shown bespoke much for the ability of the girl who did the work.

THREE PRIZES GIVEN

The best first year exhibit was that of Miss Elizabeth Harley, of Cannon Branch school, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Harley, and to her was awarded the pair of scales given by W. C. Wagener. Second honors in this class, a red ribbon, went to another Cannon Branch girl, Miss Ruth Conner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Conner. The girls of the first year were allowed to exhibit tomatoes only and, therefore, their exhibits were not as complete as those of the older students. Others exhibiting in this class were Misses Grace Long and Lucy Haydon, both of Manassas.

In the second year class Miss Eleanor Lewis was awarded first prize, $5.00, given by Judge J. B. T. Thornton. The red ribbon in this class went to the other exhibitor, Miss Eva Kidwell of Hoadley.

To Miss Marion Lewis went the confectioner's thermometer given by Dr. C. R. C. Johnson. The other exhibitor in the third year class was Miss Mildred Lawler, who received the red ribbon.

The four exhibits of the second and third year classes were very complete and beautiful. Great credit is due each of these young ladies for the fine work displayed. The exhibits of the Misses Lewis were exceptionally fine and these young ladies were highly complimented upon the excellent work done during the past season.

TRIP TO STATE FAIR AWARDED

To the girl making the highest all-round average it was announced early in the season that a trip to the state fair would be given. In deciding to whom this honor was to be given only one thing was considered, i. e., who had made the highest score on the work undertaken. After going over the reports, etc., carefully it was found that Miss Ruth Conner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Conner, had made the highest average and was therefore entitled to the trip. The next best average was made by Miss Lucy Haydon but unfortunately there was no second prize.

EXHIBIT TO FAIR

Miss Emily Johnson, county demonstration agent for Prince William, who is making a great success with the canning clubs in the county, shipped by express to Richmond Monday the exhibits of Misses Ruth Conner, Eva Kidwell and Marion Lewis together with specimens of the work of the following: Misses Elizabeth Harley, Lucy Haydon, Eleanor Lewis, Mildred Lawler, Sue Snapp and Daisy Purcell. This will make up the exhibit of the girls' canning clubs of Prince William at the state fair which will be held next week and at which girls' canning clubs from all over the state will compete for prizes.

In the recent account of German casualties one item claims particular attention. This is the sentence which informs the world that 4,900 German schoolmasters have been killed in battle since the beginning of the war.

The Society of American Indians in conference at Lawrence, Kansas, last week selected the second day of May as American Indian Day. The society will seek to have the date set aside as a national holiday.

HEPBURN'S GOOD ADDRESS

Anti-Saloon League Lecturer Gave Helpful Address At Baptist Church Sunday.

Manassas and vicinity was afforded another good temperance talk Sunday evening when Rev. David Hepburn, of the Anti-Saloon League of Virginia, spoke at the Manassas Baptist church. After the singing of several hymns, Scripture reading by Dr. H. L. Quarles and a prayer by Rev. Halpenny, Rev. Hepburn launched into the subject of the evening, "Temperance." The following ideas were brought out in his address:

THREE DIVINE INSTITUTIONS

There are only three divine institutions in the world, i. e., the home, the government and the church. Each of these is countenanced and set aside for special blessings in God's Holy Word.

Home is a divine institution. There is no word which to the hearts of men the world over has a deeper significance. Men fight and die for their homes and when exiled frequently pine away. The home should be remembered by the young man, who in this restless age too frequently looks over its great underlying value. The government is a divine institution. The Bible tells us that there is no power but of God. The officers of law are, therefore, ministers of God and should have clean records and live clean lives. The mission of government is 1. Protection of life. 2. Protection of property. 3. Insuring the enjoyment by the citizens of the good things God has given us. No laws should be placed upon the statute books unless they have in view the carrying out of one or more of the three things named above.

The church is a divine institution. It was founded by Jesus Christ. The mission of the church is 1. To save men. 2. To train men for the higher and nobler work of the race.

LIQUOR TRAFFIC FOE OF ALL THREE

The beverage liquor traffic is the foe of the three divine institutions. The liquor traffic makes unhappy homes. Who ever saw a drunkard's home that was happy? The liquor traffic is destructive of good government. It destroys life (by causing a large per cent of murders, etc.) it depreciates the value of property (a saloon next door to your dwelling would not raise the value of your real estate) and it seriously interferes with man's enjoyment of God's blessings. And the saloon is the arch enemy of the church.

The pernicious influence of the liquor people is constantly being felt at Richmond and Washington, and it will continue to be felt as long as they have any hope left. But, thank God, the church has effectively fought against them in the past and, if funds are provided, can fight effectively against liquor in the future. The Methodists and Baptists in the late state-wide fight in Virginia spent more money than all the other congregations put together. The league is several thousand dollars in debt for the fight in Virginia in 1914 and solicits contributions from all.

The work is going forward rapidly. Now there are 19 dry states whereas on Sept. 1, 1914, there were only 9 dry states. The prospects for the future are bright indeed, but all must help in the carrying on of the work and make sure that none of the ground now held is lost to the temperance cause.

At the close of Rev. Hepburn's address a contribution was taken up and another hymn was sung, after which the service was brought to a close by Rev. Hepburn pronouncing the benediction. The address was a very able one and to add to its effectiveness was the good delivery and forcefulness of the speaker.

Board of Review Notice.

The Local Board of Review will sit at the courthouse in Manassas on October 12, 13 and 14, 1915, to hear complaint of tax payers, if any, to assessments made by the examiner of records for omitted or back taxes.

Westwood Hutchinson, Chairman Local Board of Review.

COUNTY SCHOOL REPORT

Gleanings From Annual School Report Sent in by Supt. Geo. G. Tyler This Week.

Mr. George G. Tyler, division superintendent of schools for Prince William county, forwarded the first of the week to the Department of Public Instruction in Richmond his annual report for the schools of the county. The report was for the year closing June 30, 1915. Some of the more or less interesting facts gleaned from a perusal of the report are given below:

The amount of money apportioned and levied for school purposes in the county during the year was $49,872.96, of which amount $18,960.78 was for Manassas district. The amount of money paid the 84 teachers in the public schools of Prince William was $25,809.51 and of this amount $10,075.31 was paid the 26 teachers of Manassas district. From these figures we see that the average pay of the county teacher is $307.26 for the season, but the average for Manassas district is $403.01.

The number of pupils in the county schools last year was 2833, while the daily average attendance was 1742.

The value of school property, sites and buildings, is $70,340 while the value of school equipment is $13,206. During the past year two schoolhouses were built, a one-room house at Cherry Hill at a total cost of $333.70 and a four-room house at Bethel at a total cost of $3,000.

In the county there are 42 schools for white with a total seating capacity of 2,830 and 14 colored schools with a total seating capacity of 620. In the school libraries through the county there are 8,323 volumes. During the year the superintendent, besides attending many institutes, etc., made 196 visits to the schools of the county.

Students taking special work in the schools of the county last year numbered as follows in the special work named: agriculture, 701; music, 769; drawing, 1,184, and domestic science, 234. During the year the patrons, junior and senior leagues raised a total of $1,285.75 for improvement of school grounds, additions to libraries, etc.

FIGHT ON FOREST FIRES

United States Department of Agriculture Willing to Spend $2,000 to Fight Fires.

[By R. C. Jones, State Forester]

The state forester, at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, announces that he has secured an offer of $2,000 from the United States Department of Agriculture, to be spent in Virginia this fall, to help owners of timberland or county governments, where they are making an organized effort to keep down forest fires. This help from the United States Government is made possible by the cooperation of the University of Virginia, which has set aside a sum for forestry work in the state.

NOW UP TO THE PRIVATE OWNERS OR THE COUNTIES

This government money will be spent to pay the salaries of patrolmen to travel through wooded sections in dry times and be on the watch for forest fires. They will be commissioned state forest wardens and given authority to enforce the fire laws. They will take charge of fighting any fire in their territory, post up warning notices, explain the law to everybody and warn the careless. They will be appointed only where the owners of timberland or the county authorities will meet half the expense. Thus a patrolman can be employed for four months of dry weather each year and the government will pay his salary for two of the four months. The work will be under the direction of the state forester. Owners or county authorities who want further particulars will be furnished them by the State Forester, Charlottesville, Va., who has sent a letter last week to each county supervisor in the state about this proposition.

On Friday night, at a reception given to the visiting teachers, a lecture, illustrated with lantern slides, was given by Dr. Garnett, of the State Board of Health, who has just completed the intensive medical surveys held in the county this summer. The dangers and methods of prevention of the tubercular plague were discussed and the teachers urged to give all possible help in the fight for its extermination. Mr. Tyler referred to the amount—nearly one hundred dollars—already collected by the school leagues and women's clubs towards the expenses of a medical survey of the schools of the county and urged the pressing of this work through the coming year. After Dr. Garnett's address, a very pleasant program of music and recitations was presented by the high school students, assisted by Professor Mosher, of Eastern College, and refreshments were delightfully served by last year's domestic science class.

COUNTY TEACHERS ATTEND

Institute Held in Manassas On Friday and Saturday Last a Great Success.

[Communicated]

That Prince William possesses an active and vigorous teachers' organization was evidenced by the institute held in Manassas Friday and Saturday of last week at which excellent programs were given, and a good attendance secured, even on Friday in spite of the incessant rain.

FRIDAY MORNING

The Friday morning program was begun with a paper by Mr. Earl Merrill, of Greenwich school, on methods of securing and holding the interest of school patrons. It is to be regretted that this paper could not have been heard by a wider audience as it contained many excellent suggestions as to the possibilities of social and community work on the part of the teachers in the rural schools.

Mr. Fleming, of Bethlehem school, followed with an account of how school conditions had been improved in West Virginia by a compulsory attendance law, and by raising the salaries of teachers with consequent higher requirements for professional training.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON

In the afternoon a most interesting description of the Aldine method of teaching reading was given by Miss Grace Moran, who illustrated this latest development of the primary teacher's art with a class of little children, the little folks giving abundant evidence of great satisfaction in following learning's path.

Mr. Watson, the high school director of agriculture, next spoke on the teaching of agriculture in the country schools. Mr. Watson urged the formation of corn clubs and pig clubs among the pupils and promised to send literature and to help in the formation of such clubs whenever called upon. It is to be hoped that the teachers will cooperate with Mr. Watson in his plans for this work as nothing would prove of more value in making the boys interested and willing to stay on the farm than the scientific training along practical and profitable lines that these clubs give.

Mr. J. H. Binford, secretary of the State Teachers' Association, closed the afternoon session with a discussion of the new course of study for the primary and grammar school grades just gotten out by the State Department of Instruction.

FRIDAY NIGHT

On Friday night, at a reception given to the visiting teachers, a lecture, illustrated with lantern slides, was given by Dr. Garnett, of the State Board of Health, who has just completed the intensive medical surveys held in the county this summer. The dangers and methods of prevention of the tubercular plague were discussed and the teachers urged to give all possible help in the fight for its extermination.

Mr. Tyler referred to the amount—nearly one hundred dollars—already collected by the school leagues and women's clubs towards the expenses of a medical survey of the schools of the county and urged the pressing of this work through the coming year. After Dr. Garnett's address, a very pleasant program of music and recitations was presented by the high school students, assisted by Professor Mosher, of Eastern College, and refreshments were delightfully served by last year's domestic science class.

SATURDAY MORNING

Saturday's program was full to overflowing. Rev. Mr. White, of Haymarket, gave an interesting and very entertaining description of education in the Philippines, and promised a talk, illustrated with views of the islands, to the Manassas schools in the near future.

Mrs. C. L. Hodge followed with a paper on the place of music in education. The value of this subject brought out that the superintendent requested that the report should be published by the press.

labus of the requirements had been prepared and explanations of this, together with suggestions as to the use of the excellent new text books in English, adopted by the State Board, enabled the speaker to set clearly before the audience the preparation that every pupil entering the high school should have in using the English language. The great importance of much reading and telling stories to children was also urged as the best possible preparation for later work in history and English and also as one of the chief factors in character training, for the myths and hero tales of the world's literature are but the crystallization of the hopes and ideals of the race, and, as such, should be the inheritance of every child.

Among the number of good addresses during the day was a very practical discussion by Mr. Carter, of Haymarket, on the introduction of manual training in the rural schools. The speaker showed how this work was the necessary link between the home and the school and how much could really be accomplished by a carefully planned course, even in the present crowded schedule of the rural schools.

A history of the county athletic work and plans for the track meet for next spring were then discussed by Mr. Wheatley Johnson, who also urged the importance of this work on the teachers.

Athletics, he said, were not in the schools by any arbitrary plan, but by natural right, since they satisfied a fundamental need of boy nature. They could be, and sometimes were, a source of harm, but properly used were of the utmost value in both the moral and physical education of the young people.

Miss Florence Lion, as representative of Eastern College, also spoke on the value of studies in the history of education, dwelling on the importance of the teacher's work and what it sometimes could mean for the community.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON
Saturday afternoon delegates were elected to the State Teachers' Conference to be held in Richmond at Thanksgiving—Miss Moran, Miss Mooney and Mr. Elliott. The institute officers were also elected for the year—Mrs. Larkin as president and Miss Lulu Metz as secretary-treasurer.

Announcement was also made by Mr. Tyler of the $50 prizes, offered for penmanship by Congressman Carlin, and as no plan had been announced for its distribution, a committee was appointed to consider how the amount could be best used for the benefit of the whole county.

The meeting then adjourned to see the exhibit of the work of the County Canning Club, under the direction of Miss Emily Johnson.

The beautiful exhibit displayed in the new normal room of the high school showed not only much practical skill on the part of the club members but much artistic ability as well.

STATE FAIR NEXT WEEK

The Big Show Opens in Richmond Monday—Many Free Attractions.

With the most wonderful array of agricultural and poultry exhibits the Virginia State Fair Association has ever gathered together, everything is in readiness for the opening of the great exhibition in Richmond during the entire week of October 11-16, inclusive.

Six days and nights of unparalleled entertainment will be provided for the thousands of visitors who will attend this year's mammoth show.

One feature of the Fair alone will be worth the trip. That will be the death-defying aviation exhibitions of Art Smith, the world's most daring aviator, and of Baxter Adams, another coming top-notch among birdmen.

SOME OF THEIR STUNTS
Smith and Adams have contracted with the Virginia State Fair Association to give two flights daily—afternoon and evening—during which time they will do the sensational back-flop, or dropping backwards from the skies, turning a somersault as they descend; will fly upside down, loop-the-loop; demonstrate the daring wing-over-wing flight, and Adams, during the last of the week, will do an aerial tango while whizzing through space at 80 miles an hour.

GREAT POULTRY EXHIBIT
Over ten thousand, one hundred birds have been entered in the poultry department this year eclipsing all records of any Fair ever held in the state. Not only has every variety of regular show birds been entered but the association has constructed a concrete open-air pool where water fowl of every description will be seen.

AN INSTRUCTIVE FEATURE
In the farm products building this year the entire interior has been rebuilt and every department will be a complete exhibit of one particular product. Apples from every section of Virginia will be grouped together, all hay and grain will be grouped, thus making it easy for any visitor interested in one particular line to see every variety of that product in one exhibit. Another feature of this building is the engagement of an expert to have charge of each of these various groups of farm products. Frequent lectures will be given on the best methods of producing various crops.

WONDERFUL FREE SHOWS
The most amazing list of free attractions ever gathered together in one colossal show has been secured for the Fair this year. A two-hour vaudeville bill will be given each afternoon and evening, the afternoon performances being interspersed between the excellent racing events which will be seen in the best turf program the association has ever offered.

Included in the free attractions are some of the greatest American and European novelties, a collection of famous artists offering a diversified and original program of startling features, among them the famous diving horse, Max, the marvelous Quinceys in their dizzy diving exhibition, aerial acrobatic oddities, dancing numbers, vocalists, the world's champion still-walker, the joy-making Marco Twins and a dozen other acts gathered from every corner of the globe. At night the vaudeville show will be followed by aviation flights in machines lighted with fireworks, the whole ending a magnificent pyrotechnic display reproducing the history-making "Battle of the Dardanelles."

Reduced rates are offered on every railroad.

BEFORE THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

The Board of Supervisors of Prince William county at their regular meeting next Thursday will again have presented to the body the proposition of turning the courthouse lawn into a simple park (not under any circumstances a playground). This idea, which has been agitated for some time, does not grow any less important from the fact that it has been held up. In fact, the idea seems to grow and of late it appears to be more feasible than ever and decidedly the thing that should be done.

Some months ago two members of the board informally expressed themselves as in favor of the county's undertaking the work. The other members of the board were not asked how they stood on the matter (because of inability to reach them) but it seems that they could find little to object to in the proposition. Right here we venture to add that were a vote taken throughout the county it would be decided by a large majority that the courthouse lawn should be converted into a simple, quiet resting place for the people of the county and the town.

What is asked is that a few graveled walks be laid, a few iron benches be placed along the edges of these walks and, if possible, a few shrubs and evergreens be planted. Now no great expense will be involved in this simple arrangement, which, with the installation of a public drinking fountain in the courthouse yard at the expense of the Manassas Civic League, will make a quiet, attractive place for both town and country people, a place where a seat and a drink of water can be obtained without expense or inconvenience to any.

Hardly anyone is there but who will admit that the courthouse lawn as it now stands is not as it should be allowed to remain. Since the commemorative group has been placed in the yard the laying of a number of graveled walks becomes imperative and perhaps some opening or openings in the fence should also be made so as to permit easy inspection and reading of the inscription on the tablet. Unless some arrangement of this sort is made the group will not justify the position it now holds on the courthouse lawn.

Finally, we appeal to the members of the board in the name of their country friends who many times during spring, summer and autumn feel very seriously the lack of a suitable resting place which a simple park would afford. Many a mother with little tots tugging at her skirts would make good use of an inviting bench in the shade where good water could be had in abundance. Many a stranger would find joy in such a little park and his or her wait-over would prove enjoyable and not boring as so frequently is the case now. And you yourself, Mr. Supervisor, would not object to an inviting seat along the side of a pretty graveled walk while waiting for a session of your board to begin. If you, as individual members of the board, will consider the voice of the people of the county, you will, collectively, agree to convert into a simple park, the courthouse lawn at Manassas.

ITS FUTURE VALUE TO PRINCE WILLIAM

The great importance of the health work which has been prosecuted in Prince William during the past summer is forcibly brought out in the second and concluding health article by Dr. R. W. Garnett, of the State Board of Health, which will be found elsewhere in this issue. As a source of general information on causes of sickness, preventable sickness, etc., the article has great value and it is so written that the layman can fully understand every point emphasized. As a lesson in better health conditions for the county this final article should attract attention throughout the whole of Prince William.

When Dr. Garnett says, "If this intensive community campaign turns out to have been the beginning of a movement which will be consummated in that way (referring to the establishment of a county department of health, etc.) it will have been well worth while," he strikes the keynote of what great value the campaign can be to our county. The people of Prince William realize now, as they never realized before, the great returns which can be expected from all investments in the bettering of public health. Nothing can take the place of good health and once it is lost nothing is striven so hard for or so greatly appreciated upon its regainment. The ways and means of keeping healthy have been greatly emphasized by the recent intensive survey and further health improvement work in the county is almost sure of meeting with encouraging support.

The lead in matters of immediate and future health improvement work for Prince William should be taken by the three communities in which the intensive work of the past summer was prosecuted. One of these communities, either Nokesville or Haymarket, should act as chairman of new work and should call the representative citizens of the county to a conference at which plans and details of establishing a permanent health department for Prince William, as suggested by Dr. Garnett, could be worked out. After plans have been formulated and necessary data collected, the proposition can be placed before the board of supervisors, which will then be able to tell at a glance just what will be expected of the county and just how greatly the county will benefit by adopting the suggestion. Prince William ought to and can have a county health department and an all-time health officer if sufficient interest is aroused throughout the county.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY TO-MORROW

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is indeed applicable when the subject of fires and their prevention is considered. A bad fire not only brings financial loss upon the property owner but it often destroys priceless possessions which no amount of money can replace. A bad fire quite frequently acts as a damper upon a man's ambition and thus makes him sceptical and unwilling to again plan big things for the future. Certainly every possible step towards the preventing of fires should be taken so that we will not be losers in conflagrations which we could have by any means prevented.

In order to arouse the people of Virginia to take steps towards the preventing of fires, Gov. H. C. Stuart recently designated October 9 as Fire Prevention Day. To-morrow all property owners and renters are requested to see that their premises are clean, free of rubbish and that no kind of combustible matter is left lying around. While every day should be Fire Prevention Day, it is a good thing to set aside one day in each year when weight can be brought to bear upon the great importance and the ways of preventing fires.

In 1914 the fire loss of the United States totaled $221,000,000, a very large percentage of which was due to failure to practice preventive measures sufficiently. In Germany, where the property owner is punished for a fire which could be prevented, the fire loss is diminutive as compared with that of this country. As was cited in a news article in The Journal on March 26 of this year, the per capita fire loss of this country is $3 while in six European countries the average per capita fire loss is 33 cents. When figured out the fire loss of the United States averages nearly $600 a minute. Do not forget that while the sum total of matter never changes that that which goes up in smoke is always an irretrievable loss to its owner.

Taking the matter to ourselves, we should not fail to observe Fire Prevention Day, not as a holiday but as a day set aside for "noising out" all forms of combustible trash, old rags saturated with oil, good matches scattered around, etc. Manassas, like the burnt child, has had experience enough to know what a fire is capable of doing and the people of the town can not do better in the way of preventing a recurrence of past calamities from fire than by putting forth every effort to prevent the starting of the flames. It's much easier to prevent the starting of a fire than to stamp it out once it has started. Let us exercise every precaution every day to prevent the outbreak of a fire so that words will not be needed to explain how it started and why it was not put out sooner.

ABOUT SCHOOL BOOKS

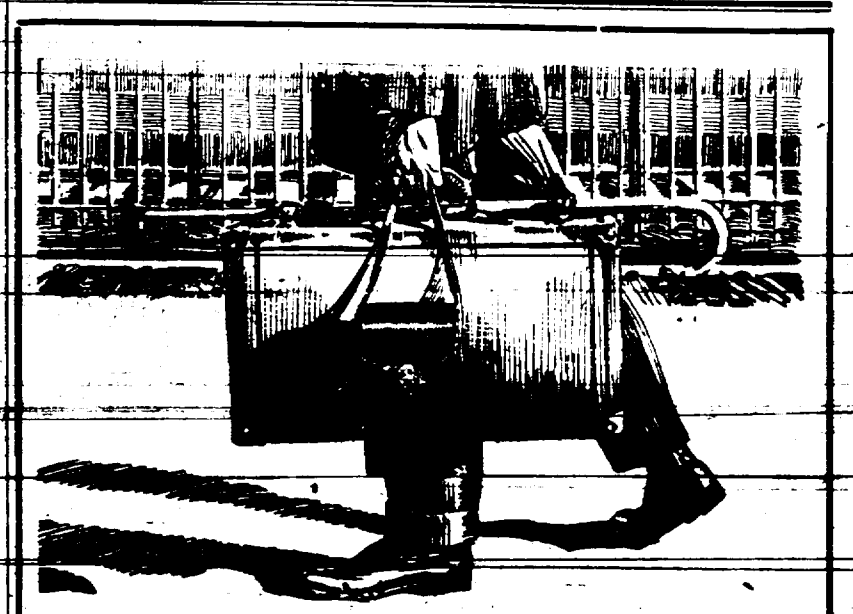

Below we give extracts from a letter recently received by Supt. Geo. G. Tyler: "We find that the demand for text books in Virginia has been much greater than either the publishers or the Virginia Book Company anticipated. Under the circumstances the Virginia Book Company was practically overwhelmed with orders. The manager of the Virginia Book Company now advises me that conditions are greatly improved and that he will catch up with his orders in a few days." Yours very truly, R. C. STEARNES, Superintendent of Public Instruction. ROBINSON'S CIRCUS GOOD. In spite of the inclement weather a large crowd was in attendance upon Robinson's circus which gave an afternoon performance at Manassas yesterday. Taken as a whole the acting of both people and trained animals was of good order, the acrobatic Nelson family, the trained elephants, sea lions and baboons coming in for especial praise. The big street parade given about 10:30 o'clock in the morning was a highly spectacular and creditable affair. It is regretted, however, that certain "skin games" connected with the show were in intermittent operation throughout the day and reports have it that several were badly "fleece" in their ventures. Farmers' Institute Friday October 22. At a meeting of the executive committee of the Northern Virginia Farmers' Institute on Saturday, October 2, it was decided to hold the next meeting of the institute on Friday, October 22. After some discussion as to what we would take up at the meeting it was decided to discuss "Feeds and Feeding" and "Plowing for Spring Crops." The secretary was instructed to correspond with the proper authorities for a proper speaker on each of the above subjects. The committee adopted a rule that after each address the general discussion be limited to five minutes for each person and no person be allowed to talk more than twice on the same subject. We earnestly request that all farmers and others interested in farming be present at this meeting. Let us all come out and make the meeting a success. We hope to make this the most successful year of the institute and with the hearty support and cooperation of all we can make it such. B. K. WATSON, Secretary. WEATHER RECORD. Weather report for week ending Wednesday, Oct. 6: Maximum temperature 83 on Monday, the 4th; minimum temperature 44 on Sunday, the 3d. Precipitation during week: 2.37 inches on 1st, .08 inch on 2d, .37 inch on 5th and trace on 6th; total for week, 2.82 inches. OBSERVER. Geo. T. Craven, 48 years old, a ship carpenter and a life-long resident of Alexandria, was found dead Sunday morning on the streets of Alexandria. SECOND HEALTH ARTICLE

these body wastes are often exposed to flies which carry disease germs on their sticky legs and feet to people's food. Furthermore, such body wastes when improperly disposed of may be washed into springs or open wells and so pollute the water supply.
 Hookworm disease, which is sapping the life blood of thousands of little children in Virginia, retarding their normal development in both body and mind, is another preventable disease caused by little worms about one inch long. The eggs of these parasites are thrown off from the intestinal tract of infected persons and hatch out in polluted soil. The young worms get back into the bodies of barefoot persons by burrowing through the skin of the feet.
 Knowing then that the improper disposal of human discharges is responsible for much of the sickness in rural Virginia, the State Board of Health is trying to demonstrate in a definite manner that sanitary conveniences can be installed at reasonable cost and that the health of country people will thereby be greatly improved. In the cities, health laws are efficiently enforced; in the country every farmer must look after the sanitation as well as the other matters of his home. In the country the success of every movement for bettering conditions must depend upon the intelligent cooperation of the people.

TO CONTINUE THE WORK

It is hoped that the people of Prince William and other counties of Virginia will soon come to a realization of the fact that from an economic viewpoint they cannot afford to continue carrying the present burden of preventable sickness with its attendant loss of time and efficiency and happiness. Then will they realize that the establishment of an adequately financed county department of health, with a trained and efficient medical director at its head, will be a good investment. If this intensive community campaign turns out to have been the beginning of a movement which will be consummated in that way, it will have been well worth while. In conclusion, I wish to express my appreciation of the support given to our efforts, and to make an earnest appeal to the people of the county to carry on the work.

HAYMARKET HAPPENINGS

The way to make two blades of grass grow where one does now: Buy the celebrated Magnesium Lime from Leesburg Lime Co., the lime that has been sold in Loudoun and Fairfax for the past twenty-five years, and out produced them all, and the reason for it is because it contains Magnesium and Oxide of Iron in right proportion to Calcium Carbonate, and the United States Agricultural Department in Year Book 1901, page 161, states that Magnesium is absolutely necessary to plant growth and nothing else will take its place. Send orders to W. T. Thomason, Manassas, Va., or direct to us and same will have prompt attention.

PART X.

Greene now boldly advanced into South Carolina and, on April 25, engaged Lord Rawdon at Camden. A sharp conflict ensued which proved indecisive; the loss Rawdon sustained however, compelled him to retreat to the vicinity of Charlestown. A period of comparative inaction during an extremely hot period ensued after which Greene moved into the vicinity of Eutaw Springs. The British retired before him but, enraged by an attack made by a large foraging party, stopped and prepared for battle. Another indecisive conflict ensued on September 8, but the British were compelled to retire to Charlestown.

Meanwhile, after months of inaction, the American army in the North began to bestir itself. Washington had determined to deal the British one of two blows—either the American army and French fleet were to make a combined attack upon New York, the garrison of which had been much weakened by many detachments sent to the South; or the allies were to march and crush Cornwallis in Virginia. On receiving assurances from the French admiral, Count de Barras, that numerous French squadrons had sailed to the West Indies and might be expected on the coast, the Commander-in-Chief decided upon the former operation. Learning of the designs upon New York, Clinton became frightened and ordered Cornwallis to send him a reinforcement of troops. After making an unsuccessful attempt to envelop the forces of Lafayette which were engaged in raid upon his flank, the British commander in compliance with his order moved towards Portsmouth. The detachment had not embarked, however, before a second letter was received from Clinton saying that he had received large reinforcements from Europe and therefore would not need any from Cornwallis and, instead, ordered him to choose some strong central position in Virginia and there fortify himself. In compliance with this order, Cornwallis chose the town of York and Gloucester and, with an army of 8,000 effective men, proceeded to throw up intrenchments.

In the meantime Washington had pushed vigorously his plans for attack upon New York. Hardly had they been completed, however, when everything was thrown into confusion by a letter from de Barras stating that instead of fulfilling his promise to sail for New York he had turned toward the Chesapeake. The alternative was then resolved upon and plans laid to put the army in motion toward the South, without the movement becoming known to Clinton. Great preparations were made as if to make an assault upon New York; dispatches discussing plans for attack were purposely caused to fall into the hands of Clinton; even the American soldiers themselves were kept in ignorance of their real destination. The ruse worked completely; Clinton bent all his energies to strengthen the fortifications of New York, even refused to believe the corroborated reports of his scouts that Washington was making all speed to the South; and it was not until the Americans had been several days on the march that he was finally brought to a realization of their truth.

On September 27, the French fleet appeared at the mouth of the York river, completely cutting off Cornwallis' retreat by water. The British general, apprehending his danger, made an attempt to break through to the Carolinas, but the "boy" (Marquis de Lafayette) was on the alert, and he was compelled to return to his stronghold. A few days later, combined French and American armies, twelve thousand in number, appeared before Yorktown and cut off his escape by land. The British general sent off urgent expresses to Clinton for aid and in the meantime was indefatigable in strengthening his fortifications.

On the 28th of September, the allies opened their first parallel within 600 yards of the British lines; tradition tells us that General George Washington himself put the match to the first gun. A "most furious bombardment" continued for four days; the British outworks were greatly damaged and many pieces of cannon were dismounted; great damage was done to the town by the red-hot shot fired by the French fleet. Cornwallis withdrew his men from the outer works and concentrated them in the redoubts. On the evening of October 14, these were taken by storm by the Americans and French; each party displaying equal bravery in the attack. Seeing the seriousness of his situation, the British general determined to make a desperate sally and check the besiegers; on the night of the 16th the British suddenly rushed and seized two batteries, but a furious charge by the French compelled them to abandon their gains and flee back to their own lines. Cornwallis now saw that his only chance of escape lay in crossing the river, cutting his way through the opposing lines and reaching New York by forced marches. Boats and supplies were collected for the desperate attempt; on the 17th, the first division crossed over to Gloucester, and the second was preparing to embark when the sky became overcast and a furious storm arose which rendered the river practically impassable; the first division with difficulty recrossed and the attempt was abandoned. Despairing of assistance from Clinton and unwilling to further wantonly throw away the lives of his men, Cornwallis then opened up negotiations with Washington for surrender. The American general granted him substantially the same terms as had been granted General Lincoln at Charlestown, viz., the soldiers were to march out with colors cased, lay down their arms at a designated place and become prisoners of war. Overcome with chagrin and rage, Charles Earl of Cornwallis, excused himself from surrendering his sword to Washington and, instead gave the humiliating duty to General O'Hara, while Washington appointed General Lincoln (who had been returned to the American army by exchange) to receive the sword of the British general. Accordingly, on the 19th of October, 1781, the British army, numbering 7,547 men, with their colors cased and their hands playing "The World's Turned Upside Down" marched out of Yorktown in the presence of the allied armies, laid down their arms and became prisoners of war. Swift mounted couriers were at once sent out throughout the land to spread the joyful news. A dramatic recital is given of the entrance into Philadelphia of the messenger to Congress.

About three o'clock on the morning of the 23d, the quiet and serenity which hung over the Quaker City, which lay peacefully sleeping under the starry heavens, was suddenly disturbed by the clatter of horse's hoofs over the old cobblestones and the voice of the courier shouting lustily—"Cornwallis is taken! Cornwallis is taken!" The old Liberty Bell which, five years before had proclaimed the independence of the United States—then promulgated, now culminated—awoke the city with its brazen clamor. "It was a fitting thing that this glorious proclamation of freedom and victory should be made under the eternal benignity of the silent stars, in the streets of that old town which first among the cities of the world had heard the declaration that all men are created equal." "In acknowledgement of the signal interposition of Divine Providence," the Congress appointed a day for thanksgiving and prayer. The feeling that at last England would acknowledge the independence of the United States and conclude peace was now shared by all.

THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR

The surrender of Cornwallis virtually paralyzed the operations of the British, who hastened to evacuate all their holdings in the South. In England the war party was overthrown and a new ministry created, which opened negotiation with Congress to conclude a treaty of peace. The commissioners appointed from America were Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, Henry Laurens and John Jay. On the 3d of November, 1783, a treaty was concluded at Paris by which England recognized the independence of the United States, and all the British troops in America were ordered home. On December 25, Washington surrendered his commission to Congress, took an affecting farewell of his brother-officers, and retired to Mount Vernon. The war for American independence was at an end.

Such was the Revolutionary War. It had been a contest, not for power, not for aggrandizement, but for a great truth and principle which had been overshadowed by the arrogant authority of the Royal Agents and oppressed by the arbitrary rule of the English king and his ministry, who, in the words of Edmund Burke, the great leader of the friends of the patriots in Parliament, "to gain a pepper-corn had lost an empire."

Your Grocery Store

Is now open and R. B. Sprinkel will wait on you as of old.

"For your consideration I have the following to say. You are all aware of the fact that merchandise is sold on two plans, CASH and CREDIT. Most dealers use the plan, cash "OR" credit. By this plan, the "cash" customer has to pay as much as the customer that "promises" to pay.

Viewing this from a reasonable standpoint, is this fair to the one that pays the "SPOT CASH." Now, then, I have decided to conduct my business on the "SPOT CASH" plan. I am not in a position to tell the exact percent, that this will "save" you, but feel quite sure that it will be from 5 to 15 per cent.

Call and let me convince you that my cash system will absolutely SAVE you money.

The Seed Wheat we offer are from the best and most productive crops grown in the finest wheat-growing sections of Virginia, and are carefully re-cleaned by us to remove all impurities and small and inferior grains, so as to supply our customers only with plump and well-developed seed wheat, which should yield considerably more per acre than ordinary wheats imperfectly cleaned.
