

NEGRO SHOOT LIQUOR SLEUTH

Inspector Shellhorse Killed in Fight on Train While Trying to Arrest Negro Suspect.

The smoking car of a south-bound passenger train on the Southern Railway was the scene of a desperate fight last night between three prohibition inspectors of Virginia and a crowd of negroes. The officers were trying to arrest one negro for alleged violation of the liquor law. J. C. Shellhorse, one of the inspectors was shot and afterward died from the result of a wound in the neck.

A negro was arrested in Alexandria and gave the name of James A. Davis at police headquarters in that city.

The train left Washington about 7 o'clock. The negro, who, it is alleged, was seen carrying a suitcase filled with liquor, was followed aboard the train by the inspectors. As the train was crossing the river, inspectors W. C. Hall and A. L. Bricker approached the negro with a view to arresting him. The negro fled toward the baggage car.

A battle started in the car. Bottles were hurled, and several were broken over the heads of the officers. Shellhorse joined in the fight. A negro, say witnesses of the fracas, pulled a revolver and began to shoot, one of his bullets lodging in the inspector's neck.—Washington Post, Wednesday.

When the wounded man was removed to the Alexandria hospital an examination disclosed that he had no chance for recovery. After his death which occurred at 9:55 p. m., a post mortem revealed that the bullet had entered the neck on the left side, perforating the aorta, and ranging downward, finally lodged in the spinal cord.

Davis when brought to police headquarters and searched had in his possession $1,264.72. Asked where he obtained this money he stated that he had saved it as the result of working as a laborer. In the meantime the suitcase and grip alleged to have belonged to Davis were searched at police headquarters and found to contain a grand total of forty-five pints of liquor. Davis denied ownership of the whisky and added that he had no whisky.

When asked for a statement next morning of how the shooting took place Davis declared he was so mixed up he just didn't know what happened. The night before he told the police and newspaper reporters that when he was attacked by the inspector he did not know the latter was an officer and thought it was some one trying to rob him.

Davis is a powerfully built negro and weighs about 170 pounds. He says he had been employed by a contractor at Manassas, Va.

Davis has a bad police record according to Detective F. M. Cornwell, of the Washington detective force. Mr. Cornwell stated that on October 27, 1908, Davis with two other colored men was convicted of highway robbery and housebreaking and sentenced to serve six years in the penitentiary and afterward he was adjudged insane and sent to the ward for the criminal insane at St. Elizabeth's and later was pronounced sane and sent to Fort Leavenworth penitentiary and finished his sentence in 1914. He is known as prisoner No. 2883.

Davis was committed to jail

AGED COLORED RESIDENT PASSES AWAY IN MANASSAS

Alevia Anderson, an aged and well known colored woman, died at the home of her son, in the lower part of town last Friday morning. Aunt Levy, as she was familiarly known, was in the eighty-second year of her age.

In the days before the Civil War, she was a servant in the house of Col. Jack Gibson of Fleetwood. There are, perhaps, now living, a few of the elderly residents of Prince William, who can recall the splendid entertainments and lavish hospitality of the Gibsons of Fleetwood, "before the war."

On the death of Col. and Mrs. Gibson, Addison Webster, whose mother's name was Chinn, the eldest of the servants, was given the Gibson family portraits and they have been handed down to the eldest survivor of this family of colored people ever since. Aunt Levy came into possession of them some years ago, and they are now to go to Edward Chinn, her brother, who works at the Capitol at Washington.

The deceased leaves a large family of sons and daughters, some of whom live here, besides numerous grandchildren. She was buried at Fleetwood now owned by the Messrs. Baer, Sunday, in the presence of a large gathering of her people.

HOLD JOINT MEETING

Washington Ladies Address Societies at Clifton

A joint meeting of the Clifton and Manassas Presbyterian Missionary Societies was held in the Clifton church Wednesday. The stormy weather lessened the attendance, but not the interest of those who braved the elements.

Mrs. Wallace Radcliffe, of Washington, was the principal speaker at the morning session, giving a most helpful and interesting address.

Lunch was served at noon, everyone enjoying the social hour that followed.

In the afternoon Miss McQuown, of Washington, spoke on life and customs of Japanese women, showing some beautiful costumes which she draped on Miss Ruth Richards to indicate how rank and age are distinguished in Japan by the addition or omission of certain articles or colors. The close of the address dealt with Presbyterian Mission work in Japan.

A conference on methods in missionary societies was conducted by Mrs. Radcliffe, which closed a most enjoyable and inspiring meeting.

Picnic of the Presbyterians

The local Presbyterian Sunday School and church picnic will be held this year, as usual, on July 4th, Thursday of next week. The place chosen is Mr. A. L. Emmen's "Compton Farm," which has been generously offered by the owner for the use of the picnickers.

Those members of the congregation, who have conveyances of any kind, are requested to meet at the church promptly at 9:30 to take passengers. All friends, old and young, who plan to go, will please arrange to be at the church on time, so that the start can be made at the appointed hour.

by Justice Thompson to await the action of the grand jury.

CARRIE KEYS IN COURT AGAIN

Is Held for Grand Jury—Mother Pays Fine—Father Released on Bail.

The second hearing of the case of Carrie Keys, charged with stealing articles of wearing apparel from enclosed porches at the rear of several homes in Manassas, took place Monday afternoon in the town hall, before Mayor Wagener.

The plea of guilty, which was at first announced, was changed to not guilty after she had been warned of the seriousness of the offense, and of her privilege to remain silent and not reply to questions, the answers to which might be used against her in a higher court. She confessed, however, in a statement made in the open court to one of the witnesses, that she had taken articles from one of the homes mentioned.

The decision of the court was, that she be held for the action of the grand jury at the next term of the circuit court, under a bond of five hundred dollars.

Warrants were read against Arthur Keys and his wife, father and mother of Carrie Keys, who were present in court, for receiving stolen property, and another warrant issued against Arthur Keys for doing a junk business without proper license. The latter case was continued in order to get the testimony of an important witness.

After hearing the cases against the father and mother of the girl, the Mayor said, that there was no doubt in his mind that the man and the woman knew that the goods were brought into the Keys' home and that they knew also that the articles were stolen. Arthur Keys was ordered to pay a fine of seventy-five dollars and serve a jail sentence of four months. Mrs. Keys was given a fine of fifty dollars with a jail sentence of three months.

The accused were represented by Attorney H. Therman Davis, who noted an appeal in each case.

A bond was required in the sum of three hundred dollars each. At this writing none of the parties in the above cases have furnished bond and they are all lodged in jail. The prosecution was represented by Commonwealth's Attorney Thos. H. Lion.

Thursday.—It has transpired that Mrs. Keys has been relieved of the jail sentence and the fine increased to seventy-five dollars, which has been paid and the woman set free.

The bond required for the appearance of Arthur Keys at the October term of the circuit court has been given by Mr. Geo. Bryant and the prisoner released.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

Greeting to the Citizens of Manassas:

Friday, June 28, 1918, is official designated National War Savings Day by the President of the United States and by the Governor of Virginia. All loyal citizens of this community will accordingly devote the afternoon of said day, after 2 o'clock, to subscribing for War Savings Stamps and otherwise promoting their sales in large amounts. Everyone should pledge himself to save and invest to the maximum of his ability.

W. C. WAGENER, Mayor.

COUNTY SOLONS HOLD SESSION

FIRE DESTROYS BARN ON MR. DORRELL'S FARM

Wheat Crop in Barn Insured, But Agricultural Equipment & Total Loss.

A fire caused by lightning, about 2 o'clock a. m. Saturday, completely destroyed the barn and its contents, together with a shed sixty or seventy feet long on the farm, about a half mile from town, belonging to Mr. Jas. R. Dorrell, of Manassas. The dwelling house is occupied by the manager, Mr. C. R. Polen and his family.

The fire was discovered by Mr. Polen shortly after it started, but so rapidly did the flames spread that practically nothing was saved.

Besides the buildings, which were new, the wheat crop, recently cut and stored in the barn, was destroyed, with all the agricultural implements, harness and equipment. A golden glow, with great streaks of light reaching almost overhead, was plainly visible in Manassas, and was seen by many who were awakened by the intense glare in their windows.

The loss is estimated at about $4,000; the amount of insurance will reach about $1,600.

THRESHING MACHINE OWNERS' MEETING

Organized and Discussed Methods of Saving Maximum Amount of Grain

(C. A. Montgomery, County Agent.) This year there will be special care taken by the thrashers to save all the wheat possible. In fact, the food administration is demanding it. Another meeting of the threshing machine owners of Prince William county was held Saturday, June 22, in Manassas. Important subjects were discussed as to the best methods of handling the present wheat crop to be able to decrease all wastes.

It is estimated that 3 1/4 per cent, or 585,000 bushels valued at $1,170,000 is wasted in Virginia alone each year, due to improper condition of the wheat when threshed, inefficient machines and the carelessness of the machine crew and the farmers, by not handling the wheat properly and cleaning up around the machines. Through the influence and cooperation of the Council of Defense, the Food Administration, the Threshermen and the Farmers we hope to save these 3 1/4 bushels of wheat in every 100 bushels to be threshed.

The members of the County Threshing Committee are Mess. H. W. Herring, thrasher and farmer, chairman; T. O. Latham, county food administrator, and C. A. Montgomery, county agricultural agent. This committee should be advised of any unnecessary wastes that might occur, whether it is the fault of the thrasher or the farmer. It should decide or settle and trouble between the thrasher and the farmer regarding the threshing of the grain.

It is important that the threshermen have the cooperation of the farmers in this matter of saving, that they do not insist upon having their wheat threshed until it is dry and in proper condition and that they help the threshing crew in every way possible to save all the grain.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Foote and their three children visited the home of Mr. Foote's parents on the 78th anniversary of his mother's birthday.

W. S. PLEDGE DAY CELEBRATIONS

Program for Exercises in Town and Throughout Prince William County.

The National War Savings Pledge Day Celebration, for Manassas, will take place in Conner's Hall, Friday, June 28, at 8:30 p. m.

Tentative Program

Judge J. B. P. Thornton, presiding.

The Star Spangled Banner. Invocation—Rev. T. D. D. Clark.

Chorus—"We'll Never Let Our Flag Fall."

Address—Rev. Stuart Gibson.

Chorus—"Keep the Home Fires Burning."

Reading—Mrs. Rosser. Address—Mr. O'Toole.

Mr. G. Raymond Ratchiffe, director of War Savings for Prince William County, has received the following telegram from Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip, appointed by Secretary McAdoo as chairman of the National War Savings Committee:

"As County Chairman of War Savings, you are expected to win success in June campaign just as we expect our boys in France to win victory. In this war period one hundred per cent Americanism in your county should mean nothing less than one hundred per cent pledged War Savers. I am confident you will succeed."

The following program has been arranged for the War Savings celebrations throughout the county. Local committees have been appointed to complete arrangements, and the speakers named below have been assigned.

Rev. A. S. Gibson and C. J. Meetze addressed a meeting at Haymarket and Rev. T. D. D. Clark spoke at Waterfall last night.

Other speakers will deliver addresses tonight at 8:30 o'clock as follows:

Brentsville.—C. J. Meetze.

Kopp.—Rev. Alford Kelley and J. M. Bell.

King's Cross Road.—Thos. H. Lion.

Greenwich.—H. Thornton Davies.

Forest Hill School.—Rev. Barnett Grimsley.

Bethel High School.—C. A. Sinclair.

Groveton.—Robt. A. Hutchison and Bryan Gordon.

Catharpin.—Rev. C. K. Millican.

Monday.—Nokesville. To be supplied.

ANGELUS PROCLAMATION

In harmony with the prevailing custom throughout the nation, I hereby request that all citizens of Manassas observe daily the Angelus—stopping at noon, wherever one is, and offering prayer to God, for a few minutes, that He will bless our country and our allies in the present war—those who fight over there and those who serve over here.

The ministers are requested to announce the adoption of the daily noon hour Angelus from their pulpits on Sunday next.

The town whistle will be blown daily, as a signal for the observance, giving one long sound for several seconds.

W. C. WAGENER, Mayor.

Manassas, Va., June 27, 1918.

NOTED EDUCATOR DIES SUDDENLY

Dr. Robert Fraser, One Time Principal of Fauquier Institute, Died by

Dr. Robert Fraser, LL. D., died Tuesday, June 18, at the home of his niece in Culpeper, and was buried in Warrenton, Thursday, the funeral services at the Baptist Church. He had been in failing health for some time, but his death was sudden and unexpected.

Dr. Fraser was one of the most scholarly men in this state, and had been prominent in southern educational circles for many years. He was one of the finest type and culture and rounded Christian character. Throughout his life he was prominent in Sunday-School and religious work and a leader in all good causes. There was nothing of the student recluse in his nature; his disposition was social and affectionate and his interests as wide as humanity.

Dr. Fraser was a native of Orange county and was eighty years old. He was educated at the University of Virginia. Soon after graduating he enlisted in the Confederate army and served through the war. He was three times wounded. He first came to Warrenton to assist Rev. H. H. Wyer at the Fauquier Institute and soon after bought the property and became principal of the school. He was appointed consul to Palermo, Sicily, and filled the position for two years, then returning here to resume charge of the school.

During his first residence in Warrenton he was married to Miss Florence Fraser, of this town, with whom he lived in mutual devotion and happiness for forty years. By a peculiar coincidence each died within a day of the anniversary of their marriage.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Terrell, of Orange county, a sister-in-law, Mrs. F. R. Boston, of Warrenton, and a number of nephews and nieces. Six nephews acted as pallbearers at his funeral. Relatives from a distance attending were Mr. and Mrs. Burtelle Woolfolk, Mrs. Ernest Baker, Messrs. George and William Fraser, Mrs. Burroughs, Mr. Lewis Burroughs and Mr. Robert Morton, all of Orange county; Mr. and Mrs. William Coons and Mrs. Robert Coons, of Culpeper; Mrs. Henningham Spilman, of Richmond, and Mr. Armistead Boston, of Washington.—Fauquier Democrat.

That affairs between military and civil police of Petersburg have about reached a climax was shown last week by the publication by the Petersburg Progress of letters alleged to involve a high officer of the provost guard of Camp Lee, in the drinking of whiskey with women of questionable character. Under a seven-column headline, also, the Progress prints a story, saying that District Attorney Richard H. Mann has branded the letters as a "frame-up" by the Petersburg police against the military police, and states that the charges contained therein are unqualifiedly false.

A stranger who drove up to the home of Mrs. Newton W. Myers at Winchester, Saturday, had a narrow escape from being reported as a German spy because of his actions, which aroused the suspicions of Mrs. Myers and her family. She finally discovered that the man was her brother, William Nichols, who had been living in the West many years, and who had long been given up for dead, as nothing had been heard from him for 35 years. A family reunion was held.

ALIEN PROPERTY SEIZED BY FEDERAL CUSTODIAN

Fake Corporations Attempt to "Safeguard" German Interests—Hidden Assets

Alien Property Custodian Palmer has rendered valuable service to the country not only by taking over German-owned property in New York city to the value of $3,500,000 but through the accompanying revelation as to the manner in which these "hidden assets" were to be preserved for the uses of the German cause after the war was over.

According to the evidence now in the hands of the federal investigators, arrangements to "safeguard" this capital were made some three weeks before the entrance of the United States into the war. Here is a part of the written advice of the attorney to one of the principal owners:

"The best way to safeguard your property . . . would be to transfer all your assets to a New York corporation which could be organized for this purpose, or a corporation already in existence could be used. We have corporations in this office which are not doing anything at this time, they having been created for certain purposes, and those purposes having been accomplished, are now available for other uses after amendments of the objects and increases of capital stock have taken place."

Details of the plan, as revealed by Mr. Palmer, consisted in selling the stock to one or more "American" companies, which were to pay for the properties in notes running for three years. As the war was slated to last just three years, the stock would revert to the original owners at the end of that period.

Some understanding of the value of revelations of this character and of the steps taken to break up the subterranean channels of German activity is gained when it is remembered that it was upon the "hidden assets" of every sort that Germany depended so greatly for her success in the war. The 40 years of preparation were not confined to German soil alone, but were extended to every country in the world. Beyond that, these outside agencies were looked to largely for ultimate recovery in the event that the carefully planned military onslaught against the forces of liberty failed. When peace was declared the hidden German capital would emerge from its temporary seclusion and be in a position to do business at the same old stand, strengthened rather than impaired as a result of having shared in the so-called "war prosperity" of the nations which had been so foully attacked. As a natural concomitant the whole host of hidden plotters would emerge at the same time, with their breathings for a restoration of kindly feeling toward the offending nation.

Nothing will serve more effectively to frustrate the entire scheme than the taking of all this foreign capital out of German control.—Washington Post.

The Virginia state library has just completed and issued in book form a register of the general assembly of Virginia, giving the membership of the house and senate for each session from 1776 to the present time. The compilation, which involved much research among the ancient manuscripts of the library, has been made by Assistant Librarian E. G. Swen and clerk of the house of delegates, John W. Williams. It throws an interesting side light upon the legislative activities of the historic families of the Old Dominion.

Give up your luxuries that the Kaiser may be made to give up his ambitions.

ANOTHER CAMOUFLAGE

A small booklet sent out from Governor Davis' headquarters during his campaign and which among other things contained an editorial from the Loudoun Mirror introducing Mr. Davis as a candidate for Governor, is being used in this section of the county as evidence that Colonel White was a supporter of Mr. Davis.

The editorial, which we notice has also been given publicity in other sections of the district, was published in the Mirror in February, 1916. It was copied and given first position on the editorial page of the Enterprise in our issue of February 11, 1916. At that time the Mirror was owned by Mr. Joel Chandler Harris, Colonel White not acquiring ownership of the paper until late in June, 1917, and, therefore, is not entitled to credit for any expressions made by the paper at that time. It isn't likely that Colonel White is going to come out squarely and say that he personally supported Mr. Davis, as explanations more confusing than his present position might be demanded from other directions, but let him point to some wondrous service which the Mirror rendered after June, 1917, to help roll up a 90 per cent vote for Mr. Davis in Loudoun.—Loudoun Enterprise.

FARMER WHITE

In an article over the signature of E. B. White, published in the Loudoun Mirror of June 25, the writer alludes to the Manassas Journal as a "Carlin Organ."

Col. White puts himself forward as a "farmer candidate!" Farmer candidate, piffle! What has he ever done for the good of the farmer?

Col. White puts himself forward as a "farmer candidate!" Farmer candidate, piffle! What has he ever done for the good of the farmer?

In attempting to create the impression that he supported farmer Westmoreland Davis for Governor, "farmer" White tells us that every employee in his bank, on his farm and in his lime quarry supported the present Governor.

Col. White's keynote in this campaign seems to be camouflage. He is a farmer to farmers, a banker to bankers and if the government had not taken the railroads under its wing, he would probably have been a railroader to railroader men.

Would we were an organ—a great big pipe organ, that we might "pipe down" all political camouflage, all pernicious activity—towards arraying class against class—that the notes from it might resound throughout the district in laudation of services faithfully rendered, as well as in warning to wolves in sheep's clothing, whose activity reests solely upon personal ambition.

SHOULD DEFINE POWERS

In another column of The Journal, published on the occasion of the death of J. C. Shellhorse, a Virginia prohibition inspector.

It is said, that recently the baggage of passengers, on some southbound trains from Washington, has been subjected to indiscriminate search, without specific warrant, by the Virginia prohibition inspectors, and much complaint has been made about the annoyance, not to say humiliation, attendant upon the exposure of the contents of the private baggage of innocent travelers who have paid for accommodations upon these trains.

It seems strange that the laws governing these cases cannot be drafted in such a manner that no room for doubt may exist, either in the minds of the officials or of the traveling public, as to the proper methods to be pursued by the officers in preventing infractions and in arresting violators of the criminal code.

Can it be possible that these fights and disturbances that are beginning to occur frequently on the trains, are the result of misunderstanding, which seems to be general, of the rights of an officer to disturb one's private belongings, upon a public conveyance, without specific warrant?

It would appear to a layman that the courts might so clearly define the powers of these agents that everyone may know just what to submit to at their hands; otherwise it may become more or less dangerous to engage transportation on southbound trains.

EVIDENCE IN THE CASE

"The Loudoun Times" is not running for office, it is running for the people, and as a people's paper it is going to simply give the people facts. It is useless for Col. White's paper, "The Mirror," the only paper for him in his home county, to undertake to divert the minds of the voters of Loudoun from the real issue between Col. White and the Hon. C. C. Carlin by creating camouflage issues between Col. White and newspapers.

"The Loudoun Times" deals only in facts, proofs to establish which it always has on hand and proofs it is always glad to show. That Col. White is Not A Friend to Labor is shown by his own words. Read them—he said them—we did not say them. We are not responsible for them in any way save as a people's paper to give the people facts on all matters in which they are interested. Read what Col. White says of Loudoun Labor, this is no rumor, this is what he said—and if it is false he said it.

"So far as the labor on the farm is concerned, we are paying now $1.75 for day hands, and they board themselves. Formerly we paid $1.25. So that there is an advance in the cost of the labor on the farm. I think we shall have to raise those wages for the labor. A great deal of labor is going out of the state, going to the factories. What they are paying in the factories I do not know, but the laborers say they are getting $8 and $4 a day. Whether or not they are telling the truth, I do not know. That is one of the serious problems we have got to solve, so far as the raising of agricultural products is concerned, and that is a very important problem. The labor is simply moving out. There were 300 negroes who went out of Richmond yesterday on a train going north."

"Mr. Young of North Dakota. They are paying more than that for farm labor in Iowa and South Dakota." "White.—They are getting more efficient labor than we get. Their labor is worth more. I have had on my place farmers from the West and Northwest, from Kansas and Nebraska, and I have had them remark as they went through the fields that they had never seen such a fine taining labor at the price at which we obtain it, but they said they believed their labor is as cheap as ours. The reason is that it is more efficient."

We have never heard of Mr. Carlin saying anything like this about labor.

That Col. White, despite the efforts of his friends and his paper, "The Mirror," to link his name with that of Governor Davis upon every occasion, did not support Governor Davis, the farmers' candidate, is shown not only by the following statement but by others. Read how Col. White supported Governor Davis.

"1475 Florida Avenue, N. W. Washington, D. C. June 6, 1918.

"Harry T. Harrison, Esq. Leesburg, Virginia.

"My dear Mr. Harrison:—

"In answer to your query as to the conversation between Col. E. B. White and myself in Senator Martin's office a week before the Gubernatorial Primary I will state that Mr. White said that he came to see me to get me to go to Loudoun and work for Mr. Taylor Ellyson, as he did not consider that Mr. Davis was the right man for Governor. I told him that I expected to go to the county and vote for Mr. Ellyson, but it was out of the question to work for him as the county was overwhelmingly for Mr. Davis.

"Very truly yours, G. W. POPKINS."

The people of Loudoun had an entirely different estimate of Governor Davis from what Col. White had, the people of Virginia also differed with Col. White.

Read what Col. White told a Congressional Committee about himself, how he was one of a favored few. We have not said anything like this about Col. White. We never would have known about it if he had not have told it. If there is anything false about it, why Col. White said it about himself. We never said it, if we had we would have been sued for slander.

"When I was in the grain business in St. Louis it was before the interstate commerce act was enacted into law, and special rates were being given over the railroads to a favored few. I happened to be one of those favored few. I was operating over the Big Four and the Chesapeake & Ohio railroads to Newport News from St. Louis, and over the Missouri, Kansas & Texas to Galveston. Those rates were not given to very many; they were given to a few. Those few had some very nice dinners at the club, but there was no combination. There was a general understanding about what ought to be made on those products, and bids were sent out accordingly. I am telling you that myself. I am just like most people, and there are a whole lot of people better than I am, but I have never seen many men who had the power to make a price on the thing they bought or the thing they sold who did not utilize that power to the full extent of their right—to the danger point."

Read what Col. White said of the farmer. We did not say it, Col. White said it—he is responsible for it—it is Col. White's own estimate of the farmer—it is not ours.

"I am president of a bank in a county that is used mostly for feeding cattle and nearly all of those men are small operators. We loan a great deal of money on this cattle and we charge 6 per cent interest on that money, and we take a mortgage on the cattle, and when the cattle are sold, the check must be brought to us, and the cattle note paid and the balance of the money goes to the credit of the feeder. If a farmer can make a living for his family and save two or three hundred dollars a year, and still be getting along pretty well in the world. Some of them do rather better than that—I will name that figure at three or four hundred dollars and if he can make that he thinks he is doing very nicely."

That Colonel White bolted the Democratic party and did not support for President its nominee, the Honorable William J. Bryan, is made plain by a signed statement of Col. White's published in "The Record," a newspaper formerly published in Leesburg and partly owned by Colonel White in 1904, wherein, after admitting that he did not support Mr. Bryan, Col. White declared that "The Record's" columns could be filled with the names of men of high standing in finance and trade who voted against him. This statement Col. White made when he well knew that Mr. Bryan was the farmers' candidate whom the Democratic party had nominated for President.

"The Loudoun Times" never made any of the above statements relative to Mr. Davis, Labor, The Farmer, Voting against Mr. Bryan, the Farmers' Friend, Combinations and Special Privileges to a Favored Few at the expense of the rest of the county, and what Col. White would do if He Had the Power. Mr. Carlin did not make them, nor have any such statements been made against him. Col. White made these statements against Gov. Davis, The Farmer, The Laborer and against Himself. If there is anything false in them, then he ought to sue himself, for he is responsible, he made them.—The Loudoun Times.

WHY NOT A PREACHER CANDIDATE?

The Mirror urges as its favorite reason why this district should nominate Colonel White to succeed Mr. Carlin that there are only six men in Congress classed as farmers, and this constituency being largely an agricultural one should give its vote to a farmer. It fails to tell us how many of the other 429 members of the House own large farms and operate them for profit just as Colonel White heads the largest banking institution of the county and directs high farming on the Selma estate.

According to the Mirror's figures there are only two preachers in the House of Representatives, and as it is an assured fact that the majority of the members of christian families, would it not be just as logical to insist that we nominate a minister to represent us—a man whose avowed mission is to stamp out sin? It is not unreasonable to suppose that a man's spiritual interests should take precedence over all others, and such a representative might be able to put to shame such staid offenders against society, for example, as Jacob and Esau of old—Esau, who sold his birthright to Jacob for a mess of pottage, and Jacob who, under camouflage, deceived his blind father, carried through the deal and reaped the benefits thereof.—Loudoun Enterprise.

They also serve who buy War Savings Stamps—if they save and buy to the utmost of their ability, and buy in time.

Don't wait to be urged to join the W. S. S. army. What if our men in the trenches waited to be urged?

COUNCIL OF DEFENSE

Requests Delegates of Board of Supervisors at Richmond.

The Virginia Council of Defense has called a conference at noon, July 1st, of the various Chambers of Commerce, Good Roads Associations, Automobile Associations, Boards of Supervisors, Councils of Defense, and Councils of cities, to secure cooperation and united action in a movement to get the assistance of the Federal Government in the improvement and maintenance of roads between Washington and Richmond, Richmond and Norfolk, and Richmond and Newport News. This Council is asking your body to appoint delegates to attend this meeting. The matter is a vital one to the interests which you represent, and of great consequence to the country at large.

As all of you are aware the present facilities of railway and water transportation are not only inadequate, but have almost broken down under the strain to which they have been subjected. It is, therefore, necessary that we should turn to the highways as a means of relief, certainly on all short hauls.

The roads between the points designated above are in no condition to carry heavy truck traffic. This has been clearly demonstrated by the recent movement of army trucks over them. I therefore wish to urge all of you to have representatives of your Board or Association present at the conference requested by the Virginia Council of Defense.

The meeting will be held in the Senate Chamber of the Capitol.

Arrived Safely Somewhere in France.

Mr. and Mrs. James Peters have just received word of the safe arrival of their son, Corporal George Peters, of the 367th Inf. over there.

They regret their inability to see him before his departure, but are extremely happy to have a son serving in so noble a cause as this, the world's greatest war. We are trusting to God to some day bring back to us our dear George. X.

Used Flag as Paint Apron—Is Fined $50.00.

For using the American flag as an apron, Gaston G. Williams, fifty-five years old, of Washington, was fined $50 with a sixty days' sentence in default of fine, in police court yesterday.

Williams was painting the front of his house, and was using the flag as an apron. Neighbors of Williams watched him wipe his hands on the flag and catch dripping paint in it. One of the neighbors cautioned him about the use of the flag, and he put it down. Later in the day he was arrested by Detective Guy Walsh, precinct detective of the Sixth precinct, after a warrant had been sworn out for him. Elizabeth Farmer, living at 607 New Jersey avenue, northwest, and Elizabeth Morgan, living at 611 New Jersey avenue, northwest, testified against him.

In court he said that he was unaware of the law.—Washington Times.

THE HIGH SCHOOL SESSION ENDED

The Annual Commencement Exercises... Attractive Program.

An unusually attractive commencement program closed the year for the Manassas High School last Friday night at Eastern College Auditorium.

The address of the evening on "Some Brighter Phases of the War," was made by Dr. W. M. Forrest of the University of Virginia.

The musical part of the program was unusually attractive including not only the famous Sextet from Donizetti's "Lucia," and Mendelssohn's exquisite "On the Wings of Music," but also an inspiring group of the patriotic songs of the allied nations.

The graduates for the year were Misses Mattie Athey and Marion Burks, of Manassas, and Miss Margaret Hammill, of Occoquan.

The oratorical, declamation and English prizes were presented by Rev. Alford Kelley and Mr. Richard Haydon.

The other features of commencement week were the oratorical contest at the High School on Wednesday afternoon, a trip to the battlefield Saturday morning by the fourth year class and the alumni banquet Saturday night at the Prince William Hotel.

JOHN CRAIG WRITES OF THE UNIVERSITY CAMP

Interesting Letter From Prince William Boy in Training Camp at Charlottesville.

Editor Journal: The name of this writing is about noon and dinner not being served until 1:30 o'clock on Sundays I will write a little before my arm gets sore, as we have just been inoculated in the right arm and vaccinated on the left arm.

I will do my first guard duty tonight, between the hours of 9 and 12 o'clock, midnight. Received The Journal, and was glad to get it. It came while I was at a ball game played between Company A and Company C, Company A winning by the score of 8 to 4.

Company A has so far beaten the other companies in everything where they had opposition. We have them bested at wrestling, ball playing, jumping, high kicking and even singing, having one man that has been on the stage and he is some leader in singing and rooting at ball games.

The inspector says we have the cleanest and neatest barracks in camp, and we not only intend to keep them that way but to make improvements at every opportunity. The day's routine here consists of rising at 5:30 a. m.; reveille comes at 5:40; assembly at 5:45; from 5:45 to 6:05 we have sitting up exercises or what may be better known as calisthenics, to get the kinks out and straighten us out for the day's work.

Then comes the sick call at 7; anyone feeling badly reports to the doctor. We then drill from 7:05 to 8 o'clock and the fellows are sure getting the step, too. At 8 comes assembly for class; we then fall in and march to the University, which is about one-half mile distant; as we march along all in the company that care to sing mostly sing such songs as Tipperary and Over There.

After class we march back and go to work in the shop until dinner, which comes at 12:45 and lasts until 1:15 p. m. Each instructor in shop takes 12 men to instruct. We have been given to understand that each man here has a chance for a commission and no one that qualifies will be rated lower than top Sergeant, their trade calling for that rating. At 1:20 we again have assembly and from 1:30 to 4:30 vocational training again. From 4:45 to 6 comes more drilling and at 6:05 supper begins and lasts until 7. From 7 until 8 we have a lecture; at 9:45 comes the call to quarters and at 10 o'clock comes tap. Every man has to be in bed and no loud talking allowed. We have had our final physical examination and also have been measured for uniforms, which we expect to get in a few days. We were all glad to have The Journal; the fellows said it looked better to them than the Washington Post.

PROFESSOR H. F. BUTTON ENTERTAINS MR. ROUND

Visitor at Long Island Home of Agricultural Director Writes to Manassas Journal.

Farmingdale, Long Island, New York, June 24, 1918.

Editor Journal:—Many of your readers will be glad to hear from Prof. H. F. Button who for five years, from 1908 to 1913, was director of the Manassas Agricultural High School. The writer of this article, with Mrs. Round, has been spending a week with Professor Button's family at this place, the location of the New York State School of Agriculture, where he has had charge of the "Department of Farm Crops and Soil Fertility" for three years. The school was established particularly to encourage the boys and girls of New York City to take hold of country life and to give them a practical knowledge as to how to maintain themselves on a farm.

Eastern Long Island is at present a very interesting locality to visit. Scattered here and there are large groups of fine residences of New Yorkers and the large intervening spaces look like extensive prairies of potatoes and sprinkled among these agricultural surroundings are army camps and aviation schools galore, where men in khaki swarm in hundreds of thousands. The air over our heads is seldom without the flying machine, which come and go singly and in groups. Sometimes we can see a dozen at a time and the buzzing noise which accompanies them is said to be annoying to those who continuously hear it. This seems to be a convenient place for the government to assemble their thousands of patriot soldiers before they take passage at the port of New York for Europe. Here they are fitted out in great numbers as they gather from the large cantonments in the South and West. The weather has been remarkably cold for June. In fact, it is said to be the coldest June known since the establishment of the weather bureau.

Concerning the interesting family of our host, Prof. Button, I will say that the oldest boy, Burr, is serving in the marines, along the New England coast; Gertrude is a graduate of Cornell and is serving at Emporia, Virginia as a county demonstrator; Dorothy is near the ending of her Cornell course; while Romaine and his mother remain as attractions in a household well known to our Manassas people as both ornamental and useful. None of them fail to retain a special interest in their former home. We have greatly enjoyed a few days rest with them.

ANNUAL RECITAL TEMPLE SCHOOL

Musical Institution Held Concert Exercises This Week.

A complete manifestation of the great interest of the people in this community in music and musical education was given by the throngs that attended the annual recitals and commencement exercises of the Temple School of Music held this week, beginning Monday and ending last night in Conner's Hall.

Some idea of the magnitude of the program may be had from the fact that about fifty different students gave piano solo performances.

The institution was founded by Miss Margaret Temple Hopkins some years ago and from a modest beginning has grown to its present ample proportions. That the teaching is thorough and the curriculum complete is demonstrated by the excellent performances of its pupils.

The recital by the pupils of the elementary department, given Monday evening, comprised forty numbers in its program and each performer displayed a skill rarely seen in little people.

The recital Tuesday evening by Miss Mary Kathleen Spies, this year's graduate from the school, was a treat to lovers of music. Miss Spies rendered selections from Beethoven, Chopin, Donizetti-Leschetzky and Schubert-Liszt, showing thorough familiarity with the technique of these masters, besides a brilliant interpretation of their works.

That she has a voice full of melody, well trained and under excellent control, was demonstrated in her vocal numbers which elicited prolonged applause from the audience.

Thirty-seven selections were on the program for Wednesday evening—given by the pupils of the elementary and intermediate departments, and if one were asked to select the best performers, taking the age of the student and the length of time in attendance at the school into consideration, it would be no easy matter to render correct judgment as all acquitted themselves with distinction.

The annual concert and commencement took place Thursday evening, the program taking into its scope a variety of musical entertainment.

The expression class under Mrs. Rosser had its representatives in the readings and folk dances of the little ones, which delighted those in attendance.

The Rev. Alford Kelley presented a diploma and the certificates as follows: Diploma to Miss Mary Kathleen Spies who completed the eight year musical course in four years. Miss Spies will continue her education in music in the Peabody Conservatory at Baltimore. Certificates from the elementary department to Winnie Wernich, Mary Lee Arrington, Margaret Cornwell, Macop Broadus, Lilla Ashby, Anna Waters, Susan Harrison, Lillian Hutchison, Sara Donohoe, Madeline McCoy, Elizabeth Burr, and Pauline Carter.

Promoted from kindergarten to first year elementary department: Lora Bell, Lucy Athey, Dorothy Lake, Rose Ratcliffe, Mildred Muddiman and Charles Hopkins.

The exercises closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and America by the audience.

Miss Hopkins and her able assistant, Miss Frances Spies, are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts, and thanked for the very enjoyable entertainment given to the public.

Cornwell Supply Co. MANASSAS Sell the Champion Cream Saver THE NEW DE LAVAL If you have ever owned a separator of any other make, there is one outstanding feature of the NEW De Laval that will appeal to you as much as even the mechanical superiority, and that is its simplicity. You won't find any complicated, troublesome parts in the NEW De Laval. It does not get out of order easily, even when it is misused; and if for any reason you ever should want to take it apart, the only tool you need is the combination wrench and screw-driver furnished with each machine. The NEW De Laval is the simplest cream separator made. A person who has never before touched a separator can, if necessary, unassemble a modern De Laval machine down to the last part within five minutes, and then put it together again within ten minutes. This is something that cannot be done outside a machine shop with any other separator made, and any separator user who has ever had to wrestle with the complicated mechanism found in other separators will appreciate what it means to him. Don't fail to stop in and see the NEW De Laval the next time you are in town. Even if you are not in the market for a separator right now, come in and examine a separator that is said by experts to embody the greatest improvements in cream separator construction in the last thirty years.

SALT OF THE EARTH

(By Walter S. Smoot.)

Has Germany sustained without a murmur the awful sacrifices demanded of her by four years of world war? Yes. Has she been the chief obstacle to the conclusion of a just and permanent peace? Yes. Will her people continue to fight thus doggedly until they are overwhelmingly defeated by the allied armies? Yes.

Why?

The German nation today is not a nation of reasoning human beings. It is a nation of fanatics. Philosophers, militarists, historians, scholars, and statesmen, created for the purpose by the militaristic masters of Germany, have been set about the inculcation of the belief that the Germans are a superior people, with a civilization that must be forced upon the rest of the world. The belief has been fostered that the German people compose a separate, original race, uncontaminated and just blooming forth into full vigor while other races, like the French and Anglo-Saxon, are sinking into the last stages of decadence.

And out of this stupendous propaganda has come a gigantic war machine. Its sense of duty to that mystical, almost divine something, which is the Prussian conception of The State, is automatic. It believes that it must make aggressive war, not only for the good of Germany, but also for the good of the human race. Forty years in the process of building, this machine was poised and ready in 1914, toasting "the day" when the conquering movement should begin.

"The whole history of the world is neither more nor less than a preparation for the time when it shall please God to allow the affairs of the universe to be in German hands." (Dagens Nyheter July 21, 1917.)

"The German race is called to bind the earth under its control, to exploit the natural resources and the physical power of man, to use the passive races in subordinate capacity for the development of its Kultur." (Ludwig Woltman, Politische Anthropologie, 1903.)

"Germany is now to become, mentally and morally the first nation in the world. The German nation leads in the domains of Kultur, science, intelligence, morality, art, and religion, in the entire domain of the inner life. All the deep things—courage, patriotism, faithfulness, moral purity, conscience, the sense of duty, activity on a moral basis, inward riches, intellect, industry, and so forth—no other nation possesses all these things in such high perfection as we do." (W. Lehmann, Vom deutschen Gott, 1915.)

Thus, line upon line, precept upon precept, stands the ugly record of German's race egotism and determination to fasten upon the free peoples of the world the shackles of her militaristic dominion. There is only one way to make the people who write and believe these things into a good member of the family of nations.

The Kaiser personally has taken a leading part in fomenting the exaggerated race egotism which has been characteristic of German thought of the past forty years. "Great ideas have become for us Germans a permanent possession while other races have lost them. The German nation is now the only nation left which is called upon to protect, cultivate, and promote these grand ideas." And again, at Bremen, March 22, 1906, he struck the keynote of the whole subject in the declaration: "We are the salt of the

HIGH SCHOOL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1917-18

(By Miss E. H. Osbourne)

Attendance.—Although the war conditions of the past year have so generally decreased the attendance of schools throughout the country, the attendance of the high school has been very good. While a number have been kept away, the total enrollment including several special business students, has amounted to 96. Of the families represented by this body of students about one-half are residents of Manassas town and district; the remaining half, of the other districts of Prince William, and of adjoining counties. In spite of this good enrollment, however, the school has suffered much loss by the withdrawal of older students to take government positions in Washington.

Agricultural Department.—The most marked change in the internal organization of the school has been the adoption of the new state agricultural course of study. Under the provision of the Smith-Hughes bill recently passed by Congress, the agricultural high schools now receive a part of their appropriation from the Federal Government. The new course calls for double the allotment of time given under the old, makes the agricultural course of study entirely optional, but requires each student taking it to enter upon a course of practical home project work. An appropriation of $360 has just been expended for agricultural equipment and the improvement of the school farm with the prospects of an additional sum in the fall for further equipment. It is quite probable also that a course in forge work will be included in the curriculum in addition to the present course in shop work. In further compliance with regulations of the Smith-Hughes bill, it has been definitely arranged that the teacher of agriculture shall devote his entire time to this subject, thereby materially increasing his efficiency in the work.

Moreover, he will be employed for the entire year, the summer months being spent principally in the supervision of boys' home projects and the collection of samples or construction of such equipment as may be necessary in the teaching of agriculture in all of its different branches. The supervision of these agricultural courses is now directly under the control of the Extension Division of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute which has also in charge the work of the county demonstration agents. Much may be expected, therefore, from this association of the county demonstration work with that of the schools, in the development of the agricultural interests of the state. A detailed account of the new course will be published later by Mr. Sanders, director of agriculture.

Home Economics.—A four-year course in domestic science, under the provisions of the Smith-Hughes bill has also been organized this session. This work will be obligatory only in the first year. As a part of the proposed change, a full laboratory course has been put in the second year which includes a detailed study of food values and food preparation, as well as much valuable work in personal hygiene and home nursing.

Normal Department.—The normal class has accomplished unusually successful work during the year. This class intended for the training of rural teachers, has necessarily been small from the beginning, since few students are willing or able to spend the time called for by its comparatively extensive requirements, in view of the very small salaries paid the rural teachers. Those who have taken this course, however, have furnished a large proportion of the successful teachers of the county.

Business Department.—The business department has actively endeavored to meet its part of the war obligations by throwing attention to all in need of preparation for taking government positions. The aggregate of salaries of this and last year's students now doing stenographic and typist work for the government is $10,160 a year.

The Library.—The Ruffner-Carnegie Library, under the auspices of the High School, has also had a very successful year. The library founded by a $1,000 gift from Mr. Andrew Carnegie, secured through the efforts of Mr. Geo. C. Round, has now $50 a year given jointly by the school board and the town council for its maintenance. A recent report of the chairman of the library committee, Mrs. C. R. C. Johnson, shows a total of 60 books added this session, and also that over 1,700 volumes have been taken out this year by pupils of the high and graded schools.

Athletics.—The athletic department of the school long conducted by Mr. Wheatley Johnson, who so generously gave his services to building up this work both in the Manassas High School and in the Eighth Congressional District, has had much of its usual success under the supervision of Mr. Sanders, Miss Grenell and Miss Belt, members of the school faculty. This department, so essentially a part of the school work, not so much for the physical training given the students, important as that may be, as for its great value in character training and development, is entirely supported by the efforts of students and teachers. Two years ago, the school athletic association was over $200 in debt. The last report of the treasurer shows this to have been nearly all cleared off, the result of $505.25 worth of though a debt of $35 is still due for the Liberty Bond purchased by the association last fall. The report also shows the receipts for the year to have been $123.80 as against $126 for expenditures. In connection with athletics, mention must be made of the High School military company, organized this year under the direction of Mr. Sanders. The company, now fully equipped with uniforms and drill guns, has been of much value in fostering a school, as well as a patriotic spirit.

Music and Expression.—As a result of the present special need for and value of patriotic music in the public life of the school more emphasis than usual has been placed upon the chorus classes with the result of some excellent work being obtained. The establishment of sight reading classes, and of the boys oratorical contests this year also give promise of valuable results along the very important line of public speaking.

School War Activities.—Another important feature of the school life has been the holding of weekly assemblies under the supervision of the school literary societies. These meetings have been of great value not only in the training they have given in public speaking and debating, but as a means of fostering a strong patriotic spirit among the students. Programs have been held in the interests of the Red Cross, liberty bond and thrift stamp sales, war libraries, and food and coal conservation. At two thrift stamp selling contests conducted by the literary societies during the farmers' institute and good roads conventions held at the high school in February, war saving and thrift stamps were sold by the students to the amount of $2,469.50.

During the "thrift week" proclaimed by the governor in May a similar contest was held with the result of $505.25 worth of stamps being sold. At the Red Cross drive also held in May, the four classes entered into a contest among themselves, the amount solicited by the students in this case being $449.55. In addition to these contests the high school students working members of the Boy and Girl Scout organizations have sold a large amount of liberty bonds and thrift stamps, the entire sales by the different organizations amounting to about $15,000. As a result also of the thrift week campaign, the literary societies organized themselves into war saving societies, with most of the members joining.

Social welfare work has also not been neglected, as the students by the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals, and in other ways have raised money for the state sanitarium for tuberculous patients, also for the fund for providing medical inspection in the county schools. Altogether, the session has been for the most part very successful and filled with valuable work.

PROHIBITION OFFICER LOSES CASE IN COURT

Conductor Royal Wins Out in Trial Brought About by "Dry" Detective.

Virginia prohibition forces were defeated yesterday in a decision of Police Judge William C. Gloth, of Alexandria county, which denied the "dry" inspectors the right of promiscuous search of passengers on trains leaving Washington for Virginia. The opinion of the Virginia magistrate, if upheld by superior courts, will prove a stumbling block for prohibition agents who have been searching passengers' possessions after trains crossed the Potomac into the Old Dominion.

The decision was rendered in the case of J. C. Shelhouse, prohibition inspector, who charged L. G. Royal, a conductor of the Southern railway, with having impeded and hindered him from searching the baggage of all passengers on a train leaving Washington. The arguments in the case were heard Friday before Judge Gloth at the Alexandria county courthouse.

Specific Warrants.

Mr. Royal based his defense on an interpretation of a Federal law, which provided for specific warrants. He expressed his willingness to permit the prohibition inspector to search any person suspected of smuggling liquor into Virginia. The conductor refused to allow a general search of all passengers on presentation of a warrant which did not specify any particular suspect.

The testimony offered at the hearing showed that Shelhouse did not carry out his threat to use force in search after the conductor had taken a resolute stand in defense of the rights of travelers in his charge.

Attorneys for Royal argued that the prohibition law in effect prior to June 21 required a specific warrant. Every suspect and all possessions were to be taken before the magistrate issuing the warrants, the counsel for the defense contended. After taking the case under advisement, Judge Gloth rendered his decision, which upheld the conductor. The verdict has aroused the "drys" of Alexandria county.

Broader Powers.

Judge Gloth's ruling pointed out that under the Mapps prohibition law, Virginia state inspectors could only search suspected individuals on presentation of specific search warrants. What controversy will issue from this decision depends upon the attitude of the superior courts, if appeal is taken by the state.

The amendment to the Mapps "dry" law which became effective June 21, endows the prohibition inspectors with broader powers in search. Judge Gloth refers to this point in his ruling in the Royal case. The new amendment sanctions promiscuous search of passengers in trains under suspicion, "dry" workers stated today.—Washington Times, Sunday.

THOSE WOMEN IN WHITE

Dear Wilhelm—Here's something we've got to watch close. Women all over the United States are going around dressed in white working every minute rolling bandages and collecting funds. Women who have always gone off to summer resorts this time of year are staying in the cities and swarming into hot crowded rooms to cut and sew and pack. They flock down to railway stations to cheer the soldiers on the trains and give them food and drink—no matter what time of night.

A whole lot of these women have escaped our submarines and appeared in every country you and I have tried to bring under our kultur and frightfulness.

They go to the very battlefields after the wounded and take care of the women and children from the regions we have devastated. I can't believe there is any real danger of their undoing all the miseries we can inflict if we wish a German peace on the world. But when they are making an amazing effort at it—

And that's why the American people are pouring out their dollars to back them. They know where the money goes and have quit believing what we started about waste and graft. In the United States it's got so any one would as soon admit that he had committed a crime as admit that he had not given these workers what he could to undo what we have done. You remember Caligula of Rome wished mankind had only one neck so he could chop it off at a single whack. I wish we could get all this tribe of women on a hospital ship big enough to haul them at one load, so that we could send them where we sent the women and children on the Lusitania.

See if you can think up something. And get busy as quick as you can, Wilhelm.

Yours for unmitigated kultur.
THE DEVIL.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

A Proclamation by the Governor of Virginia.

Whereas, In the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America on July 4, 1776, all men are declared equal in the right to full enjoyment of life, liberty and property and to the safety and happiness of self-government; and

Whereas, With the dawn of modern democracy the declaration of July 4, 1776, gave birth to the new republic wherein the oppressed peoples of all the world have been welcomed and have found personal safety and happiness in the prosecution of unlimited opportunity; and

Whereas, The splendid loyalty of our foreign born citizens and their sons and daughters to the cause of democracy and the ideals of America in entering the war against German autocracy and militarism has been manifested in so many different ways including the sacrifice of life itself on the field of battle; now

Therefore, I, Westmoreland Davis, Governor of Virginia, do call upon the people of Virginia to observe the one hundred and forty-second anniversary of our national independence on July 4, 1918, by appropriate celebrations in every community expressive of the new democracy, which, in this hour of national danger, has forged from a multi-race citizenry a nation whole and complete—one great people—Americans all!

Given under my hand, and under the Lesser Seal of the Commonwealth, at Richmond, this twenty-second day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, and in the one hundred and forty-second year of the Commonwealth.

Westmoreland Davis,
Governor.

FROM THE FEDERAL FOOD ADMINISTRATION FOR VIRGINIA

"Due to lack of shipping and the degeneration of labor in allied countries, this country must be the farm for the whole world."

HOOVER.

"... save the world."

EMERSON.

"Generals and soldiers win battles; peoples win wars."

TREFFZ.

"If the American farmer doesn't furnish the food to win the war, the German farmer will."

The 1918 wheat crop promises to be the largest in our history.

Virginia raised 18,000,000 bushels of wheat in 1917 and then wasted 3 1/2 per cent. of it by threshing it as soon as harvested, or before it was dry or in merchantable condition; by using threshing machines not in good repair or without ample power; by letting grain be scattered about the machine, or lost from wagons with bottoms not properly closed with wood or canvas; by careless handling and improper storing.

In 1918, when every grain is needed to help save a starving world from the German enemy, the threshermen of the State are joining the United States Food Administration, and pledging that "in order to be of service to their country in this time of need; particularly in its effort to avoid unnecessary waste of grain during harvest operations, they will operate their machines so as to reduce the wastage of grain."

Farmers went into harvest in many patriotic communities keeping their pledges made to have their binders in order and not to try to have their wheat threshed until it was seasoned and in proper condition; to store it with care for threshing, either housing it, stacking it, or if impossible to do either, then to give special attention to capping shocks to protect the grain from the rain.

Calculate the 3 1/2% wastage of the 1918 crop, and see what these patriotic farmers and threshermen will save if they can get the whole State with them.

County Threshing Committees have been formed in most of the wheat growing counties, and meetings of farmers and threshermen held, with the Committee and the Threshermen's assistants sent by the Grain Threshing Division of the United States Food Administration Grain Corporation to aid in the work. These meetings have resulted in a general "get-together" program of wheat conservation, and the exchange of much practical information.

"With respect to the coming year, we must in no way relax our efforts toward conservation. It is absolutely vital that we build up our reserves to the point of safety."

HOOVER.

As a result of the voluntary conservation of flour by the American people, 170,000,000 bushels of wheat from the 1917 crop will be shipped to the Allies. In normal times of peace our exportable surplus from such a crop would have been only 70,000,000 bushels. "Peoples win wars."

All those who buy poultry and eggs from others and ship them to market must be licensed, including country merchants purchasing them in exchange for goods. All licenses are issued by the License Division, U. S. Food Administration, Washington, D. C.

"A doubtful egg is a bad egg even if it is a good egg," but this year the Food Administration is going to make a big drive to put this doubtful egg out of business by better handling and candling. The State Dairy and Food Division in co-operation with the Food Administration. Packers of eggs should inform themselves as to proper methods of handling.

Figures obtained by the Food Administration show that during the hot weather period from June to October, 25 per cent. of all eggs are a total loss, and 40 per cent. lose much of their food value.

On the above basis of loss, each good egg, instead of costing 3 1/2 cents, as the housewife supposed when she bought the lot, really cost 4 1/2 cents, and that is 50 cents a dozen. And nobody was helped by the high price she paid. "Food wasted is food lost and no money can replace it."

"U-bests waste food; don't be a U-best."
