Mr. Luther E. Merchant, aged sixty-two, died suddenly on Wednesday at his home near Dumfries. Mr. Merchant was returning to his home from the post office and fell in the roadway, stricken with heart failure. Although he had suffered from heart trouble for some time, his death was unexpected and came as a shock to the community in which he had spent his life.

Funeral services are to be held this afternoon at two o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal Church at Dumfries, the pastor, Rev. Clarence Beard, officiating. Interment will be in the Episcopal cemetery beside the bodies of his two children, who preceded him to the grave.

COUNTY FARMERS WILL MEET HERE

New County Agent Writes His First Message to Farmers of Prince William.

(W. L. Browning, County Agent)
There will be held in the courthouse at Manassas at two o'clock on Friday afternoon, December 12, a county farmers' union meeting. There will be an interesting speaker at this meeting that every farmer will enjoy hearing, and all farmers are invited. Every farmer's union local is especially urged to be represented.

I wish to take this opportunity to advise the farmers of the county that I am here in the county as your County Agent for the coming year. I am not here to serve any special political or religious group of people, but all alike. It is impossible to get to every one's home to see you, so keep in mind that I am here to serve you in any way I can; will be glad to have you call on me any time I can help you, and if you do not think I can, just give me a trial.

The most important crop the farmers of Prince William county raise is boys and girls, that is what you parents are working so hard for, trying to lay something aside for them; now if you want to develop these boys and girls to the very fullest, not only give them a good education, but give them an interest in the farm operations of which they are a part. You can do this by encouraging them to join some of the boys' and girls' agricultural clubs such as we are having in the county. Corn clubs, pig clubs, calf clubs, chicken clubs, garden and canning clubs. You will be surprised at the renewed interest your children will take in their home, if you show them you are interested in them to the extent that they can have something of their own.

WANTED—Twelve or fifteen boys and girls between the ages of ten and eighteen, who are interested in the dairy business, to join the National Bank Puredale Dairy Club for 1919. This is one means of stimulating the dairy business by interesting the boys and girls in purebred calves. If interested in this club get in touch with the county agent for particulars.

CHICKEN BRINGS $75.

A Chester (Pa.) fancier paid $75 for a prize-winning White Rock chicken at a poultry show held at Frederick, Md., last week—the highest price ever paid for a fancy bred bird in the history of the association. The bird will be exhibited this winter at the Madison Square Garden show in New York. It was adjudged the finest specimen of the 1,000 birds on exhibition.

MINISTERS SPEAK AT TEMPERANCE MEETING

Mrs. George C. Round Presides Over Union Service Held Here Sunday Evening.

An interesting meeting of the local Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening in the form of a union service of the churches of the town. Mrs. George C. Round, president of the Manassas union, presided. After singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" the devotional exercises, including prayer and Scripture lesson, were conducted by the pastor, Rev. DeForest Wade.

The program of the evening was composed of musical numbers and brief addresses on present-day topics emphasized at this time in the work of the W. C. T. U. The subjects were assigned to the local ministers as follows: "The Established Fact of Prohibition," Rev. L. C. Messick; "Law Enforcement," Rev. William Stevens; "Child Welfare," Rev. A. Stuart Gibson; "Christian Morality," Rev. T. D. D. Clark; "China and World Prohibition," Mrs. Crandall, former missionary in the east; and "The Educational Side of Prohibition," Rev. DeForest Wade.

The attendance was large and the spirit of the meeting was warmly expressed when the congregation joined in singing a W. C. T. U. song, "Law Enforcement," sung to the tune of "Brighten the Corner."

The offering was taken for W. C. T. U. work and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Barnett Grimsley.

STATE TEACHERS ATTEND MEETING

Members of Manassas Faculty Take Part in Annual Educational Conference.

Every man and woman who attended the annual conference of teachers in Richmond is determined to exert every atom of personal influence possible to secure the comprehensive improvements in the state school system at the coming session of the general assembly that were recommended at the meeting. The gathering of educators developed wide vision and was one of the most epochal in the history of the association.

While the association did not accord unanimous approval to every single recommendation of the education commission for the reorganization of the public school system, the fundamental principle of change was adopted and members will work together for improvements that are believed to be most urgent.

Officers were elected as follows: Mallory K. Cannon, Norfolk, president; W. C. Blakey, Richmond, secretary; Joseph H. Saunders, Richmond, treasurer; J. H. Chiles, R. Frank Base, Miss Lottie Evans, Marritt Lear, W. W. Barnhart, F. H. Waddell, J. H. Boeten, Miss Lulu D. Metz (Manassas), E. L. Darrest, J. G. Johnson, H. L. Sulfridge, vice-presidents from the various districts.

Resolutions adopted were as follows: Endorsing the peace program of the American Red Cross, approving the financial program, selecting Charlottesville as the site for the teachers' tuberculosis cottage, supporting equal suffrage, establishment of scholarships in high schools for normal schools, approving general principles of the education commission, taking over the Virginia Journal of Education, favoring revision of the pension law, and endorsing the Smith-Tower bill for a federal education department.—News Dispatch.

Miss E. H. Osbourne, principal, and Miss Lulu B. Metz, department of domestic arts, were elected to membership in the newly formed council of executive women held in connection with the educational conference. The council, which is composed of women of various professions, held its organization meeting at a breakfast during the sessions of the educational conference, and will hold its next meeting when the conference meets next year. Miss Osbourne and Miss Metz were placed, respectively, on the committees on vocational guidance and organization.

LEAVES 306 DESCENDANTS

SCHOOL PATRONS TO HOLD RALLY

Citizens of Manassas District Invited to Hear Prominent Speakers Next Friday.

An educational rally will be held at the courthouse next Friday morning, December 12, at 10:00 o'clock, the morning having been turned over by the Farmers' Institute program committee for the purpose of considering the serious situation now facing the schools of Manassas district.

Prof. Charles G. Maphis, director the University of Virginia summer school, and Mr. S. P. Duke, president of the Harrisonburg state normal, will speak at the meeting. Mr. Maphis is chairman of the state educational commission created at the last session of the legislature for the purpose of making a study of the condition and needs of Virginia schools. This commission, consisting of four members of the state legislature, the state superintendent of education and three prominent educators, secured the services of Dr. Alexander Inglis, of Harvard University, as director of the survey. Dr. Inglis has associated with him some of the leading educational experts of the country and also the co-operation of the General Education Board.

The report of the commission is now ready to be submitted to the legislature, and if its fundamental and far-reaching recommendations are adopted, the school system of the state will be practically revolutionized and immensely increased in efficiency.

Mr. Maphis will give some account of the conditions revealed by this survey and explain the recommendations to be made to the legislature and the importance of the adoption of the major part of them at least, if the school system of Virginia is to be maintained under present industrial conditions in any way worthy of the people of the state.

Mr. Duke will speak on the high school situation in particular and the fatal consequences to the local school, if relief is not obtained, as its work will not only be seriously crippled in common with the elementary schools of the district, but its state appropriation may also be lost.

As the future welfare and efficiency of the local schools, as well indeed as the schools of the whole of Virginia, are in a large measure bound up with the adoption or rejection by the legislature of the measure to be proposed by this commission, it is of the utmost importance that the people of our community in common with the rest of the state understand clearly the proposed changes; and for this reason this meeting has been called, and two of the ablest educational speakers in Virginia secured.

The patrons and friends of the schools are earnestly invited therefore to attend the meeting and see for themselves the measures that must be taken to relieve the very serious situation that not only the Manassas schools but the schools of the whole state are facing.

RAT CAMPAIGN CONTINUES

County Agent Urges White-hearted Attack on Rats and Mice.

Miss Lillian V. Gilbert, County Home Demonstration Agent.
The kill-the-rat campaign which has been on since November 21 is extended until December 10.

Good reports are coming in from many of the schools. Boys and girls, is your school one of these?

Keep right on the job and let's get every rat and mouse in old Prince William. Don't let the other fellows get ahead of you. Keep at work and see who will win the prize.

Farmers, housewives and business men, make a special effort to rid your premises of rats and mice. Help us to make this campaign worth while. See that the tails of all the rats you kill are delivered at the school nearest you, for this will help some pupil to win a prize.

Everybody get busy and rid the county of rats and mice.

Virginia Farmers Stop Farming.

The number of farmers' sales advertised in the county papers of Virginia attest to the fact that many of the farmers of the state are ceasing to farm, and are selling their live stock and farming implements. The reasons given by the farmers for their decision are to the effect that they can make no money farming, and that the cost of production is too high.

OUR REAL STRENGTH

The farmers are the salt of the earth. Though they busily till the earth, they have clear-eyed vision and are the steady influence which holds government to its true course. This has been proven time and again when the ship of State seemed to be heading toward the breakers under unwise helmanship, and they came to the rescue. In the prevailing unrestful period they again stand out a bulwark against radical tendencies. The recent voting of grim determination by the Farmers' National Congress is significant as to the attitude of the great body of our population which constitutes our basic national strength. It means that the farmers have not become lost in the prevailing confusion and growing unrest. They are on the job of saving the country and all is well.—Richmond Times-Dispatch

A TRIBUTE TO MR. WILSON

In a recent speech on the floor of the House, Representative Henry D. Flood remarked that "It may have been if the President had flattered the vanity of some of the republican senators by putting them upon the peace commission, that treaty which the world desires would have been ratified before now." It is appalling to think that in this republic of, by and for the people, wounded vanity, plus personal hatred, for the time at least, has deprived the world of the fruits of the war for which 50,000 American boys sacrificed their lives and for which tens of thousands of other American boys were maimed for the rest of their days, and yet what the Virginia representative says undoubtedly is true, says the Times-Dispatch, and Lodge and his fellow obstructionists know that it is true.

In his closing address Mr. Flood paid the following tribute to the President: He is a great President, self-poised and courageous, honest and able, brilliant and patriotic in guarding every interest of America and of humanity; he has won his way into the hearts of the people, not only of this country, but of the entire world, and today everywhere he is looked upon as the foremost man and the wisest statesman of his day and generation.

HOW TO KEEP A SERVANT

A Pennsylvania family has successfully solved the servant problem in a rather unique way. "We cannot afford eggs for all the family," confessed the wife and mother of the household, "but by providing them for our maid and doing without them for ourselves we have managed to keep her." "And," the dear woman concluded, "we are perfectly satisfied."

Mrs. Mary Moore Davis has been appointed by the extension department of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State Agricultural College at Blacksburg to succeed Miss Ella G. Agnew as assistant director of home demonstration work in Virginia. Mrs. Davis has been associated with Miss Agnew for some time.

"THE MAN WHO QUILTS"

The man who quits has a brain and hand as good as the next, but lacks the sand that would make him stick, with a courage stout, to whatever he tackles, and fight it out.

He starts with a rush and a solemn vow that he'll soon be showing the other how; then something new strikes his roving eye, and his task is left for the bye-and-bye.

It's up to each man what becomes of him; he must find in himself the grit and the vim that brings success; he can get the skill, if he brings to the task a steadfast will.

No man is beaten till he give in; hard luck can't stand for a cheerful grin; the man who fails needs a better excuse than the quitter's whining, "What's the use?"

For the man who quits lets his chances slip, just because he's too lazy to keep his grip.

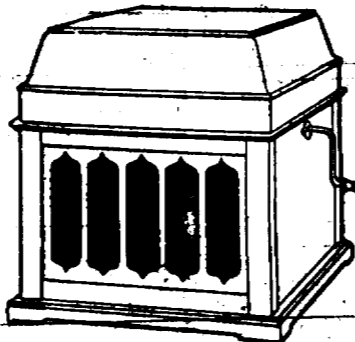

The man who sticks goes ahead with a shout, while the man who quits joins the down and out.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Garden farmer will find the Ford Model T One Ton Truck an especially valuable factor in his business because of the flexibility as well as the reliability of the service given by this splendid truck. The worm-drive of manganese bronze carries all the power of the motor to driving the Truck, and there are combined in larger and heavier form all the elements which have made the Ford Model T Car the greatest motor car in the world in point of service. The Ford Truck with its worm-drive is most economical in operation and maintenance. There is very little, if anything, to get out of order at any time; there is the simplicity in control; there is the convenience in the flexibility of the car, it will turn in a circle of forty-eight feet; it accommodates itself to narrow alleys, and it "stands the gaff" of hard work day after day, and month after month, to the great satisfaction of the owner. There is hardly a line of business activity where the Ford One Ton Truck is not really a necessity. Come in and talk it over.

SUPT. McDONALD MAKES ADDRESS

Speaks to Students at High School Assembly on Successful Business Career.

The first of a series of talks by business and professional people on various phases of vocational education was given by Supt. Charles R. McDonald Wednesday morning at the high school assembly. Supt. McDonald's subject was "The Business Career."

"Business is found among all classes of men," said Mr. McDonald, "hence is necessary in all walks of life." He emphasized at this point the opportunity of the high school to be a powerful factor in starting the preparation for business. "Success in business depends upon education in addition to business ability," he continued; "and business careers are frequently started when a boy or girl is still very young and without funds," illustrating this fact by the humble beginning of Andrew Carnegie's fortune of $500,000,000.

Education is absolutely valueless unless we learn to apply the knowledge learned, declared the speaker. The importance of keeping abreast of the times and being prepared for the great changes that are taking place in the world cannot be over-estimated.

Interesting figures, according to past statistics showing the business success or failure of every 100 people, were given as follows:

- 54 will be penniless.
- 36 will be dead.
- 5 will be earning money by hard labor.
- 4 will be small property owners.
- 1 will be independently well off.

The above statistics, due to some defect in our training, might have been better had we looked ahead to business careers, or at least given some attention to business principles. The high school can to a very great extent correct this defect.

"Character in business, as in all other walks of life, is necessary to success," Mr. McDonald continued. "This should be followed up with training, ability, efficiency, clear judgment, ambition, punctuality, courtesy and trustworthiness. J. P. Morgan, one of the world's greatest financiers, often helped boys by lending them money, because he knew they possessed these traits. Character is the foundation of all success."

"There are mere $1,000,000 jobs in the United States today," he declared, "than there are men to fill them."

Mr. McDonald is eminently fitted to give valuable advice to any boy or girl looking forward to a business career, since he himself has had a most extended and successful one, having been for years general manager of several coal mines near Pittsburgh, Pa., and also in southwest Virginia, and in this capacity having hundreds of men working under him. He is now president of the National Bank of Manassas.

Miss Osbourn, the high school principal, gave a brief address on "The Importance of Vocational Guidance" and other numbers of the program were readings by Misses Elizabeth Govington and Annie Creel and songs by the newly organized glee club and by the school.

IN REMEMBRANCE
Under whatever circumstances our loved ones may leave us in death to mourn our loss, we always turn our minds back to them with pleasure; though that pleasure may be marred by a pang of sorrow at the thought of what they suffered. Suffering makes the whole world akin and draws us to the home of suffering and of sorrow. One year ago the 5th of this month, Norman D. Bettis, son of James I. and Mary Bettis, of Nokesville, was taken from this world in the bloom of young manhood, by that terrible scourge, tuberculosis. His place is vacant in the home circle, but he still occupies his place in the hearts of those who loved him most. May he rest in peace.

PRIZE-WINNING ESSAY ON WAR

Interesting Sketch of Causes That Led to Memorable Conflict of 1812.

[This essay, entitled "Cause and Necessity for War of 1812," was awarded a prize offered by the Virginia Society of the United States Daughters of 1812.]

James Madison, upon his succession to the presidency of the United States in 1809, found the administration of affairs and adjustment of difficult questions then disturbing the foreign relations of the United States with England and France, who were in the throes of war, a weighty problem.

The commerce of the United States was being jeopardized by the British "Orders in Council," which declared all vessels carrying West Indian produce from our shores to Europe legal prizes, a blow to cripple France falling heavily upon the interests of the United States. Further "Orders in Council" were passed, declaring several European ports under control of the French in a state of blockade and authorizing a seizure of United States vessels and cargoes bound for other ports. Napoleon retaliated by what is known as his "Berlin Decree," forbidding the introduction of any English goods into any port of Europe, even by the vessels of neutral powers, closing the harbors of France against any vessel touching at any English port. Great Britain issued further "Orders in Council," declaring the whole coast of Europe in a state of blockade, to be further met by Napoleon's famous "Milan Decree," confiscating not only the vessels and cargoes violating the "Berlin Decree" but also all such as should submit to being searched by the English.

The United States, the chief sufferer by these extreme measures on both sides, expostulated in vain with both England and France, by insisting upon the indefeasible rights of neutrals. "Join me in bringing England to reason," was the substance of the reply of Napoleon. "Join me in putting down the disturbers of the world," was the substance of England's reply, leaving the United States to choose which she would take for an enemy. To fight both was too much of an undertaking and continued neutrality out of the question, involving all the disadvantages, without any of the advantages of open warfare.

In June, 1809, the scale in the popular mind against England was turned. The British man-of-war "Leopard" fired into the United States frigate "Chesapeake" near our coast, without provocation, wounding and killing eighteen of her men. The pretence for the outrage was the capture of certain British seamen alleged to be aboard the "Chesapeake." All the states of the union passed resolutions to support the administration in any measure of redress. The cry, "free trade and sailors' rights," rang throughout the country. British ships of war were forbidden to enter the waters of the United States and satisfaction was demanded of the British government, which promptly disavowed the act of the officer in command of the "Leopard" and disclaimed the right of search to be extended to ships of war, allying for a time excitement, but no redress could be obtained from France or England for the violation of the neutral rights of the United States.

Congress, by way of retaliation as well as an initial step toward war with England, passed the celebrated "Embargo Act," prohibiting all United States trading vessels from leaving their ports. This measure operated more to the disadvantage of England than France and was injurious to the interests of the United States also, causing murmuring and distress, especially in the New England states, where much of the shipping was owned.

The "Embargo Act" in order to preserve peace and harmony between the states was abandoned and the "Non-Intercourse Act" was passed, which left the United States free to trade with all countries except England and France, this prohibition to cease as to either of them upon the repeal of their "Orders in Council" and "Decrees" respectively, affecting the commerce of the United States. England was outraged and disavowed any intention of annulling her "Orders in Council." Mr. Madison ceased to hold communication with England's representative and demanded his recall. Congress had convened, the prevailing sentiment was for war, but the President and cabinet were for adjusting by peaceable negotiations if possible. An extension, with a modification of the "Non-Intercourse Act," was adopted.

In 1810 the United States minister at Paris was informed that the Berlin and Milan decrees of Napoleon were revoked. The British government was urged by the President to revoke her

"Orders in Council" upon the ground that the French decrees upon which they were based had been repealed. The British government claimed insufficient evidence of their repeal, and also that the proclamation on the "Non-Intercourse Act" was partial to France and unjust to England, and continued to persist in the enforcement of the orders, even to the stationing of ships of war before the principal harbors of the United States.

This course greatly increased the war feeling against England, which was inflamed by an event similar to the attack of the "Leopard" four years previous. The United States frigate "President" met off the coast of Virginia a vessel which she hailed. The salutation was returned by a shot which hit the main mast of the ship "President." This mode of response was accepted by a broadside from the "President's" deck kept up in quick succession, disabling her adversary, the "Little Belt," a British sloop of war, putting her out of commission with the loss of thirty-two men in killed and wounded.

This gratifying incident gave new life to the cry, "free trade and sailors' rights," Indian outbreaks in the northwest, which were attributed to England, increased the feeling against her resulting in Congress providing for a large increase in both land and naval forces. The President also authorized the acceptance of fifty thousand volunteers. It, too, was learned that one John Henry, a British subject, had been employed by his government as a secret agent to produce dissatisfaction in the New England states that might result in their political connection with Great Britain and a civil war between the states with all the guilt of treason attached. England's ultimatum, upon all the questions communicated to Congress by President Madison, as to whether the wrongs, justly complained of, should continue to be borne, or whether the United States should resort to war.

The subject was referred to the committee on Foreign Relations, of which John C. Calhoun was chairman. They reported in favor of a declaration of war. Congress passed favorably upon it and the President approved it on the eighteenth of June, 1812. England made overtures for a settlement by negotiations, stipulating for a cessation of hostilities by revocation of the "Orders in Council." Mr. Monroe, Secretary of State, replied that the President was willing to agree to an armistice, provided terms by which the impressment of seamen from vessels of the United States should be suspended and discontinued, as experience had proven there could be no lasting peace until the question was definitely and finally settled.

Great Britain refused to relinquish the right of search and impressment, hence the "Cause and Necessity for the War of 1812—Free Trade and Sailors' Rights."

HOW TO HAVE A FINE FARM HOME

Modern Heating, Lighting Systems and Power Machinery Make Farm Life Ideal.

"One of these days!"

A farmer I know says that—one of these days—he's going to make his farm home over, into a modern home.

"One of these days" he's going to put into use all the modern equipment that will be needed to make his farm power machinery, with his home fitted with modern lighting and with all the appointments that go to make for comfort and contentment in any home.

"One of these days!" Why not now? The farm home nowadays can easily be made as modern as a city home, no difference where that farm home lies.

Modern heating is easily accomplished, for the hot air or hot water systems offered today are available for any locality. For the other conveniences of light, power and running water, electricity offers the open sesame to these modern features, and electricity can be had anywhere today, regardless of location.

This is because today the farmer can buy his own small electric plant and, what's more, he can run it himself, without any expert knowledge or assistance.

The farm electric plant has finally been developed to the point where it is just as dependable as any other piece of standard farm equipment.

This doesn't mean that the farmer can pick up just any combination of engine, generator and switchboard which some enterprising agent or manufacturer may tell him is a lighting plant. But there are trustworthy and dependable farm electric plants and there is no necessity for the farmer's buying any other kind. When he has secured the kind that has been tried and that is operating successfully by the thousand, he can be assured of electric lights for his house and barn, electric power for all the small machines like washing machines, churn, cream separator, fanning mill, grindstone, vacuum sweeper, heat for the electric iron—in short, complete electric service that his family should be enjoying now, instead of "One of these days."

WATCHMAN FINDS LOST $5

(Communicated) If every one was as honest as Mr. George Bryant, watchman for the Southern Railway at the Main street crossing, no one who ever lost any property would worry about its recovery, especially if they advertised for it. But in this case it was unnecessary to advertise. Miss Alberta Hopkins, who makes her home with her niece, Mrs. H. M. Jackson, lost a $5 bill and missing it on her arrival at home, she started back up the street in quest of anyone who may have found it or heard of its being found. She did not, however, have to go far for mentioning her loss to Mr. Bryant, the first one she crossed, he surprised her by handing her the bill, and the genuine pleasure expressed by him at being able to restore her loss, without a cent of reward, will not soon be forgotten by Miss Hopkins, and should not by all others who give real honesty its true reward.

Mr. and Mrs. William Garrett and Mrs. Susanna Bell, who recently sold their farm, "Bell Haven," have moved into their new home in Haymarket. Over one hundred men of the community were entertained at a dinner at the Parish Hall on Tuesday evening of last week. Rev. T. M. Browne presided, and the speakers were Rev. Robert A. Goodwin, of Aldie; Rev. W. E. Roach, of Marshall; Rev. Homer Welch, of Gainesville, and Mr. G. G. Tyler, of Haymarket. The dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of the parish. Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Moffett have returned from their wedding trip. Mrs. Moffett, formerly Miss Eleanor Lewis, of Manassas, has made many friends here, as one of the teachers of Haymarket school. Mrs. William Alrich and Miss Sue Alrich have closed their home here and gone to Baltimore for the winter. Miss Mary Louise Rector returned Sunday from a week's stay in Richmond and Washington. Thanksgiving day was observed here with the usual service at St. Paul's Church and a service at the Baptist Church conducted by the pastor, Rev. Edward Tabor. The stores were closed and the post office observed holiday hours. Miss Mary Parker Heineken and Mrs. Walter Lann entertained at dinner at MIH Park on Thanksgiving day in honor of their nephew, Mr. Gustav Peters, celebrating his safe return from France. The table, simply and appropriately decorated, and lighted with many candles, gave a real Thanksgiving air. After dinner dancing was enjoyed and the Virginia reel concluded an evening most enjoyably spent by all. The invited guests were Col. and Mrs. Hall, Miss Henrietta Hall and Miss Bell Price, all of Washington; Capt. Charles C. Buckner, Aviation Corps, Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. Thos. H. Lion, of Manassas; Miss Josephine Peters, Mr. Gustav Peters, Mr. Simpson Buckley, Mrs. W. M. C. Dodge, Miss Minnie Swart and Mr. W. L. Heuser. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer I. Carruthers and Master Jordan Carruthers, of Charlottesville, visited Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Jordan last week.
