LURAY MAN HAS OLD BIBLE IN POSSESSION

Luray, Va., Feb. 2.—N. H. Prince, of Luray, has perhaps the oldest Bible that has ever been seen in this part of the country. The Bible is printed in Dutch and there are few now living here who are able to translate it.

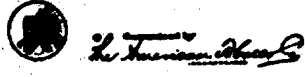

According to an inscription on the fly-leaf, it is the "Original Translation of Martin Luther, 1525." Though dimmed by age, the book is still in a fine shape of preservation. The Bible originally was the property of Daniel Siuss, of Frederick county, Va., whose widow was a native of Page county. Mr. Prince has refused fabulous offers for the Bible.—Virginia Star.

LUCKY STRIKE CIGARETTE

LEGISLATIVE LINES ARE FIXED IN OLD VIRGINIA

Redistrict Committee Wipes Out Election Boundaries of a Centuries Standing.

Many time honored boundaries of legislative districts in Virginia will be wiped out when the recommendations of the joint redistricting committee, appointed at the last session of the general assembly, are adopted by the legislature when it convenes next January.

By its report completed Wednesday night two delegates will be added to Richmond's representation. The capital city will have three senators and seven delegates, while Norfolk, the next largest city in the Old Dominion, will have two senators and five delegates.

Alexandria city will have one, Fredericksburg city and Spottsylvania county together will have one, Charlottesville and the lower two-thirds of Albemarle county will have one, while the upper part of Albemarle and the whole of Greene county will have a delegate. Arlington, Fairfax, Fauquier and Loudoun counties will each have one. Culpeper and Orange counties will have a delegate between them, while Stafford and Prince William will share a seat in the house of delegates.

Under the Virginia laws delegates are elected at large from each legislative district.

The committee will hold a public hearing on the plan adopted on March 10 in Richmond. A certain amount of dissatisfaction is expected to crop out on account of the wiping out of boundaries which have stood for nearly a century.

Several districts are enlarged in territory, and in the Ninth district, where the republicans decline to be dislodged, there have been many concessions. The plan agreed on today was presented by Delegate Dobson, of Norfolk.

The members of the committee present were Delegates John W. Stephenson, of Bath, chairman; Senators Andrews, of Roanoke; Cannon, of Richmond; Holt, of Newport News, and Garrett, of Pittsylvania; Delegates Dodson, of Norfolk; Anderson, of Smyth, and Oslin, of Lunenburg.

Announcement was made that Senator E. Lee Trinkle had resigned from the committee in order to devote his time entirely to his candidacy for governor. Senator Andrews, of Roanoke, was named by Chairman Stephenson to succeed Senator Trinkle. Before the meeting a committee from the Richmond League of Women Voters called on the committee in the Senate chamber.—Washington Times.

Our Lower Prices Proving Popular

¶ Our new "cash only" plan, as adopted February 1, makes it possible for us to sell at a lower margin of profit than ever before. Our selling expenses are now at a minimum—and every customer is the gainer in money saved.

¶ Those who have visited us this week have seen many concrete examples of the savings effected under the new plan. We are receiving congratulations on finding a way to bring down prices on standard, high quality goods, despite the fact that declines in our lines are few and but slight.

¶ For February we are making special reductions on many articles throughout the store. These are marked by big red price tags. Every red price tag challenges your close attention. The values so designated are exceptional and are unusual enough to warrant the interest of all Prince William.

¶ Seeing is believing. We want you to see and judge for yourself what our new "cash only" plan means to you—in dollars and cents. May we not anticipate a visit from you during this short month, regardless of whether you need anything or not?

Electrify Your Farm Now!
Install the Silent Alamo

THINK of the advantages of electric light and power. Why wait? Why measure the small cost with the tremendous advantages of electricity produced by the Silent Alamo Farm Lighting Plant.

Picture your home brilliantly lighted in every room and what comfort to read or work by such light. How easy to keep the boys at home. How much more sociable the gatherings. To say nothing of the labor and muck that is saved when you discard the old and always dangerous coal-oil lamps.

Then picture the advantages of electric power—the labor saving in your home. See the running water in the kitchen. See the churn—the separator—the sewing machine—the washing machine—the iron—the vacuum cleaner—operated by electricity—produced by the ever ready and never failing

A CHEESE FACTORY

The attention of our readers is called to the report of the county agent, Mr. W. L. Browning, in another column of this paper in which Mr. Browning announces a meeting to be held in Manassas tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of devising plans for the establishment of a cheese factory either here or in this vicinity.

The many advantages to the farmer and to others that may be derived from such a plant here are so obvious that comment would appear unnecessary, and it is earnestly hoped that those who have the welfare of Manassas and the community at heart will give their undivided support to a measure of such vital importance.

It will be found in this case as in all others of similar nature, that there will be one type of citizen who will stand in the way of honest achievement and that type should be named "It Can't Be Done." Beware of him! When success attended the laying of the Atlantic Cable after the first effort had been fruitless, old "It Can't Be Done" was compelled to seek another job. See to it that he has no weight in tomorrow's meeting; lend a hearty hand of co-operation to Mr. Browning in his endeavor, and let's have a cheese factory.

CONTROL OF BUSINESS

There is much food for thought in the statement by Senator Davis Elkins, of West Virginia, attacking paternalism and government interference in private business. It is a subject which has drawn forth pointed comments from the best brains of the country, and it may now be accepted as a fact that business men generally are opposed to the government interfering any more than is necessary with business affairs.

That there must be regulatory laws in the public interest is conceded, as, for instance, the Sherman antitrust law. Without that statute it would have been impossible for the government to put a stop to the orgy of combination and price-fixing which held full sway a few years ago until the Northern Securities decision brought it to a close. There are other regulatory acts which serve to prevent big business from imposing upon the public.

But the tendency is now to go to the other extreme and authorize the government to practically take over certain lines of business, and it is against this tendency that the West Virginia senator inveighs when he says:

One of the undoubted causes for the voters of the country turning en masse to the republican party last November, was that they were heartily sick and tired of the intrusion of the government into private business. The government had tried its hand along these lines with disastrous failure.

During the war circumstances compelled the government to intrude into private business, and representatives and senators readily voted for the operation and control of the railroads, for the Lever act, for the establishment of the food and fuel administrations and for similar acts as war measures. Then it was a question of necessity. The government had to have transportation and supplies to the fullest measure. There was no question of economic policy involved.

But the congressmen who supported these bills as war measures will by no means give their support to permanent laws of the same character. The war emergency has passed and there no longer exists any reason for the government intrusion in private business which was justified two years ago. Furthermore, the government's incursions into the realms of business have not been marked by conspicuous success.

"From virtual ownership of railroads to running war workers' hotels in Washington," says Senator Elkins, "the result was the same—dislocation of business, stupendous waste and economic chaos."

There are now pending before congress a number of measures the purpose of which is to extend over certain lines of business the regulatory authority of the government to an extent which practically means control. These bills are conceived of a desire to protect the public interest. They should be drawn with extreme care, and their full consequences should be well understood. Congress should not make the cure worse than the disease.

The interests of the American people must be conserved, but in doing this all possible freedom should be left to private business when it does not encroach upon the rights of the public.—Washington Post.

LAUGH AND LIVE

John and Witty Sayings From The Livest Publications of the Country

Hard Boiled.

The sweet young thing was being shown through the locomotive works.

"What is that thing?" She asked, pointing with her dainty parasol.

"That," answered the guide, "is an engine boiler."

She was an up-to-date young lady, and at once became interested.

"And why do they boil engines?" she inquired, again.

"To make the engine tender," politely replied the resourceful guide.

A Practical Answer.

"If I cut a beefsteak in two," asked the teacher, "and then cut the halves in two, what do I get?"

"Quarters," returned the boy.

"Good. And then again?"

"Eighths."

"Correct. Again?"

"Sixteenths."

"Exactly. And what then?"

"Thirty-seconds."

"And once more?"

"Hamburger," cried the boy, impatiently.

On His Dignity.

A small boy, who was sitting next to a very haughty woman in a crowded car, kept sniffing in a most annoying way, until the woman could stand it no longer.

"Boy, have you got a handkerchief?" she demanded.

The small boy looked at her for a few seconds and then, in a dignified tone, came the answer: "Yes, I've, but I don't lend it to strangers."

Not to be Beaten.

An Alabama darkey, who prided himself on being able to play any tune on the banjo after he had heard it once, perched himself on the side of a hill one Sunday morning and began to pick the strings in a workmanlike manner.

It chanced that the minister came along. Going up to Moses, he demanded harshly: "Moses, do you know the Ten Commandments?"

Moses scratched his chin for a moment, and then, in an equally harsh voice, said: "Parson, jest yo' whistle the first three or four bars, and I'll have a try at it."

Poor English.

A woman took her little son, Willie, to see the animals at a circus not long ago. Willie had looked in silent awe at the monkeys, giraffe, kangaroo, and the various other animals, when they came to the elephant, Willie could hold in no longer:

"Now, ain't he a hell of a big 'um, Maw?"

His mother was horribly shocked, and immediately turned him over her knee, gave him a couple of cracks with her hand and said:

"How many times do I have to tell you never to say ain't?"

Profiteering Approved.

"I'm sorry, young man," said the druggist, as he eyed the small boy over the counter, "but I can only give you half as much castor oil for a dime as I used to."

The boy blithely handed him the coin. "I'm not kicking," he remarked. "The stuff's for me."—The Watchman-Examiner (New York).

Too Late.

"I don't like these photos at all," he said, "I look like an ape." The photographer favored him with a glance of lofty disdain.

"You should have thought of that before you had them taken," was his reply as he turned back to work.—American News Trade Journal.

Old Habit.

"I wonder if men have always complained about the food their wives served them," said Mrs. Peasley.

"I guess so," sighed Mrs. Bumpus. "You remember it started with Adam."—The Watchman-Examiner (New York).

One Difficulty.

"I thought there was a movement in your town for all the churches to merge into one."

"There is."

"What's the delay?"

"They can't decide which one."—Life.

Extinct Species.

"No workers are called servants today," says Mr. Justice Darling. "And I am informed by those who have secured specimens that very few servants could by any stretch of the imagination be called workers."—Lady's Pictorial.

HAYMARKET GARAGE

C. B. ROLAND, Proprietor, HAYMARKET, VA.

At the close of my first year in the Garage Business I want to thank my friends, to whom my success in this line is due. It is very gratifying to know that the business has grown, and if honesty and work counts, it will continue to grow.

I carry a complete stock of Ford Parts. I also sell New and Used Cars, and the famous Lee Puncture Proof Casings. These casings are backed by a guarantee that is a guarantee. All you have to do if they are not as represented is to return them to me and get your money back. The Lee Fabric Casings are as good as any on the market and prices are right.

Backed by twenty years of actual machine shop experience, you will profit by coming any reasonable distance to have your repairs made under my personal supervision.

I also rebuild and paint cars. All work guaranteed.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS:

Haymarket, Va., December 8, 1920.
 It gives me pleasure to state that my Ford did not half pull until overhauled by the HAYMARKET GARAGE, since which time it pulls to "beat the band."
 Very truly yours,

 To Whom It May Concern:
 I met Mr. C. B. Anyone having any work in Mr. Roland's line will make no mistake, I am sure, in going to him.
 Very respectfully,

DIXIE THEATRE

Monday, February 7

Dorothy Dalton in "Back of The Man"

A Thomas H. Ince production recounting the history of a youth of brilliant prospects who lets ambition lead his heart astray. When he is on the point of attaining material prosperity, he becomes entangled in a murder mystery. The manner in which he is saved from conviction through circumstantial evidence by the woman he had neglected and has his eyes opened to her real worth make the big thrills in a cleverly constructed plot. Also Episode No. 4 of Mystery 13. Admission, 11-17c.

Tuesday, February 8

"UPSTAIRS AND DOWN"

Featuring Olive Thomas. This will probably be the last time that this star will appear on the screen in Manassas. A breezy, delightful comedy-drama of the elite on Long Island, in which, underneath all her fooling, there is a bubbling humanity, a freedom from sarcasm, that wins her way into the hearts of all. Also Charlie Chaplin in "The Immigrant." Admission, 11c-17c.

Thursday, February 10

Babe Daniels in "Oh Lady Lady"

A Realart Feature. Miss Daniels is as splendid as the gawky country girl whose transformation into a famous chorus beauty brings innocent entanglement as a supposed vampire. She gets things into an awful mixing and completely gums the wedding rehearsal which was to unite the serious-minded young man with a wealthy young girl. This is a play with plenty of comedy and pep one that will sure cure the blues. Admission, 11c-22c.

Friday, February 11

Shirley Mason in "Merely Mary Ann"

Poor Little Mary Ann! Her life is an endless round of washing dishes, shining shoes, scrubbing floors and obeying every wish of Mrs. Leadbatter and her troops of boarders in the little London boarding house. Mary Ann is as close a prisoner as the canary bird in the cage. But at last she falls in love with a rich musician boarding with Mrs. Leadbatter and leaves home never to be a slave again. Also Mutt and Jeff Comedy. Admission, 11c-17c.

Saturday, February 12

Buck Jones in "Two Moons"

The picture tells a breath-taking story of a love that grew out of a bitter feud when the cattlemen and sheep herders were fighting for control of the grazing lands of Wyoming. Jones has the part of the cattlemen's agent who tames the wild spirit of Hibma Ring, daughter of a sheepman, and turns her hatred into love. A picture of the gun fighting west. News and Review. Matinee, 6c-11c. Night, 11c-22c.

IN MEMORIAM

Thomas Nash, of Agnewville, Va., in his seventy-eighth year, on the 5th of December, 1920, passed into eternal rest. He was born in Prince William county March 1, 1842.

My thoughts are always wandering to the grave so far away, Where my father dear is lying in his peaceful, lonely grave.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our little darling, Andrew Lee Keys, age two months and five days, who died three weeks ago today, January 18, 1921.

We once had a dear little darling; He was our joy and pride. We loved him, oh! perhaps too well, For soon he slept and died.

God needed an angel to bloom In His garden fair, So He took our darling baby And transplanted him there.

Heaven now regains its treasure; Earth the lonely casket keeps, And the combs love to linger Where our darling baby sleeps.

In the graveyard softly sleeping, Where the trees so gently wave, Lies our little darling, In his lonely, silent grave.

Farewell, our bright-eyed little Lee, Our darling little love, Thou art gone to meet thy Savior In the heavenly home above.

Gene but not forgotten. BY THE FAMILY.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Entertained by Mrs. D. R. Lewis on Tuesday Afternoon.

(Secretary)

Mrs. D. R. Lewis was the hostess at the meeting of the Presbyterian Missionary Society on the afternoon of Tuesday of last week.

All the members responded to the roll call. The subject for the afternoon was China with Mrs. J. L. Bushong as leader. Very careful preparation had been made by Mrs. Bushong and the subject was made especially interesting and varied.

The social hour, while enjoying the delicious repast, was very pleasant and added another to the many enjoyable meetings of the society.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Charles Dunn, who departed this life five years ago today, February 2, 1916.

It is sweet to know we will meet again, Where parting is no more; And the one we love so dearly Has only gone before.

A happy home we once enjoyed; How sweet the memory still, But death has left a vacant place, This world can never fill.

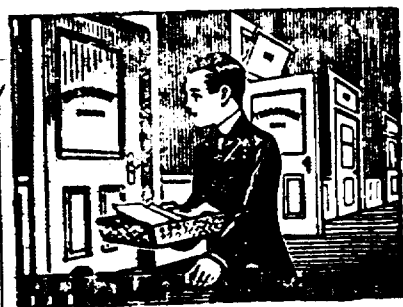

Written by his wife and children.

COUNTIES MUST MAINTAIN ROADS

Are Not Entitled to Aid From State Unless Provision is Made for Upkeep.

Before they will be entitled to receive aid from the state in building county roads, counties are to be required to make adequate provision for the maintenance of the roads after they are constructed, according to a resolution which was unanimously adopted at the tenth annual convention of the Virginia Good Roads Association.

Realizing the additional expense to the counties, the Good Roads Association stands behind the Highway Department in its recommendation that state aid for the counties be increased. The last appropriation was $700,000. Both the Highway Department and the Virginia Good Roads Association now favor $1,000,000 for state aid in 1922, $1,250,000 in 1923 and $1,500,000 in 1924. It is also proposed that the state bear 50 per cent of the cost of maintaining the county roads built under the state aid plan.

By the terms of the resolution, the General Assembly at its next session will be urged to amend the State Aid Road Act to put these provisions into operation. Good roads advocates are of the opinion that if adopted they will put an end to the neglect of roads after their construction and the existence of stretches of mud road which now intervene between improved sections.

Approval of the recommendations of the State Highway Commissioner that the state take over the entire State Highway system for maintenance is incorporated in another resolution adopted at the convention. Under existing laws the Highway Department only has authority to maintain certain sections of the highway system. The legislature will be asked to end this piece-meal maintenance by fixing responsibility on the Highway Department for taking care of the entire 3,800 miles embraced in the system. Adoption of this resolution is considered one of the most constructive pieces of work done at the convention.

Virginia counties will also be asked to co-operate with the Highway Department in providing suitable detours around road construction work on or affecting the state highways according to the provisions of another resolution unanimously adopted. The exact text of the resolution is: "Resolved, That the General Assembly be requested to authorize the State Highway Commissioner and the respective county road authorities to co-operate in the work and expense of providing suitable detours around road construction work on or affecting the state highways."

As pointed out by V. D. L. Robinson, executive secretary of the Virginia Good Roads Association, adoption of such a provision by the legislature would give the Highway Department power which it does not now have to see that suitable auxiliary roads are opened while construction on the main thoroughfares is in progress.

More than 150 road supervisors, representing seventy counties, were present at the convention. It was brought out to all interested in the building of county roads to act as feeders to the main highways that the Virginia Good Roads Association would co-operate in every way possible in helping the counties in their problems of construction and maintenance.

Seen in the First Glimpse of Spring Apparel---

Interesting Modes---Equally Interesting Prices

REGARDLESS of chic modes there is a magic something which tinges all the new things to wear, giving them a rosy, interesting hue. That something is price. One may go about the ever delightful, engrossing task of selecting the details of a Spring outfit unhampered by the thought of high prices and their accompanying train of inhibited desires for what is pretty and what is needed.

What You Will See When You Come Down to the Store

FASHION has outdone herself for the return of Spring. Frocks, Suits and Millinery echo the paeon of joy that marks the coming of the gayest season of the year. Clever French heads and clever hands wherever smart apparel is created have evolved fascinating and charming modes, some not without a very practical turn, of course, for the delectation of fair women. Inspection discloses a very choice collection of the earliest models for women who desire the new while the bloom is yet upon it.

If One Thinks of Frocks

—Then there are smart cloth models, ornate with the new cut work, embroidered, and in contrasting materials. Moroccan and Canton crepes form many a luscious Frock for diversified uses. Afternoon gowns are quaint or dashing in their use of vivid color and eccentric style.

A Glorious Tradition Is the Spring Hat

—Every year comes the fresh new pleasures of selecting Spring Millinery, every year the delightful query of whether it shall be feathers or flowers, a large one or a small one. This season's modes are charming. It is not a moment too early to select the Hat for your suit, the Hat for sports wear and the Hat to accompany lovely frocks. Sailor, off-the-face and close fitting turban styles that are in demand.

To Be Sure, There Must Be a Suit

—No woman will overlook one. They are as inevitable as Spring itself. This year, because these are very youthful box coat models, or flared back models or coolie jackets or semi-fashioned styles, you will see the necessity of having a smart Suit early in the season. Piquet is one of the much used new fabrics. Ask to see it.

Do You Really Save When You Buy From A Mail Order House?

¶ As you turn the leaves of one of those big catalogues scattered throughout the country so freely by the larger mail order houses, you see many desirable articles illustrated and described. There the prices are—in black and white. They look mighty good. At first thought you may say, "Here's where I save." But do you really save when you buy from a mail order house?

¶ First, let us get a thorough understanding of what is meant by the word "save," as used in the paragraph preceding. It refers to something besides cheaper prices. It takes into consideration the value of seeing before buying, of the benefits accruing from immediate possession, and of the opportunity of quick replacement on such goods as may fall to come up to standard. Are not these things of just as tangible value as the saving of money?

¶ All right, let us consider the money side of it first. As an example, you see a pair of shoes listed in one of those big catalogues at $5.75, plus transportation charges. How does this compare with a similar pair of shoes you can get in Manassas? You can actually see and feel and try on those sold at your county seat and make your decision on the most definite kind of information. But that catalogue house shoe—you must depend solely upon the highly touched-up illustration and the fine sounding description, a very unsatisfactory way to shop, to say the least.

¶ But getting back to the strictly money side of the matter, how do you know for certain whether or not the mail order house shoe is a better value for the money—until you have actually bought it and tried it out? You know perfectly well that many a person has been disappointed after actually seeing the goods they ordered from a catalogue. But, say that the pair of shoes is satisfactory and you can really save a little money by ordering them from the mail order house, is there nothing else to be considered?

¶ Sticking to that shoe illustration, though we could just as well be talking about most any other staple article, what a real satisfaction there is in feeling with your own hands and trying on that pair of shoes before planking down the money for them! What a relief to know at the time you buy them that the much needed pair of shoes is in style, of just the kind of leather that you like, and that the fit could not be better! Are not these advantages, which are yours when you shop in Manassas, worth valuing?

¶ When the average person wants a thing, it is wanted right then and there. When you buy it in Manassas you get it immediately. But what a wait there must be when you order it shipped from some distant point, perhaps to learn later that it was lost in transit or received in a damaged condition! Is it not worth a good deal to you to get an article when you want it and in perfect condition?

¶ Now suppose you bought those shoes in Manassas, and suppose they failed to stand up as you were assured they would. The firm from whom you bought them would be so close at hand that you could soon go in person to the very fellow from whom you purchased the shoes and have the matter satisfactorily adjusted. Would it be nearly so easy or so satisfactory to present your appeal for adjustment to a cold, impersonal mail order house?

¶ Is it not then to your advantage, in most every way, to deal in Manassas? Do you not feel better satisfied when you buy with the article before you (and not "sight unseen"); where you can bring into play your careful scrutiny of its advantages and disadvantages? Can you not trust your personal-contact decision far better than a decision based on what is told in print?

¶ Even though it should cost a few dollars a year more to buy all your goods in Manassas, would it not be money well invested in the time saved, in the total elimination of all transportation worries and in the opportunity to get quick adjustment on any goods that might fall below standard?

¶ Looking at it from all angles, can you say that you really save when you buy from a mail order house?

FARMERS' INSTITUTE AND AUXILIARY TO MEET

Every Member is Urged to Be Present—Play the Game Says Miss Gilbert.

Miss Lillian V. Gilbert, County Home Demonstration Agent

Again time is flying and it will soon be time for the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Farmers' Institute.

It will be remembered that February is the month for the election of officers for 1921.

The president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Round, urges that every member be present if possible. This is an important meeting. Members are urged to come prepared to pay their annual dues, and by so doing lend a hand to the committee in charge of the financial side of the Auxiliary work. Reports will be heard from committees; ways and means of continuing the Rest Room discussed and plans for 1921 made. Every woman in the county or town interested in the continuance of the Rest Room is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Again it is urged that it is important for every member of the Auxiliary to be present. It is hoped that every member will try to bring a new member and in this way help swell our membership until we have at least seventy-five. We should have one hundred. Let's all play the game "You bring the one next to you and I'll bring the one next to me"—and see what a grand meeting there will be for the 11th of February. All who wish to attend the Farmers' Institute in the morning need not hesitate to come, as lunch will be served at the high school. Time—2:30 p. m. Place—Manassas High School.

VIRGINIA

THE YEAR 1921

Those merchants who have old established trades should be glad to see the period of unreasonably high prices and inability to secure the proper stocks come to an end.

This Company will start the New Year on its old margin of profit, regardless of the fact that there are many items of expense which are still high and will give its customers the advantage of any further reductions in prices by the producers from month to month.

Having enjoyed a splendid patronage through this section for many years, we welcome the opportunity at this time to restore our business to the old basis which made it possible for us to serve our customers so satisfactorily in the past.

(By the Secretary)

The regular monthly meeting of Manassas Chapter, U. D. C., was held at the home of Mrs. R. L. Byrd, Wednesday, Feb. 2.

The historical report gave a splendid list of prizes offered by the Virginia Division and the U. D. C.

In order to preserve the very valuable record of Veterans, Daughters and World War veterans, it was decided to purchase a recommended style of the loose leaf binder, for each collection of papers. Further in line of said "instructions," it was decided to "adopt" a member of the Lee Camp Home.

A rising vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Byrd for her courtesies and hospitality.

Time and place of next meeting—Wednesday, 8 p. m., March 2, at Mrs. J. B. T. Thornton's.

THE RAT EXTERMINATION CAMPAIGN IS STILL ON

Success of the 1920 "Kill the Rat" Campaign Far Beyond Any Expectations.

Miss Lillian V. Gilbert, County Home Demonstration Agent.

All over the county people are asking the question, "Why is it that we see nothing in the papers about the result of the "Kill the Rat" Campaign?"

Letters are continually coming from teachers trying to get information for their pupils. It is natural for them to be interested and eager to learn of the results. Especially so of those who put forth such splendid efforts to rid their communities of those pests.

Before giving the report the writer wishes to thank the teachers throughout the county for their hearty co-operation in making it possible for Prince William county to be so fortunate as to be rid of 33,798 rats. This being the score reported for the county.

Friends, let's all take off hats to our Prince William county teachers and pupils. Below is the report given by districts and schools:

This does not mean that all the rats and mice that have been killed are reported—far from it—for the county agent is continually meeting farmers and even children who tell of numbers of both rats and mice that they have killed but did not take the trouble to send the tails to the school nearest to them. It is certain that if all were counted the number would reach 35,000.

Now that the work has been so faithfully done, friends, do you not think that our teachers should have some special mention for their faithful work? At the beginning of the campaign it was suggested that a banner be given to the school scoring the highest in the campaign. Several of the teachers have expressed themselves as preferring something of this kind. Many have expressed themselves as in favor of this, some have said that they were willing to contribute to this. Only one contribution has been received; surely there are others who will gladly respond.

Mr. A. L. Emmons has headed the list with one dollar; if you cannot give as much, remember that even dimes make dollars. The county home demonstration agent will be glad to receive the same at any time. Please let this be voluntary. I am sure every farmer and business man in the county has been benefitted by the work.

The names of the prize winners have been turned over to the county board of supervisors, who has charge of that part of the work, and it is hoped that the names of the winners will be published later.

In conclusion, if every home will look carefully to it that all rats and mice are killed there will be no need for another kill the rat campaign.

For illustration, little Richard Burks, who attends Woodlawn school, from October 1 to Christmas killed 182 mice and 12 big rats. He is only 8 years old; no poison was used by him, only traps and his dog.
