Farmer Found Dead on Country Road.

Trigg Viers, aged twenty-five, prominent farmer, was found dead on a country road under his automobile early Monday morning, near Lebanon. The body was lying partly in a little stream by the side of the highway. It is thought that the brakes on the small roadster which Viers was driving, failed to work and the car went off the road.

Roanoke Fair Grounds Sold.

A local company known as the Ad- over Development Corporation has purchased the Roanoke fair grounds for $90,000. It will be held as an investment. This is a plot of twenty-six acres at the edge of the city, and has been in past years the scene of all big athletic events, including the Thanksgiving football game between V. P. I. and V. M. I. It is understood the grounds will be available for sports for the time being.

New Apple Orchard Planted.

E. F. Kidd and sons, who live on the Warwick farm, near Lowesville, Amherst county, planted last week an apple orchard of approximately 1,000 trees. The principal varieties planted are Winesap, Stamen and Arkansas Black. O. B. Ross, county agent, assisted Mr. Kidd in laying off and preparing this orchard.

Armenian Students at University

Three Armenian students, rescued by an American destroyer during the recent Smyrna massacre, are now on their way to the University of Virginia. The men will land in New York and proceed immediately to Charlottesville. As a result of the devastation brought on Smyrna, the young men have lost all their seasons. All of them will work their way through college. One will enter the engineering department, and the others, the department of medicine.

Man Hurt as Car Jumps from Bridge.

George E. Morris, a farmer residing in Greene county, just across the Albemarle line, one mile south of Nortonville, was fatally injured recently, when a car in which he was riding ran off the bridge at Rio Mills. In the plunge of fifteen feet, Mr. Morris was thrown out, the machine falling on the way to the University Hospital.

Mr. Morris had been to University Hospital to procure medicine for his wife, who had been under treatment at that institution, and was on his return home in a car owned and driven by Wilmer Herring. Upon reaching the bridge at Rio Mills a tire came off the front wheel of the car, causing the machine to swerve and leave the bridge. Mr. Herring and two other occupants of the car escaped with only slight injuries. Mr. Morris was a native of Rockingham county and was sixty-three years of age. His funeral was held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon from his late home, with interment on the old Big- ger farm, in Greene county.

Truck Hits School Bus.

Struck by a rapidly moving auto truck, a school bus containing twenty-eight girls, and operated by a girl driver, was overturned on the new concrete road at Tasley.

Daughter's Evidence Convicts Father.

George Wiggins, colored, of Petersburg, was sentenced to death by a jury Wednesday a few minutes before 6 o'clock for the murder of his wife several weeks ago. Wiggins went on trial for his life Wednesday in the Hastings Court, Judge James M. Mullen, presiding.

The most damaging witness against him was his 9-year-old daughter, Lena May Wiggins, who swore that she saw her father strangle her mother to death with a rope. Several pieces of the rope were produced in court and the girl finally identified the last piece shown to her by Commonwealth's Attorney Pollard.

Hopewell Pottery.

Petersburg, Va., Dec. 6.—The Hope- well China Company, one of the largest plants of its kind in the country, will probably resume operations Monday following the National Pottery Strike has been settled. It is understood that the local potters have been granted a 7 per cent increase, which they demanded. Due to the strike, which went into effect October 1, the plant has enough orders on hand to take care of its output for a year.

Canterbury Farm Changes Hands.

Warrenton.—J. S. Coeden, an old millionaire, of Baltimore, has bought Canterbury Farm, one of the finest estates in the country, of J. Temple Gwathmey, of New York. The farm is six miles from Warrenton, near Rappahannock river and the once-famous Fauquier Springs, and commands a fine view of the Blue Ridge. J. T. Gwathmey, who made a fortune on the cotton exchange in New York, purchased it a few years ago, and has improved it highly, building a splendid house, roads, stables, tennis house, and furnishing it as a superb farm for breeding fine horses and other live stock. The farm and outbuildings are said to have cost $600,000 and it has been advertised for sale this year at $300,000. The purchaser already has shipped in several carloads of brood mares and his race horses will follow. His stables are in charge of William Garth, of Charlottesville.

Freight Rates Make High Prices.

Winchester.—Fruit growers have received information showing that freight rates are responsible for high prices paid for apples in the retail markets. Two carloads were shipped recently to Memphis, Tenn., one bringing $321.30, the freight being $219.80, and the shipper getting $49.87. Then there was a charge for drayage and commissions. On the other car, which sold for $379.78, the return to the shipper was $91.41, and the cost of transportation $233.90. J. Robert Lewin, of Front Royal, sold many of his good commercial apples at $2.00 per barrel and placed in one barrel a note, asking the buyer to send him a note, stating the final price. A day or two ago he was informed by S. E. Fowler, of Carbon Hill, Ala., that he had bought the barrel of apples from a commission merchant for $4.50. The freight was said to have been the highest item of expense.

York Imperial Most Popular Apple.

The York Imperial apple, grown in Virginia, appears to be among the most popular and sought-for by the consuming public in English and Scottish markets, according to Harry H. Lynch, who has returned from several week's stay in England and Scotland. He was in charge of a large shipment of apples, sent by way of Norfolk to Liverpool by Richards Brothers, Winchester growers and exporters. Lynch said that the interest of buyers in the Liverpool market was more or less perfunctory until auctioneers reached apples from Virginia, and then bidding became very spirited, the most interest being decidedly in favor of York Imperials from Virginia.

Yorks packed 2 1-4 inches bring a better price in English markets than the larger apples, it was said, because all such fruit is sold by the pound by retailers. Mr. Lynch said the apples shipped through the port of Norfolk were from Patrick County, Va., and that they were in excellent condition when opened and placed on the auction block.

CLIFTON

Rev. T. H. MacLeod preached Sunday morning on "Leadership". In his sermon he spoke of how to become leaders, what leaders are, and gave us as an illustration, the greatest Leader, our Savior. Among others good thoughts given was that a leader himself, must know the way, must keep ahead of the crowd, but not too far ahead, and must have the characteristic of being able to persuade others, to follow him. Dr. MacLeod, though not entirely well, was able to fill his appointment.

EDUCATION PAYS FARMERS

The New York State College of Agriculture recently made a study of farm management on forty-eight properties, and one of its conclusions was that education in agricultural methods pays handsomely. They found that the farmers who had no education in vocational agriculture made an average income of $1,100 annually.

Those who had attended the short courses of the State college of Agriculture, earned an income of $2,200 for the period studied, while those who were graduates of the State College of Agriculture made $3,300.

The above figures seem to be conclusive evidence that the best thing that farmers can do for their children is to educate them.

The best investment a farmer can make early in life is that which he invests in an education. Not only is it the best investment from a monetary standpoint, but life amounts to so much more to those who have a liberal education. They can enjoy the good things in life to a greater extent.

They not only get more happiness out of life but those who are educated are in a position to make more money which can be used for the purpose of securing the things which make life worth living. Those farmers who have not been able to obtain the necessary education early in life would do well even later to take advantages now offered of short courses in agriculture at our agricultural colleges.

It is worth much to them. It brings them in contact with other farmers. It gives them a chance to discuss different phases of farming with professors who are experts along particular lines. Our farmers are too prone to feel that, those men who have spent their lives studying agriculture from every conceivable standpoint cannot tell them anything. It is from these men that farmers can secure ideas which may result in a complete change in their methods of farming and make them successful farmers instead of failures.

Do not neglect any opportunity to get education and higher the education the better. It pays the biggest dividends of any other investment.—Exchange.

RELIEF FOR THE FARMER

Result of the recent elections gave convincing evidence to the Harding administration that the farmers of the country have made up their minds they will no longer submit to having their demand for relief legislation ignored. They went to the polls in strength and elected an increased number of members of both houses of Congress who will support their demands for the kind of legislation they want. With the view of taking the leadership for such agrarian legislation out of the hands of those who have consistently fought for it, and having its scope determined by the administration itself, the President on Thanksgiving Day held a conference with Secretary Wallace and fifteen Republican Senators and formulated a program for "immediate financial relief for the farmers," which will be put before Congress at once and pressed with the full force of the administration.

In brief the plan proposes to utilize the Federal Farm Loan Board as the agency through which relief is to be given. The details of the financing have been practically worked out. The general purposes are more liberal credits and cheaper interest rates. Those who are conversant with the workings of the Farm Loan Board system will readily realize that its whole purpose would have to be revolutionized before it could be made responsive to the kind of relief that the farmers are most in need of. The system is intended to provide landowning farmers with credit for enlarging their holdings and extending their improvements, and requires real estate security for the loans obtained. The system is responsive to the needs of only a limited proportion of the farming population. Those who do not own their own farms or are not in position to make a considerable cash payment on land to be purchased and offered for security, are not benefited by the system.

Real relief for the country's distressed agricultural industry must be obtained in the form of rural credits legislation that would extend its benefits to the entire agricultural population—renters and landholders alike, engaged in crop production. Those members of Congress who heretofore have composed the farm bloc in that body resent the attempt of the administration to "horn in" on their program for rest, not make-believe, farm relief legislation. In connection with this new movement on the part of the President and his confidential backers, Senator Capper, of Kansas, whose agrarian followers include republicans, democrats and progressives, has disclaimed all contact whatsoever with the newly inaugurated administration effort to carry the standard of the farmers. If the real friends of farmer relief legislation can get together on a workable measure, shorn of wildcat financing, we dare say it will easily take precedence over the administration proposal.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

THE OTHER FELLOW'S JOB LOOKS BETTER

How often we hear the complaints of the employed—the hard-worker—against the employer or boss—the brain-worker—and how the former thinks the latter has the much easier time, and would just love to change places for his "snap" and the easy time he thinks he would have. The employer who has passed through the hand-worker period of his life and is now the brains behind the business, knows better. He knows the difference between putting in six, eight or ten hours a day at work that is already planned for hand-work execution, and the brain-worker who has not only planned this day's work for you but for several others, and besides has attended to a multitude of other business affairs that perhaps have kept his brain busily at work into the night long after the hand-worker has completed his day of labor and dismissed all thoughts of it in some sort of the many recreations of the evening. Oftentimes the employer longs to step back into the ranks of the hand-worker, discarding the responsibilities that keep him chained to safeguarding the business end. What a rest it would be for him to perform the day's duties that were already planned for his execution, at the end of which he could leave the shop and forget it was there until time for work tomorrow. The employee should never underestimate the employer's snaps. If he wishes to gain the brain-worker's seat at the desk the brain-worker will help him get there; then the hand-worker will know and appreciate the difference. There would be less friction today between employee and employer if there were more unity of purpose, less selfishness over the position the other fellow holds over you and less underestimation of each other's worth to the institution for which they should put forth their best efforts.

THE WOMAN MAKES THE GOLDEN HOME

Not gold or gear or wealth or state,
Not shade or shine or storm or sun,
Not ups and downs of human fate,
Not all the happy dreams that run,
Nor fire, nor cheer, nor heat or light,
Not lofty halls, nor shimmering dome—
But through the years of day and night,
The woman makes the golden home.

The presence of her soul, her touch
Of tenderness and grace and skill;
The little more that means so much,
The place in life she wants to fill;
The song, the smile, the scent, the charm,
Some turn of eyes or sway of arm,
The silken sweeping of a dress,
The cheeks where cheeks of roses press.

The little things of love that count,
With these she makes, with these she brings
Through all the ages as they mount
Unto the home the life that sings,
The hope that glows, the love that sways
The destinies of young and old—
Through all the swift or solemn days,
The woman makes the home of gold.

She makes the place a place where gleam
The large ideals, the vision true;
She summons to her aid the dream
Of everyday a love made new;
And so in porch and hall and room,
In brick and stone and iron and wood
The golden homes of beauty bloom
And all the world seems fair and good.
—The Bentztown Bard.

LAUGH AND LIVE

THE RIDDLE

"There's a puzzle for you. Jones married a widow with four children."
"That's not a puzzle, is it?"
"No, not by itself; but think, man, he ask her to do it!"

LIFE

It's a circle like this: Man is miserable until he gets something that isn't good for him, and it makes him so happy that he gets downright miserable wishing he didn't have it.

DAWGS

"Come on in, Stranger."
"But the dawg, that dawg—"
"Oh he's wagging his tail and barking at the same time. He's only kidding you."
"I know, but I was wondering which end he's kidding with."

TWO-FACED

"I wouldn't believe her."
"You wouldn't?"
"No sir, I wouldn't; not if she swore to it until she was black in one face and blue in the other."

HE WENT THROUGH

The prison visitor sighed.
"How sad! How sad that you are in here, you went through three colleges. What course did you take?"
"Me?" said the Convict. "I went in over the second-story window still on 'out th' kitchen door; but only got $97 in th' three of 'em."

MEAN MAN

Mrs. N. Parker came bursting in to see her new neighbor, and found Mr. Jones reclining in an armchair.
"Well, Mr. Jones, and what's Mrs. Jones doing?"
Mr. Jones sucked his pipe with evident enjoyment.
"Ah poor soul, she's dying!"
Mrs. Parker was horrified.
"What? You brute! Why don't you do something?"
Just at that moment Mrs. Jones walked in.
Mrs. Parker spluttered:
"But—you said she was dying!"
"Yes," said Jones quietly. "So she is—to see you mind your own business."

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL BULLETIN BOARD

On Thanksgiving afternoon a group of citizens attended the dedication services of the hospital site in north-west Manassas. The service was conducted by Rev. A. Stuart Gilchrist in words simple, suitable and impressive. In proceeding with the dedication of property of which it is only the prospective not the actual owner, the Association does not feel that any vital business principle has been violated. The terms proposed by the Manassas Real Estate Co., for the purchase of its land are of such generous scope and character as to constitute a challenge to the business faith of the Association. It was the business faith of a few of our citizens that brought evangelist Smith to Manassas for a few weeks tabernacle meeting in June 1917, and which induced them to become responsible for an expense account of not less than $1,500, every dollar of which was in hand when the meetings closed. Interest in human enterprises cannot long be sustained without some visible and tangible evidence of good faith, and for this reason the Association in absolute good faith decided to dedicate without needless waste of time. The hospital site includes eight town lots admirably situated, and six each of these lots is 50 by 200 feet, ample provision is made for all building requirements. The value of these lots is $1,250, but in consideration of the object for which they have been selected, the Realty Co., $750 as the price, thus making a donation equivalent to $500.

In an undertaking of such magnitude of the utmost importance that enthusiasm be tempered with caution and that policy be regulated by the wise man's rule—one thing at a time and pay as you go. Mr. G. Raymond Radcliffe, cashier of the Peoples Bank is also treasurer of the Manassas Memorial Hospital, Inc., and is now ready to receive contributions toward the purchase of six fine building sites as Prince William could desire. Need it be mentioned that every penny contributed, will be exclusively applied to the object for the benefit of which it is given?

EIGHT BIG STILLS SEIZED BY PROHIBITION AGENTS

Third Largest Ever Captured in Virginia Included in the Number. Capture of the third largest illicit still ever seized in Virginia, together with seven other stills, was reported to the prohibition division of the Attorney-General's office, under John R. Saunders, by State Prohibition Director Harry E. Smith. The raid was conducted by State Inspectors F. C. Palmer and Brown, assisted by William Lloyd, justice of the peace of Prince William county.

The largest still faked was a 700-gallon steam outfit and was seized near Quantico, where two expert mechanics from Alexandria were engaged in connecting up and getting ready to put it into commission. Besides the still, there were two 700-gallon barrels, seven fifty-gallon barrels, three thirty-gallon barrels, one twenty-horse-power boiler, sheets of copper, two 100-gallon boilers, fifty pipe joints, a pistol and shotgun. Samuel Barrett and James Mason, both from Alexandria, who, it is alleged, were installing the plant, were arrested. Three men were seen near the still in the woods of Prince William county, and when inspectors advanced, two fled. One man was shot by the inspectors, but made good his escape. Darryl Allison was taken into custody. The still was of 300-gallon capacity. Nearby were found eighteen 500-gallon fermenters, 900 gallons of mash, and thirty gallons of whiskey. Later the inspectors found a 150-gallon steam still, 1,000 gallons of mash and seven 500-gallon fermenters in a house in Stafford county. In another room a fifteen-gallon copper still and an eight-gallon copper still were found. Over 200 gallons of mash and eight and a half gallons jars of corn whiskey were found in the house also. Not far from the house in Prince William county, a forty-gallon copper still, with 500 gallons of mash and two 500-gallon fermenters were taken.

"FIDDLING OVER FARM LOANS"

Process of Getting Loans Through a Long and Tollenous Con.

We believe it was Senator Ashurst who said, in the recent Congress, that the Farm Loan Board was furnishing a striking example of "how not to loan money to farmers" and added that he was determined that it should reserve its policy.

Most of us who keep in reasonably close touch with the functioning of this board, and those farmers who in their time of stress, undertake to borrow money through it, realize keenly the truth of the Senator's statement.

From the day the Farm Loan System was tied up in the courts by injunction suits of the Farm Mortgage Bankers Association until now, the process of getting loans through has been a long drawn out and tedious one.

Notwithstanding the fact that Farm Loan Associations have been organized everywhere and proper application made for loans, there has always been one excuse or another for the interminable delays in getting the money.

While the board has always had an excuse for its non-functioning, in our opinion, the fault lay wholly with the board itself. Its membership has not always been in entire sympathy with the Farm Loan Act.

Like the Federal Reserve Board, it set itself above the law, or complained at the co-operative feature, or the number of applications for loans, or that it would not do to flood the market with tax-exempt securities.

This board early decided that the public could absorb only $150,000,000 of bonds per year and saw to it that this amount was not exceeded. It had no gauge of the public's buying capacity. It only guessed and guessed wrong.

Again, this board carried on all of the bond sales notwithstanding the fact that the Federal Farm Loan Act required that each of the twelve land banks should sell its own bonds when and where they pleased.

Isn't that a striking analogy to the Federal Reserve Board's action? It arrogated to itself the control of agricultural credits just as Governor Harding and his crew wrecked the business world by controlling commercial credits.

Furthermore, this board marketed its bonds through exclusive channels—a most unwise policy. Thousands of big bond and mortgage houses never had a Farm Loan bond to offer their customers who were willing and anxious to buy.

And then the board insistently placed huge blocks of bonds on sale every five or six months, dumped them, with the net result of dumping on a Congressman. The bonds should have been sold to the public gradually.

Inasmuch as this board has deliberately refused to function as it should and as the law intends it should, or to be more charitable, is too incompetent to function, why not get rid of it as Senator Ashurst suggests?

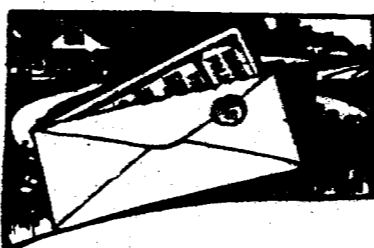

It is an outrage that the best security in the world, except the government's own obligations, cannot be used to save the basis industry of the country, because of the stupidity or incompetence of those entrusted with marketing same.

It is high time this fiddling over farm loans should cease. If the farmer's alleged friends in Congress will get busy, it will cease. The time for a show down on this subject has come.

HOUSE RAIDER FREDERICK HARR

When Statiz, the Frederick murderer of a policeman, was hanged, two weeks ago, he was very bitter and said he would "come back" to officials and others he accused of being responsible for his fate. Last week while deputy sheriffs and others were at the jail discussing this the box containing the shroud Statiz had worn and the shroud itself were seen distinctly to move. Everybody's hair rose, but as all stood breathlessly watching and preparing to slope, the mouse that had caused the disturbance stuck its head out to see what the silence was about and relieved the tension.

MANASSAS CHAPTER MEETS

Mrs. Albert Spelden Entertains the Daughters of the Confederacy.

(Mrs. R. LeRoy Byrd, Secretary)

The regular meeting of Manassas Chapter U. D. C. was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Spelden, Wednesday afternoon. Sixteen members were present. The president, Mrs. W. A. Newman, presided.

The minutes were read by the secretary, followed by report of the treasurer.

A vote of thanks was extended Madames Newman, Hodge and Holliday for their successful efforts in an entertainment given by students at Eastern College for the benefit of the Chapter.

A Christmas box will be packed and sent to a needy sister of a deceased Confederate veteran. The members present liberally responded to this worthy cause. Others wishing to aid will please send contributions to Mrs. Albert Spelden not later than December 21.

January 19, Lee and Jackson day, will be appropriately observed by the chapter. The hour and place will be announced later.

At the close of the business session the hostess, assisted by Mrs. R. LeRoy Byrd, served delicious cocoa and wafers.

The meeting adjourned to meet the first Wednesday in January.

BITTEN BY MAD DOG

William H. Hyde, of Bristow, Among Those Attacked.

William H. Hyde, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hyde, of Bristow, was bitten by a dog suffering with rabies, in Alexandria. He was unaware of the dog's presence until he was attacked and bitten on the leg. In endeavoring to fight the dog off, he had his hand badly bitten, also. Lewis Green, alleged owner of the dog was bitten, and later John Thomas, of S. Alfred street was also bitten by the animal.

Justice Duvall, in police court, ordered the dog killed, and the two policemen, accompanied by Melvin H. Deavers, half of the court, found the animal at the corner of Lee and Franklin streets, where it attacked and bit Deavers before it could be killed. Deavers was taken to the health office and treated by Dr. M. D. Delaney.

The head of the animal was sent to the hygienic laboratory by Dr. L. E. Poulka, health officer, where, after examination, it was announced that the dog had rabies. The police are endeavoring to locate any other persons who may have been bitten, in order that they may receive proper treatment. It is reported that four others have been bitten before the dog was killed, making a total of eight persons.

THE GOBETOWN WEEKLY NEWS

There's somethin' kinder gets me, when I read your city press, That makes me sort of homesick; gettin' long in years, I guess; For there's things writ in your paper kinder wish I didn't know, Like the murders done by women; hardly makes me think it's so; An' I set there just a-thinkin', till I got a case of blues, And in my heart I'm wishin', for the "Gobetown Weekly News."

It don't have no city trimmings; don't know no city tricks; Just a little country paper printed up thar in the sticks; But the news that's printed in it, (course it doesn't sound the same) To me makes pretty readin', 'cause I know 'em all by name; I just wish that I could read you all the things it had to say, An' how every one was sorry me and mother went away.

So once a week we get it, Ma pulls up her easy chair, While I clean off my old steel specks an' strat a-readin' thar— Ed Smith has started paintin', aims to do the old blame place. "Bout time," sez Ma, "he stirred his stumps; 'twas nigh the town disgrace; Ed kept the place so cluttered up the girls ain't had no show; I hope he gets it painted up and Emma gets a bean."

Tim Kelly's place was raided, the selectmen took a hand; Tim knew they were a-camin'; got tipped off, you understand. Art Johnson's brindle bulldog and a stranger's had a fight; The Ladies' Aid at Myrtle Brown's will meet on Tuesday night; There's a Boston drummer (new one) staying down at the hotel; A stranger called on Abbie White; he stayed there quite a spell.

There's a "Bargin Sale" a-going on down to the Ben Tom Store; Boston Brown is leading the Gobetown checker score; Link Peters' passin' round cigars— "Land! Mother says, "Again How many's that make Bairy's got? Great grief! That makes it ten!"

Ye scribe gives thanks to Widew Smith, for home-made custard pie; That sure sets Mother laughing; thinks Hannah's getting sly.

Course 'tain't no city copy, but we read it every word, From, "There'll be a mothers' meeting, led by Mis' Charism Hard;" To the poem in the corner, writ by someone signed "Anon."

'Bout the leaves a-turning yellow and the summer being gone. Kind of wish I hadn't read that, though, when Mother gives a sigh, Like the summer leaves a-falling— "Dear, our lives are passing by."

I suppose that being born there makes me love that paper so; It kinder brings me closer to the friends I used to know; Makes me see again in fancy every path and scented lane, With me and Mother, lovers, wandering through them once again; And it starts us both a-dreaming, Mother's hand held close in mine.

Till the years for us turn backward to the days of Auld Lang Syne.

So, although I like your city, with its bustle, rear and noise, My mind goes ever wandering to old Gobetown's country joys, And for my friends and neighbors, living up thar in the sticks, There's a memory that is scared, though you call 'em rubes and hicks; And when your city gets me, till I have a case of blues, In my heart I have a longin' for the "Gobetown Weekly News."

J. A. MACDONALD.
