BROAD RUN, VA., September 11.—A wedding of interest to society here and throughout the county, is that of Miss Clara B. Stover, daughter of Mrs. Ella Carrington Stover, and Mr. James Benjamin McCarty, of Delaplane, Va. The ceremony took place Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Church of Our Saviour, Rev. J. J. Norwood officiating.

The beautiful little church, a fit setting for such a scene, was draped in trailing vines, and was iridescent with the soft afternoon sunlight.

The bride entered with her brother, Mr. Linwood Stover, of West Virginia, who gave her away. Her going away gown was a recent Paris model of midnight blue serge, and the hat of blue velour was trimmed with a rich white aigrette. Her flowers were bride's roses.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Antrim Stover, as maid of honor, who was gowned in soft white serge and white felt hat, and carried LaFrance roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Harry McCarty, as best man, and the ushers were Messrs. W. S. McCarty, Mason McCarty, of Delaplane; Charles Keyser, of Broad Run, and Walter Robertson, of Catharpin. The wedding march from Lohengrin, to which the bridal party entered the church, was executed by Miss Martha Strother, of Markham, Va. At the close of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McCarty left for the north.—Fauquier Democrat.

MISS MINES IS MARRIED

Weds Mr. Earle Briscoe Harris, of Clarkburg, West Virginia, Last Week.

Friends of Miss Margaret Mines, a former student of Eastern College, have received cards reading:

"Mr. James H. Mines announces the marriage of his daughter, Eva Margaret, to Mr. Earle Briscoe Harris, on Wednesday, September the tenth, nineteen hundred and thirteen, Cumberland, Md."

The wedding took place in Cumberland, Md., on Wednesday, the tenth of September, the happy young couple returning Friday morning to Clarkburg, W. Va., where they will reside at 182 First street.

Mrs. Harris is an accomplished young lady who made a host of friends in Manassas during her stay at Eastern College two years ago. Her name will be remembered on the staff of the Eastern Collegian.

Mr. Harris is a son of Mr. A. R. Harris, of Tanner, Gilmer county, W. Va., and is employed in the United Shoe store in Clarkburg.

work of the Woman's Clubs throughout the country was given by Mrs. Walter Sanders, of Catharpin, Va.

In every sense of the word, this wedding was a great success, and promises to be the beginning of greater things for Hickory Grove, for it is the intention of the club members to have a farm as well as household exhibits in 1914. The members of the club wish to thank the judges, the givers of the prizes and all others who gave their assistance to make this fair, the first the club has held, the success that AN OUTSIDER.

Movement for Clean Streets

The Street Committee of the Town Council, in following out a plan adopted for improving the condition of the thoroughfares of Manassas, has made an arrangement for cleaning the streets in the business section once a week. Additional "rubbish" baskets will be placed on the several "down-town" streets early next week. Citizens are requested to co-operate in this movement by making liberal use of the "rubbish" baskets, and not to throw papers and other refuse on the streets and sidewalks.

ANTITOXIN SOLD TO ALL NO MORE TYPHOID IN ARMY

No Limitation on Sale of Great Remedy for Diphtheria— Rich and Poor Alike.

The complaint of a solitary woman that she could not pay the price her druggist demanded for diphtheria antitoxin has convinced the State Board of Health that despite the wide publicity given the sale of antitoxin at low rates, many do not understand that this great remedy can be had by all, rich and poor alike.

The woman in question came to the office of the Board a few days ago and asked for advice. She had a child suffering from diphtheria and she had been ordered to purchase antitoxin by her physician. Not knowing that the State dispensed it at minimum rates, she went to a druggist and found that the necessary antitoxin would cost $16.00. When told that this antitoxin, of the very first quality, could be had for about $4.00, the woman was overjoyed.

Following this incident, the Board made a quiet investigation and found that for 13,000 units of antitoxin a druggist was asking $20.50, while the State sold the same amount for $5.36.

"Many of our best druggists," says the weekly bulletin of the Board, "are now selling antitoxin at low rates and are cooperating with us in placing this great remedy in the hands of all who need it. The discovery, however, that the remedy is still being offered for sale at almost four times as much as the Board charges for it shows that many do not know of the existing arrangement."

"In our effort to place antitoxin within the range of all, we have had for four years an agreement with one of the leading manufacturers of antitoxin in this country. By the terms of this agreement, we send antitoxin of the best quality to all who ask for it at the minimum rate of 40 cents the thousand units, with nine cents added for the cost of the syringe. The only limitation on the sale is that the person who ordered the antitoxin be responsible to the manufacturer for the purchase price."

"This antitoxin is not for sale to the poor only. Every citizen of Virginia, rich or poor, is entitled to as much as he needs at these low figures. Not is there any prohibition on the purchase of this antitoxin by druggists. We are perfectly willing to send the antitoxin to druggists and let them sell it to consumers at a reasonable advance in price."

"But the Board will do its utmost to keep the price down and to inform all that antitoxin can be had at low prices whenever and wherever needed. The Board trusts that the press of the State, which has cooperated in this work with such splendid results, will call to the attention of their readers the terms of the present arrangement."

Not a Single Case of Typhoid in the United States Army Since December 19, 1912.

Typhoid fever has been banished from the United States army. When our soldiers are needed, hereafter the American people can feel sure that, as far as this disease is concerned, the full strength of each company and regiment will be on the firing line. In previous wars, from 10 to 40 per cent of the opposing forces have been in the hospitals incapacitated through various diseases. During the Spanish American war, out of 10,759 soldiers in camp at Jacksonville, Fla., there were 2,963 cases of typhoid. If this division had been in the midst of an active campaign, its fighting strength would have been weakened about one-third, not only by the loss of these patients, but also by the loss of the men necessary to care for and transport them. Any means which will reduce or eliminate any of the diseases from which soldiers have suffered in the past will actually increase both the strength and efficiency of the army. It will also greatly increase the chances of our volunteer soldiers returning safe from war, as disease has, in every war in history so far, killed more soldiers than bullets. An official announcement of the elimination of typhoid from our army is an event in which every citizen should feel a keen interest. In a recent issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association, Major Frederick F. Russell, of the Medical Corps, summarizes the results secured through vaccination. In 1902, with an enlisted strength of 80,778 men and officers, there were in our regular army 565 cases of typhoid. In 1909, out of 84,077 men there were 282 cases. In March, 1909, vaccination was begun, but the number vaccinated that year, 830, was too small to affect the ratio. In 1910, over sixteen thousand were vaccinated, and at once the number of typhoid cases began to diminish. In 1911 there were only 70 cases. In the same year vaccination for typhoid was made compulsory on all persons in the military service and on all recruits. In 1912, the first year in which the entire army was immunized, there were only 27 cases, the last one occurring December 19, 1912. Since that date, now nine months ago, there has not been a single case of typhoid in the army.

Major Russell also reports that during the past four years over 200,000 persons have been vaccinated without a single death or other injurious result. Such an experience on so large a scale certainly justifies his conclusion that the general use of vaccination against typhoid fever will soon become a negligible factor in our public health problems.

SCHOOLS ABOUT TO OPEN THE MASTER OF WAVERLY

A Word of Advice to Parents, Which, if Followed Out, Will Mean Better Schools.

Reports to the Department of Public Instruction show that many of the larger public schools of the State have opened for another year's work. In a few days nearly a half million of Virginia children will be back at their books.

These children will be given many words of sage advice by their parents. Here are some suggestions for the parents themselves which if followed will result in better schools:

See that your children attend school regularly; for the teacher cannot instruct them when they are at home.

Do not criticize the teacher or the school officials in the presence of your children.

See that your children are promptly supplied with necessary books and supplies.

Visit the school early in the session in order to get acquainted with the teacher and for the further purpose of seeing that the school house is in proper repair and is supplied with all things necessary to the health and comfort of the children.

Get your neighbors to meet at the school house on an appointed day and organize a School Improvement League. There are over 500 of these leagues in the State; and through them, the people become interested in building up their schools and neighborhoods.

There are several School Improvement Leagues in Prince William, all of which are doing a fine work. Ask your children to tell you about them.

MARKING HISTORIC POINTS

Mr. J. F. Breazeale Urges Marking Points of Interest In and Around Manassas.

(BY J. F. BREAZEALE)

For some time past I have been thinking of the importance of marking the points of historic interest in and around Manassas. We possibly have more such places here and in this vicinity than has any other point in Virginia and up to date little or nothing has been done to mark them in a more or less permanent way. Many of the men who helped to make these places famous are still with us and while we can get information first hand it seems to me it is well to take advantage of our opportunity. While other states, especially the New England states, have been very active in such work, Virginia, as a whole, has been woefully negligent.

A few years ago I had occasion to visit Rhode Island and to follow up some of the campaigns of the colonial armies and of King Philip and his associates. The people in that part of the country have taken interest in such things and the Rhode Island Historical Society has done such good work that I found no difficulty in my undertaking. The society has erected substantial stone tablets at nearly all of the important points. For example, at the top of Mt. Hope, where King Philip's headquarters were located, a granite marker bears that inscription: Down at the Cold Spring in the Miery Swamp where he was shot on that foggy September morning, a marble slab will tell the tale for generations to come.

We have many places of equal interest around here, made memorable during our civil war, that, in a few years, will be entirely lost sight of unless some-

Col. Newland T. DePauw Dies Monday Morning at Waverly Farms, near Haymarket.

Prince William county suffered a distinct loss last Monday morning when Col. Newland T. DePauw passed away at his home, "Waverly Farms," near Haymarket. Col. DePauw had been in his usual health, feeling perfectly well when he retired the night before. About 5 o'clock Monday morning he was taken with cerebral hemorrhage, and remained unconscious until his death which occurred a half hour later.

Rev. Dr. Eagle conducted the funeral services Wednesday afternoon from St. Paul's Episcopal church, Haymarket, after which the body was laid to rest in the churchyard. The honorary pallbearers were the members of the Haymarket Agricultural Club, of which Col. DePauw was a member. The active pallbearers were Messrs. Charles Keyser, W. M. Jordan, George G. Tyler, Drayton Meade, J. E. Beale and C. D. Clarkson. Among the many handsome floral tributes was a wreath of white and cream roses with the company's initials in purple across the front from the Prince William Horse Show Company, of which he was a member and of which he was president for several years up to 1911. The old historical church at Haymarket was crowded with a host of friends who came to pay the last tribute to a worthy and esteemed citizen.

Col. DePauw was born in Indiana 57 years ago, coming to this county in 1904, where he has since resided at "Waverly Farms," his handsome estate near Haymarket. His parents were Washington William and Catherine Newland DePauw, both of New Albany, Ind. Col. DePauw was married in Indiana to Miss Caroline Aiken. Two daughters survive this marriage, Mrs. Vernon E. Knight, of New Albany, Ind., and Mrs. Harold T. Gates, of Louisville, Ky., whose marriage was a brilliant event of last summer. He is also survived by his second wife, who was Miss Hallie Meade, of Haymarket, and by one half-sister, Mrs. Charles Seaman, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Col. DePauw was identified with extensive banking interests in Pittsburgh, Pa., and New Albany, Ind. He was a man of strong Christian faith, and was a vestryman of St. Paul's church at Haymarket. He was also a 32 degree Mason and a trustee of DePauw University founded by his grandfather at Newcastle, Ind.

thing is done to mark them. The spot where the first shot was fired before the First Battle, Beauregard's headquarters, the place where General Bee died, the point where the jam started after the First Battle. These and a hundred others that I might name can now be located with absolute accuracy. Two of the men who carried General Bee off the battle field are still alive. We should have the testimony of such men as these rather than wait for years to come and depend upon hearsay.

I have been to see Mr. McMillan, the advertising manager of the Southern Railroad, and have asked his cooperation in this. I have asked the Southern Railroad to erect sign-boards about ten feet by five feet, marking the places of interest immediately adjacent to their line from Washington to Bristol.

However, it is not for us to depend upon the Southern Railroad or upon any body else. It is an opportune time for us to do something and we should get busy.

SOME DAINTY DISHES

NEW RECIPES WHICH INCLUDE THE DELICIOUS STRAWBERRY.

Piquant Flavor of This Fruit Adds a Delightfully Appealing Touch to Many Dishes—Combinations Worth Trying.

Boiled Rice with Strawberry Sauce.—Put into the upper part of the double boiler a cupful and a half of water. Bring to a boil, add a half teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of rice, thoroughly washed. Cook over the fire five minutes, then set in the hot water pan, which should be one-third full of boiling water. Cook until the rice has absorbed all the water, which will be in about twenty minutes, then add a cupful and a half of hot milk. Stir lightly with a fork so as not to mash the kernels, and cook until hot. Pour into a pretty serving dish and serve with strawberry sauce.

Strawberry Sauce.—Beat a quarter cupful of butter to a cream, add gradually one-half cupful of powdered sugar, and then having crushed a cupful of strawberries, beat gradually into the sugar and butter.

Strawberry Trifle.—Line a glass dish with alternate layers of macaroons and sugared strawberries, dipping both in a little white of egg to make them adhere. Make a custard of beaten yolks of three eggs, a third of a cup granulated sugar and one and a half cups milk. Stir and cook over hot water until thick, then put aside to cool. When cold enough pour into the lined dish. Whip the whites of the eggs very stiff and drop by spoonfuls into a basin of hot milk or water and put around on top of pudding, placing a strawberry with stem and hull left on in the center of each egg puff.

Strawberry Jelly.—Mash a quart of ripe strawberries and strain through coarse cheesecloth. Soak two-thirds of a box of gelatine in one cup of cold water for an hour. Add a pint of boiling water, the juice of a lemon and a large cupful of sugar. Stir until the gelatine is all dissolved, add the strawberry juice and strain.

Pour into a pretty shaped mold or small cups and set on the ice to harden. Turn out for serving, put a border of ripe berries around the bottom of the form and serve with whipped cream. Red raspberries may be used in place of the strawberries.

Strawberry Mousse.—Wash and wash a quart of strawberries, drain well and sprinkle with one cupful of sugar. Let stand an hour, then mash and strain through a fine sieve. Soak a tablespoonful and a quarter of granulated gelatine in two tablespoonfuls of cold water for an hour, then dissolve in three tablespoonfuls of boiling water.

Add to the sugared berries, let stand in a pan of ice water and stir until it starts to thicken.

Two Delicious Beef Recipes.—Here are some recipes you might make use of sometimes:

Salmi of Beef.—To one cup of brown sauce add one cup of cold roast or boiled beef, cut in thin slices. Place all over the fire in a large saucepan until thoroughly hot, but do not let it cook. This is a good breakfast dish. Beef may be made tender by cooking in vinegar and water; six quarts of water to two pints of vinegar. When mixing flour and water try a fork in place of spoon.

Beef Kidney Stew.—Cut in small pieces; after soaking cover with water, add liver or beef. If you have any, salt, pepper, onion, and simmer until tender. Sometimes put rice or macaroni in.

Appetizing Toast, Milanese Style.—Select ten cents worth of dry, black Italian olives; stone them and place in a little saucepan. Cover them with olive oil and cook slowly. Mash them with a fork while they are cooking until a paste is formed. Wash and clean ten cents worth of anchovies. Slice milk bread thinly, toast it and spread with sweet butter. Then put a thin layer of olives on the bread and small pieces of anchovies on top of the olives. Decorate with sprigs of parsley and serve. Delicious cold or hot for luncheon.

Spanish Potatoes.—Cook medium-sized potatoes in their skins; when almost done turn into cold water for a few minutes, peel and place in a baking tin, chop a small onion fine, add one-fourth teaspoon of savory herbs, a little pepper, sprinkle over the potatoes; cut two or three slices of salt pork and lay over the whole, put one cup of warm water into tin and bake to a nice brown.

Inexpensive Frosting.—Put one cup of granulated sugar in one-half cup of water until it makes soft ball in cold water. Take out of stove, sprinkle flour over top, beat it in until creamy, flavor and spread on cake quickly. Cocoa can be added for chocolate frosting. Natural Vanilla may be used.

When Sewing.—The use of colored cotton instead of white for buttoning white material makes it much easier to follow the seams accurately on the machine. The buttonings are also more easily and quickly removed.

Hickory Nut Cookies.—One cup butter, two cups sugar, two eggs, one-half cup soft milk, one teaspoon vanilla, one teaspoon soda, two cups flour, and one cup nuts. Roll out and sprinkle with sugar before baking.

PROPER CARE OF CUT GLASS

If Treated With Proper Consideration Glassware Should Last for Many Years.

When glassware is treated with consideration it will last for a generation but in the hands of a careless maid its beauty is soon marred by cracks or broken edges. When a few simple precautions are followed its brilliancy and flawless surface will remain for years in a state of preservation. Tepid water, the best castile or other pure soap, and a stiff brush are the first essentials. After washing and rinsing place the cut glass in boxwood sawdust. This will absorb the moisture in the cutting. Next remove the sawdust from the plain surfaces with a soft cloth. By following these directions the original clearness and sparkle of the glass will be maintained.

Shot should not be used in carafes, vases, toilet and similar articles. It is very apt to scratch the glass, and thus mar its beauty. Prosaic potato peelings are the best aids. Let them remain in the glassware over night, and then rinse out with a little tepid water.

A very important point is to avoid sudden changes from extreme heat to extreme cold, and vice versa. A pitcher or tumbler which has been filled with ice water, a tray that has been used for ice cream, if plunged at once into hot water will be apt to crack. Use tepid water and the risk of breakage is avoided.

The sudden change from heat to cold is just as dangerous. Glassware should never be removed from a closed cabinet where it has become heated and brought immediately into contact with a cold substance. Cool the glass for a time in water before subjecting it to the extreme temperature.

HINT ON CLEANING CARPETS

With a Little Care Soiled Floor Covering Can Be Made to Look Bright and Clean.

Many a housewife's heart aches when she notices spots which mar the beauty of her living room, carpet or bedroom carpet, but there is a way to remove them. Mix together a quantity of fuller's earth and enough boiling water to make a paste. Apply this mixture to the grease spots while it is quite hot and do not brush it away until it is thoroughly dry. Equal quantities of magnesia and fuller's earth moistened with boiling water will prove especially efficacious if applied to the spots.

If carpets are very dirty, they may be successfully washed in the following manner:

To every two gallons of boiling water add one ounce of yellow soap and one dram of soda. With a clean flannel dipped in this liquid, wash the carpet well, doing a small portion at a time. Rinse with clean hot water and allow the carpet to dry. The colors will be greatly improved by afterward applying a cloth dipped in ammonia.

Asparagus Soup.—After boiling the stalks of asparagus till tender put them in layers in a baking dish, each layer with cream sauce and a sprinkling of seasoned bread crumbs, having the crumbs dotted with butter. Brown in the oven. A variation of this dish is to mix grated cheese with the cream sauce.

Do not throw away the water in which asparagus is boiled, for, if milk is added and the soup thickened with a roux of butter and flour, it is very tasty. Serve with crotons and a few of the tips of the asparagus cut in the soup.

Novel Orange Jelly.—Mix together two tablespoonfuls of gelatin with a large cupful of orange juice, one orange peeled and sliced very thin, the juice of one lemon, two cupfuls of sugar and one pint of boiling water. Let it stand after mixing it well until it is cold. Then strain it and store in the beaten whites of two eggs. The latter give a pretty and frothy effect to the jelly.

To Preserve Flowers.—Dip the flowers in melted paraffin, withdrawing them quickly. The liquid should only be hot enough to maintain its fluidity, and the flowers should be dipped one at a time, held by the stem and moved about for an instant to get rid of the air bubbles. Fresh flowers, free from moisture, make excellent specimens.

French Beefsteak.—Cut your beefsteak two-thirds of an inch thick from a flat or best cut into melted butter, lay them on a hot gridiron and broil over fresh coals. When very nearly done, sprinkle with pepper and salt. Have ready some parsley, chopped fine and mixed with softened butter. Beat them to a cream and pour in the middle of the dish. Dip each piece of steak in the butter, turn the other side, and lay them around on the plate. Serve with mushrooms and potatoes.

Cleaning Glasses.—Fumblers which have been used for milk should always be rinsed in cold water before they are washed in hot. When this is done the milk does not stick to the glass, and there is no danger of their looking cloudy.

Mexican Fishballs.—Equal parts of codfish and washed potatoes, thoroughly mixed with cooked red beets chopped fine; mold into balls brown in the fat of salt pork and garnish with the crisp bits of salt pork.

OPENS PORES OF SKIN

TRAVELER DESCRIBES FRENCH METHOD OF STEAMING.

Explains Why Parisiennes Need Not Worry About Their Complexions, Even in Most Trying Weather.—Treatment is Simple.

"French women," says a traveler, "are never red or shiny looking in even the hottest weather. While in Paris I seemed to be the only person in this condition."

"Then I puzzled about the face. Why was I the only red and shiny woman wherever I went?"

"In my despair I consulted a beauty specialist and told her my difficulty and before I went to my next first night at the theater (a very important one, where all society was to gather) she tried her arts upon me."

"Her treatment was very simple. First she steamed my face with hot water kept about twelve inches away from it. The basin was placed on a little oil burner and my head was covered with a rubber-lined blanket which covered the basin also, in order that all the steam should get to my countenance."

"It took only a few moments of this treatment to make the perspiration pour down my brow and cheeks. My head was then uncovered and my face wiped gently with a very soft cloth."

"Since then I have tried the same treatment at home with a kettle on the gas stove, and I have never known anything like it for removing tan and freckles. The pores of the skin open in the heat and the perspiration takes away all the discoloration and impurities."

"Well, after this the French specialist rubbed a little cream, slightly perfumed, all over my face and massaged it gently, finally fanning it. All the cream was quite absorbed in the skin cool and soft."

"Then came the powdering, and this was most interesting. I had always wished a handful of powder on my face and rubbed it in hard, and when it settled used some more. The French women, with a tiny puff, sent a cloud over my countenance. But it was only a dusting, and I waited for another."

"You must never fill the pores," she said, sternly. "You only want to cover them a little so as to protect them. Too much powder and powder badly put on make a woman look old."

"I went to that first night performance just as she sent me, with a clear white complexion, and even in that stuffy French theater, where the temperature rose to goodness knows what, my skin kept dry and cool, and I did not even have to use the little rabbit's foot with powder on it, which she gave me to pass over my face in the course of the evening."

ATTRACTIVE FALL GOWN.

Model of gray corduroy with upper part of tunic made of green silk voile, trimmed with silk cord and lace.

in the Sewing Room.

When embroidering cotton crepe, marquisettes and similar materials, first baste muslin underneath the design to be worked, and work through the two. When finished cut carefully around on the wrong side, and the result will be beautiful work firm and without a pucker.

To give machine-embroidered neck pieces and waists a handmade finish, work the same as in the following: Sew the neck or waistband on the wrong side of the fabric, and when ready to finish, turn the neck or waistband to the right side, and press it flat.

Huckback towels look well when marked with initials in colored cross-stitch—red, blue, old rose, etc. The letters may be quickly worked by having cross-stitch canvas on the towel and copying any pretty letters from a cross-stitch book.

Use round corner facing for padded handkerchiefs. No extra stitching or basting is needed. Fasten the corners of the handkerchiefs by sewing the corners together. They can be readily washed.

OUR HISTORY

We shall have with us this month the annual State convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and we are delighted at the prospect. No other body more fully and truly represents what is best in Virginia womanhood.

There is work for the Daughters to do, however, and we respectfully remind them of it. Much Southern history and biography remains to be written, and it is the especial duty of the wives, the sisters, the daughters, the granddaughters and the great-granddaughters of Confederate soldiers to see to it that it is written. If the United Daughters of the Confederacy stand for any one thing, it is the preservation of Confederate history. It is undeniable that much concerning that ill-starred government known by survivors has not been reduced to writing. Herein is a great field for the society that, above all else, is committed to the conservation of facts about the Confederate States of America.

If our beloved friends, the Daughters, desire particulars, we respectfully challenge them to produce any authoritative and thorough publication as to the Confederate judicial system, the history of the Confederate Congress, the history of the Confederate Cabinet, the history of the Confederate diplomatic service and the influence of the Confederate press. We point them to the fact that many of the most prominent military leaders of the Confederacy are without biography of any sort. We point them to the fact that not half of Confederate history has yet been written. —Times-Dispatch.

In addition to the foregoing from the editorial columns of the Times-Dispatch, we would recommend a reading of the address delivered by Miss Mildred Lewis Rutherford, historian general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at the New Willard Hotel in Washington, Thursday, November 19, 1912, on the occasion of the national convention of the U. D. C. It has been included in the Congressional Record of January 21, 1913, as an "extension of remarks" of Hon. Samuel J. Tribble in the House of Representatives.

The following excerpts are but a small part of the great whole which made such a profound impression upon the audience at the New Willard, and upon the listeners in the House of Representatives:

"Who is responsible for the South's unwritten history? Surely we cannot blame the Northern historian. His duty is and was to record the facts as they are given to him; and if we of the South have not given him these facts, how can we hold the historian of the North responsible? The fault we find with the Northern historian—of course there are a few exceptions—is not so much what he has said against us as what he has omitted to say.

Do you know that the South has had a great part in the building of the Nation? If you examine those textbooks your children are studying, you would never think it. And from them they will never discover it.

The North has thought it worth while to preserve its history carefully, and we have not thought it worth while to have our history written. In other words, your children are studying what the North says, and not what the South should say.

Do you know that most of the men who took part—a prominent part—in the building of the Nation were the slaveholders that have been so maligned? When they were looking for a president of the first Continental Congress why did they go to Peyton Randolph, of Virginia, a slaveholder, to be at the head of that body? And why, when a resolution had to be drawn that these colonies must be free and independent states, did Richard Henry Lee, another slaveholder, have to write it? Why was it when they were seeking for someone to write the Declaration of Independence, they chose Thomas Jefferson, a slaveholder? Did not our George Mason, of Virginia, give the first declaration of rights ever passed on this continent? Then, when they were looking for a commander-in-chief of the army, did they not choose another slaveholder, George Washington? And was it not a Southern man that was made the first president of the United States? Was it not Thomas Jefferson that added the Louisiana purchase—millions of miles of territory—to the United States; and was it not James K. Polk, of Tennessee, that added the Pacific slope? There were fifteen presidents before 1860 and eleven of them were Southern men. Five of these were rejected, and every one from the South. It cannot be denied that Southern men were foremost in the War of 1812, and you know it took a Southern man, Francis Scott Key, of Maryland, to write our national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner?"

Do you know that William and Mary College, at Williamsburg, Va., was the first university in the United States? Now, mind you, I did not say 'college,' for I have no desire to take from Harvard her glory.

And when I urge upon you, Daughters of the Confederacy, to write the truth of history and to teach it to your children, it is with no desire to arouse in your hearts and minds, nor in their hearts and minds, any animosity or bitterness, but that all may intelligently comprehend the principles for which our fathers fought. Teach your children to resent their being called rebels and traitors, and let them know that our fathers fought so valiantly in order that they might preserve constitutional liberty. We will never be condemned for being Confederates, but the whole world has a right to condemn us if we are disloyal to truth and to our native land."

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

In another column we publish a letter from Mr. J. F. Breazeale on the subject of marking the historical points around Manassas. This is a worthy cause and should receive the earnest cooperation of every citizen of the town. Such a piece of work cannot be well performed by one individual. It must be done by some concerted action. Why not form an historical society to take up this work? These societies are successful and accomplish much good in other sections and it is time that Manassas should take some steps in this direction.

Two miles east on Signal Hill is a fort erected by Beauregard's army before the First Battle, and the position of the signal station where Major E. P. Alexander stood and sent to Gen. N. G. Evans at the Stone Bridge the first message ever sent by signal flags in actual warfare. On the left hand side of the railroad going north and about one-half mile from town, is the site of the old Foley House, Beauregard's headquarters before the First Battle.

About a quarter of a mile west of this is the old Liberia House, now Portner's property, Beauregard's headquarters after the First Battle. Where Hopkin's candy factory now stands, was the bake shop that supplied Pope's army with bread and which furnished at least one hot supper to Jackson's hungry troops.

These are but a few of the many places in this immediate vicinity that should be marked in a permanent way. Aside from its historical value, this will advertise Manassas and bring people here.

A large sign board erected at the depot, giving the principal points of interest, the direction and distance from Manassas would attract tourists.

The Journal would like to see those interested in this matter get together and organize.

BANISH THE GRADE CROSSING!

There is an almost daily accumulation of tragedies resulting from the collision of automobiles with express trains at grade crossings. They occur in all parts of the country. Is it not time for the railroad companies to realize that a new condition exists which they are in duty bound to recognize and meet as far as possible. It will be many years before grade crossings will be abolished, but it need not be many days before they are guarded, at least those where the sight of trains for a considerable distance is obscured. Granting that there is frequently failure on the part of motorists to take due precautions, that fact does not relieve the roads of their responsibility. On the contrary it rather increases it. The almost daily series of fatal accidents at grade crossings is becoming sickening. —Boston Transcript.

The Smith family becomes more powerful every day. For example, if all the Smiths in the United States Senate had voted against the Tariff bill it would have been defeated, 41 to 40, instead of being passed, 44 to 37. —Ex.

Mrs. W. S. Smith found an interesting relic, an old plate from the stock of a musket, on the old Thorn Hill place, near Woodbine church, now owned by Mr. Smith. It bears the engraved inscription, "Presented by Captain Arthur Sinclair, of United States Navy, to William Laughton, 1818." It is probable that this Captain Arthur Sinclair was an uncle of Mr. Arthur W. Sinclair, our new postmaster at Manassas. Mr. Sinclair is unable to speak positively about his kinsman, but well remembers seeing a tombstone, bearing the name with the peculiar spelling, in the old family burying ground at Dumfries, although Captain Sinclair died after the family moved to Brentsville.

About eight o'clock last night fire broke out in the old building on the northwest corner of Eastern College campus, now known as Eastern Laundry. The origin of the fire is unknown, although the laundresses were at work yesterday afternoon. When the fire engine reached the scene, the building was clothed in flames, and the sky was bright for some distance around. In less than five minutes the Manassas Fire Department had the blaze under complete control, while the crowd assembled thought it useless even to attempt to save the burning building. Handicapped as they were, rushing from all parts of the town, not knowing where water was to be had, etc., the quick work is a feat to be remembered. Eastern College carried $1,400 insurance on the building.

The Prosperous Life

By REV. PARLEY E. ZARTMANN, D.D. Secretary of Extension Department Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Blessed is the man... Whatsoever he doeth shall prosper... Not so the ungodly... But the way of the wicked shall perish.—Psalm 1:1, 2, 4, 6.

The book of the Psalms has been called the innermost sanctuary of the Christian life. The study of these poems is a source of never-ending delight and profit. Here we have the whole music of the heart of man, swept by the hand of his maker. "Here we hear the burst of his tenderness, the moan of his penitence, the pathos of his sorrow, the triumph of his victory, the despair of his defeat, the firmness of his confidence, and the rapture of his assured hope." In these poems many travelers of adversity and clime have found rivers of refreshment and wells of consolation. Here God opens the door, shows us his secret dwelling place, and tells us how we may get close to him in fellowship. Here he speaks to us; but more, here we speak, telling our own experiences and then crying to God: we have written many of the psalms out of the experiences of our own lives.

This first psalm is regarded as a sort of preface to the entire collection, specially it is a picture of the prosperous life, and by sharp contrast a picture of the life without God in it. There is really only one life worth considering or cultivating: that is the life hid with Christ in God, and it should be our utmost concern to make that life blessed. Consider the elements of such a life as set forth in the entire psalm.

Refusal. The prosperous life is sheltered behind a wall. Verses 1-3 set forth the great character, and it is marked by a great refusal. 1. Evil practice—walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly; 2. Evil habit—nor standeth in the way of sinners; 3. Evil character—nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. The prosperous life must not think wrongly, nor speak wrongly. If God is not in all your thoughts, loose thinking soon will lead to loose living, and things that would eat away the fiber of will and conscience and feeling. Oh! the blessedness of the happiness of the man who can say, I will not defile myself; who will not take these three downward steps in the evolution of sin; and God pity the man who has taken the third degree in sin.

But refusal of evil thought, practice, and habit is not enough. One does not acquire physical health, vigor and power simply by refusal to eat poisonous foods or drink damaging liquors. The physical life requires food. The soul grows beautiful and strong, and the life prosperous and useful not only by its great refusal, but by the reception of all things that are full of nourishment—the pure, the honest, the lovely, the things of good report. God not only brings us away from Egypt, he leads us into Canaan—a land flowing with milk and honey.

The life that refuses the evil and received the good will be crowned with glorious blessings. They are stated so plainly in this psalm. (I am indebted to a friend for those brief suggestions.) Noble growth—"like a tree." And that figure meant much in Palestine; propitious placing—"planted;" sustenance—"by the rivers of water;" fruitfulness—"that bring forth its fruit in its season;" beauty of character—"its leaf shall not wither;" real prosperity—"whatsoever he doeth shall prosper." This result is measured by God's standard—"all things work together for good to them that love God." Yes, above all conditions apparently unfavorable and all results temporarily distressing, this is God's way of rewarding the man who trusts him, who waits upon God for sustenance, who delights himself in God, and who makes God's will not only the law of his life, but the joy of his life, his daily life.

Contrast. Look at this picture—"Blessed is the man, whatsoever he doeth shall prosper, then on the other side of the road, not so." And by this sharp contrast and sudden change the psalmist increases the emphasis on the elements that constitute a prosperous life, and the blessings that attend it.

Unpopular Campaign. A campaign to close the public schools would be as unpopular as a campaign to close the public schools.

TEMPERANCE WITH SLASHED SKIRT IDEA THAT MAKES FOR GREATER COMFORT IN WALKING

Slight Opening and Draped Fullness From the Front Give Also the Effect of More Volume—Illustration Shows Result.

Two rival modes are being shown in which the prevailing movement toward greater comfort in narrow skirts is emphasized, says the Kansas City Star. One is in slashing the skirt at the feet and the other is in the panlier-like draperies and tunics which, although they do not add to the actual width at the foot, produce an appearance of amplitude by the extra width below the waist. A very good example of these two treatments is demonstrated in the accompanying sketch, which represents a new model developed in crepe de chine.

All of the soft, pliable silks of medium weight and color are being used for afternoon street and tea dresses, and there is nothing nicer than crepe de chine, which retains its hold on popular fancy despite the numberless newer weaves that swell the list. Oyster white is the color of this costume, and though the skirt is really quite narrow at the feet the slash allows ample room for walking, and the draped fullness from the front gives the effect of more volume. The skirt opens directly down the front and is trimmed part way with wide eyelet buttons. It is mounted to the waist with even gathers, and has some unstitched plaits laid in Government officials and the voting public generally will some time be convinced that it is very poor financing to foster an industry which makes so many people non-producers, results in the degeneration of families, and throws an army of incapables upon the state and upon charity organizations. But they will have to be shown. It behooves us as prohibitionists and as public sentiment makers to show them that "the cost of the drink traffic to the United States approximates annually $5,000,000,000 in loss of products, mortality and in crime and pauperism." Five billion dollars as against three hundred and fifty million—a balance of $4,650,000,000 on the debit page! It requires more than thirteen times the amount of revenue received from the traffic to take care of its consequences! The figures are astounding, but they are, we are assured by Prof. John A. Nields in his "Economic Studies of the Liquor Problem," the result of careful and conservative investigation made by expert statisticians.

We must show further that abolition of the liquor business does not mean abolition of the money it represents; that under nation-wide prohibition the same $50,000,000 will still be in circulation, still available for government needs; and that there are better and wiser ways of collecting it from the people than through saloonkeepers and brewers and distillers. The new income tax amendment to the federal constitution provides one way. Other ways and means will quickly be devised as the brains of voters, lawmakers and government financiers become more and more free from the benumbing and befogging influence of alcohol.

Back of the undoubted trend toward temperance in this country, says the Atlanta Constitution, is the economic force—the stern, unsentimental business edict, "Choose between your drink and your job."

Reform of this nature began first with the railroads. Above all other steady nerves, keen eyes. Many years ago crews were forbidden to drink while on duty. The interdiction gradually extended to include those on duty as well. Train dispatchers and trainmasters and general superintendents are finding that the man who "flashes" between runs is only a trifling less menacing to safety of traffic than the employe who carries a bottle with him on the trip. When a train is ditched through the snap of an alcoholized intelligencia it costs the road money. Therefore—alcohol must go.

The same principle is rapidly spreading to all occupations. The era is one of efficiency. Whisky makes against efficiency. "Personally you are entitled to your drink," says the employer to his employe, "but I am also entitled to efficiency. I can't compel you to sign the pledge or to observe the prohibition law, but I can observe the efficiency law, and will secure efficiency by refusing employment to the man who drinks."

To the Merchant. The liquor traffic is a parasite that thrives on the destruction of legitimate trade. Saloons are sponges that absorb that which should be spent with you. It is responsible for most of your bad accounts; it gets the cash of your good ones; it chokes the circulation!

MR. BRYAN IN MANASSAS

Party of Three Have Breakfast at New Prince William En Route to Washington.

Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan stopped over in Manassas Sunday morning after filling a chataqua engagement at Woodstock. He was accompanied by his secretary and a friend from Nebraska.

The party of three had a light breakfast at the New Prince William Hotel before boarding the 9:15 train for Washington. A commanding figure in a black Prince Albert and gray Fedora hat, Mr. Bryan was greeted by many of our townspeople during the short wait at the station and hotel.

"The Peerless Leader" still possesses the same pleasant engaging manner and magnetism which is apparent to the political enemy in the same degree as to the personal friend and party enthusiast.

PROPERTY VERSUS LIFE

Even Today Human Life Fails to Receive the Protection Accorded Property.

To the legal mind, apparently, the rights of property have always seemed of more importance than human life. For hundreds of years it was possible for a man brutally to maltreat his child with less legal risk than if he had poached a hare. Gradually human life became more valuable; but even today it fails to receive the protection that is accorded to property. It is no uncommon thing to find reported in British newspapers cases in which a drunken navy has kicked and otherwise abused his wife, to receive no greater punishment at the hands of the law than a paltry fine, while the unhappy wight who, driven by hunger, steals a loaf, is sent to prison. Nor do we need to go overseas to find such instances of the worship of property. An excellent illustration of the workings of the legal mind in problems of this kind is to be found in a study of ten Notices of Judgment issued by the United States Department of Agriculture and giving in detail the account of ten violations of the Food and Drugs Act. These ten cases deal with charges brought against the firm of Hawley and Hoops, New York, who are in the candy business. Hawley and Hoops sell what is known as "penny goods;" that is, the kind of candy purchased by the little tot who has been given a penny to spend. Ten different specimens of Hawley and Hoops' penny goods were seized by the officials of the Bureau of Chemistry and analyzed. All of them were found to be adulterated with arsenic and most of them shellac. All of them were being sold as chocolate candies, yet the officers reported that some did not even have the predominating flavor of chocolate. In every case the firm pleaded guilty. In nine out of the ten cases no penalty was imposed, the court suspending judgment. In the tenth case a fine of $50 was imposed. The case in which a fine was imposed was the one, and the only one, in which the company had not merely sold a poisonous product to little children, but had misstated the net weight of the package in which the arsenic containing candies came. Selling to little children as chocolate candy a mixture containing arsenic and shellac is, apparently, in the eyes of the law, a trivial offense. But selling to a dealer a package marked five pounds that really contained only four pounds fourteen and five-eighths ounces, that is a crime.

DEATHS

No sad message from a house of mourning could have fallen more heavily on the hearts of a community, than when early on the morning of Monday last, the people of Haymarket and vicinity were startled by the sorrowful news, that the popular and honored master of Waverley had, but a few moments before, fallen gently asleep in the arms of death.

The news was as swift and unexpected, as it was sad; and in a little while every resident of the neighborhood was a lamenting mourner. Just ten years previously, Col. N. T. DePauw had become a dweller among us, and purchasing the beautiful homestead, Waverley, was contributing much to the business and social attractiveness of the community, when came the sudden going out of his useful life.

Newland Talbot DePauw, son of Washington William, and Katherine Newland DePauw, of New Albany, Indiana, was fifty-seven years old at the time of his death. In January, 1911, he was married to his second wife, one of the loveliest of the young women of Haymarket, Miss Hallie Meade, who with his two daughters, Mrs. Vernon Knight of New Albany, Ind., and Mrs. Harold T. Gates of Louisville, Ky., children of his former marriage, yet survive him.

Col. DePauw was borne to his final place of rest in a lovely spot in the cemetery of St. Paul's church, Haymarket, in which old sanctuary he had been a faithful and constant worshipper, the rector, Rev. Morris S. Eagle officiating and the following friends acting as pallbearers: Active, Messrs. Geo. G. Tyler, Carl D. S. Clarkson, Jas. E. Beale, Wm. M. Jordan, Charles E. Keyser, and Drayton E. Meade; and honorary, Messrs. C. A. Heinke, Wm. L. Heuser, Wm. H. Brown, W. M. C. Dodge, Andrew Low, Franz Peters, Edmond Berkeley and Dr. H. M. Clarkson.

The large concourse of mourners who during the observance of the ritual, in spite of the weeping skies, gathered around his grave, piled high with beautiful flowers, showed more plainly than words could tell in what great esteem the people held the loved and lamented dead.

Dr. Walter Lee Austin, formerly of Mexico, now of Waco, Tex., who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. W. M. Dulin, of this place, left on Tuesday, Sept. 9, for Richmond, where he will spend several weeks and then return to his home in Waco. We look forward with pleasure to another visit from the doctor next year.

Misses Courtenay and Anna Davidge, who spent the summer at "The Grove," returned to their home in Washington last Tuesday.

Mr. Berkley Ellis is visiting at "The Mill." We are glad to see Mr. J. S. Wood, better known as "Ceph," in his old place at the store, and we hope he will continue to hold it down.

We are very sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. John McCrae, who departed this life on Thursday, Sept. 11, at her home in Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y. The interment was in the Greenwich Presbyterian churchyard on Saturday, Sept. 13. The grave was beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers. Mrs. McCrae was born in England, but came to this country and to "The Lawn" when quite young. She was the granddaughter of Charles Green, Sr., and the daughter of the late Charles Green, Jr. She leaves a husband, John McCrae, one daughter, Katherine, and two sons, John, Jr., and Elliott McCrae.

"Out all Night in the Wet"

SOUNDS tragic, but it's far from that. It's the glad story about the wool in the Kirschbaum Clothes we have for you this fall. They are shrunk by the original London cold-water process. The woollens stand between cold, wet cloths all night. Result is that every iota of shrink is taken out of the fabric before it is cut and made up.

No amount of rain, snow, hail or drizzle can take the tuck out of the suit after that. The only wrinkles that can come are the harmless kind that a hot iron quickly takes away.

So you just laugh up your Kirschbaum sleeve when the weather prophet makes mistakes.

Style? No one can get better fashions than you will have in your Kirschbaum Suit. That is an actual fact.

And count upon this—you will get the most perfect fitting clothes anyone can wear.
