HEALTH CAMPAIGN FOR THE COUNTY ASSURED

All Organizations and Each Individual at Work to Make Ours a Banner County.

Miss E. H. OSBOURN
Chairman of County Committee.
The movement now under way in Prince William to secure one of the twenty intensive health campaigns offered by the state and federal governments is everywhere coming forward with great success. The churches, schools and Red Cross are helping in the work, and the various women's clubs of the county have either raised the quota asked of them, or are preparing to do so. The schools are all responding cordially in the work of raising the required $1,000 and are also distributing literature on the subject throughout the county. Last week most of the county schools held meetings or entertainments in the interest of the campaign; this week, the schools of Manassas are preparing for their share. The primary classes of Manassas graded school have, through the courtesy of the management of the Dixie Theatre, secured a benefit performance for Friday afternoon; the upper grades will give an entertainment next week; and, on Saturday night, the high school will hold a benefit carnival at Conner's Hall.

This Health Campaign offered by the government, which Prince William is working to obtain, will be conducted by a state commission sent out by Dr. Ennon G. Williams, head of the Virginia State Board of Health. The commission will, it is understood, consist of the physician in charge and his assistants, including a nurse. A year will probably be needed to complete the work, which will include:

1. Thorough going measures against influenza, typhoid and related diseases.
 2. Complete health-inspection of the county schools.
- In the fight against typhoid and related diseases, measures will be taken to prevent contamination of the milk, water and food supplies of the county. War will also be waged against the household fly, which is one of the chief carriers of the typhoid germ. Influenza and tuberculosis are not so easily guarded against, as the germs of these diseases are inhaled into the lungs; but precautions will be taken against them, and instructions given for the treatment and cure of these diseases when under way. It has been estimated that a very large proportion of the recent deaths from influenza might have been easily prevented, had there been a little more knowledge, on the part of the public, of a few simple facts in the prevention and treatment of the disease. This knowledge the government health departments are now endeavoring to provide by offering short courses in home nursing to the women of the country.

The second feature of the campaign will consist of a full inspection of the schools and of the school children. This latter means a test of the sight and hearing, a vaccination for exposure of nasal obstruction, disordered tonsils, and effective development of the nervous system. Signs of early heart lung disease are enlarged lungs, and other symptoms of these diseases.

AN EGG CONTEST

Who Has Ten Hen Eggs That Weigh Two Pounds?

Prince William county seems to be establishing a reputation for big things in various lines. Our columns frequently contain statements of surprising accomplishments. Other county papers do not claim to compete with our notices. Rivalry appears to be confined to our own citizens, so that greatness, apparently, is local.

The latest remarkable exhibit, shown in our window this week, is a basket of ten hen eggs, which lack one ounce of weighing two pounds. They were laid by a Rhode Island Red, owned by Mrs. Robert A. Hutchison.

One of our Spanish friends, when learning English, was accustomed to ask for a "pair of eggs." Had he been at Mrs. Hutchison's breakfast table he would have been satisfied with a single specimen of the henery.

We have seen eggs sold at the regular price although they were not half the size of these. If these were sold they would bring no more than smaller ones. This is evidence that eggs should be sold by weight. Then justice would be shown to both producer and consumer.

MILK SCARCITY

Our Community Obligated to Purchase the Condensed Kind.

"Water, water, everywhere,
Nor yet a drop to drink."
So sang the "Ancient Mariner" according to Coleridge. But he was right, and there was no water to drink. We know that milk is plentiful, but scarce. In the country, where milk is produced, there is more trouble in getting this "lacteal fluid" than in towns or even cities. Most of the milk from farms near Manassas is shipped to Washington. Retailers are unable to supply the demand and their ranks are being gradually reduced, as they find it more convenient to ship their product.

It looks as though our town authorities will need to come to the rescue of citizens, in order to save them from being obliged to use the condensed article or nothing.

In some communities there is a "Municipal Milk Supply Association" organized. Shall we have one, so that we can get this necessary commodity?

We have just learned that Mr. J. S. Green plans to relieve the milk drought by selling everything from 40 per cent cream to skimmed milk on our streets daily. We hail this good Samaritan and trust that he will get instead of give good silver in exchange for his wares.

JAMES BUCHER'S ILLNESS

James Bucher, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. P. Bucher, who developed acute nephritis last November, and was sent at once to Sibley Hospital, Washington, has sufficiently improved to return home. His father brought him back on Tuesday. Dr. Caryl Burbank, who treated James, said that the promptness with which he had been hurried to the hospital made possible his restoration, as his condition was such that he scarcely could have been cured without immediate special treatment. He responded to the medical treatment and no operation was necessary.

PAUL A. OLINGER KILLED

Hit in the Temple With a Baseball Fracturing Skull.

The community of Nokesville was shocked and saddened last week by a distressing, fatal accident that occurred to Paul Arvin Olinger.

Paul was a student at the Nokesville High School. On Tuesday of last week at noon he was playing baseball. As catcher, he wore a mask, but it was made for very small boys and did not fit tight on his head or completely protect him. A pitched ball missed his hands and struck him on the temple, knocking him unconscious. After a while he regained his senses and continued his work at school although suffering from a severe headache. He returned to his studies on Wednesday, but at 2 o'clock he felt unwell and his teacher permitted him to go to his home, one-half mile from town. Shortly afterward he started to Nokesville to see the doctor. He fell unconscious on the street at Nokesville before seeing his physician and was taken home where the doctor attended him. On Thursday he was removed to the emergency hospital at Washington where he died about 4:30 in the afternoon, 30 minutes after he had undergone an operation. It was found that he had not only concussion of the brain, but his skull was cracked. The family removed from New Market about one year ago. The remains were taken back there, where Paul was born, for burial. The funeral services were held in the New Market Lutheran church on Sunday at 2 p. m. Rev. J. B. Berrick, officiating.

The interment was at the cemetery adjoining the church. The pall bearers were Alfred Schaeffer, Norval Free, Robert Walter and Elwood McCarthy. The gray casket was covered with many beautiful flowers, showing the love and esteem with which Paul was held by everyone.

In addition to members of the family, Mrs. Lucille Free and Mrs. Charles Fitzwater, both of Nokesville, accompanied the remains to their last resting place.

Paul is survived by his parents and the following brothers and sisters: Mr. Robert E. Olinger, of Alexandria; Mr. Charles Olinger, of New York City; Mr. D. Miller Olinger, of Washington; Mrs. Jessie A. Zirkle, of New Market; Mrs. Albert S. Zirkle, of Quantico; and Miss Ruth Olinger, of Nokesville.

J. TAYLOR ELLYSON DEAD

Lieut.-Governor Three Terms—Active in Public Life.

Former Lieut.-Governor J. Taylor Ellyson, aged 72, died at Richmond on Tuesday morning, of heart disease. He was buried yesterday.

For many years Mr. Ellyson had been a conspicuous figure in Virginia business, military, political and religious life.

He left college to enter the Confederate army. After Appomattox he resumed his studies and graduated.

Early in life he was in business besides being president of the city council and board of public interests. After serving as state senator from 1885 to 1888, he became mayor of Richmond, serving three terms. For three terms, ending in 1910, he was

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE

Union Service on April 6—Paper on Choirs and Clergymen.

A very interesting meeting of the Manassas Ministerial Conference was held at the home of the president, Rev. Alford Kelley, at 10 o'clock Monday morning, March 17. The following members were present: Revs. Kelley, Clark, Gibson, Halpenny, Hutchison and Burr. The invocation was offered by Rev. Westwood Hutchison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The first business taken up was the arranging of a program for the regular quarterly missionary service Sunday, April 6th, at 8 p. m.

This being the second anniversary of the entrance of our country into the great world-war, it was thought best to have a program in keeping with the occasion. Almost every one has done something towards the winning of this war, thus "making the world safe for democracy." One of the duties now confronting the church is to "make democracy safe for the world." Almost every church is now conducting some kind of a campaign, the object of which is the betterment of the world in the new era now upon us.

"Denominational Missionary Rejuvenation" is the general subject for the service of the evening of April 6th. At that time each member of the conference is expected to take five minutes to tell what his particular denomination is doing and what it proposes to do during the reconstruction period.

The offering will go to the Y. W. C. A. quota, which has not been reached in the county. Miss Mary Larkin, chairman of the Y. W. C. A., will arrange a musical program for the occasion.

A vote of thanks was tendered Rev. Alford Kelley for a very interesting paper read before the conference, the subject being, "Queries About Choirs and Clergymen." The paper was the object of some kind comments and criticisms. So well pleased were the members of the conference with the paper that it was unanimously requested that it be published in each of the town papers.

The conference adjourned to meet on the third Monday in June at which time Rev. E. Z. Pence is expected to favor the conference with a paper.

H. Q. BURR, Sec'y.

MRS. SAMUEL C. KINCAID

Mrs. Anna Margaret Barron Kincaid, wife of Samuel C. Kincaid, died yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Barron, 1132 Murray Hill avenue, of pneumonia. She had recently returned with her husband from Wellington, Prince William county, Virginia, where they had resided for several years preparatory to making their home here. She was a member of the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg and her husband is a graduate of Pennsylvania State College, class of 1913. A son born to Mrs. Kincaid the day before her death, died a few hours after birth. Besides her husband and parents, Kincaid, and two brothers, Alexander and Edward T. Barron, of Newick, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. J. M. Barron, of Newick.

A. W. LOUGH DEAD

Resident of West Virginia Dies at His Daughter's Home.

Mr. Ambrose Martin Lough died on Sunday at 11 p. m. at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Howard Varner near Milford Mills, aged 71, of pleurisy.

Mr. Lough was from Pendleton county, West Virginia, where he was born and where he lived most of the time until he came to live with his daughter two months ago, at the time of her husband's death. Mr. Lough's wife died twelve years ago, since then he has made his home at different periods with relatives.

The funeral services were conducted in the Cannon Branch Brethren church on Tuesday afternoon by Revs. E. E. Blough and J. M. Kline, the interment being in the church cemetery adjoining. Mr. Lough was a member of the United Brethren church.

Mr. Lough leaves two daughters, Mrs. Varner, widow of Mr. Howard Pinkney Varner, who died two months ago on the farm of Mr. S. C. Harley, where he had been working, and Mrs. Charles Harmon, of Charlottesville; also one brother, Mr. D. J. Lough, of Marshall, Va.

SPECIAL ELECTION

Congressman Carlin's Successor to be Chosen May 27th.

Governor Davis has called a special election for the 27th day of May, 1919, for the election of a member of congress from the eighth congressional district, to fill the vacancy caused by the failure of Hon. C. C. Carlin to qualify.

The democratic committee of the eighth district, at a meeting held in Alexandria yesterday, set the 22nd day of April for the democratic primary, and the 5th day of April as the last day upon which candidates in said primary can file their notice and make the necessary deposit of their pro rata share of the primary expenses, which the committee estimated at $2,000.

Hon. R. Walton Moore and Mr. H. Earleton Hanes, both of Fairfax county, and both of whom have announced their candidacy, attended the meeting of the committee.

As will be seen in another column, Hon. R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax county, makes formal announcement of his candidacy for congress from this district. Mr. H. Earleton Hanes, of Fairfax county, also announces his candidacy. Mr. Hanes was one of the defeated candidates for the nomination last year. His announcement at this time has occasioned a good deal of surprise among his friends.

MISS EMMA ARNOLD DEAD

Dies in Philadelphia, Buried at Aden Wednesday.

Miss Emma Arnold, aged 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Arnold, of Aden, died on Sunday in Philadelphia of acute indigestion.

The services connected with the funeral were conducted in the Aden United Brethren church Wednesday at 1 o'clock by Rev. L. C. Messick. The burial was at the Valley View cemetery.

MR. PATRICK H. LYNCH

KILLED ON RAILROAD

Inspection Car Runs Into Open Switch—Is Thrown Against Wheel, Skull Fractured.

Mr. Patrick H. Lynch, of this place, died early this morning in Staunton, Va., as the result of injuries received Wednesday, this week, in a railroad accident.

Mr. Lynch, who was road master of the Valley Division of the Southern Railway, was riding into the yard at Staunton, on a motor driven inspection car, when the sad accident occurred.

Having passed through Staunton Wednesday morning enroute from Harrisonburg to Lexington on the morning south-bound train, Mr. Lynch and two other officials, G. E. Rohr, of Strasburg, trainmaster, and M. M. Woodyard, of Harrisonburg, track supervisor on the Valley Division of the Southern Railway, returned to this city on the 1:36 train Wednesday afternoon. From Staunton it was their intention to return to Harrisonburg on the small inspection car then at the local station. The three officials boarded the car and were driving through the yards near the freight station at a rate of seven miles an hour, when the car ran into an open switch which derailed it.

The yard engine was shifting cars at the time and the men, instead of watching the track, had their eyes on the moving engine and did not see the open switch which leads off the main line to the gas house. Mr. Lynch was thrown off head first, his head striking the wheel, fracturing his skull. He fell between the rails, the car passing over his body. Messrs. Rohr and Woodyard also were thrown off but escaped injury. Mr. Lynch was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken immediately to the hospital, where he died this morning. Later in the afternoon Mr. Woodyard returned to Harrisonburg, Mr. Rohr remaining in Staunton.

Mr. Lynch has been in the employ of the Southern Railway Company for thirty years and had established an excellent record for service.

Mr. Lynch was born in May, 1861, at Clifton, Va., of Martin and Margaret Lynch.

He married Miss Mary Jane Higgin, and of this union were born the following children: Miss Mamie Lynch, of Manassas, Va.; Mrs. Ellen Berry, of Phoenix, Arizona; Mrs. Helena Emerson, of Philadelphia; Mr. Edward Lynch, who is now wounded in France; Miss Margaret Lynch, of Manassas; Mr. Geo. Ollie Lynch, who died in France recently as the result of wounds received in battle, and Mr. Thos. B. Lynch. He is also survived by his brother, Mr. M. Lynch, who had been his business associate and partner for many years.

His death not only brings a profound sorrow into the homes of those who knew and loved him, but it causes an irreparable loss among his business associates.

It is not too much to say of him that no man ever lived in this community whose character and reputation for personal integrity were better.

It is expected that the train will arrive tonight and the general have no doubt that the

Arguments are sometimes heard that such examinations and supervision on the part of the school authorities are quite unnecessary, as the parents look after such matters themselves. But the painful fact remains that a large percentage of the parents are either not awake to the vital importance of such supervision, or cannot provide it. So, however careful the individual parent may be of his children's health, unless there is school health supervision, he must send them to a school where their general development may be stunted, or tuberculosis acquired by spending their growing years in close unventilated rooms; or where they may contract typhoid by a contaminated water supply; or a dozen other diseases from their desk neighbors, whose parents may not look after their health. No care on the part of individual parents, but only skilled health supervision on the part of the schools, can prevent the constant recurrence of such tragedies.

Of course the school is not wholly responsible for fostering or spreading diseases, the home fully shares this responsibility also. Here the school nurse is invaluable for bringing the home and the school together in their common duty of safe-guarding the health of the child.

Thousands of cases might be cited where children make little progress at school because of adenoids, or of defective eye sight or hearing; or because of teeth so decayed as to fill their whole system with poison; or because of lungs or bones a prey to tubercular infection. Most of this misery and suffering could be prevented by adequate school inspection, with a school nurse keeping the home and school in touch.

According to the United States Public Health Service and the National Educational Association, 20 per cent. of the money spent on education in the United States is wasted on account of physical defects, most of which could be corrected. This means a loss every year of millions of dollars.

Why should Virginia continue to waste money like this? "To spend public money in this way," says the State Board of Health, "in an endeavor to train made handicapped by removable physical defects, and to do nothing to correct these defects, is manifestly poor economy as well as poor common sense."

Through the boards of health and physicians employed, many of the cities are already taking care of the health of their school children, but little has been done in the rural districts although the need here is greatest. Only one per cent. of the counties in Virginia are employing school nurses or nurses. Will not Prince William be among the first to be added to this list by securing this health campaign this year, and thus beginning health inspection in her schools? She has been progressive along many other lines, will she not now take up this vitally important work?

"That's a fine job," says the satisfied customer, whose printer has been filled by the county's job department. See our work and get our quotations on cards. Our heads, etc.

ADEN.

On Tuesday, March 12, Aden school received a letter from our division superintendent, Mr. C. R. McDonald, asking our school to contribute to the Aden children fund not less than the sum of $15, five dollars for each of the three rooms. On Wednesday, we appointed the below named children to solicit for this fund, giving them their papers and allowing them to solicit part of Thursday and Friday after reciting their most important lessons, with the below results: Winifred Baggott, Claude Flory, Leola Herring, Virginia Shafer, Ida Wright and Lucian Wright collected $12.91; Julian Shafer, Paul Gardner, Edith Horne, Francis Wood, Delmar Collier and Allen Herring collected $19.89, making a total of $32.80. Our school led the county schools in collecting for the Armenia relief fund some time ago, and we hope to be as good as any in this collection. Old Aden is hard to beat when it comes to liberality.

We are very sorry to learn of the death of Paul Olinger, one of Nokesville High School boys. As the writer is attached to all the school there, she wishes to extend her sincerest sympathy to the bereaved ones in the loss of this fine boy.

Mrs. Arnold went to Baltimore Saturday morning to visit her son. A telegram was received from Philadelphia Saturday evening stating that her daughter, Miss Emma, was critically ill and to come at once. Her son, with whom she was visiting in Baltimore had recently moved, so neither Mr. Arnold nor Mr. James knew where to forward the telegram. Mr. Arnold met No. 15 Saturday evening in an automobile to get Mrs. Arnold and take her to catch the fast train north at Manassas. While waiting for the train to come, a message was received saying, "Emma is dead." Oh the shock those few words will be to that devoted mother as she steps off the train. May God, in His infinite mercy, comfort her. He alone can.

Mr. Ed Earhart, our enterprising real estate agent, has just returned from Harrisonburg, where he was called to attend the funeral of his nephew, Leonard Briggs.

Mrs. Grace Kelly, of Harrisonburg, whose husband died in France last July, who is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Minnie Baggott, is slightly ill at this writing, but is not confined to her bed.

The store formerly owned by Mr. Clarence Horton has been reopened and is now conducted by Mr. Adams.

Mr. Waters recently moved to Mr. Well's place and his son has moved on Mr. Dorsey Wright's farm.

Mr. Riteneur, from Shenandoah county, has moved to Mr. Bowman's place in Aden.

Red Cross Again Collecting Articles for War Victims

The investigations of Mr. Herbert Hoover, into the actual conditions in the recently occupied territory of Europe, have revealed a state of destitution far greater than we in this country can possibly realize.

Kind of Garments Needed. Every kind of garment, for all ages and both sexes, is urgently needed. In addition, piece goods, light, warm canton flannel and other kinds of cloth from which to make garments for new-born babies, ticking, sheeting and blankets, woolen goods of any kind, soft hats and caps for all ages, sweaters of any kind and size, and shoes of every size are asked for.

Since the clothes will be subjected to the hardest kind of wear, only garments of strong and durable materials should be sent. Garments need not be in perfect condition. Many thousand destitute women in the devastated regions are eager to earn a small livelihood by repairing gift clothing and making new garments adapted to needs with which they are familiar.

The following list is suggestive of the kind of articles that should be sent:

Men's Wear—Shirts (preferably of light colored flannels), shoes, undershirts, coats, overcoats, undershirts, work suits, jerseys, socks, trousers, suits, sweaters, sweater vests.

Women's Wear—Skirts, shoes, blouses, drawers, shirts, cloth hats, corset slips, coats, knitted caps, petticoats, suits (two-piece), stockings, undergarments.

Boys' Wear—Shirts, coats, shoes, union suits (woolen and cotton), overcoats, undershirts, suits, jerseys, sweaters, trousers, socks, stockings.

Girls' Wear—Dresses, drawers, petticoats, skirts, stockings, suits, overcoats, undergarments, blouses, nightdresses, waists, shoes.

Boys' and Girls' Wear—Pinafores, hooded caps, mufflers.

Infants' Wear—Baby blankets, socks, shoes, baby shirts, bonnets, sweaters, bibs, baby dresses, booties, shawls, diapers, cloaks, jackets.

Miscellaneous—Bedticks, bed-sheets, pillow cases, blankets, bath towels, hand towels.

List of Garments Which Should Not Be Sent.

Bath dresses, derby hats, mat-dresses, collars, canes, flimsy dresses, trimming for hats, neckties, clocks, parasols, rugs, high hats, feathers, glassware, shoe trees, pillows, carpets, straw hats, umbrellas, toys, crutches, crockery, no foodstuffs.

Night Hiking, Under Constant Fire, for Rations

Mrs. E. W. Molair has received the following letter from her brother, Private Charles A. Robinson of Co. H, 214th Infantry, A. E. F. in France. Private Robinson is the son of Mrs. J. H. Robinson, of Manassas.

Writing to his sister, he says that he is well and got two letters from home on the day he wrote and was glad to hear from all. Continuing, he says: "We joined Co. H on Oct. 25. On the 28th, we started for the front. We did all our hiking at night. We'd start about dark and hike until two or three o'clock in the morning. It was some hiking, all right. I carried a full pack, gas mask, helmet, rifle and two hundred rounds of ammunition."

We got to the front on the 30th of October. We moved up in the Belle woods. Companies E, F and G held the front lines. Company H was back of the lines in reserve. It was in a worse place than the front lines. The boche would shell us every day. We had to carry rations up to the other companies and had to go about two miles for the rations. The shells would drop pretty close to us sometimes. I came through it all right. Guess it was luck that they did not get me. Hope this will be the last war I have to go through. The only thing we worry about is, "when are we going home?"

"We are getting things fixed up pretty good now—have electric lights in our billet and have two stoves. All the houses and barns are built together, and the farmers all live in little villages. It looks strange, not to see a farm house any where around here."

"Roanoke is the place where we are. We get plenty of cats, beef potatoes, beans and syrup. I am getting fat. Guess I now weigh about 150 pounds. I got a new pair of trousers, and will need a new blouse to wear home. We have plenty of clothes to wear and keep pretty warm. I have a sleeveless sweater and a leather coat and a heavy overcoat, so, you see, we keep warm."

It is not as cold here as it is in the states. We have 'movies' at the 'Y' once a week. Last Sunday they gave us cocoa and cake. When I get home I can tell you all about France. I have not been to Paris yet. May get a chance to before I come home. I have not seen any boys from home yet. All of our boys are from Pennsylvania and came from Camp Meade last July."

DUMFRIES.

Mrs. Martha McInteen continues very ill. Her daughter, Mrs. Hattie Viole, is home with her for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid expect soon to move into their new home near Mt. Holly.

Mrs. Annie Merchant and daughter, Miss Viola, have been down with the rather fashionable "flu," but we are glad to say both are improving now.

Look over your bank book, boys. We saw Dr. Cline come in with three more new Chevrolet's Friday. This mud won't last always.

The young folks of the town organized an Epworth League Tuesday night. Officers elected were, president, Cecil Garrison; vice-president, George Waters; secretary, Wilson Merchant; assistant secretary, Miss Delma Harris; treasurer, Miss Constance Waters. Meetings will be held every Friday evening at 7:30 p. m. at the M. E. church. Mrs. Beulah Brawner has charge of the young folks. Get busy. Come out.

Messrs. Lambert and Linnie McInteen, of Washington, spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McInteen.

Mr. G. M. Cline has recovered from the "flu" and resumed his duties as teacher of the Cherry Hill school.

Mrs. Phillip Calvert, who has been very ill, we are glad to say is now improving.

Rev. Beard called to see little Miss Elizabeth Randolph Brown Monday evening.

Miss Eulah Keys spent Sunday evening with Mrs. C. W. Garrison and Mrs. D. C. Cline.

LETTER FROM SERGEANT
NESTOR CURRELL PATTIE*Thrilling Account of the Terrible
Fighting in the Argonne Forest and Elsewhere in France.

The following is a copy of a letter written by one of the boys of the 80th Division to his people and the letter was sent by Sergt. N. C. Pattie to his brother, Mr. E. N. Pattie, of Catharpin, Va., and Sergt. Pattie says that every word in it is true:

Aisy, France,

December 16, 1918.

Some experiences of the 315th Field Artillery, 155th F. A. Brigade of the Fighting 80th Division.

We, the 315th F. A., arrived in France Sunday, June 9, 1918, at Bordeaux. After a five-day rest we entrained for Redon, arriving there 24 hours later. From there a part of our men were sent to different parts of France to gather up horses for our regiment and brigade.

After getting our horses we left Redon, arriving in Camp Meucon after a very hard four-day hike. In Camp Meucon we all received our artillery practice. There we qualified, and on September 16th, left for some actual experience with the Boche. We arrived at Souilly on the Western Front near Verdun on September 19th.

We placed our guns in our first firing position at Le-Mort-Homme, which in French is Dead Man's Hill. There we had our first experience with the Huns. About 2 a. m. on September 26th, our great barrage began. After quite a number of hours' hard fighting we gained Dead Man's Hill, with Hill 281 and also the greatest observation post in France, located at Montfaucon. This is where the German Crown Prince watched the slaughter of his own men about two years ago, in the battle of Verdun, which was fought on Dead Man's Hill.

From there we advanced about six miles, taking our second position in or near the town of Bethencourt. Our fighting 80th Division could not be contented, and again they advanced. From there we captured and placed our guns near Nantilly known as Gas Hollow. In this position were our first casualties. The roads and fields were strewn with dead men. Shells were bursting everywhere. The roads were almost impassible. Men were dying all around us, but we still advanced after taking our next artillery position at Montfaucon.

After two weeks hard fighting we again advanced through a forest of woods, under heavy shell fire, to Cierges. There our fighting 80th Division Infantry was relieved for replacement, and we, the artillery, were attached to another infantry division. The boys that relieved our fighting 80th for some reason did not show the spirit that our infantry boys did. We certainly thought at that time that we were going to have to occupy the front line trenches ourselves to save our big guns. Times were so critical that if our 80th Division Engineers had not come to our rescue we would have been out of luck. With our engineers we held this position until the Rainbow Division arrived. From there we advanced, capturing the town of Romague. At this place we had the saddest experience of our lives, but we not only held this position but advanced.

On November 1st we gave the Germans a second great barrage. This was one of the greatest, hardest, bloodiest battles fought in France. We were at this time attached to the 90th Division Infantry. At this position our artillery came in close contact, the enemy making a counter attack that was repelled.

fight with, and help the 90th to drive the enemy back.

The 90th Division Infantry does not know the word "retreat." If ever we held a position being greatly outnumbered these 90th Division Infantry boys did. Our fighting 80th Division Infantry, which was back for replacement again, arrived fresh and full of spirit and grit, and with them on our left we again advanced. With our heavy barrage on November 1st we captured the noted Argonne Forest sector, known as the bloodiest, hardest sector on the entire front. We captured at this time thousands of prisoners and guns of every description. From this position we continually advanced, only being stopped at two particular points, and then for only a very short time; one near Bantheville and the other I can not recall at present.

On November 10th we crossed the Meuse River at the town of Sassy, we being the first artillery brigade to cross the Meuse. We went into position near Mouzay. At 11 a. m. the next day we received our orders to cease firing. The entire 155th Brigade was in the Verdun-Argonne offensive from September 26th to November 11th, inclusive, and at no time day or night were our guns silent. We will tell our personal experiences when we return to the United States.

PAUL SPRINKEL'S LETTER

Shells Flying—People Wear Wooden Shoes—Terrible Scenes of Blood.

The following letter was received by Mrs. Sarah Keys from her grandson, Private Paul Sprinkel.

"Serqueux, France, Jan. 14, 1919.

Dear Grandma:

Your letter received today and I certainly was glad to hear from you. I began to think you had forgotten me. I hope this letter finds you well. Yes, I think we will be home soon. Yes, France is a very beautiful place after having four years of war. In some parts of France, you wouldn't know there was a war going on, but when you get up around the trenches you can tell there has been some fun going on. When we first landed in France, we went on a quiet sector called the Alsace Lorraine, but when the 116th regiment got there you bet something started. There were a few shells flying around one night. I tell you it makes your skin crawl and your heart come up into your mouth to hear them flying around and bursting. The people know when they are going to shell a town and you can hear their wooden shoes playing "Home, Sweet Home," then you know it is time to find a dugout. They take their beds and go to a dugout.

From there we went to the Verdun sector. That is where the big fight took place. There was very little fighting in the trenches. We had a hill to capture. It was defended by Austrians. They were tired of fighting and didn't put up a very hard fight. There were plenty of prisoners. They were on the road all the night and the next day, too. I saw one with a machine gun chained to him. It was welded to his arm. The next day we struck some Germans and they seemed to like the game very much. I tell you it was a terrible sight to see horse blood and human blood running together. I saw twenty horses and one mule fall at one time from one shell. A German was up a tree with a machine gun; he was painted green and killed seven before they got him. Their dugouts were fixed up like a parlor. They even had an electric plant there, but soon had to leave it behind. They retreated back to the woods at a place called the Argonne Forest. That is where we lost most of our men. Then they got them out of there and in a valley called Death Valley and Dead Man's Hill. While in the valley airplanes would fly down on the men and shoot at them with machine guns.

Well, as I haven't much time, I will write more the next time. Give my love to mama and "Tay" and all the children.

Hoping to hear from you again. I am, your true grandson,
PAUL SPRINKEL.

RED CROSS EXECUTIVES Funds for Supplies and Health Campaign Home Service.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Prince William County Chapter of the American Red Cross was held Monday evening at the home of the secretary, Miss Mary Larkin. Mrs. W. Fewell Merchant was named director of the campaign for the collection of old clothing for war sufferers, and Miss M. E. Rixey having resigned as chairman of the knitting committee, Mrs. A. W. Sinclair was appointed knitting chairman and Miss Rixey and Miss Alberta Hopkins were asked to serve on Mrs. Sinclair's committee.

The committee voted to make a monthly contribution of $100 to headquarters for general Red Cross work and in lieu of payment of supplies, which are furnished by headquarters without cost to the chapter, provided that each branch organization is willing to contribute $5 of this amount.

The committee also voted to contribute $50 to the proposed health campaign for Prince William county, provided that headquarters approves the appropriation.

The matter of employing a trained Home Service worker for several months to effect a stronger Home Service organization in the county was discussed, and a letter from Miss Helen K. Shipps, director of the Potomac Division Bureau of Home Service Education was read, Miss Shipps stating that she would be able to supply the desired worker by April 15. The committee sentiment, however, favored May 1st as giving better time for the roads to improve with advancing spring and making travel easier.

The committee accepted the invitation of Grace M. E. church, through its pastor Rev. H. Q. Burr, to hold the next meeting in that church on the first Monday in April. Bills amounting to about $30 were approved and ordered paid.

TRACTOR-DEMONSTRATION

From Harrisonburg Toward Bridgewater, April 10 on Mcadam road.

Mr. Campfield, county agent in Rockingham county, has written our agent a letter telling him about a real big "Tractor Demonstration" that will be held on land along the macadam road six miles from Harrisonburg toward Bridgewater on April 10th.

A large number of tractors are expected to compete in this show and no two will be alike, each using the kind of fuel its makers advertise for its use. Indications are that several thousand people will attend. Lunch will be sold on the ground. One of the best posted tractor engineers of the country will speak during the noon hour, and circulars printed by the Extension Division of Blacksburg will be distributed giving suggestions to farmers in buying tractors. Quite a variety of work will be done by the tractors. If you are undecided about the kind of a tractor to buy or whether to buy any at all it might pay you to witness this demonstration.

A TRIBUTE

Lines in memory of my dear mother and brother Carl, who departed this life January 17, 1919.

Mother dear, each day you're gone
We miss you more.
Our hearts are often sad and lone,
We miss you more.
And, oh! how oft we sadly weep
That we, our mother could not keep,
But God knew best, His ways are deep,
We miss you more.

And too, dear Carl, we think of you
And miss you more.
We're sure you're safe, and yet 'tis true
We miss you more.

And when you told us you would go
By the beautiful narrow road, we know
If led you home, safe from all woes,
We miss you more.

SOIL ACIDITY

How to Determine if Soil is Sour by the Litmus Paper Test

Organic matter, such as green manures, crop residues and farm manure, either immediately or ultimately, produce acidity, in the process of fermentation and decomposition, of a nature harmful to the growth of plants requiring a neutral or alkaline soil.

A simple and trustworthy test for determining if a soil is sour is the litmus paper test, which is usually made as follows:

Make a ball of moist soil and break it in two; insert a strip of blue litmus paper, which can be purchased at the drug store, and press together firmly. After five or ten minutes, open the ball and examine the paper. If it has changed from blue to pink or red, the soil is acid and needs an application of lime. If the soil is moderately dry, the change in color may appear only in spots, and greater pressure and more time may be required. The rapidity of change and intensity of color developed indicate to some extent the relative degree of acidity. It is very important to test the subsoil as well as the surface soil, for if the subsoil is strongly acid then the capillary moisture, which rises in time of drought, will tend to carry increased acidity to the surface, whereas if the subsoil contains lime, the rising moisture will tend to neutralize the surface acidity and this may even save the life of such plants as clover during a critical period.

As many of the garden crops require a neutral or alkaline soil, family gardeners should make a litmus test of their soils. If found to be acid, an application of lime will be very beneficial to the yields.

STORE CHANGES HANDS

H. A. Shoemaker Buys the J. W. Smith Business.

Men may come and men may go, but stores go on forever. Some such sentiment has been written in poet's form by Tennyson. Mr. J. W. Smith, who purchased the five and ten cent store about three years ago from our present postmaster, Mr. W. W. Davies, has in turn sold it to Mr. H. A. Shoemaker, who recently moved to town from his farm near Manassas.

Mr. Shoemaker was planning to start a new general store in the Sprinkel building, having had ten years' experience in southwestern Virginia, and had ordered his new stock. As Mr. Smith wished to sell out, Mr. Shoemaker bought him out and cancelled the contract for the Sprinkel room. Both men are now busy taking stock, when not selling some of it, so that Mr. Shoemaker will not have full possession for a week or more. Mr. Smith has not yet decided on his future employment.

O'NEIL—WOODYARD

Mr. Owan O'Neil and Miss Ada Woodard, both of Manassas, were married Tuesday evening, March 18, at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Barnett Grimaley, pastor of the bride. Misses Annie and Ola Woodyard accompanied their sister and were witnesses of the marriage ceremony.

Mr. O'Neil is employed with the Southern Railway at Alexandria. He is the son of Mrs. Dennis O'Neil, and Mrs. O'Neil is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Woodyard.

Resolved.

That peace will find us backing Uncle Sam as strongly as we backed him in war.

That between now and April we will lay every possible stone of the groundwork for the Fifth Liberty Loan and leave no act undone which will tend to keep alive and quicken the consciousness of the nation that savings and thrift are peace essentials.

That we will exert our efforts to stop trafficking in bonds of the first four loans and will keep our War Savings Stamps.

That we will carry out our War Savings pledge if that is unfulfilled, and make and keep new Savings pledges this year.

That we will work tooth and nail from now till the last day of the April drive to oversubscribe that Liberty Loan.

That we will finish our job.

VICTORY CROPS GOOD

When you have a chance to lay in a few more government bonds as a good investment for your family, by no means neglect the opportunity.

PERMANENT PASTURES

Department of Agriculture Ad...

Department of Agriculture, in a recent announcement, calls attention to the importance of the care of permanent pastures...

Keep the pastures clear by cutting off brush, briars, and weeds. Large stumps, stumps, and dead trees should also be removed.

Those areas used for pasture that would permit harrowing and disking at the time of reseeding, applying lime, fertilizers, and manure, etc., may be greatly benefited.

The application of lime, acid phosphate, and manure can always be relied upon in most sections as a means of adding the needed nutrients...

As a rule reseeded pastures should be lightly grazed the first year. At all times it is advisable to keep the pastures well grazed in the spring...

SERGEANT KEYS' LETTER

Writes of German Prisoners and Munitions Captured.

Mrs. W. R. Stark, of Quantico, has received the following letter from her brother, Sergeant C. R. Keys of Co. K 318th regiment:

January 26, 1919.

My Dear Sister:—Just a short note that you hear from me. I am well and getting along just fine.

Lil, I told you in one of my letters to write to Mr. Nash and ask him about Sergt. Lynch, but never mind, I have found out about him. Poor boy, he was a jolly good friend of mine. The last time I saw him was on October 4th when I led the first platoon over the top and he was my left guide in charge of three squads. I never saw him any more. Some of the men told me he was wounded in the left limb, just above the knee. I got my dose of gas and was sent to the hospital for twenty-seven days. I am going to tell you about the 80th Division. I could tell you a lot more, but I am not allowed to.

One of the A. E. F. combat divisions—80th Division—National Army of Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, divisional headquarters arrived May 30, 1918. Activities: Avenly Woods, Arras, (Artois front), July 23 to August 18 under British; St. Mihiel salient, Sept. 12-15, one regiment of infantry and one machine gun battalion, reserve Second French Colonial Corps; Bethincourt sector, Sept. 25-29 (Argonne-Meuse offensive); St. Juvin, Nov. 1-6, (Argonne-Meuse offensive.) Prisoners captured—108 officers, 1,710 enlisted men. Guns captured, 88 pieces of artillery, 614 machine guns. Total advance on front line, 37 kilometers. Insignia—shield of olive drab cloth upon which is superimposed in center three blue hills representing the Blue Ridge mountains, all outlined in white. Well that is all about our division.

"Good bye, trenches, hello, states,
We're coming back to stay!
Good bye, whizz-bang, Hum and cooties,

We don't like your way.
Bully beef, we're full of you,
We want no more hard tack.
So, good bye trenches, hello, states,
Your soldiers, baby, are coming back.

How is mamma? Tell her I am well and hope to be home soon, but hope is about all. These people take their time. While I was fighting I had something to look forward to, but there is no fighting now and we want to come back to the States.

Earl Brown is transferred to Co. B, 317th Infantry, F. L. Davis is in headquarters Co., 318th—the rest of the boys are here. I saw in one of your papers where Randell was wounded. No, he is all right. Well, we hiked twenty-eight miles yesterday with full equipment. I and my pack have been near all over France. Well, good-bye, love to you all.

Your brother,
Chas., old way "Buck."

SOME QUERIES ABOUT CHOIRS AND CLERGYMEN

By Rev. Alford Kalley.

While superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, in Pennsylvania, I had 1,150 ministers of various denominations in my district and I spoke in many of their churches during a period of six years, in addition to addressing congregations in other parts of Pennsylvania, various other states, Canada and some churches in Washington. Thus many choirs have been observed and the following article is the result of varied experiences.

Poetry or song is said to have been in all nations the first vehicle of history and the earliest means of promulgating laws, nothing being equally effective in striking with force the imagination and impressing the memory. Song, therefore, can be expected to be an efficient channel for the flow of the gospel message. God has commanded, in Psalm 96-2, such a use of song in the words: "Sing unto the Lord, bless His name; show forth His salvation from day to day. Declare His glory among the heathen, His wonders among all people."

Evidently from the above exhortation, the Psalmist calls on the nation of Israel to sing praise to God and to evangelize the world. Hymns are the language of the human spirit, praising God's perfections, penitently asking His pardon, or petitioning Him to come into our lives or the lives of others. Persons may be reached, not only by sermon, but by song, so as to be comforted in trouble, encouraged to duty or even melted to confession of, and forsaking of sin by the combined influence of thought and music working by the imagination, through the emotions, upon the will.

Luther, according to Heine, after a day of doctrinal investigations, would take his flute at night, playing and gazing at the stars dissolved in melody and devotion. Our greatest composers, realizing the need of having "Noble music wedded to noble words," have endeavored to get into accord with the Divine in order to produce their great works. Handel, speaking of writing the Hallelujah Chorus said, "I did see all Heaven before me and the great God himself." Haydn declared: "When I was occupied upon the Creation, always before I sat down to the piano, I prayed to God with earnestness that he would enable me to praise Him." How often is there such a spiritual attitude maintained or even momentarily attained by organists and singers rendering these and other selections?

Singers, especially soloists and particularly paid soloists, have been heard to declare that they never thought of the words that they uttered, being interested only in reproducing correctly the music. The hymns might as well be in an unknown tongue, as the composers' English words are unintelligible. The congregation is not satisfied with mere aesthetic enjoyment from music, but then merely the emotions are affected, possibly only the risibilities, when there is added the ridiculous imitation of the senile or nervous tremolo. This disregard for the religious sentiments in music is woefully apparent when we listen to almost any quartet or chorus. Singers seldom think of and the congregation almost never hears what is being sung, unless it happens to be a familiar piece. If a preacher were half as unintelligible in his sermons, he would be offered

I must learn to sing better." Modern singers would do well to listen to and to invite criticism that is just, even though it may not come in a form that will be regarded as courteous.

When John McCormick, the great Irish tenor, was at college, he gave Maggie, the cook, a ticket to the entertainment, where he was to sing. "How did you like it?" he asked afterward. "Oh! I enjoyed it," she replied, "did you?" "Sure, it was fine. But, Johnny, me darlint, why did ye sing in thim foreign languages?" Now, Johnny sang in English, and Maggie knew that fact, but that was her way of criticizing his poor enunciation. Johnny wisely took the hint and now, after many years spent in studying to be as distinct in singing as in speaking, he appeals to the intelligence as well as the emotions of his audiences, making him so much greater as a vocalist.

Music stirs the emotions, but words are of supreme importance, because they suggest the religious ideas of a hymn and influence the will to embody those ideas in personal character. Music, having such potency, should be intelligent, so that both sound and sense might have their full effect. Milton has expressed this truth beautifully in the following stanza:

"Blest pair of sirens, pledge of heaven's joy,
Sphere-born, harmonious sisters,
Voice and Verse,
Wed your divine sounds, and mixed powers empty
Dead things with unbreathed sense able to pierce."

Music being based, not only on acoustics-sound, and physiology-sound that is heard, but also on psychology-sound, so heard that lives may be religiously influenced, it is apparent that words should be distinctly understood. Indeed, music is an expression of human emotion and sacred music should be the expression of purely religious emotion impelled by imagination that is founded upon a great religious truth felt by the singer. "If you wish to touch my heart," wrote Horace to the poets, "you must begin by showing me that you have touched your own." If such a demand were made of our soloists, quartets and choruses there would be only a few churches that would have any one in the choir loft but the organist, who, in turn, might likewise create a vacancy if Handel's and Haydn's ideals of a composer were exerted of the reproducer.

Persons devoid of spiritual discernment and spiritual life can not express publicly an emotion to which they are experimentally strangers. Why, therefore, should they be allowed to sing alone or with others in quartet or chorus? Not only should there be harmony between the voices of different persons in a voluntary selection, but there should be equal concord between the voices and the lives of those different persons. Better by far to have the old precentor with congregational singing, however unscientific and unmelodious if spiritual, than a soloist, quartet or chorus ever so skilled that may lack religious consciousness implied in hymns or anthems.

Indeed, why should there be quartets or choruses at all? Surely the religious benefit derived from them approaches the negligible. They are rather a hindrance to genuine devotion. "The choir," says Rev. F. L. Humphreys in "The Evolution of Church Music," "in non-uturg-the congregation. It has too often resulted in the quartet choir, one of the most deadly of devices for inducing dullness and coldness of devotion. In God's house, on Sunday morning, an attempt to compete with the concert room is hardly conducive to spirituality. How often does one hear general, hearty, inspiring singing in a church, where there is a quartet, especially if high-salaried?"

What spiritual benefit justifies writing "for value received" on the stub of a check book, from which is made a financial order in favor of these singers? (Continued next week.)
