SESSION OF COLORED SCHOOL ENDS TODAY

Exercises Attended by Many Out-of-Town Visitors—The Event of the Week.

The week at the Industrial School has been a most interesting one.

The exercises in connection with commencement have been well attended and interesting, the school again extending a very cordial invitation to all friends and neighbors to be present at the exercises.

Rev. Walter H. Brooks, pastor of the 19th Street Baptist Church, Washington, D. C., delivered the commencement sermon last Sunday. Since the entire commencement is dedicated to the memory of Jennie Dean, the founder of the school, Rev. Brooks preached a sermon analyzing and emphasizing the character and worth of her work and its value to all the citizenry of the Commonwealth. Taking his text from Proverbs, "Also, that the soul be without knowledge, it is not good," Rev. Brooks, himself an ex-slave, paid glowing tribute to the services and saintliness of the ex-slave, Jennie Dean. That Rev. Brooks was the pastor of Jennie Dean, the first principal of the school, and that he is now the pastor of its present principal, but made his presence upon this occasion the more fitting. In addition to Rev. Brooks there were seated in the pulpit Rev. E. T. Lewis, the pastor of the church, and Rev. J. Halpenny, a white minister of the town, who took part in the program.

The High School Dramatic Club on Tuesday gave a most successful and enthusiastically received presentation of Richard Walton Tully's college farce, "A Strenuous Life."

Among the judges in the music exhibition and declamation contest held on Wednesday night was the president of Eastern College, who was selected to act as chairman of the board of judges. The winners in this contest will have the prizes awarded them on Friday afternoon. Rev. J. M. Kline, Principal H. W. Sanders and E. H. Pinn, the latter of Bristow, will act as judges of the pupils' school gardens tomorrow. Although the weather thus far has been most unfavorable for gardening there is keen competition for the prize, donated this year by the school's farm manager.

At the Alumni meeting Tuesday morning reports were given of the activities of the various leaders of groups in the $2,500 drive. Many of the friends are working hard and earnestly to make the drive a success. The school is most anxious that the drive "go over the top" and calls upon all its friends, white and colored, to redouble their efforts in this eleventh hour. It is reported that Miss Cooper, heading the effort among white friends in the North, has already collected her quota, $2,500.

All during the day Tuesday, Farmer Ashton had his pedigree Holsteins on exhibition. The final and principal exercises will be held in the school's outdoor amphitheatre, beginning at two o'clock today. The chief address will be delivered by Mr. Joel E. Spingarn, who returned from France, and was honorably as the donor of the Spingarn medal, a medal bestowed annually to the Negro for the most notable contribution to American civilization for that year. Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard, president of the board of trustees, editor of the Nation, who has spent the last several months abroad in careful study of conditions, social, industrial and political, on the continent, will also speak.

AN ATTRACTIVE COUNTRY HOME

derfully unique, cosy and comfortable, and with its immense open fireplace and other fascinating features, including electric lights, hot water heat and bath room, is all that one could wish to live in while sojourning on this terrestrial ball. It really has to be seen to be properly understood and appreciated, especially the interior arrangements and furnishings. No doubt one of the things that attracted Mr. A. to this particular place was the variety and beauty of the trees and shrubbery on the lawn. Needless to say, he is giving them such attention as will maintain and add to their beauty. The house is adapted to its surroundings with rare taste and skill. On visiting the place at this season one is almost overwhelmed with the great profusion and sweetness of the innumerable variety of roses and various other flowering plants and shrubs. Truly no other place is so attractive as a home like that.

TRIBUTE TO THE COUNTRY PAPER

Appreciation of Country Editor's Arduous Labor and Good Wishes for Success.

The country newspaper! Life without you would be dreary waste. Your weekly visit is anxiously awaited, and should the mail carrier fail to bring you on the day expected my heart is sad.

Fifty-two times a year you bring me all the news from home. You faithfully chronicle the deaths, births and marriages of the neighborhood. You keep me posted on parties, church socials and village gossip, and you tell me what the prospects are for good or poor crops, as the case may be. If a family moves away or a newcomer moves into the town I know it the next week. If Farmer Jones on the Ridge Road, brings a prize pumpkin to your office I know all about it, although hundreds of miles away, as soon as some of his neighbors. You keep me posted on the improvements that Farmer Brown, of the Lake road, contemplates making to his barn "in the near future." And when Farmer Smith, of the Lexington road, started a cheese factory at Kidder's Corners I knew it the day after publication.

O, country newspaper! Well may I say that "life without you would be a dreary waste." Once a week you are to me an oasis in the desert of this hurly-burly life in a great city.

The city man who does not take his "home" paper, providing he was reared in the country, does not know what real enjoyment he misses. The news I get out of one issue is worth more than the yearly subscription. I devour every line of the local gossip and neighborhood correspondence, and when I lay the paper aside I praise the country editor for giving me this privilege.

Letters from home are very welcome, but one doesn't get as much news in a hundred letters as he does in one issue of the home paper. And letters are so uncertain; you sometimes have to wait six months for a reply to your last one. But if you are a subscriber to the country paper it comes to you regularly every week, rain or shine. You may be a little in arrears, but the country editor sends the paper along with the hopes that you will some day settle up matters.

To the man who cannot visit his old home every year or two the weekly perusal of his home paper is almost as good as a trip to boyhood scenes. He reads where the little freckleface girl who sat behind him at school was married to a city chap, who holds a "lucrative position with a street car company"—probably a motorman; he is informed that the boy who was known as the bully of the school was arrested for wife desertion and is "incarcerated in the county bastille;" he learns from his home paper that "the Thornton family will hold a reunion," and the news is also conveyed that "Aunt Eliza Robertson will be ninety-three years old next week Tuesday," an event which the city man wishes he was able to be at home to celebrate.

If "midnight marauders" steal seventeen chickens from Jake Becker's coop it is nicely told in the country paper, and the editor would be driven out of town if he failed to make note of the benefit party at Odd Fellows' Hall for the M. E. Church, which was "a grand success socially and financially." The receipts, by the way, "amounted to over seven dollars."

Keep your eye on this paper for an important announcement with feelings of genuine pleasure that I learn "Mr. & Mrs. P. C. H. Holmes" were "wedded over from Edinboro last Sunday," or that "Miss Ida Weaster is sojourning for a few days with friends at Keepville." The presence in town of Mrs. Frank Cooley (nee Baxter), of Buffalo, "formerly a resident of our burg," is duly chronicled with the additional information that she is accompanied by her two-months-old baby boy." The burning of "Hank" Edson's barn is a big piece of news, as "it is the most disastrous conflagration that has visited this section since the Fire King destroyed Brown Brothers' cider mill in 1879."

If you are sick the country editor writes a nice paragraph about your illness, and he trusts that you will "soon be able to appear upon our streets again;" if your wife dies he tells of her many good traits of character and that she "bore her last illness with Christian fortitude;" if your son gets married the country editor tells what a promising young man he is and what an "estimable and charming young lady" is the bride.

If the crops are bad the country editor sympathizes with the farmer, and if the harvest is good he rejoices. He gives away hundreds of dollars worth of advertising every year for which he scarcely receives a polite "thank you," he is looked upon by some people as an object of charity, and when they pay him their subscription they say to themselves, "Well, it will help to keep him out of the poorhouse for a while;" he works harder and puts in more hours at labor than any other man in town—if he didn't he would be in the poor house.

O, country editor, dear friend, I derive much happiness every week from reading your paper, and wish it were in my power to make your business tenfold better paying than it is. May your advertising increase until you are compelled to print a larger paper and may your subscribers come to the office or send you by mail the money due you. May your days be full of happiness, and at night when you sit around the family hearthstone may your thoughts be those of sweet contentment as one who is doing worthy work well.—Walk-Over Shoe Prints.

MRS. LUCY A. HOEMES DEAD

Kopp Resident Succumbs to Illness in Washington Hospital.

Mrs. Lucy A. Holmes, wife of Mr. C. H. Holmes, of Kopp, died Thursday, May 22, at Columbia Hospital in Washington at the age of forty-five years. Mrs. Holmes underwent a serious operation about one month ago and at first was thought to be improving.

Funeral services Saturday afternoon at the home of the deceased were largely attended by friends of the family. Rev. Barnett Grimsley conducted the service, after which the body was laid to rest in the family bury-ground. The pallbearers were Messrs. J. S. Storke, Thomas J. Woolfenden, George Florence, C. A. Barbee, Ed. Cornwell and E. G. W. Keys.

Mrs. Holmes was born near Independent Hill June 18, 1873, the daughter of Samuel and Lucinda Woodyard Lowe. She taught school in Prince William county before her marriage to Mr. Holmes in 1901. She was a member of the Baptist Church. Surviving members of the family are her husband, one son, Alton P. Holmes, fourteen years old, and three brothers, Mr. S. R. Lowe, of Manassas; Rev. Willis Lowe, of Kentucky and Prof. Henry Lowe, of Washington.

LOCUST PESTS NOW DUE AGAIN

Scientists Save Us From Seventeen-Year Wait for Expected Periodical Visit.

Entomologists announce that this is the year for the re-appearance of the "seventeen-year locusts," but having survived the war, the peace conference and the income tax collector, the people of the United States will be prepared to meet this additional scourge with equal equanimity. After passing through the experiences of the past two years, what do a few trillion locusts, more or less, matter?

But the most disappointing feature of this year's visitation is the brutality with which the scientists dispel all the popular ideas of the "seventeen-year locusts," cherished from childhood to old age through past centuries. We find it isn't a locust at all, but is a member of a totally different family known as the cicada. Also, it is not a "seventeen-year" insect, but is a periodical cicada, making its appearance at periods of seventeen years and in others at thirteen-year intervals. And the two are different branches of the cicada family. Many a boy has captured a locust—or a cicada, rather—and shuddered as he spread its wings and gazed upon the dark bars of their filmy substance in the form of the letter W. For this W was believed to portend war, and the locust was looked upon as the harbinger of bloody strife. Now, the scientists chuckle as they point out that the cicada failed to announce the approach of the greatest war in history, but are due to arrive in great numbers after the war is over.

Swarms of locust are supposed to spell death to the trees, and stories are told of forests being killed by them. But the scientists have even destroyed this theory. They admit that young fruit trees are endangered by the large broods of cicadas laying their eggs in the tender branches, though these young trees can be protected against this danger. But they say that little or no permanent injury is done to forest trees or more mature trees of any kind.

This year, it is predicted, will witness a visitation of both the "seventeen-year" and the "thirteen-year" cicadas, and it is expected to be the biggest locust year since 1868, which was the banner year of all. But the old world has worried along for quite a while against greater odds than locusts, so it is safe to assume that it will not be greatly perturbed at this prediction.—Post.

MEMORIAL DAY

Again we celebrate Memorial day, laying garlands of flowers on the graves of those whose memory we cherish and unloosing flowers of thought and speech in tribute.

Together we share a reverence for those who have gone before us, loved ones whose names will never reach the page of printed history, though written indelibly on our hearts, and the great who belong to all of us, not forgetting the Blue and the Gray, and the boys in khaki who sleep in Flanders fields.

OUR OPPORTUNITY

Prince William has not yet reported the collection of the $800 asked for by the Salvation Army which has come back with the recommendation of splendid war service to establish a fund for greater service among the poor, the suffering, the unprotected and the unhappy here at home. Surely the coming weeks will see us over the top.

The reports from the battlefield have given to many a new conception of the work of the Salvation Army. Its warmest supporters are the men from the ranks who found in it an ever ready friend in France. And now that the call has come to us to help in extending its usefulness here at home, we have only to give as we can and be grateful for the privilege.

THE RABBIT'S CALL IN SPRING

O, wild sweet voice in the night-time,
 Come over the moon-lit hills!
 Come over the field by the wood's edge,
 Clear—soft as the April rills.
 O, wild sweet voice in the night-time,
 My heart with your gladness thrills!

The weight of care is on me,
 So weary from the day
 The weight of life is on me—
 Of late how cold and gray!
 I pray for sleep in the darkness
 To steal my thought away.

I am so tired of striving,
 And all too oft in vain;
 I am so tired of loving
 When love brings naught but pain.
 I—but that voice is calling,
 It comes through the dusk again.

I see the leaf-buds bursting,
 I smell the spice-bush sweet,
 And the mint by the brook-side spearing,
 Where violets bathe their feet—
 And I hear the wild things crying
 With love, the spring to meet.

The maple trees are blushing,
 The alder tassels swing,
 And the grass it is greening, greening,
 For this is the time of spring,
 And my heart leaps up in the darkness,
 And all its pulses sing.

What though I pass forever!
 The good old world goes on,
 With its live things sporting and meeting,
 With its sunset and its dawn,
 And its spring from winter breaking,
 As from her bed the fawn—

What though I pass forever—
 But no! it cannot be!
 By the upward urge of April
 I sense new life for me.
 O, sweet wild voice in the night-time,
 You help to set me free.

—Alice Marie Ewell in the Southern Churchman.

Thirty Minutes With Congress.

Vital and numerous are the great measures pending before Congress. A half hour devoted to reading the weekly review and special articles in The Washington Sunday Star will keep the reader well informed on the progress of what probably is the most important legislative session in our history.

TOM THUMBS AND GOLIATHS

An 8-year-old girl six feet tall—Myrtle Margold, of Maybank, Texas. She has that rarest of diseases—giantism.

Her growth can be checked only by a delicate operation—removing the pituitary gland, attached to the brain. It is this tiny gland that determines your height and weight. Should it become diseased, the body may grow a foot a month.

Will future scientists discover how to manipulate the pituitary gland at will, so that our descendants can be tall or short as they please? Not a wild theory, say the doctors, in view of recent sensational discoveries concerning the effect on man's stature of hormones, chemical extractions from the pituitary glands of animals.

M. Henric estimated that Eve was 118 feet 9 inches tall. If Adam was like us, he had to climb ten flights of stairs to kiss her.

Other scientists disagree—claim that man has always been his present size. Thank man's pituitary gland for that. Century after century it remains normal. Diseases of it are rare.

A dwarf or giant is the lone exception in millions.

Old European cities have statues of legendary giant inhabitants of the past. In Ouat, one of Gayant, reputed to stand 22 feet in his socks. Antwerp had Mr. Antigonus, 40 feet tall. London has effigies in the Guildhall, of Gog and Magog, 14-foot giants who once terrorized the southwestern coast.

All these are mythical.

The tallest man in history about whom we have reliable figures was Machnow, a 9-foot-3 Russian from Charkow, who exhibited in London in 1905. Machnow had other things wrong with his architecture. His hands measured two feet from wrist to tip of index finger.

An operation on his brain in childhood would have kept him normal.

The smallest man in authentic history was Philetas, intellectual valet of Ptolemy Philadelphus, Egyptian king. So tiny was Philetas, according to historians of his day, that he had to wear great leaden shoes to keep the wind from blowing him away. Maybe the historians had a sense of humor.

Only 18 inches tall was Jeffrey Hudson, son of a huge butcher at Oakham, Rutlandshire, England. At a dinner given to Charles I this midget was served in a pie. Adopted by the king, he lived down his size—became known as "Strenuous Jeffrey," was a captain of cavalry and fought two duels. Little men, walk proudly.

All these were men suffering from disease of the pituitary gland in the brain.

Climates appear to affect the gland. Scotchmen average taller than any other race. Above all the Japanese are most sensitive about their short stature. Medical science may correct this in time—turn them into a race of six-footers.

Wonderful is the body—you realize it when you ponder that a gland small as a cherry determines your height and weight—Washington Herald.

TRUST THE PRINTER

The printer came to grief last week in getting up the Clifton correspondence, and, as sometimes happens, the proof reader did not catch him. Our neighbors at Clifton were credited with subscriptions to the Victory Loan amounting to $1,000, only one-tenth of the amount actually subscribed, the whole trouble being caused by a single lost 0. And as troubles never come singly, Clifton's grievance this time was twofold. At a missionary meeting of the women of the Presbyterian Church an address was made on ancestor worship, and the unfortunate printer, his mind on his business instead of the copy in hand, made it ancestor workshop.

In both instances we make, on behalf of the printer, our sincere apologies to our Clifton neighbors for the misrepresentation, and in the first instance take off our hats to old Fairfax, which has gone over the top in every

PRISONER MAKES WAY THROUGH BRICK WALL

Negro Escapes From County Jail, Using Iron Rod From Cot as Brace and Bit.

Charlie Jones, a negro charged with breaking into Free's store at Nokesville and held in the county jail since May 14 for action by the grand jury, made his escape from his cell between ten o'clock Sunday night and sunrise and has not been heard from since. The prisoner effected his escape with an iron rod wrenched from his cot, which he twisted into the form of a brace and bit to bore a hole in the wall of the jail. Inserting this instrument in the woodwork of the window of his cell, he finally managed to make an opening through the window frame and the brick wall of the building, a surprisingly small opening for the passage of his substantial frame.

How the negro managed his escape so quietly is a mystery. The family of the jailor in the same building heard no disturbance and the other prisoners in the jail claim to have heard nothing. All traces of the work were skillfully concealed, the only evidence being the mortar which dropped to the ground outside as the bricks were removed and hidden under the blanket on his cot.

Mrs. Topfitz, Back From France, Makes Official Visit.

Mrs. Frances Boullion Topfitz, an American Red Cross worker in France, returned to Potomac Division Headquarters in Washington Sunday, after a visit of ten days to the Prince William Red Cross chapter and its branches throughout the county. Mrs. Topfitz visited branches at Nokesville, Aden, Greenwich, Stone House, Dumfries, Joplin and Quantico and the auxiliary at St. Edith Academy. On account of the short time involved and the extremely rainy weather, it was impossible for the chapter authorities to arrange a schedule covering every point in the county.

During her stay Mrs. Topfitz also visited at Buckhall, where no separate organization exists, and made an address at a meeting of the Jennie Dean branch of colored workers at the Baptist Church in Manassas.

On each occasion, beginning with her address before the chapter at Manassas, Mrs. Topfitz gave an interesting account of her experiences as a refugee worker in France and outlined the future program of the Red Cross, particularly in its relation to public health work.

Keep your eye on this paper for an important announcement to be made soon.

OF COLLEGE CLOSING

Eastern Commencement Largely Attended by Townspeople—Students Receive Diplomas

The twentieth annual commencement of Eastern College came to a close on Tuesday evening. Beginning with the expression recital on May 19, through to the end, the different exhibitions were of uniform excellence.

The work in the piano department showed its highest excellence in the playing of Miss Senft and Miss Elizabeth Johnson and Miss Margaret Roop, of Manassas. In the expression department special recitals were given with very pleasing effect by Misses Lucille and Ethel Hixson, of Manassas, and Miss George Pope, of Athens, Ga.

The exhibition of art and home economics, which took place from three to five o'clock on Saturday, was well attended, and the refreshments served showed the cooking ability of the domestic science pupils.

The president's reception at Voorhees Hall on Friday was attended by the students and a number of townspeople. On Sunday the baccalaureate sermon was given by the president, Dr. H. U. Roop, and special musical numbers were given by Miss Vera Board, Miss Margaret Roop and Prof. Orville Watson Mosher.

The president's prize debate was held on Monday afternoon, the subject being, "Resolved, That the League of Nations plan, as presented by President Wilson before Congress, be concurred in." The arguments were well set forth in detail, the affirmative winning the debate, and the gold medal, as best speaker, going to Mr. Carlton Dooley, of Ogdensburg, N. Y.

On Tuesday afternoon five members of the Central High School tennis team, Washington, arrived, and shortly afterwards a match was arranged between their two leading players and Mr. Clarence Meetze and Mr. Mosher. The match was not completed on account of lack of time. Mr. Meetze showed promise of becoming a truly good player. His smashing was excellent and all he needs now is the experience which comes from a number of difficult matches with other teams in order to perfect his game.

The final commencement occurred at eight o'clock on Tuesday evening, the speaker being Dr. Bradford Knapp, of the United States Department of Agriculture, who gave a very strong address to the graduates.

Dr. Roop presented the diplomas to the eighteen members of the graduating class.

It is announced that the next session will begin September 24th.

HAYMARKET

A pleasant social event of this week for some of the music lovers of Haymarket was the recital given at the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening by Prof. Mosher, Mrs. Porter and Miss Margaret Roop, of Manassas. Each member of the well selected and artistically rendered program was greatly enjoyed and received warm applause.

Col. R. H. Jordan motored from Washington on Sunday and spent the day with his family here.

Mr. Gustav Peters, lately of the A. E. F., has received his honorable discharge and returned home on Wednesday from Camp Lee.

Mrs. W. C. Payne and Miss Virginia Boxley were Washington visitors this week.

Mr. Robert Tyler, of Baltimore, is visiting his aunts, the Misses Tyler.

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Delk and children, Miss Willie Tulloss and Mr. Frank Tulloss motored from Washington on Sunday and spent the day at the old Tulloss home here.

Private Ross Bragg, 32nd Division, A. E. F., spent Wednesday in Haymarket, on his way to visit his mother, Mrs. R. H. Bragg, of Strasburg.

Mrs. William Brookes and infant son are with her mother, Mrs. R. L. Dulany, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Pemberton M. Price, of Philadelphia, Mrs. F. B. Price and Miss Bell Hancock motored from Washington on Wednesday and are spending this week at the family home here. Mr. Price has lately returned from France, where he had a year's service with the 28th Division, A. E. F.

Mrs. J. L. Harrell, of Manassas, was the guest of Mrs. C. D. S. Clarkson on Sunday.

Mrs. Carvel Hall had a telegram on Wednesday from her nephew, Lieut. Woodson Hancock, 318th Infantry, A. E. F., telling of his safe arrival at Newport News. Lieut. Hancock had thirteen months' service overseas and was badly gassed, but has recovered.

HELP HIM ALONG

Don't down a fallen brother, Don't scorn him because he has erred; Just stop and reflect before you reject, And help him along with a word.

His sins may be many and blackest, His conscience may seem to be dead, But we who are wise will help him to rise And return to the life he once led.

We know not how great his temptation, The fight he has waged to stand strong; It may be that you would have given up, too, Had you been in his place—all along.

So give him a word of encouragement, His course you may turn to the right, And help him to be, and in true vision rise.

The glory of heavenly light.

Y. M. C. A. CAMP

To Be Opened About the Middle of June in Rockbridge County

Camp Kent, the State Y. M. C. A. Camp for Virginia Boys, is to open about the middle of June according to an announcement just made at the headquarters of the State Executive Committee in Richmond. For several years boys from all parts of the state have been spending two weeks or more of the summer vacation swimming, mountain climbing, hiking, eating, sleeping and living in the open air at Camp Kent.

The Camp is located in Rockbridge county seven miles from the world famous Natural Bridge of Virginia. The boys sleep in wooden huts. They have their meals in an open pavilion. They swim in a pond made by damming Opossum Creek with a concrete dam two hundred feet long. Under the diving stage there is twelve feet of water and the whole pool covers about an acre. The Camp is owned and operated by the State Executive Committee of the Y. M. C. A. and boys over twelve years of age are eligible.

Inquiries concerning the camp may be addressed to 902 Chamberlayne Building, Richmond.

SOUND ADVICE FOR DAIRYMEN

County Agent Urges Pure Milk at Fair Price as Good Policy for Producer.

No doubt one of the most interesting subjects to the dairy farmers who supply milk to the city of Washington and also to the consumers of that milk is its price, both to the farmer and also to the consumer.

Milk is not a luxury, but almost as much a necessity as any other article of diet. The great mass of the consuming public has not been fully educated to its great value as a food. Strictly clean milk from healthy cows is surely one of the most nutritious as well as economical foods on the market today. When the consuming public has the same confidence in its cleanliness and purity that it has in the various standard breakfast foods that are put up in attractive cartons, or that it has in the various proprietary soft drinks sold universally, it will be a more liberal user of milk.

Now, it is manifestly to everybody's interest that all milk offered for sale should have and merit just such absolute confidence. No doubt the most of the milk sold in Washington deserves implicit confidence in its purity, but when stories of milk from unlicensed dairies being on sale in the city reach the consumer he is inclined to cut out milk. This does great damage to both the producer and the consumer of clean milk. The licensed dairymen and the city health department should work hand in hand to keep every bit of milk out of the city that does not come from licensed dairy farms. Nothing less than this is fair to the consumer or to the clean dairyman.

Now a few words about the price. I realize that this is a very dangerous proceeding. It is almost like walking in "no man's land." Now, if milk is as good a thing as we know it to be, and if it is made as clean as it ought to be, will it not command a fair price? I believe it will.

Of course, not every dairyman, even if he has a license, will make a good profit at the price commanded by the merits of pure milk. Neither does every doctor, lawyer, merchant or other business man make a profit simply because he is in the business. The good profit should come only to the man who is capable and efficient.

If the efficient licensed dairymen insist on a price that is too high they not only tend to cut down the consumption of milk, but they invite more men to engage in the dairy business, and that will bring out more milk than will be consumed, and thus the price will be forced down in the end anyway.

The Washington market cannot be monopolized by the nearby dairymen if the price is too high. I know of milk being shipped there a distance of 150 miles from a licensed dairy simply because the price is attractive. Too big a price simply invites disaster in two ways—curtailed consumption and overproduction.

The best way to make a market for a thing is to give it real merit and sell it at an attractive price, and if your competitor can not stand that sort of treatment of course he can retire from the field. The dairymen must stand together, however, and insist on nothing going into the city that is not clean and pure, because it seriously injures their business, directly and indirectly, and is morally and legally wrong.—R. C. Koerner in the Washington Star.

POEM COMES BACK AFTER FIFTY YEARS

Massachusetts Poem Copy of Verses Published Here Fifty Years Ago

Mr. George A. Haggerty, of Southbridge, Mass., presumably a Union veteran, sends us a little poem which he says he found in a little newspaper printed in Manassas fifty-one years ago and which he committed to memory. The poem is reproduced here, according to the copy which Mr. Haggerty furnished last Memorial paper with the comment of the Herald:

"The following poem, which has been held in the memory of George A. Haggerty of Southbridge, appeared in a little newspaper printed at Manassas Junction three years after the Civil war ended, which shows the division of families in that civil strife—brother against brother, and father against son. It also shows the devotion of a sister: The same condition prevails in Alsace-Lorraine in this world-war, where the division of families has been handed both to the French and German cause. But as a French precaution in force for nearly fifty years, hundreds of thousands of French boys, born in Alsace-Lorraine, have been sent away forever from home and mother before arriving at the required age, to avoid compulsory service in the German army.

THE KNOT OF BLUE AND GRAY

Upon my bosom lies
This knot of blue and gray.
You ask me why? Tears fill my eyes
As to you I say:

I had two brothers once—
Warm-hearted, bold and gay;
They left my side—
The other wore the gray.

Both fought for what they deemed
The right,
And died with sword in hand.
One sleeps among Virginia's hills,
And one in Georgia's sands.

The same sun shines upon their graves;
My love unchanged must stay.
So now upon my bosom lies
This knot of blue and gray.

to be made soon.

WOMAN'S PART IN WORLD WAR

Prize Composition by Miss Aline Davis, First-year Student of Bethel High School.

The following original composition, written by Miss Aline Davis, a first-year student of Bethel High School, was awarded first prize at the recent commencement:

It was the women of the world—the mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts of those at the front, who made real war sacrifices. It was their everlasting love, undying determination and their God-given patriotism which carried the spirit of success to every man in the army and navy.

Not so many years ago, a woman at the age of fifty renounced all general activities. She thought she was old. She thought her work was done. But the woman of today, strong, educated, enthusiastic, self-reliant! Ah, we take off our hats to her! Today when she speaks, the world listens. She can do with it almost as she wills. The war has advanced the status of women in every field.

"The girls behind the men behind the guns" embraced the workers of the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Salvation Army, Knights of Columbus and others.

First of all comes the brave Red Cross nurses who were willing to sacrifice their lives to save others. They faced the terrors and hardships of war. For examples of the Red Cross nurses we have Madeline Jaffray, a Canadian nurse, Helen LaMotte, an American nurse and Edith Cavell, an English martyred nurse.

Miss Cavell, who was killed by the Germans, said that she had no fear of death as she was dying for her country and a good cause. She had a spirit which showed that she was not afraid. Miss Cavell was killed by the Germans on the morning of October 12, 1916, at 2 o'clock. She gave her testimony in a clear voice that showed no signs of nervousness and also proved that she was a brave woman. Nurse Jaffray, being wounded when a hospital was bombed, was decorated for heroism under fire. Nurse LaMotte, from Baltimore, served one year in Belgium and France. No hardship was too hard for these brave women to endure. The nurses may well be called "The greatest mothers in the world."

The nurses, when on the battlefield, would sometimes have to go several days with little to eat, but still they did their duty and attended to the sick and wounded faithfully. They were regarded as mothers among the patients at the hospitals.

Although all the women could not be nurses, they responded to the call when President Wilson said, "Everyone must find his place." A great many of them did their bit at home—some sewing, knitting, gardening and writing letters to cheer the boys at the front.

The great triumph for which every sacrifice was made is complete. President Wilson said in his address to Congress December 2, 1918, before sailing to Europe, "and what shall we say of the women, of their instant intelligence, quickening every task that they touched; their capacity for organization and co-operation, which gave their action discipline and enhanced the effectiveness of everything they attempted; their attitude at tasks to which they had never before set their hands; their utter faith, alike in what they were doing and in what they were doing for."

They have added a new luster to the American womanhood. It is estimated that there were in different parts of the country over 700,000 girls engaged directly in the great war activities, substituting for men in the service.

The duties that were accomplished by the women were those of wireless operators, signal corps secretaries, munition workers, aids in medical department, quartermaster department, red-Britain, France and Italy for canteen workers, motor corps, operators and the workers in food administration.

The women were more willing to co-operate with Herbert Hoover than the men. He showed them how to use wheat and meat substitutes so there would be more to send across the water to feed our army and the allies. Also aiding Mr. Hoover were the canning club girls who helped master the problem of feeding the world and deserve a great deal of credit. The women of America received thanks from the food administrators of Great Britain, France and Italy for their help. The women of America received thanks from the food administrators of Great Britain, France and Italy for their help. The women of America received thanks from the food administrators of Great Britain, France and Italy for their help.

The women in Europe and other countries, even ploughed the land and put in the crops.

Women also did their part in the buying of Liberty Bonds and War Saving Stamps.

Not only the working class of women were patriots. Many ladies of wealth and position were good workers. The most prominent of these were the ladies of the White House, who did not let anything pass by that would help out in the war. Mrs. Wilson knit continuously and Miss Margaret Wilson was a traveler on concert tours in the interest of the Red Cross. Mrs. McAadoo, the President's daughter spent six days out of every week in the basement of the treasury building in the Red Cross work room. She kept the records like a chief clerk and packed boxes like a shipping clerk.

Then, what shall we say of the brave hearted mothers who sacrificed their sons and daughters to go to the war. When she told them good-bye, she may never see them again.

When the Russian army mutinied and refused to fight or obey their officers, the women organized a woman's regiment known as the "Battalion of Death," composed of three hundred girls, mostly between 18 and 25 years old, commanded by Lieutenant Buteh Karev.

The "Battalion of Death" distinguished itself on the battle field and encouraged the mutinous regiments, thus setting an example of woman's courage and patriotism.

Now, that the boys are coming back, the women are not only able to say, "I lent money," and "I gave money," but to say, "I worked."

Women of America, our country first, last and forever.

HOW TO SELL MORE GOODS

And How the Local Merchant May Get the Mail Order Trade at Home.

The annual practice of the mail-order houses of flooding the country with their catalogues has prompted the editor of the Wyanet (Ill.) Review to write the following which is reprinted from a recent issue:

"The mail order catalogues are flooding Wyanet and rural routes. They are the large catalogues as well as small ones, which are announcing 'special sales. It is said the mail order men watch papers of the smaller communities and when they find the merchant is letting down on advertising, as is the usual proceeding after the holidays, they immediately flood that territory with their advertising matter."

"The Review family does not receive these catalogues, yet the writer never misses an opportunity of getting hold of a copy and reading it over. It affords an inspiration and a direct proof to us that it pays to advertise."

"No one can read the description of the goods and the prices attached without feeling that they are worth more than what is asked. So cleverly is the advertising copy written, and so completely does it secure one's confidence that we persist in insisting that if the books contained only the descriptive matter (and no price) 90 per cent of the readers would mentally assure themselves that they could not afford to buy the article described. But the attached price at once creates the conviction that the article is a thoroughly good value, if not an unusual bargain."

"No mail-order house expects, and no merchant has a right to think, that every one who reads the advertising is going to come a-runnin' for any or all of the goods he tells about. Not much! If a man advertised to sell gold dollars at 89 cents each he would not sell 100 per cent in the community. Nobody offers to guarantee the mail-order house that every home which receives one of the catalogues is going to send an order. No home-town newspaper will guarantee to fill the local store with buyers all the time. The boss of the store would not think of guaranteeing to anybody that he would sell every one who comes in even if he should have the merchandise asked for. Neither does he ask a salaried salesman to give a guarantee of a similar kind. The boss would not have the thoughtlessness to ask his jobber or wholesaler to guarantee the sale of the goods he buys of them."

"The whole undertaking is a venture pure and simple, and the success to be achieved is dependent upon many things. If a man can make any kind of a success of his venture without printed advertising, then, all things being equal, he will make it a much greater success with advertising."

"There are too many cases where the truth of this proposition is proven to admit of any contradiction. All advertising that is backed with goods worth the money—100 per cent store service, courtesy and pep—cannot fail to pay."

COAL, LUMBER AND BUILDING MATERIALS

It is Worth Thinking Over

Building and improving is being done on a much larger scale than had been expected in practically all parts of the country by experienced men who have given this work their careful attention for years.

This means that a great many people are convinced that well planned building and improving is a wise and safe way to invest money today.

We have felt so sure of a good demand for LUMBER, MILLWORK AND BUILDING MATERIALS that we have large and well assorted stocks on hand and for the present will not be affected by the shortage of certain grades at the mills and by the increase in prices on these grades.

We are glad to be able to give our customers advantage of this condition and are splendidly equipped to handle all orders promptly and with care.
