

STATE NEWS NOTES

Fruit-growers in eight counties in the central Virginia belt are arranging to cooperate with the experiment station at Virginia Tech to obtain the services of an expert to make study of the needs of the orchards as to spraying and to aid the growers in the marketing of the crop.

Willie Miller, a well known citizen of Middlesex county, was instantly killed by a falling limb during the wind and rain storm last Thursday. He was on the way home from Urbanna, when a giant limb fell across the road and struck him, crushing his skull.

The Fredericksburg Ducking Club was organized with the election of William K. Goolrick as president, and F. L. W. Green, secretary and treasurer. The club has leased the Mt. Airy farm of nearly 1,000 acres, in Westmoreland county on the Potomac river, from H. D. Waters and also the Hollis' marsh of 140 acres, for a period of five years.

At the eleventh hour, literally, Senator A. Willis Robertson, of Rockbridge, last Wednesday piloted his bill appropriating $1,000 for the erection of a tablet in Goshen Pass in memory of Matthew Fontaine Maury. The bill had been dropped from the calendar on Tuesday night, but, by consent of both houses, was taken up, the Senate first adopting it. At 11 o'clock the House took the same action.

The Leesburg school board met last Wednesday in the directors' room of the Loudoun Bank, at which time bids were submitted by contractors on the proposed new Leesburg high school building. Ten bids were received on the building, which bids included all construction except plumbing and heating, ranging from $50,000 to $73,000.

Property valued at $100,000 was threatened in Harrisonburg last week when fire of undetermined origin broke out in the basement of the four-story building belonging to the Daily News-Record.

The Frederick County Fruit Growers' Association has about completed a campaign for the removal of hundreds of red cedars from around apple orchards, and it was learned last week that little or no objection was raised by owners of the menacing trees.

their rooms and aided their escape. The plant of the Daily News-Record, a book store, confectionery stand and physicians' offices were considerably damaged, although heroic efforts of the fire fighters prevented the flames from going higher than the second floor. The telephone exchange was not damaged. Loss is estimated at $10,000.

The officers of the Peoples National Bank, of Leesburg, Va., have purchased the Fauquier-Loudoun Bank, located at Upper-ville, Fauquier county. The deal was consummated at a meeting of the board of directors of the last-named bank held March 19 at its banking house in Upper-ville.

Recent discovery of high grade gold and silver at the 200-foot level of a mining property near Pendleton, Loudoun county, Virginia, is attracting attention. Last week a private car was transferred to the C. & O., at Doswell with a party of financiers, headed by James F. Moran, of New York, en route to Pendleton. It is understood should the engineers and geologists, who are accompanying the party, agree as to the true character of the occurrence, which appears to be unusual that extensive developments will be carried on immediately.

Woodstock people are puzzled over a circumstance which occurred last Sunday morning and are at a loss to explain the phenomena. The late John C. Paxton, who passed away last week, was a regular attendant at the Presbyterian Church, and on each Sunday morning the car which he always drove was backed from the garage when the church bells rang, preparatory for the drive to the house of worship. On Sunday morning at the same hour, almost to the very minute when the car was formerly taken out by its deceased owner, the machine of its own volition backed out of the garage and was stopped by the fence of a neighbor. No one was near the garage when the car started, and the strangeness of the coincidence is a matter of much speculation.

The people in the section of West Point, Va., have not ceased to deplore the fact that the central route was selected for the highway from Richmond to the coast. The route selected, it is alleged, for the convenience of the sporting fraternity, will not open up a large section of the country. The people in New Kent have organized a Good Government League and assert that there will be no more fishing in the Chickahominy River on the Sabbath day by visitors from the city.

The Frederick County Fruit Growers' Association has about completed a campaign for the removal of hundreds of red cedars from around apple orchards, and it was learned last week that little or no objection was raised by owners of the menacing trees. Officers of the association expressed themselves as being pleased with the attitude of most of the people on whose properties the cedars were cut down. The state law provides for removal of red cedars on lands within two miles of a commercial apple orchard. The York Imperial, the principal variety grown in that district, has been attacked severely by cedar rust in recent years, but the cedar trees gradually are being "weeded out," and there has been a notable improvement in the quality of apples. Weather conditions thus far have been ideal for orchards. The moderately cold weather of the last three months has kept down sap flow, and apple buds still are in a more or less dormant state. Growers said a continuation of favorable weather would assure an enormous crop of apples next fall, conservative estimates for Frederick county being around 700,000 barrels.

When Policeman Chas. Simpson went to the door of the home of Edward Reid in Lynchburg last week to execute a search warrant, he found the knob to the negro's front door charged with electricity, and it was a mighty shock the patrolman got as he tried to turn the knob. After getting the shock the patrolman rounded up a squad to assist in making the raid and later the negro was arrested and forty gallons of white liquor were captured.

A DISGRACEFUL CHAPTER

By a vote of 19 to 5 the House Ways and Means Committee ordered a favorable report on Fordney's bunco soldiers' bonus bill. Of the five members who had the courage to vote against the measure, three were democrats and two republicans. All honor to them. That the public may know and remember those who were unwilling to offer a bribe for the soldier vote at the expense of the financial and economic stability of the country, we give their names: Garner, of Texas; Kitchin, of North Carolina, and Collier, of Mississippi, democrats; Treadway of Massachusetts, and Tilson, of Connecticut, republicans. While we are about it, we might as well give the names of those who voted in favor of the outrage: Fordney, Green, Longworth, Hawley, Copley, Mott, Young, Fear, Bacharach, Hadley, Timberlake, Bowers, Watson, Houghton, Chandler, republicans; and Oldfield, Crisp, Carew, Martin, Tague, democrats—fourteen republicans and five democrats.

The line-up in the committee vote probably affords a fair idea as to the proportional line-up of the whole House membership when the measure is brought to a vote in that body. Thus, it will be seen that in spite of the opposition of the President, the Secretary of the Treasury and of practically every patriotic interest of the country on grounds of public policy, the vote-seeking majority of the House has made up its mind to force the measure through that body regardless of consequences to the country's welfare. Little does this majority care what is to be the fate of the measure after it passes that body. Those members who will force its passage will have proved to the soldier voters who are clamoring for a bonus that they are "with them" in this proposed raid on the Treasury and they will expect their reward in votes to be delivered in November.

The action of the committee presents one of the most disgraceful chapters in the whole history of its functioning from the foundation of the government. From time to time the committee has authorized raids on the Treasury, but never before one so audaciously large and at a time when and in a way which would bring such disastrous consequences to the financial and economic stability of the nation. Already weighed down by a load of taxation which has so handicapped business enterprise that industrial stagnation has thrown approximately 5,000,000 persons out of employment, the taxpayers of the country are in no position to assume the additional burden which this outrageous measure would impose on them, and so long as uncertainty continues to exist as to the fate of the measure there can be no speedy recovery from the depression out of which grow the grave conditions.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

UNNECESSARY NOISES

Pulitzer was blind. Loss of sight made his other Joseph Pulitzer, the founder of the New York World, spent twenty years of his life trying to get away from unnecessary noises.

His senses more acute, particularly his sense of hearing. The slightest jar or scratch, inaudible to others, caused him the most acute pain. His whole body would tremble and he would break out in a cold perspiration.

To avoid these noises Pulitzer probably spent $500,000 a year. He owned and maintained a yacht, with a crew of sixty men, on which he cruised about the Mediterranean six months of the year. He enjoyed the yacht because it was the quietest place he could find in all the world.

His own suite of rooms in his New York residence was built on a separate foundation from that of the rest of the house. He installed triple plate glass windows. Doors opened and closed noiselessly and automatically.

When he traveled on a large ocean liner he often spent several hundred dollars remodeling his suite, covering the floors in and around his cabin with thick matting, putting air-compressing hinges on the doors, buying rubber-soled shoes for the stewards.

Before he visited any hotel he dispatched one of his secretaries to make preliminary arrangements. This man was required to visit all the desirable hotels and select a suite of rooms in which Mr. Pulitzer was least likely to be disturbed.

To confirm his observations, this man was required to spend several hours in the room himself. Frequently, if sound was conducted through the partitions, rooms would be leased on all sides, above and below, so that Mr. Pulitzer would not be annoyed by thoughtless neighbors.

No food was served at the table the eating of which involved any disagreeable sound. Salted almonds were suddenly banned one day because one of the secretaries was in the habit of breaking the nuts in halves before eating.

The clinking of a spoon against a saucer, or of ice against a glass, or the clatter of dishes handled by a clumsy butler, would ruin a whole day for Mr. Pulitzer.

He would not allow any repairs to be made on his yacht when he was on board. The engines were always run at low speed to reduce the vibration.

Once the captain of an ocean liner dipped his flag when passing the yacht, without blowing his whistle.

"Write him a note thanking him for his thoughtfulness, and send him a box of 200 of the best Havana cigars," said the eccentric old man.

Mr. Pulitzer did not seem to be offended by necessary noises. He enjoyed listening to music and conversation. The ordinary noises of traffic did not bother him.

Once he told his secretary, Alleyne Ireland, that as a youth he rather enjoyed making life uncomfortable for people who objected to noise.

"I never thought I would live to pay for it in this way!" he exclaimed.

I have mentioned Mr. Pulitzer's eccentricity to several people and have been surprised to note the unanimity with which they sympathize with his aversion to unnecessary noises.

A newspaper man told me he could work in a room with a dozen typewriters and four or five telegraph instruments all going at full clip without the slightest consciousness of the noise. But if anyone near him whistled or chewed gum audibly he wanted to commit murder.

Everyone seems to have a few "pet" noises, the suggestion of which causes a physical and mental squirming.—Type Metal Magazine.

MORALITY

We cannot kindle when we will
The fire which in the heart resides;
The spirit bloweth and is still,
In mystery our soul abides.
But tasks in hours of insight willed
Can be through hours of gloom fulfilled.

With aching hands and bleeding feet
We dig and heap, lay stone on stone;
We bear the burden and the heat
Of the long day, and wish 'twere done.
Not till the hours of light return
All we have built do we discern.

Then, when the clouds are off the soul,
When thou dost bask in Nature's eye,
Ask, how she viewed the self-control,
Thy struggling, tasked morality—
Nature, whose free, light, cheerful air,
Oftt made thee, in thy gloom, despair.

And she, whose answer thou dost dread,
Whose eye thou wast afraid to seek,
See, on her face a glow is spread,
A strong emotion on her cheek!
"Ah, child," she cries, "that strife divine,
Whence was it, for it is not mine?"

"There is no effort on my brow—
I do not strive, I do not weep;
I rush with the swift spheres and glow
In joy, and when I will, I sleep.
Yet that severe, that earnest air,
I saw, I felt it once—but where?"

"I knew not yet the gauge of time,
Nor wore the manacles of space;
I felt it in some other clime,
I saw it in some other place.
'Twas when the heavenly house I trod,
And lay upon the breast of God."
—Matthew Arnold.

LAUGH AND LIVE

MOONSHINER ADVERTISES HIS WARES

North Carolina has a moonshiner who believes in advertising his wares. Revenue officers in Asheville recently came across a bottle with a unique label, which they sent to Commissioner Blair, himself a North Carolinian. This label was the advertisement of the moonshiner and it reads as follows:

"Pure mountain korn likker. Bottled in a barn. Made in the backwoods of the Mountains of Western North Carolina by an old-time blockader, that don't give a dam for laws and prohibition. Retailed on the Asheville market by all the high-class bootleggers for five bones per pint and is worth every cent of it. Guaranteed to be strong enough to make you drunk as the devil in ten minutes and mean enough to make a baby bullfrog spit in a whale's face. Shake well and get ready to have a fit before drinking."

The label has been added to the internal revenue bureau's museum.—Exchange.

WHAT JOHNNY SAID

One afternoon a small boy named Johnny went running up to his mother during a walk through the park, with his face full of smiles and his hands full of candy.

"Oh, mama!" he happily exclaimed, exhibiting his treasure, "that lady over there gave me all this candy!"

"That was certainly very nice of her," responded mama, glancing toward the lady in question. "I trust that you were very polite to her."

"Oh, yes, mama," was the reassuring reply of Johnny. "I was polite enough."

"I am glad to hear it," returned the mother, smilingly. "What did you say to her?"

"I said to her," was the startling rejoinder of Johnny, "that I wished papa had met her before he had become acquainted with you."

A PARADE SPECIALIST

"Aunt, what is the name of your boy?"

"Napoleon, sah."

"Ah! He was named after the great military leader."

"No, sah. He was named after Major Napoleon Suggs de gun-loman I used to cook for. I never heard of no major leader nothin' but the Knights of Pythias, but he was powerful good at dat."

Did you hear about the poor fellow who swallowed a spoon?

No. What about him?

Why, he can't stir!

Peace Time Patriotism

¶ The American people were fairly started on the road to National Thriftness during the war. They learned how to get along without a good many things that had theretofore been considered necessary, and many who had never saved before managed to lend money to the government.

¶ It is to be hoped that the people will not forget the war's lesson of economy and thrift, and that those who have fallen back into the old ways of extravagant living will soon come to realize that patriotism can be exemplified as well in peace as in war.

¶ Patriotism demands thrift.

HOW ISSUE MET DEFEAT

Representative Explains Why Bond Issue Failed to Pass.

Manassas, Va., Mar. 16, 1922. Editor Manassas Journal.

Dear Sir:—A parliamentary situation arose in the recent session of the General Assembly on the bond issue bill that will probably be of interest to your readers.

The Senate, in which the bill was introduced, passed the measure in its original form. When the bill reached the House an amendment was offered providing that the bond issue should not become effective until submitted to and ratified by a vote of the people. This amendment was carried, and the bill then went back to the Senate for its acceptance or rejection of the measure in its amended form. The Senate very promptly rejected the amendment, and the bill was again transmitted to the House in the hopes that it would either recede from its position, or ask for a committee of conference. The motion on the House side, however, was not that it recede from its position, but that it insist upon its amendment. This motion prevailed and the measure then remained in the custody of the lower branch of the Assembly.

The Senate, after finding that the House would not recede from its position, desired a committee of conference and Senator Goolrick, of Fredericksburg, moved for the appointment of such a committee on the part of the Senate. The motion was declared out of order on the point that the Senate was not in possession of the bill and, therefore, it could not request a conference. The House did not ask for a conference and in consequence the measure went to its death without a further vote.

It was the manner of the defeat, I think, that caused the able Senator from Fredericksburg, in a moment of extreme hysteria to characterize the members of the House as a body of "Ignorant, leaderless reactionaries." C. A. SINCLAIR.

URGES CLUBS GET BUSY

Home Demonstration Agent's Message to Clubs.

(Miss Lillian V. Gilbert, County Home Demonstration Agent)
For the second time the Junior Workers Boys' and Girls' Club, Gold Ridge, are winners of the county banner given by the Peoples National Bank.

The judges who made the decision were Mrs. Mary Moore Davis, state home demonstration agent, and Miss Belle Burke, district home demonstration agent.

It was understood when the banner was offered that the club winning it for three years in succession should become the owner. It behooves all clubs to get busier than ever in 1922, or Junior Workers may win for the third time. The clubs are getting busy. Regardless of the bad weather and the fact that the county home demonstration agent could not get to many of the meetings the following clubs have held all regular meetings up to date, and report much better attendance to meetings than previously: Junior Workers, Gold Ridge; Busy Bees, Bristow; Willing Workers, Groveton; Gals Glee, Smithfield; Hayfield and Bethel. These groups of girls and boys are going to make the Juniors hustle if they hold the banner.

Girls and boys are urged to push club work and regular attendance at meetings. Let our slogan be "Every club member present at every meeting." Parents and friends are urged to encourage the girls and boys not only to start work, but to follow up and finish after starting.

FIRE ON OFFICERS
 While cutting up a still near Valley View, on the Luray-New Market Road, on Saturday, Mar. 4, four federal prohibition officers were fired upon by the moonshiners and forced to abandon operations on the poison plant. The moonshiners were hidden and used rifles, while the revenue officers had the disadvantage of being in the open and possessing only revolvers. However, the battle was a bloodless one, as no one was even hit. The section in which the battle took place has strategic advantage for the manufacture of moonshine, and in the mountain fastnesses there are some who have little respect for any law and less for the prohibition law.
