STATE NEWS NOTES

The campaign in progress for the past week to raise $75,000,000 to build a Y. M. C. A. in Alexandria closed Saturday night, and they went over the top, raising a total of $80,000. A parade by the fire department followed the announcement that they were over the top. Bells and whistles of the city also announced to the public that the campaign was a success.

The oldest living bank president in Virginia, and so far as can be ascertained, the oldest head of a banking institution in the entire South, Mr. James B. Russell, of Winchester, merchant, apple-grower and financier, has just been re-elected the president of the Union Bank of Winchester for the 34th consecutive year. Mr. Russell, who was born in Winchester on September 5, 1841, will have reached the age of eighty-one years on his next birthday.

W. J. Dymon, said to be about 80 years old, has been held for the Clarke county grand jury, charged with owning and operating an illicit still at his home in the Blue Ridge Mountains. When Sheriff Smallwood visited the place he could find no outfit, but returned the following day with two federal officers, and during Dymon's absence at a circus performance they found two stills hidden in a closet under a stairway. The old man was taken into custody the following day.

Another hair raising accident occurred on the Valley Pike on Fisher's Hill last Thursday afternoon when a Hudson Super-Six belonging to and driven by E. L. Humston, of near Middletown, skidded on the heavy curve near the bridge. Humston, it appears, had picked up several passengers from a bus which had broken down as they were also heading for Winchester. When the car skidded it turned around in the road, backed partly over the stone wall overlooking the stream thirty feet below and stopped with the rear wheels in mid air over the wall. The only thing that saved the car from plunging over the precipice was a wire fence.

From a source close to the Virginia penitentiary it was learned that the immediate chances of members of the so-called Allen clan receiving commutations or reduction of their prison terms are slim. The pardon board is understood to have declined to make any formal recommendation on the subject, apparently because of a political issue lurking in the background, and which might be revived. At the same time, it is learned the personal and informal views of a majority of those who have anything to do with the penitentiary are in favor of some leniency. In the meantime petitions are being circulated through the Fifth District of Virginia, some of them in Carroll county, where the Hillsville courtroom tragedy took place, and sentiment seems to be divided.

Rev. T. H. MacLeod preached at the usual hour in the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning, on the subject of "Giving a Reason for the Hope that is Within Us." After services, Mr. MacLeod went home with the Doaks, not going back to the city until night.

Rev. C. H. Frye preached both morning and night in the Baptist Church. There had been an announcement that the converts from the recent revival services were to be baptized at this service, but although the baptismal pool had been filled Saturday, it was empty Sunday, all the water having leaked out, so the ceremony had to be postponed to some future time, after the pool was made watertight.

Next Sunday afternoon the Centreville Sunday School Association will meet in the Presbyterian Church.

Miss Ruth Richards and Mrs. Margaret Detwiler were both on the sick list Sunday.

Mrs. Julian Burke, who has been quite ill, is better. It is reported that Mrs. John Burke is now ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Sauber had a sale of their household and other personal property last Wednesday at their home here, and the family left the next day for their new home in Washington.

The remains of Cornelius Burke was brought here Wednesday and after a service in the Baptist Church were interred in Clifton cemetery. Mr. Burke was about seventy years of age. A large part of his younger days were spent here. About thirty-five years ago he married Miss Mary Hickey. There was one daughter by this marriage, who with her mother, survive; also two brothers and a number of nieces and nephews.

There will be an entertainment in the school auditorium Friday night, May 12th, at 7:45 o'clock. Admission, 25c and 15c; proceeds for school purposes. There will be a good program. Come out for an evening of fun and help the school.

The Baptists will hold their prayer meeting at the home of Rev. C. H. Frye Wednesday night and after the meeting there will be a social hour in celebration of Mr. Frye's birthday. It is reported the cake will contain sixteen candles.

HONOR TO OUR MOTHERS

Hundreds of years the world went without setting aside a day such as we will observe on Sunday, May 14, for Mother's Day is of comparatively recent origin. Man went through the ages seemingly without thought of expressing publicly his thanks for the devotion, training and traditions given him by his mother.

Even now, we take this day too lightly. We seem to take it for granted that our mothers know how much we care for them. At most, we can do little in return for what our mothers have done for us.

Mother's Day is a day which every one can observe. No matter what station in life one may hold he has but one mother. The rich man or the poor man, the slave or the most independent, each is blessed with the same mother love.

We owe more to the quiet efforts of our mothers in our early days than we realize. Let us, who are fortunate enough to have living mothers, observe Mother's Day this year as we have never observed it heretofore. Those whose mothers have passed on should honor her memory. Let us resolve on this day to live up to the traditions and high ideals which our mothers tried to instill in us.

Proudly should every living soul wear that white flower on Mother's Day, for it stands for more than we can express through our humble lips.

MAJOR EWING REPLIES TO MR. SINCLAIR

Rather than lessen the already small news column space available this week the communication from Major E. W. R. Ewing, in reply to Hon. C. A. Sinclair's article in The Journal of April 28, is printed in our editorial space.

Ballston, Va., May 4, 1922.

To the People through the Press of Prince William County:
 I am shocked beyond measure to find part of a personal correspondence between me and Hon. C. A. Sinclair published in The Manassas Journal of April 28, 1922, while my reply is omitted. Even granting that it is the intention to publish the reply later, fairness required that there be some statement to that effect; and, in truth, fairness to this proposed Park demanded that what is in fact a mere debate regarding methods should have been kept out of the press. Not that there is anything hurtful in the merits of this difference between Mr. Sinclair and me, but merely because any intimation, however unjust and unfounded, that there is some method being used in such things that is questionable hurts and is sometimes fatal. There are, I am persuaded, at least a few in Prince William county who would be glad to see this Confederate memorial fail; and such use even intimations so as to make them, however wrongly, hurtful.

The truth about the matter is that what Mr. Sinclair terms "criticism" of him, magnified by the headlines of the publication, is the merest over-sensitiveness. I explained, as will be seen, that I had not thought of criticising him. His position presented a serious impediment to the success of the work, apparently; and my sole and only thought was for the success of the enterprise and to that end to present our needs in such a light that much of the money I hoped Prince William would contribute would not be tied up so that it would possibly entirely stop our work. I supposed he would go on with his plans, unless he saw the situation in our light when he read my letter; and I supposed by making a frank statement of our plans and purposes through the press, as I did, we would receive substantial help other than through Mr. Sinclair's plan. I had either to do that or see the work come to a standstill, so far as I could see at this time. I took it that we are all patriotic, that most of us want this Park built, and that a mere difference in view regarding plans of operation could in no possibility be taken as a personal criticism. Mr. Sinclair had given his plan to the public. As the nominal leader of the movement I surely was entitled to present more fully the plans we are following; and I was frank to publish our plans so that if Mr. Sinclair misunderstood the letter I wrote him and other members of the legislature under date of March 27, and from which he quotes in the letter published in The Journal on the 28th, all might know the facts before one dollar under his plan had come to us. So that I was forced by the situation his plan created, either to see the work, in the light then before me, come to a standstill, or make a frank statement to the public in the hope that many would not adhere to that plan even if he did so. So that it was not criticism which prompted my communication through the press; but a fuller statement of our methods and the correction of an erroneous impression.

Now, of course, Mr. Sinclair could say that I should first have written to him. I reply that I did not use his name in my published article and that by no means, according to my information, is he the first to suggest the plan he was following. I took it that he was rather the spokesman for an all-too-wide theory. At least one other person in Prince William county thought I was hitting at him in my published article, and he wrote me a hot retort. I suppose I may look for that in the press now. Very well! But let's not lose from sight the fact that I grasped an opportunity to try to correct this wrong position assumed by a few in Prince William; and to make one more appeal for a support that I feel has been all too lax in its faith in this movement.

I trust I shall not be further wrongly interpreted when I say that no other county and no other place in Virginia or elsewhere has intimated to me that a fund is being gathered to be held until assured all to buy the land is in hand. In that Prince William so far as I know or have reason to believe stands alone. Money has come to us from Georgia, no question asked; money has come to us from New York, no strings on it; and yet other contributions from here and there; and some of the full quotas for the Virginia counties in the ten thousand dollar movement are ready and probably in the hands of Col. Hutchison, our bonded treasurer. At least I have been asked to whom to send the funds and in those letters there is not an intimation that if we need five dollars for postage, for instance, to urge to action some dilatory county, we may not rightly take it from what is being sent us as part of the ten thousand dollar movement in Virginia.

Now, frankly, friends of Prince William county and adjoining sections, within the last week light begins to break which leads me to be very hopeful that the present management will succeed without one dollar more from local people. I say it looks thus hopeful now. Of course local help is needed for we are not yet over the initial rocks, though as the breakers lessen the shore appears certainly nearer. We appreciate, therefore, local help. But so far as I am concerned, I am not importuning for it. I am merely trying to present the full facts, to bring all to see the situation as it is, in the faith that when thus seen not only local people but all Virginians will feel that to fail to help in this work will be to lose a great privilege in years to come, to miss, as the closing days of life come on, a real blessing! Unless when the final books are closed Prince William stands first in local help and support and Virginia first of all the states, I shall, for one, hang my head in shame and anguish, for I am a Virginian, proud of her record, thankful for her gift through the Confederacy to the present, and without one penny of profit or pay I am devoting arduous work that we, all, may leave on one of Virginia's most beautiful and historic spots a fitting expression of that devotion which it is believed thousands share with me.

In this spirit, people of Prince William, please read my reply to Mr. Sinclair's letter of the 22nd of April, which is as follows:

Ballston, Va., April 24, 1922.

Hon. C. A. Sinclair, Manassas, Va.
 Dear Mr. Sinclair:—I read with a tinge of surprise your letter of April 22. It was my purpose to reply earlier to your first communication, but I have had so much to do that pleasure simply had to be deferred.

I am glad, however, to assure you that the published statements to which you refer, regarding funds for the battlefield campaign, had no thought of any criticism of you. I took it for granted that you would proceed, though I greatly regretted the position you had taken; and I merely meant to grasp the occasion to make one more and last effort to arouse your people to do for the great memorial much more than your proposition will accomplish—for, as I said, if you persist in the purpose or if any one acting does so, the service will be very little to us in this critical moment, though, of course, no money will be refused, however late we receive it.

To save the life of me I don't grasp the logic of your position, one in effect assumed by some other people in your community, who feel that one or two should bear the total risk of this effort and that the public must be protected against loss if, however honest, the effort may fail in the end. Such a position means no further progress, simply because no one or two or even three people, unless much richer than any so far connected with this work so far as I know, can afford to guarantee the people. That might be done as to a small amount; but if the position should be followed by our directors it would so limit us in the use of funds as that we would get nowhere. Many hundreds of dollars, first and last, must be used in the legitimate means by which money for such work can only be obtained. It is better for many to run the risk than for a few—in fact, I say, if the few feel it to be their risk there can be no ultimate success because they would not be willing to go far enough to produce final results.

But the risk, where many co-operate, is so small, if enough capital can be had, as only by co-operation it can, that it is not worth the thought; though I have always told the public that the responsibility is with the contributor and not with the management or any member of it.

But that that is true does not even imply the need of two funds or that the public should be advised of two funds. To save the life of me I can't see the difference between a campaign fund and money to buy the thing desired. However, the money be used, honestly, and common sense granted, it is as "broad as it long." Most business men and women in matters of this kind understand that any fund carries its own expenses as it goes; and I surely think at least most folks in your county so understand. The Wilson Endowment and many other things are being pushed in the South along just such lines right today and successfully. Such distinctions as you and a few others propose are not made, certainly as a rule, in great movements of this kind. Such methods are impractical.

Among the reasons for the impracticability of such measure or of such distinctions in funds, is the fact that if we asked for a given sum and it should prove inadequate and then should go back to the public for a further campaign fund, we would so destroy public confidence as that it would ruin the entire movement; and yet that destruction would rest upon no valid repudiation of the methods used. It is impossible in such matters to foresee what will be needed for costs; and all we want to do is to be morally sure we are on the right road, that such things as this do succeed, and plug ahead without stopping to tell where the first dollar will be used or the second held until the third is found. Such work must not lose from sight the psychology of the public, always important.

An illustration of the impossibility of foreseeing exact costs arises from the request for a state appropriation. If the legislature had given the ten thousand, then there would have been no expense in that connection after the passage of the bill. But as it did not we must now write and rewrite members of the legislature, time and time again. The result now will be—not ten thousand if we must depend upon each member doing his duty—but certainly some very substantial return short of that. Now, must we put that money in bank and use it for no purpose whatever except to pay Henry, for instance? Suppose we got no more money, and suppose that by use of that fund we could get enough to complete the purchase, would it be wise or right to leave that fund in bank and stop the entire project? In other words, the directors must go ahead and use any funds at hand for any purpose—the whole and every cent spent being for but one and the same end—the purchase of the land, the building of the memorial Park. And because we know as certainly as human minds can forecast that in the end we shall reach the desired sum provided we are permitted to keep what we do get going as we get it. If we need a dollar for postage, it is truthful and correct to ask for money to buy a park, for the postage is as much the foundation of the park as is the Henry house!

However, I would far rather you would put the money in bank, little good as that will do, than to turn it over to us and then to intimate, as your letter in effect does, that we propose to misapply the money or any of it. What I say about wanting ten thousand dollars to buy the land is correct, perfectly true, I repeat, for emphasis, yet suppose some substantial part of the about $15,000 now subscribed should not be paid when we get that ten. Would we be right in using some part of the ten supplied by Virginia to gather the deficiency? CERTAINLY. Suppose that if we did not and no one put up any more money and those of us who are doing so went "busted," as we are nearly right now, then the enterprise would fail, though it would not have done so by using part of the funds in hand.

So you see by the plan you propose and by intimations such as you make, there is laid ground for some one to begin to whisper that the money is being misappropriated, spent for some purpose for which it was not gathered; and you thus dig a grave in which to bury the whole project. Whereas on the other hand there is no wrong, no misapplication, no injustice done; and the plan we are following is that used by some of the best people in this country for some of the most laudable projects.

So why we should not be permitted to proceed along recognized lines, according to the rules of psychology now established for such campaigns, I can't understand; and more than that, why we are not fully supported by your people who, as you so truthfully and so eloquently argue in your article in your paper, which, by the way, I did not see until today, surpasses my comprehension. If you or any one lacks confidence in me or in any member of our board you may ask the circuit court for removal. If you have good grounds for such removal you should in justice to this work make that request. Our charter provides for that as a speedy remedy. In fact it provides that the judge in vacation may act upon such requests, after notice to the party charged. If you do have confidence in us you should help us in the only logical way such things can be done. Tell the public the full facts if you think they don't understand and you must do so; but don't let's get up a squabble as to who will buy the foundation mud and who the gold tip for the spire!

Very sincerely,
 (Signed) E. W. R. EWING.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

In memory of Brother B. W. Storke, who died April 12, 1922. Once again death hath summoned a Brother Odd Fellow, and the golden gateway to the Eternal City has opened to welcome him to his home. He has completed his work in the ministering to the wants of the afflicted, in shedding light into darkened souls and in bringing joy into the places of misery, and as his reward has received the plaudit, "well done," from the Supreme Master. And Whereas, the all-wise and merciful Master of the universe has called our beloved and respected brother home, and he having been a true and faithful member of our beloved Order, therefore be it Resolved, That Highland Lodge, No. 252, I. O. O. F., of Independent Hill, in testimony of her loss, be draped in mourning for thirty days and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence in their deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family. DAUGHTERS OF 1812 HELD CONVENTION

Col. George Armistead Chapter Represented by Its Regent, Mrs. A. W. Sinclair.

Reported by Mrs. Arthur W. Sinclair, Regent Colonel Geo. Armistead Chapter Daughters of 1812 and State Corresponding Secretary.

The thirteenth annual Associate Council of the United States Daughters of 1812, was held during the week of April 26th, as usual, at the New Willard Hotel, in the City of Washington. The damage by fire the night previous to the beginning of the three days' session prevented the use of the small ball room where former meetings were always held. The Red room was hastily put in readiness. One of the large tables, used by world statesmen during the Limitation of Armaments Conference, was brought from the Pan American building for use by the National officers. It was suggested during the closing hours of the council that the table could be bought; quickly the price, something under a hundred dollars, was contributed for its purchase for the room the 1812 organization has secured at a cost of $8,000 in the George Washington Victory Memorial Building, which is destined to link the spirit of 1776 with the spirit of 1917. Monday morning was taken up with registration and presentation of credentials by delegates. In the afternoon we journeyed by taxi to the grave of the unknown and unidentified American soldier, at Arlington Cemetery, placing wreaths upon the sarcophagus with impressive ceremonies, beginning with the Reveille, a brief and touching speech by Mrs. Clarence Jenne, of Hartford, Conn., National President of 1812 Daughters, a short poem, a prayer and taps. In the crypt of the magnificent marble amphitheater we looked upon the flag-draped caskets of sixty-eight soldier dead, from across seas, awaiting burial. Monday evening a brilliant reception was given at the New Willard, the National President, officers and Real Daughters receiving. Mrs. Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General of the United States and Hon. Carroll L. Beedy, Congressman from Maine, were the speakers of the evening.

It would take too much of The Journal's valuable space to give in detail the impressive opening features of the Tuesday morning business session. All reports showed increasing interest in all lines of 1812 endeavor. Two hundred and fifty new members, 23 of these Real Daughters, have been added to the organization during the Council year, North Carolina leading. The treasurer's report showed nearly $5,000 of the $8,000 purchase price of 1812 room in George Washington Memorial Building, in hand. A cordial reception was given the Daughters by President and Mrs. Harding at the White House during the afternoon of Tuesday.

The banquet at the New Willard on Tuesday evening was a happy occasion. Baron Marchenne, Ambassador from Belgium, United States Senator Stanley and Mrs. Stanley, Rev. J. J. Muir, Chaplain of the United States Senate, and presidents of several national patriotic societies were the speakers of the evening.

A 5 o'clock tea was given in honor of the delegates to the 1812 Council by Mrs. F. Dimock, president of the George Washington Memorial Association, at her palatial home, 1301 16th Street, Wednesday afternoon.

At the morning session of Wednesday a resolution petitioning Congress to pass the bill making the "Star Spangled Banner" our National Anthem, was unanimously adopted. Another fact of historical importance was revealed to the Council for action before its close. In the archives of the Canadian Government at Ottawa there is the complete record of our 1812 soldiers, and sailors, which our government has not.

The Pennsylvania and New York delegations volunteered to give five hundred dollars, and more if needed, to have copied in book form these records for our National 1812 Library. Wednesday evening saw the close of a fruitful and harmonious Associate Council of 1812 Daughters.

A treat was in store for those who remained over until Thursday. An invitation to visit the navy yard and go aboard the President's ship, Mayflower. There were many expressions of appreciation from all those who availed themselves of the privilege.

Lieut. Leo O'Brien, of Warrinton, died Monday afternoon at his home after an illness of some months. The deceased was a gallant young officer in the Eightieth Division and served with distinction on the battlefields of France. As many others, he was severely gassed, which later developed into lung trouble.

TO THE Farmers of Prince William County:

¶ Have you ever stopped to think what benefits you have derived from the Farmers' Union? Stop and think the matter over with yourself of how many dollars you have to your credit actually saved by the organization of the Farmers' Union.

¶ Look at the legislation we are getting in our favor now. Were we ever recognized before? No. But believe me those fellows down yonder in Washington have been calling on the farmers and asking them what they want done.

¶ Man alive, LISTEN! I want to tell you right now that if it was not for the Farmers' Union today, what would you be paying for your fertilizer? Who brought those fellows to time? It was the Farmers' Union and believe me, this grand old Union is handing it right on to its brother farmer. You fellows who need fertilizer should see your Exchange. They have your needs at heart; they have the price and you will be benefited in three ways instead of one. Ask the manager and he will tell you.

¶ Gentlemen, listen; don't stick your nose too close to the grindstone. Keep your eyes and ears open. Study the questions of the day that are coming before you. Be on your guard. Join the Farmers' Union. Help yourself as well as others.

¶ TO THE LADIES OF THE COUNTY: We invite you to join us. We need your help. Hunch that man of yours and tell him you are on. Stand with your Union, the farmer has got to rise. Don't let Capital sit on us always. The farmers control the wealth of the world. All they need is organization.

¶ Brother farmer, listen. Let's have a heart to heart talk. When you trade at your Exchange you buy as cheap as you can anywhere else. The profits come back to you, so why not join the Union and become a stockholder in your local Exchange?

¶ Brother, we could make our organization the biggest thing in old Prince William county if you would come in and join us. We can market everything we have to sell and eliminate all middlemen. Look up your local secretary and treasurer and tell him that you are on and that he can bank on you, now and forever more. We are for just laws and good citizenship.
