In offering our service and facilities to prospective customers and clients we are not offering something for nothing. We expect ultimately to be repaid for the expense of handling every account that comes to us.

Banks are money-making institutions, and ours is no exception. If we are to continue to go forward, we must operate profitably.

However, we sincerely believe that our facilities for rendering real banking service are unsurpassed, and that those who contemplate opening accounts cannot do better than come to us.

RECONCILING EUROPE
 The end of the Genoa conference disappointed the expectations of many at each of the expectations of many that the powers of Europe were going to stop glowering at each other and getting ready for another war, and that they would settle down and work in harmony, though the conference had some useful results.

If these powers only could settle down and live in peace, it would do much to promote prosperity in this country. They have, unfortunately, found that their differences are too deep for any far reaching project of harmony at present. When great powers have been almost ruined, when they have lost the flower of their manhood and their interests seem radically conflicting, it takes time to forget old rancors and reach cooperative agreements.

The differences between Russia and the rest of the world seem for the moment to be impossible to bridge. The two conceptions of life are wholly opposite. The bolshevistic has brought that once wealthy country down to the extremes of poverty and hunger and apparently it must suffer and starve until its people rise and throw off the autocratic rulers who control them by guns and bayonets.

Nations that believe in encouraging good service and earnest work and intelligence, by allowing people to keep the property that they accumulate, naturally do not like to invest money in a country where such property has been confiscated. The bolshevists should realize that if they want to secure loans from the countries that believe in protecting individual ownership, they will have to conform to the ideas that prevail in such countries.

The nations ought to cut down their armies, stop printing paper money, get down to business. The Germans ought to pay every cent of the reparations asked them, but to get it out of them will probably cost more than it will come to. It never pays to spend too much time squeezing a sucked out lemon. Europe should think more of the future and less of the past.—Culpeper Exponent.

POISON GAS AND PEACE
 There are idealists moved by sincere impulses who would abolish all poison gas in war if they could not persuade the world at large to agree to such a reform and to adhere to it, they would have their own country take the lead by abolishing its own gas works and suspending its own peace-time researches.

It is difficult to quarrel with people who assume this position. On the moral side they have all the argument. There is no humanitarian defense to be made of this method of killing men. To say that the victims would die more quickly and suffer less in their death throes by being gassed, than otherwise, is no answer.

But there is a phase of the matter that war's reformers overlook. Each nation of the earth must in the final analysis, protect its own. Military alliances, league of nations or other cooperative associations will not suffice, once a country finds itself at war with an enemy. Allies may go to the support of such a nation, but these allies expect that nation do some fighting of its own.

If poison gas could be absolutely outlawed and it would remain outlawed, America would not dare engage in its production. No other individual nation would dare do it. But human experience has shown that no instrumentality has been permanently abolished. A nation with its back to the wall fighting for its life will make use of any means at its command to defend itself. It was thought, for example that the dum-dum bullets were a thing of the past, and yet the Germans are charged with having used even deadlier shot.

During the disarmament conference a movement was started to abolish outright the use of poison gas in war. The American delegation was willing to lend itself to that proposal, but the matter never reached the treaty stage. It was put off for further consideration as were many other "minor" issues of similar nature.

Meanwhile there has been an active effort in Congress to wipe out the Edgewood Arsenal where the American army makes its gas, its gas masks and engages in its experimentation. Up to this time neither the house nor the Senate has agreed to the destruction of what is perhaps the most extensive gas plant in the world. No responsible group of legislators has been willing to assume responsibility for disarming the country in this high important respect.

If another war comes, it is almost inevitable that some one of the belligerents will resort to poison gases as a means of offensive or defensive combat. If the United States finds itself engaged in that conflict, it should be prepared to meet its foe, whatever instruments may be employed. The Edgewood Arsenal should remain intact, even if the force that may be kept there is reduced to little more than a guard.—Times Dispatch.

BE YOUR OWN CHECKER-UP
 Imagine how quickly all of us would take a brace for the better if we knew that when we broke a rule we were going to be checked up for it right away.

When I sold cash registers one of the arguments we used was that it kept the clerks in the store from the temptation to slip a few dollars from the cash drawer.

Many men, you know, are good because they never had a chance to be crooked. They have never had to resist temptation, or they have been checked up so vigorously that they never had a chance to get away with anything.

The argument for cash registers was a sound one, because I think it is generally admitted that a man who negligently places temptation before his employees is subject to blame if any of them get into trouble.

For this reason all devices, such as check protectors, counter-signed checks, double entry books, combination locks, burglar alarms, cash registers, and time clocks are good things because they make it difficult for people to go crooked.

Now think what a godsend it would be if there were some device that would ring a bell when we turn out a sloppy piece of work, or automatically give us a kick when we use only about a quarter of our energy on our job.

If it is up to ourselves to be our own checker-up we may sleep peacefully for a year before our creditors close in and put the sheriff in charge. Or if we are working for another man it may be six months before he gets around and ties the can to us.

There is an old saying that if you give some men enough rope they will hang themselves. Unfortunately this is true, but a lot of productive citizens are lost this way. Why not keep these men in leash instead of letting them pass out at the long end of the rope?

I have always admired the way baseball averages are kept because these records enable every man to know just where he stands in relation to every other man on his team and on competing teams.

In baseball there is no argument about who is the best hitter in the country. The figures are there—down to the fourth decimal point.

Some companies keep similar records, almost as scientific, on their salesmen, and when these are published so that every salesman may see what every other salesman is doing, the effect is very salutary.

The plan has been worked out, I understand, for production departments, blackboards showing graphically just what each man and each machine is doing.

These record systems are worthless, however, unless they are maintained on a strictly up-to-the-minute basis. If a man loafed on the job last week he ought to know about it the following week. If you wait a month to tell him he won't believe you.

That is the reason why I believe in the effect following promptly on the cause.—The Type Metal Magazine.

WEAR A POPPY!
 Wear a poppy; and remember that its hue of brilliant red is symbolic of the life-blood that ten million men have shed
 That the world might be enfranchised from an overpowering dread—
 That the living might have freedom, as a gift from those now dead.
 Wear a poppy; and remember that its faint, elusive scent will be fragrant through the ages of the courage and intent
 That inspired the youthful spirits, who received the call, and went
 Where, to have a high ideal, life itself had to be spent.
 Wear a poppy; and remember that its petals each contain
 Of an opiate, just a fraction of the very smallest grain—
 But a hundred million poppies, worn in memory of the slain.
 Can but soothe our dead, with knowledge that they have not died in vain.
 Wear a poppy; and remember, as you pin it on your breast
 That great array of the fallen, now in Flanders' Fields at rest;
 Who, like Arthur's knights, enlisted in a high and holy quest,
 And whose golden bars of service give them rank among the blest.
 —CHARLES HALL DAVIS.

LAUGH AND LIVE
 Mother—"You were a long time on the front porch with Mr. Willing last night, my child. What was going on?"
 Daughter—"Did you ever sit on the front porch with father before you married him?"
 Mother—"I suppose I did."
 Daughter—"Well, mother, it's the same old world."
 "Do you think I shall live until I'm ninety, doctor?"
 "How old are you now?"
 "Forty."
 "Do you drink, gamble or smoke or have you any vices of any kind?"
 "No, I don't drink, I never gamble, I loathe smoking; in fact I haven't any vices."
 Well, good heavens, what do you want to live another fifty years for?"
 The Wife—"Isn't that your eye doctor?"
 The husband: "I thought so until he sent me his bill. He's a skin specialist."

SHERMAN SAID IT
 A soldier in the English army wrote home: "They put me in barracks; they took away my clothes and put me in khaki; they took away my name and made me 'No. 575'; they took me to a church, where I'd never been before; and they made me listen to a sermon for forty minutes. Then the parson said: 'No. 575. Art thou weary, art thou languid?' and I got seven days in the guardhouse because I answered that I certainly was."

The object of the above-styled suit is to obtain a judgment by James R. Dorrel, the plaintiff, against Annie M. Haislip, defendant thereto, for the sum of nine hundred dollars ($900.00), together with interest thereon from the 18th day of October, 1921, until paid, and together with 10% additional as cost of collection; to attach the estate, both real and personal, owned by the said Annie M. Haislip and situate in the county of Prince William and State of Virginia, including a certain lot or parcel of land, together with the buildings thereon, lying and being situate on the north side of Centre street, in the town of Manassas, in Prince William County, Va., and being the same land that was conveyed to the said Annie M. Boy Wanted

Somewhere in this town is one boy who is a "go-getter" spirit, full of grit and ambition, and absolutely honest. We want that boy. He will be the only boy agent in this town for the famous MOVIE WEEKLY MAGAZINE. He will work after school and other spare time. His pay will be what he makes it; besides fine prizes and free Movie Tickets. When he makes good, he will be promoted. If you are between 14 and 19 years old, determined to "make good" and truly think you are the boy for this job, then apply by letter to Mr. E. L. Gilbert, "Personnel" 3rd floor, 119 West 40th Street, New York City. Give full details of any past selling experience; your age; parent's full name and business; your school grade and at least two references.

GOOD SIGHT

There is more to a pair of glasses than mere style. A pair of glasses, or a pair of gold rimmed spectacles, may present an elegant appearance, but their value lies in how well they correct your particular defect of vision. Lenses are ground after a specific prescription based upon careful examination of the eyes, yet, to the ordinary person, a pair of lenses of wholly different powers may have exactly the same appearance. The important—the vital part of obtaining glasses is securing a proper diagnosis of defects of vision. Only professional men of knowledge, skill and experience can render satisfactory and dependable service along this line, and when such assistance is required a visit should be made to some one of recognized ability. Have your eyes examined now!

Dr. O. W. Hines, Graduate Optometrist.

 PORTLAND CEMENT

STORAGE is a big factor in profitable marketing and economical buying. Like most worth while things it works both ways. For the farmer or the man in town a vegetable and fruit cellar is a real economy.

A concrete root cellar properly made, vermin-proof, water-proof and permanent, will soon pay for itself in more ways than one.

Your dealer can give you plans to construct a small one, or your local contractor can quickly build it for you. Either one is apt to suggest you the Atlas Portland Cement, "the Standard by which all other makes are measured."

The Brentsville Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Paul Cooksey last Friday afternoon and officers were elected for the year as follows: President, Mrs. Paul Cooksey; vice-president, Mrs. John Seymour; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Lewis Jamison, reporter, Miss Violet Keys. The ladies were very fortunate in having Miss Burke, of Blacksburg, to speak to them with many helpful hints and bits of advice. Miss Gilbert presided as temporary chairman in her usual pleasing manner. Refreshments were served during the social hour by the hostess.

The ladies of the Brentsville Kensington will meet at the home of Mrs. Louis Mowry next Thursday, May 25. The subject for the evening will be "Foreign Missions in my Church." As several churches are represented in the society each lady is asked to respond with interesting foreign missions of her respective church.

The Brentsville baseball team for the season looks very promising in the practice games, as no regular games have been played yet. The boys want uniforms which they deserve, if we expect good work. To raise funds for this purpose several members, assisted by friends, are preparing an entertainment to be given June 8. An admission of 15c will be charged. Please patronize this entertainment and be proud of your team.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. S. B. Spitzer were Mr. Owen Wade, Mrs. Raber and son of Catlett, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whetsel and Mr. Jesse Whetsel, of Nokesville, Mr. and Mrs. John Seymour, Mr. Ervin Wade and son, Misses Alene Keys, Dora and Mary Lam and Messrs. J. M. Keys and John Donovan.

The sum of $15.00 was realized at the social last Friday evening.

Mr. Herbert Keys and family, of Independent Hill, visited relatives in Brentsville Sunday.

Mr. Herman Lam lost a valuable cow this week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Woodyard, of Aden, spent the week-end with friends here.

The play to be given by the young folks under the direction of Mrs. Paul Cooksey is making good progress and promises to be worth more than the 15c. which will be charged for admission. Come have a good time and help the ball team get their uniforms.

Mr. Rose and daughter, Mrs. Tiggrett, of Covington, Va., are visiting Mr. Rose's daughter, Mrs. Louis Jamison. Mrs. Jamison entertained at dinner in their honor both Sunday and Monday of this week. For Ten Dollars and Ninety Cents—This 30 x 3 1/2 Usco

THE 30 x 3 1/2 tire situation today is just this—
 The man who buys an USCO at $10.90 is justified in believing that his money is going farther in tire value than it ever has gone or could go before.

Naturally he appreciates the quality of USCO. That was established long ago.

It is still fresh in his mind that USCO led the national market into the $10.90 price range.

The makers of U. S. Tires always intended the 30 x 3 1/2 USCO to be the highest value in its field.

At $10.90 it creates a new classification of money's worth.

Build Up Your Strength

Rexall Wine of Cod Liver Extract contains all the valued drug principles of purest Cod Liver Oil without the nauseating taste of the oil itself, and has proven ideal in treating run-down, weakened conditions, especially in children. Most persons in whom are found tubercular tendencies are to a greater or less extent anemic—the blood pale and impoverished.

Rexall Wine of Cod Liver Extract sometimes after two or three days' treatment. We strongly recommend, however, that the treatment with Rexall Wine of Cod Liver Extract, be continued until such a time as there is every indication of a perfect healthy condition. Aged persons who find their general strength below its normal state will find in Rexall Wine of Cod Liver Extract that mild, healthful tonic of which the system is so greatly in need.
