

INDIAN WAS GAME CONSERVATIONIST

So Declared Secretary M. D. Hart in Speech to Two Tribes.

Holding that "the original Indian was a game conservationist of the first water," who killed either for sustenance or to protect his person from the wild life around him, M. D. Hart, secretary of the State Department of Game and Inland Fisheries, delivered a really notable address before the recent annual convocation of the Pamunkey and Chickahominy Indian tribes, held near Brady's Wharf, in the county of New Kent. Chief Cook, of the Pamunkeys, and Chief Adkins, of the Chickahominies, together with about three hundred braves from the two tribes, were present. The Indians were addressed in short impromptu talks by Colonel W. McDonald Lee, State game and fish commissioner, and by Parke P. Deans, secretary to the Governor. The address by Mr. Hart, however, which was prepared, is said to have been greatly enjoyed by the red men.

"The original Indian," said Mr. Hart, "was a game conservationist of the first water. He needed no game laws to keep him from wantonly slaughtering the wild life around him. He never drew his bow to kill any wild creature in sport. When he killed it was for some wise purpose, either for sustenance or in defense of his person. He went on his annual buffalo hunts to procure his winter's supply of meat and clothing. He stopped killing when his needs were supplied. His knowledge of woodcraft was marvelous. He could follow the track of a wild animal through the dry leaves of the forest with unerring accuracy. As lineal descendants of the first Virginians, I salute the Chickahominies and the Pamunkeys. I assure you that in me there is one pale face brother in whose breast nothing but brotherly love abides for you and for yours.

"I think it not inopportune to say that, since our State game department started six years ago, the Indians of Virginia have given us much less trouble than have the English, the Italian, the Scandinavian and the negro. The Brady Brothers, of this tribe, have kept in close touch with the Department, have attended our conventions, have participated in discussions on the subject of better game protection, and we have also enjoyed the co-operation of Chief Cook, of the Pamunkeys. The Department appreciates and values this interest displayed by the Indians."

Declaring that the Chickahominy River is among the best big-mouth black bass streams in the State, Mr. Hart went into a brief discussion of laws passed in the interest of fish conservation. He spoke of that law prohibiting the further sale of black bass in the markets of Virginia, of the establishment of fish hatcheries and legislation bearing on the protection and conservation of game fish. The address was appreciated to the full extent by the Indians, and at its conclusion Chief Cook, of the Pamunkeys, and Chief Adkins, of the Chickahominies, came forward on behalf of their tribes to congratulate and to thank the orator.

ACCIDENTS ON INCREASE

Careless Crossers Vie With Rail Tresspassers in Gamble With Death.

Washington, D. C., August 17.—Increased safety for passengers and employees was achieved by the Southern Railway System during the first five months of 1922, but fatalities among persons who were neither passengers nor employees showed an increase of 24.64 per cent, according to announcement by the Southern's Safety Department.

During this period not a passenger was killed, and fatalities among employees decreased 27.2 per cent as compared with 1921, but 86 other persons were killed as against 69 in 1921.

Of this total, 42 lost their lives while trespassing on tracks, 13 while trespassing on trains and 28 were killed in highway crossing accidents.

"These figures show," the statement says, "that while the Southern has been able to protect the passengers who pay to ride on its trains and the employees whose duty it is to operate them, it has not had equal success in controlling fatalities among persons who insisted on walking on tracks or climbing on trains where they had no business, or among persons who attempted to cross its tracks without taking the simple precaution to see that no train was approaching.

JOUSTING WILL BE EVENT
Tournament to Feature State Fair at Richmond This Fall.

The biggest single feature of the Virginia State Fair this fall at Richmond, October 2-19, will be an old-fashioned tournament, elaborately staged and for which richer prizes are offered than for any other event on the program, the purses totaling $800. Never before in the State have prizes so great been offered for an event of this kind, and it is expected that the affair will bring together in Richmond the pick of knights and horses from every section of the State. A grand ball, at which the successful knight will crown the queen of love and beauty, as was the custom in days ago, will follow the tilting in the immense ball room in the fair grounds. A parade participated in by the plumed knights and their gaily caparisoned steeds will precede the jousting.

In order that the event may lack nothing of the spectacular, the rules announced require all contestants to ride in full costume, and for the most appropriately attired knight a cash prize of $50 is offered.

The rules and prize list follows:
First prize, $300; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

For the best looking and best mannered horse, $100.

For the best costume, $50.

Lances must be nine feet in length, balanced four feet from the point, with steel points permitted.

Time, six seconds flat.

Size of rings from one and one-quarter inch to three quarters of an inch.

Entrance fee, $5.
Entries close September 16.

Free stabling quarters for horses.
Further particulars may be had by writing to R. T. Corbell, tournament secretary, State Fair headquarters, Richmond, Va.

FUEL ADMINISTRATOR ACTIVE

Bank Guarantees Payment for Coal for the State of Virginia.

Financial arrangements for the handling of coal in Virginia were made by State Fuel Administrator Alexander Forward with the State and City Bank and Trust Company, of Richmond, recently, and orders Nos. 1 and 2, went forward to Washington for coal to be delivered to ice and cold storage plants in Danville and Charlottesville, each order bearing a sight draft to accompany the bill of lading.

Through the arrangement made the State and City Bank and Trust Company guarantees payment of the orders forwarded by the State fuel administrator, who, under the rules of the Federal fuel administration, is responsible for the money for all coal ordered. All orders for coal from the mines, whether for firms, corporations or individuals, must pass through the hands of the State fuel administrator, who, in turn, transmits them to Washington.

Major Forward was advised that the Hoover fair price for run-of-mine coal at the mines had been raised to $4.50 per ton, and prepared sizes to $4.75 in the Virginia and West Virginia fields. In some instances large firms have contracts for coal as low as $1.50 per ton at the mines. These, however, are subject to the discretion of the Federal fuel administrator, as to whether the orders will be filled at $1.50 or at the Hoover fair price list.

Southern Railway System
Office of the President
1300 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, D. C.

August 14, 1922.

To the Public Officials of the South:
Under the Transportation Act of 1920 a Labor Board was constituted by the Congress to adjudicate issues between railway employees and managements as to wages and working conditions.

In the summer of 1920, on the application of employees, that Board ordered wages to be increased with a retroactive effect to May 1, 1920.

Southern Railway System obeyed this order, as it has all other orders of the Labor Board, but the increased wages into effect and paid the back wages to the benefit of, among others, its shop crafts, thereby at once wiping out a year's profits and making necessary a suspension of dividends which have not since been resumed.

In the winter of 1922, under changed economic conditions, the Labor Board had before it proposals to reduce the wages of the shop crafts when the shop crafts again sought and had their day in court.

After hearing both sides the Labor Board entered its orders which among other things reduced wages, e. g., of machinists from 77 to 70 cents per hour.

Our men declined to work for the wages and under the conditions prescribed by the orders of the Labor Board, the jurisdiction of which they had previously invoked to their own benefit.

The President of the United States mediated in an attempt to adjust the dispute and made a proposition to both parties.

The shop crafts accepted this proposition.

The Southern Railway System notified the shop crafts that it also accepted the President's proposition and invited all its men to return to work with their seniority unimpaired.

After procrastination upon the part of the committee of the shop crafts, they declined to negotiate with the management of Southern Railway System and stated that the issue must be settled nationally or not at all.

For 45 days Southern Railway System has maintained its operations under great handicaps by reason of strike conditions, without material curtailment of service to the public.

During this period the round house work which has made it possible so to carry on has been done by officers and loyal employees of other departments of the service.

It now seems that there is no hope of an early national settlement of the strike.

The foregoing statement of developments step by step is given you in order that you may have an appreciation of the situation of the Southern Railway System in its relations with its shop crafts up to the moment of the present crisis.

We owe you a duty with which we cannot longer compromise. Therefore, today I gave out the following public statement:

"Every effort has been made so to operate our property that our men could honorably return to work. Every effort has been made to settle with our men; we have gone to the extent of offering the terms that they had previously agreed to accept. We have thus held out every reasonable inducement, without result.

"We must now turn to employing others, for the road must be run; we must give these we employ protection, for, it may be that those we have up to this time protected by keeping their jobs open may now turn against us, even to the attempt to prevent others from working.

"Call is now made upon every employee, upon every patron, of this company, and upon every citizen along its lines, to rally to the support of the road that has served you and protect your interest in the maintenance of transportation. With your help we can run the road, and we pledge all the resources of the company to that end. If it means war to run the Southern Railway, then let us have it now—not later."

The new men which we will now employ must be protected in their inalienable right to work through the machinery provided by the law of the land. We will invoke that law where found necessary. We are assured of the support of the National Government in the stand we have taken and we now ask for the co-operation and assistance of the State, county and municipal governments.

FAIRFAX HARRISON,
President.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear mother, Mrs. Margaret Ann Reid, who departed this life July 28, in her 67th year. She died at the George Washington Hospital, after an operation for appendicitis and a complication of diseases, being ill a little over three weeks.

She leaves two children, Ernest W. Reid and Ella V. Mayhugh, both of Greenwich, two brothers and two sisters, one half-brother and two half-sisters and a host of friends to mourn our loss, which is her gain. We mourn, but not as those who have no hope, for she trusted in her Saviour, and in Him has found eternal rest.

Dearest mother, you have left this life Of toil and care, pain and tears. You have bid them all farewell; High up amid the eternal years You are at rest,

With Christ your Lord to dwell. Our hearts are lonely, we miss your Tender care and loving voice, Which now is still.

There is a sad and vacant spot Within our homes which none But mother can fill.

So patiently you lived your life— Cheerful, kind, and the truest Friend to everyone. Our hearts are sad; We mourn our loss; But Thy will be done.

There is a hope to which the Christian Clinging, is lifted high above Life's surging wave, Finds life in death

And fadeless flowers springing From the dark grave. Heavenly Father, keep watch over us, And draw us nearer, Nearer as the years go by. Increase our faith and help us to live A life of Christian service, To meet our mother in the sky.

Written by her loving daughter,
E. V. M.

BE IMPARTIAL

A daily newspaper published in one of the larger cities of the East has recently published several articles dealing with the operation and effect of the Volstead law in a near-by State. The articles were written by a representative of the paper, who was sent out to gather information indiscriminately, from wet and dry alike. It is rather easy to gather from a reading of the articles that the writer of them is not in sympathy with the law. He, perhaps, had instructions as to persons upon whom he should call, as the majority of those whom he interviewed had not been favorably impressed with the workings of the Volstead Act.

It is to be doubted whether such investigations are worth anything, for if a writer on the subject shows himself to be prejudiced one way or the other his opinions and expressions—even facts themselves as detailed by him—lose much of their force.

To the average mind the effort now being made by the Literary Digest to ascertain the true sentiment regarding the Volstead law will prove much more satisfactory as a means to seeing just how the country at large feels on the subject. It is coming to be pretty generally recognized that the present law is a failure, and that conditions under it are growing well-nigh intolerable. There appears to be no end to the supply of illicit liquor, and both State and Federal governments have failed to curb traffic in it.

By taking a straw vote the Literary Digest is endeavoring in an impartial way to ascertain whether the country is satisfied with conditions as they now exist.

The vote so far shows a majority in favor of a modification of the law. If public sentiment is not behind the law, it is well to know it, and the Literary Digest will probably succeed in finding out just how the country feels on the matter.

A LIFE THAT SHOULD INSPIRE OTHERS

The death of a man like Arthur Griffith, at the most critical period of Ireland's long struggle, creates not only profound regret for the abrupt termination of a brilliant and constructive life that was still on the threshold of its greatest achievements, but a certain degree of anxiety for the consequences to his country that his passing may entail. In such cases as this we could wish that the general law of the survival of the fittest could be strictly applied. Ireland needed Griffith as much apparently as the children of Israel needed Moses when they arrived at the Red Sea; and yet Griffith is taken and De Valera left. As a rule, the absolutely essential man is not supposed to exist, but there are great national crises in which the general safety rests on the leadership of a single individual, and in which there is no one who can take his place.

While, as Lloyd George says in his telegram to Michael Collins, Griffith's loss must fall "heavily on Ireland," there is substantial ground for the hope that "his work will go on to complete success." The Irish cause would be hopeless indeed if the splendid inspiration of his life should be extinguished with his mere bodily withdrawal from the scene of his devoted labors. If the British Premier has been filled with admiration and deeply impressed by "his single-minded patriotism, his ability, sincerity and courage," the Irish people, it is safe to assume, will not be likely soon to forget the man who led them so close to their Promised Land. His qualities have been a cloud of fire by day and a pillar of fire by night in guiding them on their way, and the spirit of his unselfish patriotism will continue to lead them, unless they are overcome by some destructive madness.

The President of the Dail Eireann, Griffith would almost certainly have been first President also of the Irish Free State. He will rank none the less high in Irish gratitude or on the rolls of Irish glory because he has been prevented from rendering this final service to emancipated Ireland. The highest of honors belongs to him who suffers and dies for a cause which he has made successful and from which he has reaped none of the rewards of earthly ambition. Griffith's fame will remain untainted by the faintest odor of human selfishness. Ireland and the worshippers of idealism and altruism everywhere else mourn in his death a patriot without guile, a leader who was not afraid to face the prejudices and passions of his own people, a statesman who put honesty and moral courage among the supreme political virtues.

The best thing we can wish for Ireland is that Heaven will endow those he has left behind with the rare wisdom and exalted zeal which have helped to guide his people so far toward the goal of national freedom.—Baltimore Sun.

ORDER MUST BE ENFORCED

If interest is to be maintained in the base ball games played on the local diamond, it is very apparent that some steps will have to be taken to preserve proper order and decorum on the grounds.

No objection, of course, can be raised to "rooting" in the proper way, but there can be no excuse offered for either players, managers or spectators who transcend the bounds of decency and good order.

It is natural for those interested in the respective teams to want to see their favorite win, but spectators have no business on the diamond at any stage of the game, and the local management should take the necessary steps to see that they are kept off. The captains of the teams are well able to take care of the team's interest in any disputed points, and arguments should be left to them without interference on the part of anyone else.

Umpires are frequently embarrassed, and, unless their decisions are accepted with better grace by all concerned, the clubs will soon find themselves unable to obtain the services of fair-minded, intelligent men to umpire games. The umpiring of a ball game by an amateur is no pleasing task at best, and when they are being continually "ragged" by the crowd patience might well cease to be a virtue.

It is not often that an umpire proves to be crooked, and when one is not calling balls and strikes or put-outs as he sees them the spectators and players will soon get wise. But when an umpire is known to be fair and impartial a mistake now and then on his part ought to be overlooked. So, here's hoping that there will be no more "scenes" on the local ball grounds.

BOY-HEART

Bless the little boy-heart
That sings within us still,
The music of the morning
On a homely hill—
The light that sets us glowing
In the cities of our care
With the grace beyond all knowing
Where the boy-hearts fare!

Bless the little boy-heart
And keep it ever sweet,
To swing along the green road
And skip the burning street—
To whistle by the hedgerows,
And shimmer in the sun
Of valley and of hillside
Where the wild verbenas run.

Ah, the little boy-heart—
So I dream that mine
May beat within my bosom
Till the last days decline;
May sing within my spirit,
And dance in every vein,
Till in my dreams I hear it,
The boyhood land again.

Fresher than the wild rose,
Sweeter than the dew,
Every gift of sunshine
Nature gives to you—
Take me back today, dear,
On your wings of gleam—
Back to little boy-heart
And its world of dream.
—New York Sun.

LAUGH AND LIVE

HIS TWO BOOKS

The Professor—"Have you any particular books that you love like true friends?"
Mr. Moneybags—"Yes, I have two—my book book and my pocketbook."

HIS EXPERIENCE

"Why don't you get out and hustle? Hard work never killed anybody," remarked the philosophical gentleman to whom Rastus applied for a little charity.
"You're mistaken dar, boss," replied Rastus; "The last fish wives dat way."

HER REPLY

Perhaps you would not believe it, but they say that one of our town girls recently sent the usual 25 cents to find out how to whiten hands. In a few days the following answer came: "Soak them in dish water." Her mother was tickled almost to death.

DEAD

The quiet-looking boy at the foot of the class had not had a question. The teacher looked at him severely, and asked:
"In what condition was the patriarch Job at the end of his life?"
"Dead," was the reply.

TIT FOR TAT

An elderly lady, telling her age, remarked that she was born on the 22d of April. Her husband, who was present, observed, "I always thought you were born on the 1st of April."
"People might well judge so," responded the lady, "in the chair I made of a husband."

IT USUALLY WORKS

When Theodore Roosevelt was police commissioner of New York he was asked by an applicant for a position on the force:
"If you were ordered to disperse a mob, what would you do?"
"Pass around the hat, sir," was the reply.

TRANSMIGRATION

One morning Jenkins looked over his garden fence and said to his neighbor:
"What are you burying in that hole?"
"Just replanting some of my seeds, that's all," was the reply.
"Seeds?" exclaimed Jenkins angrily. "Looks more like one of my hens."
"That's all right," said the other. "The seeds are hens."

ANNUAL PICNIC FOR FARMERS

will be interesting to all of us, so let us not fail to get this week. It is hoped that every farmer and dairyman in the county will attend this meeting. Mr. Buchanan needs no introduction as he has spent much time in the county. We remember him as being the one to help with the bringing in to the county these fine Holstein heifers a few years ago.

Last, but not least, we hope to have with us for the picnic Glen Bowman, Olivia Athey and Georgia Brockett, who attended the boys' and girls' short course. These children will endeavor in a few moments to tell what the State Short Course means to the club members.

All things considered, the committee thinks that there are prospects for one of the best picnics ever held in this section.

Don't forget the date—August 24—place, County Fair Grounds. Who is invited? Everybody. Come spend the day. Hear good speaking. Have a good time. Put away the cares of life for awhile. Remember, "All work and no play makes John and Mary dull children." It has the same effect on Father and Mother.

FARMERS' PICNIC AUGUST 24

If you have not done so already, begin now to make your plans to attend the Farmers' Picnic, to be held on the Fair grounds Thursday, August 24. It will be one of the most interesting events of the summer, not only for the farmers themselves, but their wives and children as well.

A program is being arranged that will be of direct appeal to all who attend. The county organization of the Farmers' Union will be represented on the program by an able speaker on the aims and progress of the Union. His name will be announced at an early date. The Women's Auxiliary will also have a speaker to be selected by their program committee. An effort will be made to reorganize the Cow Testing Association of the county, and it is expected that Mr. J. C. McDowell, specialist from the Dairy Division, will be present to speak in the interests of the county Dairymen's Association. A judging demonstration of dairy cattle will be given by Mr. Buchanan, of Blacksburg. If possible, a speaker for the Boys' and Girls' Clubs will be secured, and all members are especially urged to be present.

The Women's Auxiliary is taking its full share in providing for the dinner, and will have the supervision of this important part of the program. Refreshments will be sold on the grounds at reasonable prices to provide for the expenses incidental to the event.

A TALE OF WOOL

(By Sojourner)

Strangers and stragglers, we stroll into a local mercantile establishment. A dark-visaged, Rob Roy kind of a man met us, with eyes centered like black-eyed Susans. We asked for sweater wool. Producing a wad with the glow of brilliant sunset, or ruddy lights of forest fires, emphatically, he said, "That makes a beautiful sweater." We suppose the "black-eyed Susans" were comensurers of all colors, so possessed ourselves of the radiant wool, going away in radiant humor.

Wools of all colors. Emerald hue, and sapphire blue. Ruby red, and sulphured egg. Diamond dazle and silver fringe. Comest Rob Roy. He knows beautifully well What wool to tell WE make a sweater sell.

OLD PUPILS AT HICKORY GROVE

the ceremony. The women are as follows:

I
Let us dream of the days that have long since departed—
The clear golden, dear-oldest sweet, yesteryear—
As we meet where we gathered in times happy-hearted;
Let us fling back and bring back and bid them appear.

II
Our life is made up like a tapestry glowing,
With light designs, dark designs, colors bizarre,
Which we rough-weave ourselves, but a Destiny knowing
Shapes the wary and the weak, sets the pigments all there.

III
So Destiny wills that these hours of our training
Spent here on this hill-top shall brighten our days—
A brilliant mosaic design of our gaining—
The things worth the while that endureth always.

IV
We, each of us, made up the life of the other
In childhood. The wildwood, each tree and each flower;
Our kind Master guiding us on His a brother,
Becoming a part of us, hour by hour.

V
To him, our dear Leader, our Mentor and Master,
We tender today our sincerest regard.
He builded far better than he know, and faster
Comented hearts to him; God grant him reward.

VI
Oh! the bright happy days we have spent here together,
In sunshine and rain, in the sleet and the snow,
Were it hot, were it cold, we cared not for the weather;
Our days were all May-time, our hearts all aglow.

VII
Then here's to our school days; three cheers for the Master;
We'll drink to them deep in the wine of our youth;
Grim Volstead-defying, the Eighteenth denying;
Today is our day. Who is doubting the truth?

Following the program in the school house, the old pupils and their families and guests assembled for lunch under the trees outside, and the events of the day were concluded late in the afternoon with a base ball game.

As a perpetual memorial to Mr. Skinner, it is planned to continue the annual reunions of his old pupils at the Hickory Grove School.

INFORMATION FOR SHIPPERS

Louisville, Ky., August 17.—Exporters and importers who have had difficulty in getting information in regard to freight rates in the British Isles can now get quotations of such rates through the Southern Railway System, according to an announcement made by Foreign Freight Traffic Manager E. L. McMillan, of Louisville.

Quotations of rail rates between British ports and interior points and of through ocean and rail rates between Hampton Roads ports and New Orleans and interior British points will be made promptly through an arrangement which the Southern has made with the International Mercantile Marine Lines which operate regular and frequent service from Hampton Roads ports to London, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Antwerp and Hamburg and from New Orleans to Liverpool.

The British railway companies do not publish and distribute freight tariffs as is done in the United States, and American shippers have frequently experienced great difficulty in securing information in regard to their freight rates. To meet this situation, the Southern has arranged to secure this information for shippers.

A Word About Service

From an automobile census recently taken by the Ford Motor Company it was ascertained that out of 6,000,000 cars manufactured by the Ford Motor Company 5,000,000 of them were in operation on January 1, 1922.

These figures show this: That a Ford owner with reasonable care can get ten years of service out of his car.

A Ford being mechanical necessarily needs a certain amount of care and mechanical attention. Let us assist you in getting your ten years of satisfactory service out of your Ford at the lowest minimum cost. We have the best equipped shop in the county. In order to hold our contract with the Ford Motor Company it is compulsory that we employ at least one mechanic that will meet their approval. We have not only one but several mechanics that pass their inspection.

We announce that we have with us Mr. Paul C. Erthal, who comes to us from the recent employ of the Q. M. C. Transportation Department. Mr. Erthal is a skilled mechanic and can locate and remedy troubles with any make of car. If you have a peculiar trouble with your car—whether it be a Packard or a Ford—bring it to us. If we cannot remedy the trouble there will be no charge.

WHICH?

DOES IT PAY TO FERTILIZE?

Tests of Agricultural Stations have proven that by the use of good, commercial Fertilizer you can double your crops, and that one dollar invested in Fertilizer will bring an increase of many times the amount expended.

You can cut your acreage practically in half and by fertilizing produce just as large yields. This means a saving of one-half on your labor, implements, etc. By continuous farming of lands you have worn out the soil, robbed it of its plant food. Then, to grow profitable crops, you must use a good quality fertilizer which contains the necessary plant food. Royster's Fertilizers are specially prepared to fill these needs. Royster's have stood the field tests for forty years with highest results. Ask your dealer for Royster's or write us.

FERTILIZER FOR THE FARMER

Always the Highest Quality --- Always the Lowest Price

Direct from the Factory to the Farmer

Absolutely Independent of Combinations at Home and Abroad

Read Bulletin No. 177, July, 1922, of the Department of Agriculture of the State of Virginia, and you will find that tests of my various brands of fertilizers from samples drawn by the official inspector of the department (and NOT from samples furnished by me) were found to run uniformly higher than the reported tests of all other factories. Of all the tests from my cars of Acid Phosphate 16 per cent, drawn by the Department of Agriculture, the lowest found was 17.95 per cent. Naturally I am very proud of the fact that my fertilizers last spring ran higher in quality than those of any other factory reported in the July Bulletin, No. 177.

Therefore, the high quality of my fertilizers has been officially proven and established. Not one ounce of sludge Acid used in any of my Acid Phosphate. Not one ounce of tobacco stems used in any of my mixed fertilizers. The mechanical condition of my fertilizers is second to none. My stocks are large; I am prepared to fill all orders promptly.

As an evidence of the low prices I am prepared to make farmers I offer in car lots of fifteen tons or over, delivered at any station in this county, in 167-pound bags—

$13.00 ACID PHOSPHATE SIXTEEN PER CENT $13.00

AND ALL OTHER GRADES AT PROPORTIONATE PRICES

TERMS CASH WITH ORDER—OR DRAFT BILL OF LADING ATTACHED
I HAVE NO OTHER TERMS ON FERTILIZER

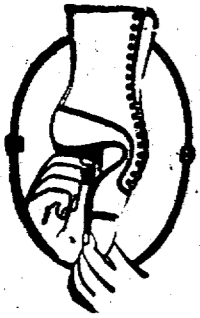

Should I for any reason at any time between this date and November 1, 1922, name lower prices than the above to any party or person I will refund to you such reduction if you buy of me. Therefore, you may buy of me in absolute confidence of being protected in the quality of your fertilizers and in the prices thereof.

Last spring I saved the farmers who bought of me from two dollars to four dollars per ton in the costs of their fertilizers. This season I am naming you lower prices than you can secure from any other source, and I intend to take care of the farmer. Don't you feel that I am entitled to your business? Don't you think you should help the man who is helping you?

Cantilever Shoe

CANTILEVERS ARE ALL DAY SHOES

You can put on a pair of Cantilever Shoes in the morning and wear them until you go to bed at night. You don't have to change into old shoes for comfort; and Cantilevers are shoes smart women wear daytime and evenings with sports clothes and tailored suits.

The supreme comfort of the Cantilever Shoe comes from these features: Each one is designed with a flexible arch, with sole lines that conform to the shape of your foot and with a snug heel seat. The flexible Cantilever arch bends with your own arch from the first step; no stiff shank of ordinary shoes says, "No," to the free and natural action of your muscles. This and the other special Cantilever features provide the utmost comfort, prevent and correct arch weakness, and form a 16-hour shoe for you.

Cantilevers are comfortable, good-looking shoes that afford your foot-muscles strengthening exercise, improve the circulation and give a real lift to your feelings and looks.

There is only one "Cantilever," a trade-marked shoe for which we are the sole agents in this city.

FRUIT GROWERS SUCCEED IN WEST

Aaron Spiro Tells Judge Gary About Co-Operative Marketing.

At a dinner given recently by Mr. Otton Kahn to bring the industrial and financial leaders of the country into touch with the rapidly-growing agricultural organizations, Mr. Aaron Spiro, counsel for the co-operative farmers of California, was called upon to explain why California fruit has run away with the eastern markets and why 80 per cent of the fruit growers of California made profits last year, while the farmers of nearly every other section of the United States spent their time footing tragic losses.

Mr. Spiro addressed himself to Judge Gary across the table. "California growers made money," he said, "because they have made a study of the methods of the steel corporation and have applied its system of marketing to farm products. The same thing can be done and will be done by the farmers of every part of the country. It has been the habit of farmers to dump their output wherever it was grown as soon as it was grown, thus creating a gigantic oversupply in small market towns, and then to wait for dealers and speculators to come and take it away from them at prices likely to prevail in a glutted market.

"We noticed that the Steel Corporation never broke its own prices by dumping steel rails anywhere and then hoping somebody would come along who would take them over at a cut rate. The Steel Corporation keeps track of who wants steel rails and where they are wanted. It ships rails to purchasers in the quantity desired. It delivers rails not where they are made, for nobody wants them there, but where they are to be used. It puts down the rails not at the point of production, but at the point of consumption. It tends not only to the making of rails, but also to the merchandising of them. And that makes all the difference to the Steel Corporation between bankruptcy and prosperity. When we took that leaf out of your book it made all the difference between poverty and prosperity to the California fruit growers. It will make the same difference to the raisers of tobacco, cotton, corn, wheat, cattle, alfalfa, poultry or anything else.

"The Steel Corporation could not run a year on the marketing basis habitual with the American farmer. Suppose you distributed steel rails among your stockholders as fast as you made them and let the stockholders get rid of them as fast as they could. No stockholder would know what to do with them. Each man saddled with rails would offer them for sale, and speculators would buy them up. The speculator would offer a low price for them because, as he would argue, he wasn't sure who wanted them. He would sell them in turn for a high price because, as he would argue, he wasn't at all sure of his supply. The stockholders would get next to nothing out of the transaction; the customer would be stung.

"That is exactly what has been happening in the agricultural field. Between the farmer and the consumer of his product there is complete chaos with irresponsible scalpers in charge of distribution. You don't distribute steel rails to stockholders. You distribute them to consumers, evading the scalper completely. That is easy for you, because rails are manufactured in central plants. It is harder for the farmer, because crops are raised over wide areas by individuals. We have got around that problem in California by pooling products and handling them from a central business organization. The central organization holds title to the products and sells them as you sell rails. For the first time we are applying business methods—your own methods—to the sale of crops."

Mr. Gary's reply was, unexpectedly, that he feared the pooling of crops would lead to monopoly in foodstuffs. Mr. Spiro's answer was equally unexpected. He did not say, as he might have, that the Steel Corporation was a good deal of a monopoly itself. He said instead that a monopoly in food was impossible since unduly high prices would ruin the pooling organization by giving independent farmers an opportunity to undersell. Top heavy prices on agricultural products have always led to over-production sufficient to smash any combination.—New York World.

AMERICAN LEGION CONVENTION

Held at Charlottesville August 24-25—Guests of Note.

Senator Tom Hefinn, of Alabama, will make principal address. Famous leaders of the A. E. F. will take prominent part. A special feature will be pageant at Greek Amphitheatre at University by the famous Mississippi beauties. Guests will be feasted at old-fashioned barbecue and entertained by trips to Monticello, home of Jefferson, and Virginia's great university.

The annual State convention of the American Legion, for the Department of Virginia, will be held this year in Charlottesville, on August 24, 25, and 26. The full quota of delegates from each post, in addition to a large number of ex-service men, are expected in attendance, and Charlottesville and the university are making large preparations for their entertainment.

There will be many prominent men at the convention as the Legion's guests, among whom will be Senator Tom Hefinn, of Alabama, and well-known leaders of the A. E. F. Complete list of the guests of honor will be made public at a later date. Arrangements have been made to show the visitors to the convention the University of Virginia; Monticello, the home of Jefferson, and other points of beauty and historical interest.

Among the features of entertainment will be a pageant staged in the Greek Amphitheatre, at the University of Virginia, by a group of young ladies from Mississippi State College, who have a national reputation for aesthetic dancing, and it is expected that the convention will wind up with a large old-fashioned Virginia barbecue.

"LADY EGG-A-DAY" A WONDER

Virginia Hen Has Record of 90 Eggs in Only 91 Days.

Another champion has gone into retirement.

Having hung up a world's record for laying, "Lady Egg-a-day," a $5,000 hen which triumphed last year in an official contest under the auspices of the Philadelphia North American and the Delaware agriculture department, will not compete in any more contests. This announcement was made by her owner and breeder, Capt. Brooke Clarke, of Vienna, Va.

Ninety eggs in ninety-one days is the phenomenal record made by "Lady Egg-a-day" in her last contest. She ended the race with a miraculous run of 36 eggs in as many days.

The queen layer is a buff Orpington and bears all the characteristics of a good layer. A clear eye, well-molded body and firm tread are the only outward signs of her 343-eggs-a-year record.

According to Capt. Clarke, who is an authority on chickens, and has been breeding pedigreed fowl for more than ten years, proper selection is the only means of obtaining perfect results.

"Heredity has a great deal to do with the capability of a hen. Any farmer, by taking the proper care in the selection and mating of his brood can improve it 100 per cent," Capt. Clarke said.

He takes no especial care of the wonder-chicken, and lets it run free with the rest of the brood. He declares that it is possible for only an expert to pick her out.

A fabulous figure has been offered for "Lady Egg-a-day" by George Cooke and Sons of England, originators of the Orpington breed, but Capt. Clarke asserts that he will not part with her at any price.

When asked if electric lights in the coop were of any assistance in increasing the laying of eggs, the veteran breeder said, "electric lights help greatly just about the time eggs are at the top price, that is November, December and January. They are, however, of some little harm to breeders."

Capt. Clarke has more than 1,000 chickens on his farm and a 6,000 egg incubator. He expects to enter several of his chickens in the poultry show at Madison Square Garden, New York, this winter.

Out promising young pitcher, Mr. Cash Keys, pitched another winning game against the strong Centerville team on the latter's diamond last Saturday, the score being 12 to 2 in favor of our team. We expect Nokesville will cross bats with us on our home diamond on Saturday of this week. Our team is not very formidable, but they have won six games in succession so far this season.

"THE REXALL STORE"

To Maintain a Standard—

is not always an easy task. In these times when the public is clamoring for something cheaper, it's a great temptation for merchants to cheapen their products. We have always refused to do this for the quality here must be kept up. We buy only the best and sell only the best—and at prices that are consistent with a standard quality. Selling only meats we have no "baits" to throw out. Our only inducement for you to buy is: Quality plus Service and Sanitation. Our steadily increasing patronage warrants us in our belief to fight along this line and not be tempted to resort to the line of the least resistance. Your children will receive every kind attention here. May we serve you?
