Rescuers dig into caved-in ditch at Green Valley

Ditch caves in, worker killed

BY MARILYN MUSE
At 10 p.m. Monday five tons of earth fell into a construction ditch caved in at Green Valley Park Woodbridge, killing Eugene Phelps, 28, of Lanham, Md., as he worked on a water line.

Eight hours later at 4:10 p.m. Phelps was lifted from the 12-foot ditch by other workers, Harrington of Lanham, Md., who pulled him out of the ditch but was taken to Fairfax Hospital in poor condition with a rib fracture. He was pulled from waist-deep water.

The approximately 25-foot-long ditch when the wall fell. The dead man was found under six feet of dirt about halfway from the end of the ditch. Investigating Officer Daniel Taber of the Prince William County Police said he died from suffocation.

According to trailer park manager Ernest Rose, who had talked to an eye-witness to the accident, the wall first cracked at a manhole at the far end of the ditch. The work on the line had begun on June 1.

"She cracked at that manhole and she just came right on down that ditch," said Rose as he watched rescuers and police work to try to get Phelps out alive.

Phelps' brother, Terry Lee Phelps, who had also been working in the ditch just before the accident, took turns at working the backhoe digger as it removed dirt from the site. Another brother, Jerry Wayne Phelps, of Woodmark Apartments, Woodbridge, had been working at Country Club Estates, and was on the scene after the accident.

"We had just one more piece of pipe to lay before we quit for lunch," said Rose.

Helping in the rescue efforts was W.D. Braswell, construction safety representative for the Virginia Department of Labor and Industry.

When asked if the sides of the ditch should have been reinforced, he said: "I won't answer that question but you noticed that I wouldn't let anyone go down there without reinforcing those sides."

Braswell said there is always a chance that a man could survive such a cave-in, but it is "one in a million chance."

The accident occurred at Lot 69, in front of the home of Mrs. Yasuko Pearson.

"I heard a man scream, but I didn't know how serious it was," said Mrs. Pearson as she watched the site from her living room window.

"The men were sitting around on top like they were taking a break when I heard a scream and everyone started jumping around. I thought they had hit something," she added.

The men were laying pipe for the American Trailer Corp., and were working for William C. Bradley Inc., Arlington.

Bascue is fired — again

The Town Council on Saturday fired A. Bascue for a second time as a police officer, the Potomac Star.

The council dated Saturday from Mayor J. Robert Ritenour, he said that the Town Council "unanimously" to terminate employment, "effective immediately for harassment..." Mrs. Claude Greene did not attend the meeting Saturday. She said she could not attend because she needed another pair of eyeglasses that could not be found at the time when the council met.

The council on Aug. 8 voted to rehire Bascue. The Council held a meeting Wednesday, a few citizens of the Council members present that they felt were against Bascue. The Council on the suggestion of the council to rescind its Aug. 8 vote to fire Bascue and reinstated Bascue.

Board foursome weighs Hansen replacement moves

BY HERALD GRANDSTAFF
If four members of the Board of Supervisors can follow their plans through, Prince William is to have a new county executive on the job by Nov. 1. Four members of the Board met Monday night to discuss 37 applications for the county executive post and established the Nov. 1 objective as part of their schedule for seeking a new county administrator to replace Bobby J. Hansen.

It was evident Monday that those four supervisors who met to discuss the county executive job are solidly in favor of change. Since only four of the seven Board members were present, nothing was decided about the industrial development director's position, which Hansen is to move into after a new county executive is found.

The supervisors Monday passed resolutions which continued County

Atty. Floyd Bagley as the acting county executive until next Thursday and also granted Hansen a vacation until that day.

From an informal poll taken, however, none of the four would agree to give Hansen a two-year contract — which he has requested — as industrial development director. Therefore, if Hansen insists on a two-year contract, he probably would not be given the industrial director's post.

Board Vice Chairman Donald Turner of Neabsco District acted as chairman of the Board since C. Scott Winfield of Coles District did not attend the specially called meeting. Also absent from the meeting were Ralph A. Mauller of Brentsville District and Roy W. Doggett of Manassas District. Mauller was in Charlottesville at a government conference, as was Hansen. Turner said he had not heard from Doggett and Turner expected Winfield to show. Charles Colgan of Gainesville District, Vernon Dawson of Occoquan District, and Dr. A.J. Ferlazzo of Dumfries District were present.

Following an executive session Monday which lasted nearly 1½ hours, Turner announced the plans of four supervisors present:

Each supervisor is to review all county executive applications and submit five choices — in the order of preference — to the County Executive Reviewing Committee by Tuesday. Turner is chairman of that Committee, with Winfield and Colgan also members of it. The Reviewing Committee is then to narrow those names down to five prospects by next Thursday for interviewing. The Board is to have those five interviews completed by Sept. 30, with the selection of the new county executive — "hopefully" — by Oct. 4. And the new executive is to be on the job by Nov. 1. Turner said after the Board adjourned that it may not be possible to strictly adhere to the Oct. 4 date since the Board may want to re-interview some county executive hopefuls.

Salary for the new county executive was not discussed. Turner told the press corps that salary for the new administrator "will depend on the reaction of the Board," and money is to be negotiated.

Bagley has prepared a "work sheet type of contract" for Hansen's new post, Bagley said, that can be negotiated with the Board. Bagley said the work sheet contract did not specify a time element.

"I think," Ferlazzo told the press, "that contract business is a dangerous thing — especially with this job in the county." He emphasized that he would not support "a contract of any kind." Ferlazzo hastened to add, however, that it was "a little unfair to talk contract with only four (Board) members

Beville to depart Prince William

Stuart Beville, superintendent of Prince William County schools since 1954, plans to accept a position with Virginia Polytechnic Institute early in October.

Although Beville would not comment on his pending resignation here until after he tells the School Board about it officially, next Wednesday, reports indicate he will ask to be released from his contract. He had signed a four-year contract on July 1, 1969, but had indicated he would resign after that term was up.

Officials at VPI said they could not discuss Beville's new position until his resignation had become effective in Prince William.

A native of southwest Virginia, Beville holds an M.A. degree from Duke University. He came to Prince William from Farmville where he was the high school principal.

Ellis Hawkins, School Board chairman, declined to comment for publication prior to Wednesday's meeting. However, there are indications that one or more present central office staff members may be up for consideration as Beville's replacement.

Here we come!

Grover P. Manderfield

By BETTY CALVIN
Grover P. Manderfield, who has been depicted as one of the founders of Woodbridge as it is known today, is dead at the age of 71.

His only son, Grover J. Manderfield, said of his father "He liked to see things grow; he felt a great sense of pride in seeing the county grow."

Coming to Prince William County in 1938, the senior Manderfield first was a member of a construction crew which built a chimney for a brick plant belonging to the Woodbridge Clay Products Co. Subsequently he became superintendent of that same plant and later supervised the construction of the company's new plant in Manassas.

"Progress was bound to come and he liked to be a part of it," his son went on. "He liked to see people moving into new homes, homes that were better than they'd ever had before. He liked to see new faces in the community."

Born in Houghton, Mich., a copper and iron mining town in the Northern Peninsula, the retired businessman and civic leader exemplified the phrase "a self-made man." At an early age he became associated with Rust Industrial Engineering Co. For nearly 50 years, he traveled for the firm, throughout the country, supervising the construction of industrial chimneys. He continued his close contacts with the Rust family and his devotion to them extended throughout his later years. "He was of the old school," his son explained. "He believed in the rights of the individual."

The elder Manderfield organized Woodbridge Realty Co. Inc. and developed the Woodbridge Shopping Center. He joined the banking fraternity in the 1940s, first becoming a majority stockholder in the Bank of Occoquan, then a $2 million institution. It later became the original institution in the Bank of Prince William system which then grew into the Bank of Virginia-Potomac, now a $100 million institution with 21 offices. He was president of the bank system for many years, and most recently was chairman of the board. In 1969, he retired from the bank and was named honorary chairman of the board. He also was on the boards of the Bank of Virginia Co. and Piedmont Savings and Loan Association.

"He was truly community oriented," commented Mrs. John Humphries, of Belmont, herself a community leader.

Active in public life all his years in the county, Manderfield and the late M. G. Garber donated the land on which Gar-Field High School was built. He also was an avid supporter of Little League baseball in which several of his grandsons participated each summer. Manderfield also was a member of the School Trustees Electoral Board and a founder and constant backer of the Occoquan-Woodbridge Sanitary District.

A Democrat, he represented Occoquan District on the Board of Supervisors for two four-year terms but did not seek reelection last year.

N. C. Sharp, who was executive secretary to the Board during Mr. Manderfield's tenure, said "Mr. Manderfield was the strongest, most moral man who I have ever served with. Truth and honesty did not take second place with him... On many occasions when the supervisors seemed about to make a hasty decision, it was Mr. Manderfield's sound judgment that prevailed."

Man in the middle Lorton's Jackson faces problems

By EILEEN MEAD

There is trouble at the Lorton correction complex, Delbert E. Jackson, superintendent of adult males at the Lorton central prison, is the man in the middle.

Two inmates have died in a week of stab wounds suffered at the hands of other inmates and one is believed to have died of a drug overdose. A fourth inmate is in poor condition at D.C. General Hospital as a result of stab wounds. Two of eight inmates who escaped several weeks ago are still at large and others in the Lorton area are signing up a petition to protest the laxity at the prison. Guards are disturbed by the increase in assaults and last week a riot at which they drew up a list of grievances to be sent to Mayor Walter Washington. D.C. Corrections Director Robert L. Hardy averted a riot.

Jackson was appointed by Mayor Washington to the position of Superintendent of Adult Male Services at the Lorton facility in April. Prior to that time he had turned down several offers to take the job.

He is deputy director of the Department of Corrections in Washington at the time he was in the position. He was trained from West Virginia Institute of Technology with a degree in business administration and sociology.

With his degree in hand, Jackson, a Negro, said he originally wanted to look for a job as a salesman earning $1.55 an hour. He said he passed the service exam with a score of 45 percent at a time when 45 percent of the applicants failed, but still did not get a job commensurate with his qualifications.

He went to work for the U.S. Postal Service and worked for the Bureau of Prisons as a correctional officer for three years. Before he came up to programs for the Bureau of Prisons, he was then acting deputy superintendent of the administration.

Jackson did not try to "cash" the situation at Lorton, admitting readily that the massive problems at the facility—mainly overcrowding, poor facilities, staffing, and lack of security for some inmates whom he feels should have been sent there in the first place.

One thing he did when he came to the prison, he said, was to ask Hardy to see some 150 hardened inmates were moved to a new security federal building. This has not yet been completed.

When he has made arrangements and some of the prefabricated structures were brought to Lorton to be put to use as dormitories and three new structures are on the way.

designed as hospital trains and will sleep 34 people; however, they are going to be revamped to house only 24. They are air-conditioned and comfortable, he said.

Presently, there are only 13 beds in the maximum security area. The rest of the complex is considered to be "open area" and the dormitories are not locked up at night. The men are free to walk around the complex.

Jackson said that the temperature has gone as high as 120 in the old dormitories this summer and he feels it would be inhuman to force the men to stay inside. It would be dangerous, too, because under conditions where bunks are two deep and 15 inches apart, all it would take to set off tempers would be for one of the men to accidentally kick another while sleeping. The ideal situation is to keep the men moving outside, he said. They are encouraged to make use of the recreation field playing ball and running—anything to burn off the pent up feelings.

Jackson expressed concern that there is not a center for screening the prisoners as they come in. "They come in everyday by the busful and we don't know what we have," he said. "We are forced to put them in with the rest of the residents. They should have a health check-up and be questioned as to their feelings and backgrounds before we place them with the rest of the inmates."

He said he has requested that a reception center be built as soon as possible. "We have $531,000 appropriated for a cultural art workshop and $447,000 from Congress for three Butler buildings to relieve overcrowding, but the time frame is against us. We need the buildings now," Jackson said.

Jackson has requested a new youth center to house young first offenders and keep them separated from the older men. Additional recreational facilities have also been requested, as well as funding for a computer-training IBM program and a prefab plant to train long-term residents. He feels that the men should learn a marketable skill while in the facility. They could be paid at prevailing wage rates and the money used to support their families on the outside. A meaningful work program is sorely needed, he said, because idleness causes many of the problems in the complex.

In the past there were a broom factory, a mattress factory, and a farm at the prison, but now there are only a print shop, a metal chair factory, and a garment industry where clothing is made for the inmates.

The facilities have changed with the times, as have the inmates. Once the average inmate was 37 years old. Today the average inmate is 23 1/2 years old and "street-wise". Ninety-nine percent are black, he said. Many have no respect for authority or sense of responsibility. "You name a crime and I'll name a man in this institution who has committed it," he said. "We have a little of everything here."

There are good inmates and many of them are involved in "self-help" programs where they go out into the community with clean up programs. In the complex, he said, people in here for misdemeanors, most of those offenders do not go to jail today. The majority of the men in here have committed a real crime against society," he said.

Jackson said recent statements attributed to the general force did not contain all the details, creating a misimpression.

For example, he said, it was not brought out that the guard Irwin Levy who was placed on administrative leave after an incident last week in which he was injured, was using a pocket knife while scuffling with a prisoner who had a pair of garden shears and a railroad spike. The prisoner was allegedly cut about the face during the fray. Guards are forbidden to bring any kind of weapon into the prison, he noted.

In another episode, the guards said a captain allegedly called down one of the guards in front of the inmates. However, Jackson said, he was at the scene and that is not the way it happened. He said he was called to the complex late at night because there was a large gathering of inmates around a pile of bricks, and they would not disperse. He said there were several correctional officers, a sergeant, a lieutenant, and the assistant superintendent at the scene when he noticed that one of the officers had a can of mace in his pocket. He then noticed another officer coming towards the group carrying a paper bag and he told the assistant superintendent to take that man into the tower and find out what he had in the bag. As it turned out, it was simply filled with cans of sodas, Jackson said.

After the incident was over, he said, he called all the officers into the office and took the mace away from the officer. No prisoners were present, he said.

He cited a recent incident in which one of the correctional officers working the gate had sprayed his own can of mace on an unruly visitor and, accidentally, some went into the eyes of a pregnant woman who was waiting in line to sign up.

An incident concerning a group of inmates chasing 10 officers was also disputed by Jackson. He said in that incident the inmates and the officers were all chasing one of the inmates who had gone back into the tower. To the guard in the tower it looked as though the officers were being chased, and he fired three shots over their heads.

Because tempers were hot, Jackson said, he told the officer, William F. Dudley, to go home for his own safety. He was not disciplined, he said. There was a misunderstanding among the officers as to what had actually happened.

Recently, members of Local 1550 American Federation of Government Employees, which represents the Lorton guard force, drafted a list of demands which were presented to Hardy and Mayor Washington.

Jackson said he went along with many of their concerns, especially the ones concerning sanitation, increase in personnel and improved facilities but money will have to be appropriated for this as funds are not available. He said a move has been made to publish all orders that the men work under. They will be posted in prominent places and read at roll-call each day. He said no prisoners will be allowed to work in the records office, as they have in the past, and that tighter security measures will be taken.

He noted that one of the union demands was to thoroughly search all living quarters, and working areas to look for knives and other weapons including handguns. He said that such a search would have to be made by the correctional officers on overtime and there was no money available to pay them. When asked if the men would voluntarily to make their jobs easier in the long run, he said that the union would not permit it. The union will not even allow men to volunteer to go out with self-help groups to protect the prison.

He said no person is admitted or allowed to enter or leave the facility while wearing blue denims. The men all must wear them, although they may wear any type shirt they choose. The guards asked that the men wear institutional clothing at all times to prevent them from walking out dressed as guests. Jackson said he did not feel that it was necessary to make them wear the institutional shirts as well as the trousers.

He said there is a metal detector on order to screen the many visitors for weapons, but it would be futile to think that the prisoners will not find something to use as a weapon if they want to. In the shops a knife can be made "just like that" he said.

A 23-year-old inmate at the Lorton reformatory died Sunday in a District of Columbia jail from what officials say may have been a drug overdose. It was the second apparent drug-related death at the institution in two days. Robert Patterson, serving a 7 to 21 year sentence for assault with intent to commit robbery, was found unconscious in his dormitory about 3 p.m. Saturday and given emergency treatment for a possible overdose then rushed to the D.C. General Hospital.

He was given further treatment for a drug overdose then released to the D.C. jail infirmary where he was found dead at 6:45 a.m. Sunday.

On Sunday night, Enoch Creek of Washington was found staggering from stab wounds behind a prison dormitory. He died in an ambulance on the way to the D.C. General Hospital. District police said he was apparently stabbed by another inmate and that the assault may have been drug related.

Jackson said that he and the administration are trying everything possible to cut down on inmate unrest, the drug problem and attempts are being made to ease the guards apprehension. "But the union will not run this institution," Jackson said.

Federalize Lorton — Parris

Del. Stanford E. Parris, Republican candidate for Congress from the Eighth District, has called for Federal legislation removing the controversial District reformatory at Lorton from D.C. control and making it a federal institution—a step long proposed by Rep. William L. Scott.

Parris met with Fairfax County Sheriff James Swinson this week to discuss the Lorton facility. Following the meeting, Parris, who is also a member of the Virginia House of Delegates, said the Lorton facility, "...with its recent numerous escapes and growing personnel problems among the guards, presents an ever-present cause for concern for the Fairfax County residents living near the facility." Parris said numerous escapes from Lorton have placed a heavy burden on the county's law enforcement agencies. He said he wholeheartedly endorses County Supervisor Jack Herry's proposal that the facility be transferred to the federal government.

"I believe this would be the most practical way to resolve many of the problems which have evolved over the years and were vividly brought to everyone's attention recently when a family was held hostage by a host of escapees from Lorton," Parris said. He called for immediate Congressional attention to the Lorton problems "...before someone in Fairfax County is forced to pay with his life for the D.C. government's shortcomings in the area of correctional administration."

Parris said he intended to pursue the matter further with the House District Committee to see if something could be done right away to "...ease the minds of residents who live near the Lorton reformatory."

Large PW tract changes owners

The Boise Cascade Corp., Washington, D.C. has sold its 640-acre tract in eastern Prince William County to K. E. Minchew and others as listed by deed transfer records in the Prince William County clerk's office.

The land, south of Powell's Creek and east of U.S. 1, had been purchased from the firm of Johnson and Wimsatt in 1967 and had been zoned for apartments, single family residences, townhouses and businesses. It is the only large tract left in the Dumfries area, and was sold for $1.7 million.

The land was purchased by the Minchew family of Great Falls, several members of which are in development projects throughout Northern Virginia.

The engineering will be done by Runyon and Huntley, a civil engineering firm in Falls Church. Charles Runyon said that preliminary plans have been submitted to Prince William's Public Works department for a project called "Wayside," which will probably retain the zoning already obtained by the previous owners.

Cancer kills man charged with murder

Ernest Smith of Gainesville, who was indicted by the Prince William County Grand Jury on April 3 in connection with the murder of Charlie Womack of Deltaplane on Nov. 1, died as a result of cancer at the state penitentiary in Richmond. He was serving 20 years for attempted murder and robbery in connection with a case in Fairfax County.

Smith was awaiting trial on the Womack murder in Prince William County. An alleged accomplice, Charlie Campbell of Alexandria, will be tried on Sept. 8 in Circuit Court.

Ritenour's letter went on to say that since Bascue had not subsequently resigned, the Council took its action Saturday.

Ritenour's letter also indicated that the town was sending Bascue a check to cover his services to the town for the month of August. Friedlander did not release the amount.

Commenting on the letter from Ritenour, Friedlander said, "We haven't decided what we're going to do."

A previous Potomac News article indicated that one of the situations leading to Bascue's dismissal had occurred when Myron (Ed) Lynn and Don Sonner had gone to Mayor Robert Ritenour's home with Bascue for traffic violations. Lynn clarified that he and Sonner had not received traffic violations but were protesting harassment of their customers.

Ritenour next suggested that since the town has Sgt. Don Fenton as a full time policeman, and since the town can get help from the County Police Department, the town needs but one policeman. Therefore, Ritenour reasoned, since Fenton has tenure, the Council should terminate Bascue's employment immediately. That motion was made and seconded but not voted on. Ritenour wanted to consult with Manassas attorney Turner Smith, Occoquan's counsel. Ritenour said he intended to talk with Smith that night and hopefully reconvene the Council for action Thursday. The Potomac News contacted Ritenour yesterday, and Ritenour declined to report what happened at the Saturday meeting.

Miss Mamie Davis, secretary to the Town Council, also declined comment.

Fairfax attorney Blaine Friedlander, who represents Bascue, released to the Potomac News part of the letter which the Town Council sent Bascue.

The letter from Ritenour stated in part that prior to the Council's hearing last Wednesday, at 7:45 p.m., he told Bascue and Friedlander that he would ask the Council to rescind its Aug. 8 decision to fire Bascue and reinstate Bascue to "allow" Bascue "to resign that position."

DALE CITY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB MEET IN SEPT.
Sue Morrissey, publicity chairman for the Dale City Home Demonstration Club, wishes to remind members of the next regular meeting, Sept. 12. The time is 12:30 p.m. at the Civic Center on Dale Blvd. and N. Birchdale.

Members are asked to bring glue and scissors as the workshop for that meeting will entail making flowers from wool. Come and bring that new neighbor down the street.

WOMEN'S BOWLING LEAGUE
The Tuesday Dale City Women's Bowling League will hold an organizational meeting tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the Lynwood Bowling Alley in Woodbridge. The members of the league will bowl each Tuesday at 12:15 p.m. beginning Sept. 5 and running until May 24 of next year. Call Ann Pierpoint at 670-4610 for further information.

LEAGUE OPENS
Couples interested in forming a mixed four bowling league have until Sept. 6 to sign up. The league will bowl each Tuesday evening at 9 p.m. in the Lynwood Lanes in Woodbridge. Sponsored by a group from Holy Family Church, the league is open to any couple in Dale City. Call Ernie Wullenweber at 670-9537 after 5:30 p.m.

TURKEY SHOOT REOPENS
The season has begun! The Dale City Jaycees are conducting their annual Friday and Saturday night turkey shoot at the Smoketown Road site just across U.S. 95. For $1 per shot, the guys and gals may try their luck at winning a ham, turkey or bacon. Shooting runs from 7:30 p.m. to midnight. Why not practice now and win a turkey for the holidays.

M.D. CARNIVAL RAFFLES CAKE
Kim Eames, 10, and her co-chairman Lisa Royer, 11, in the Musical Dystrophy carnival they held last Saturday. Kim's sister Kathy, age 9, was in on all the planning and running too.

The high point of the afternoon for some 50 children who attended was the wet sponge throw. Brother Andy, age 7, and other neighborhood children were the targets. Their mother, Mrs. Thomas Eames of 3311 N. Bellflower, made a cake decorated with "MD thanks you" which was raffled off at the afternoon's end. The winner of this tasty delicacy was Kenny Palmer from across the street.

Mrs. Eames wishes to acknowledge all the help she received from her great neighbors without whom she could not have organized the effort. Rest well until next year!

WOODBRIDGE PRIMARY CAR POOL
Anyone from the Cloverdale, Darbydale or Evansdale sections interested in forming a car pool for the morning session of the Woodbridge Primary Day school should call 670-6937.

DALE CITIANS ON THE GO...
Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Lilly and son Terry Gene of Mullins, W. Va., visited with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Larry T. Lilly of Hemingway Dr. They arrived on August 13 and stayed until the 20th. They had a bell visiting all the restaurants in the Woodbridge and Dale City area.

The visit was special for the Lillys as it was the first visit to their new home in which they have lived in just under one year. It was also the first time Mr. Roy Lilly had seen them in two years.

As the Lillys of Dale City await their seventh wedding anniversary on Sept. 9, they plan another evening out at one of our local restaurants.

BOATING ASSOCIATION SHIPWRECK DANCE
The Dale City Boating Association invites you all to mark the close of the 1972 boating season with us by attending the Annual Shipwreck Dance, Saturday, Sept. 23, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., at Botte Fir Hall. BYOB, set ups and beer are included for only $7 per couple. Dress is casual and one of the door prizes may be yours if you have the lucky ticket number.

Music will be provided by the Starlights. Tickets are on sale now from any boat club member, or call Kay Yohn at 670-6070. See you at the Shipwreck Dance Sept. 23.

By popular demand, there will be another crab feast at Sweden's Point Sept. 8, starting about 7:30 p.m. $5.50 per person for crabs, beer and salad should be paid in advance to Denny Chastain to avoid confusion. Deadline for reservations will be at the Sept. 7 meeting.

The Dale City Boating Association's next meeting will be Thursday, Sept. 7, 8 p.m., at the civic center. Prospective members are always welcome at our meetings.

Chief George Owens, surrounded by unclaimed loot, displays etcher

Police offer free tools to mark personal goods

"Operation Identification" is now underway in Prince William County.

County police officers at Garfield and Manassas now have the electric etching tools which they will loan out at no charge to county residents. These are to be used to etch the owner's identification number on all types of household articles and automobile parts. Social security numbers are most commonly used. The tool also may be borrowed by businesses.

Police Chief George Owens told the Potomac News the identification program is available to all, as a means to cut down on the burglary rate in the county. The current rate averages about 60 incidents a month. It also makes it possible for the police to determine the owners of items that are recovered by the police after burglaries.

At the present time, there is a backlog of unclaimed property at the police station. It is held at least 60 days, by the police, and then sold at public auction. If these items had been marked, the owners could have been notified they had

The engraving tool can be borrowed for a two-day period, free of charge, Owens said. The police also are distributing decals to be placed on doors of homes and businesses, which warn the would-be burglar that valuables in the home are marked through the Operation Identification program.

The program is sponsored by Town and Country Properties, a real estate firm, with the cooperation of the police departments in all Northern Virginia cities and counties.

Public libraries open on two more holidays

Following the approval of the Board of Supervisors, the public libraries will be open on Columbus Day (Oct. 9) and the Friday following Thanksgiving (Nov. 24). On county holidays, the libraries would ordinarily be closed.

In addition, the Library Board decided this week the library will be closed the day before Christmas (Dec. 27). Schedules will be posted so that the staff will work a full week between Monday and Friday.

The extra hours are contingent on the Supervisors' approval of $820 to pay the public service staff of the libraries for the two extra days' work. Library Director Philip Place said that employees will be given the option of compensatory time or pay. The reason for the increased schedule is that both days are times when the use of the library would be heavy, since families can come to the facilities.

Since there is no money involved, the Dec. 23 closing will not have to be approved by the Supervisors.

TV TARGET

FROM THE DESK OF
Bud Pugh & Bruce Higham

Satellite communication promises, through non-military applications, to bring substantial benefits to all the nations of the world. Through Echo 1, television becomes an international facility. Whether for the transmission of Olympic games, music festivals, ballet, conferences, trade affairs, political speeches, or other activities, what can be more valuable in promoting international understanding than this international means of communication? Of course, the process is costly, and the technique difficult. Satellites are subject to jamming, due to interference and competition. But isn't the promise of mutual understanding enough to warrant our continued efforts in this direction?

You won't want to miss the exciting event transmitted via satellite — come in to HARRY'S TV, corner of Berner Rd & old 123, Woodbridge, 494-7266 for a new Motorola or Admiral color or black/white TV. We also rent TVs. We carry Wingard and Rotor antenna systems, which we install and service as well. Open: 9-6, Tue-Fri; 9-4, Sat.

New librarian Susan Knudsvig with aide Shirley Canada

Library branch supervisor hails from Montana

By CARRON MCCONNOR
The new branch supervisor of the Leesylvania Public Library at the Garfield Administration building is Mrs. Susan Knudsvig of Arlington. Mrs. Knudsvig came to the position on Aug. 9 from the Broadcast Pioneers Library in Washington.

Although her family background has been in broadcasting, with her grandfather, one of the radio pioneers in eastern Montana and western North Dakota in 1925, Mrs. Knudsvig prefers library work.

"I want to get back into books, libraries and to the stimulus of working with people to build their public library system," said Mrs. Knudsvig. She expressed the hope that the public would work with the library board to raise the $625,000 bond issue slated for the ballot this November. Mrs. Knudsvig finds Leesylvania branch has a good selection of books, considering the space limitation. She praised the excellence of "a hard working staff" whom she has found to be helpful, friendly and eager to work for the success of their library.

Originally from North Dakota, Mrs. Knudsvig studied in English at Carroll College in Helena, Mont. She earned her master's degree in Library Science at Rosary

College in Chicago. She then ran a public library in her home town of Williston, N.D., and taught English at a community college there.

Mrs. Knudsvig came to the Washington area in 1970 with her husband, Peter, who is a member of the Army Band at Ft. Meyer. In addition to pursuing a doctorate in music at Catholic University, Peter plays with Northern Virginia Chamber Symphony, the Lynchburg Symphony Orchestra and the Fairfax Symphony.

Mrs. Knudsvig loves to read, "the way the architect, the people and the weather." Although she occasionally misses the ski slopes of Montana, she finds purchasing fresh sea food equally rewarding. Both she and her husband enjoy gourmet cooking with her French specialty being coq au vin. Her husband's favorite is Chinese cooking—eggdrop soup in particular.

Coming from a rural area, Mrs. Knudsvig enjoys urban living and takes advantage of the closeness to the Kennedy Center about once a week along with Washington's art galleries. She will begin work on a masters degree in history at George Mason as she is intrigued by the field and feels it good to pursue an intellectual discipline.

She has invited the public to browse at the library and welcomes the opportunity to hear citizen suggestions. "I'm glad to be here," summed up her feelings of this new position in Prince William County.

Chess game action

Ever since Spassky and Fischer, the chess rage has spread. Now Godwin Middle School has formed a chess club that meets once or twice a week after school to learn the popular game. For the next several weeks, the club will be engaged in a schoolwide tournament to determine a grand champion. (above) Larry Benson is in deep concentration prior to his next move. (below) Bobby McKee and Darrell Epps found playing space scarce, so they took their game to the floor.

No decision on commuter parking ban

David Mabry, assistant transportation planning officer for the State Highway Department, met Wednesday with the principle parties involved in the Marumco commuter parking ban. A concluding meeting was held by the Highway Department in response to their inquiries. In addition to Mabry, the meeting was attended by David W. Highway Department engineer; Gerald W. president of the Marumco Merchants Association; and John H. of Hylton. The merchants stated the shopping parking facilities could accommodate the 250 to 300 left during the day. A solution as to where cars can park appears to be the man's land. A parking area referred to as private property and its use is not obligated to the public parking for shoppers, according to Mabry. Other possible areas such as church lots or private again private. As there is no readily available public land, a solution appears unlikely. Mabry has no specific recommendation as far as the problem is concerned, he said. The problem is an especially acute one in Eastern Prince William County which serves as a "bedroom community" to the Washington metropolitan area and as such depends on transportation for work opportunities. Fringe parking areas of Fairfax County have been arranged as part of the Northern Virginia Transportation System, to which Prince William County does not belong. According to Camper, an immediate solution to the commuter's plight seems unlikely until public and private interests work together for a balanced transportation system.

Youth arrested for tampering with automobile

Frank Parker, Jr., 18, of 13515 Wood St., Woodbridge, was charged with tampering with an automobile on Saturday. Police said that Parker was accused of attempting to steal a tire off the automobile of Barbara Pasquini of 1609 Kentucky Ave., Woodbridge, on Saturday night but was frightened off. He returned to the scene on a bicycle and was arrested by county police officers.

Architects to begin plans for new east PW library

The Library Board Monday agreed to sign a contract with architect Spector, Peake, and Howell to begin design work on the new library in Eastern Prince William. The firm had designed the Central Library in Manassas Park.

Meeting with the newly selected architects, the Board was told that only the schematic phase of the architectural work was necessary immediately. The Library Board intends to have the first phase of the plans complete before the library goes to referendum in November. In that way, Board members hope to give voters a clear idea what they are getting for their $625,000; thus, they hope the chances of passage of the referendum will be improved.

Spector, Peake, and Howell told the Board that the schematic phase of the design will include an overall exterior design, plus a basic floor plan for the projected structure. Nothing in that portion of the drawings will be precise, but the people should have a fairly specific idea of the form of the library, the architects continued.

Board Chairman Mrs. Barbara Kirby asked the architects if they could complete this work by Oct. 1 so the Board would have a month to present the plans.

The men shuddered a bit but said "yes." As they left, the men were preparing to gather the site plans for the area, after which they intended to walk the portion of the Potomac Hospital site which will be used for the library. Work will begin immediately.

Problems arose when the Board tried to determine the total cost of the building which the firm is to design. The Board of Supervisors had approved a referendum amount of $625,000; however, a payment for the 3.9 acre site was to be included in the bond. No determination has yet been made on the price which the library must pay; the cost could be the fair market value of the land ($20,000 per acre or $80,000); it could be the price the hospital paid for the tract, plus interest ($3000 per acre or approximately $15,000 including interest); the Library Board might also be able to lease the land for $1 per year. With an $80,000 difference in possible prices for the structure, the architects said that there could be a difference of more than 3000 square feet of floor space in the building. Asked whether they could change the size of the structure if the total financial ability were to change, the architects replied that it would entail altering the building completely. Architects and Board members agreed that changes would have to be made in size rather than in quality: "What you have here at the Central Library is the rock bottom for a good quality building," Spector maintained.

After considerable mathematical calculation, Mrs. Nellie Curtis suggested that the Board deduct $25,000 from the total bond amount for the purchase of the site and begin work. "I do not see how those people could possibly have the guts to charge us $80,000 for the land," she asserted. At the estimated $22 per square foot, Library Director Philip Place figured that the remaining available funds would enable them to have about 17,700 square feet of interior space. "I have never been concerned with the amount of money in this; my concern has been that we provide the people a library with approximately 18,000 square feet of space. This estimate is fine with me," Place declared.

The final estimates were derived by adding the estimated cost of the site work ($80,000) to the estimated cost of the construction ($414,370 for an 18,835 square foot building) and subtracting the $25,000 decided on for site acquisition. The architect's fee for the schematic phase of the design will be 15 percent of the total architect's fee, which is 6 percent of the total construction cost. Thus, the Library Board will remit $4230 to Spector, Peake, and Howell for the immediate work. The Board voted to sign the entire contract, which Howell assured them could be terminated if the referendum failed. Funds for the initial design will come from $10,000 advanced to the Library Board by the Supervisors until a like amount is forthcoming to the Board from the State Highway Department. If the referendum passes, these funds will ultimately be taken from the referendum amount.

In other action, the Board resolved to allow the new Manassas campus of the northern Virginia Community College (NVCC) to use the Central Library for their small book collection until the permanent NVCC building is complete. Provost Wilford Housmon told Board members that he needed shelf space for approximately 700 books and 25 periodicals; initially, the books would not circulate, and students on a work-study program would be added to the library's staff at the expense of NVCC.

Place, in favoring the project, maintained that the library would serve the needs of the new students in any event. Since the college would provide the necessary staff, he felt that "this is a good way for the community to serve the college and the citizens of the community."

The Stonewall Jackson High School library, Housmon contended, is inadequate for its present use and is in a location which must be secured in the evening. Place told the Board that a section of the adult non-fiction area of the Central Library is not scheduled for use before the 1973-74 school year. When the school's collection begins to circulate, a system will be set up in the conference room presently being used by the Small Business Administration.

Looking to the long range, the Library Board recognized that the presence of a college will have an effect on the library system as a whole. Student use of a library, Place declared, is different from other use. Students stay in the building for longer periods of time, thereby using more seating and desk space. In addition, Place noted that the use of the reference materials and the reference staff is higher than community use.

"The Board of Supervisors welcomed the community college with open arms," Mrs. Kirby remembered, "but now they are going to have to realize that the presence of the school is going to mean a financial commitment. I have heard plenty of words, but I want to see something on paper." Place agreed: "For this year, the difference in use will be in services and supplies. In the future, the student use will require additions in personnel and book purchases. These are going to have to be reflected in our budget."

Final authorization for use of the Central Library by NVCC will have to be made through the Board of Supervisors.

The Board also authorized Place to see if there are means available through which books, records, and art prints lost in the flood may be reimbursed to the library. Place will investigate all channels of funds to replace the materials which were in the homes of flood victims and therefore lost.

The Board also authorized final payments on the Central Library. Bradley Tyre, Inc. will receive $13,680.09 as a result of the decision of the arbitration held on June 5. The Board had taken the construction company to arbitration concerning finishing work on the building. Also authorized was payment of $2194 to Spector, Peake, and Howell for their efforts in the completion of the library during the period of conflict with the contractor. Place said he thought these would be the last bills to be paid on the Central Library.

In conjunction with the final bills, Place presented the Board with a final cost analysis on the Central Library, which was prepared by Spector, Peake, and Howell. According to the report, the total cost of the building, exclusive of the access road to Manassas Drive, was $530,858.71. The exact cost of the access road has not yet been determined by the staff; the approximate price was $60,000. Funds remaining from the original $600,000 for the building will be returned to the county.

Place reported to the Board a discussion with Hylton Enterprises' attorney John Walvis concerning the site for the projected Dale City library. The Board previously approved a 3.9 acre site at the intersection of Dale Boulevard and Keystone Road. Place said that Hylton had previously been willing to donate the site. However, Place said that the developer was now less eager, perhaps with the idea of using part of the site as a commuter parking area.

"Parking, in and of itself, is desirable," Place contended, "it assures that we will have people on the site. However, we would not be able to tell how many cars we would have to deal with. There are no accurate estimates now, and the number of commuters is bound to go up substantially."

The Board tentatively decided to wait to see what would be suggested; the consensus of the members was that a commuter parking lot would be undesirable because of the space it would require. Place said that a lot for 250 cars, the present estimate, would require about one acre. The library itself would need approximately one half acre for parking space.

Finally, the Board decided to change its meeting time. Starting with September, the Board will meet in the evening one month out of each quarter; the other two meetings will remain in the morning. The next regularly scheduled meeting will be Sept. 25 at 7:30 p.m. The Board agreed that a number of special night meetings would be necessary while the new library is being designed.

CONGRESS

Howell backs Durland candidacy

Virginia Lt. Gov. Henry Howell came to northern Virginia Monday to endorse the candidacy of former Del. Bill Durland for Eighth District Congressman.

He spoke at the opening of Durland's campaign headquarters at 5515 Cherokee Ave., Alexandria, before an audience of more than 100 campaign workers and supporters.

Prince William County Atty. Floyd Bagley and Manassas real estate broker James G. Jewell, both former members of the Democratic State Central Committee, also endorsed Durland's candidacy. Bagley and Jewell will serve as honorary co-chairmen for Prince William County.

Gary W. Crawford, Prince William's delegate to the Democratic National Convention, and former member of the State Central Committee, will serve as Durland's campaign coordinator.

Howell praised Durland's record of legislative accomplishment in his two terms in the House of Delegates and called on the news media to explore in depth and compare the records of all four Eighth District Congressional candidates.

Durland not only supported the progressive measures proposed by Howell in the legislature, but "He did things that hadn't even occurred to us," Howell said.

Howell cited Durland's efforts to save open space and recreational areas, his successful guidance through the General Assembly of a bill to require PKU testing of newborn babies to prevent mental retardation, and Durland's leadership in the legislative attack on the sales tax on food and medicine.

"These are the things no one else running for Congress in the Eighth District has done," Howell said. "Think about the 10 Congressmen Virginia has now." Howell urged the crowd. "See if you can think of two constructive pieces of legislation they ever put through, no matter how long they've been there, collectively. That's what the news media ought to be looking at." Durland spoke briefly about his "campaign of conscience," attacking the "permissiveness in national government which permits the dropping of five million tons of bombs in one day in Vietnam, the permissiveness in the marketplace which allows consumers to be cheated, permissiveness in the income tax which allows many rich corporations and businessmen to escape paying their fair share of taxes."

Just in time for summer fun.

Man shot in dispute at Armory

Justin Young, of 9519 Lincoln St. in Manassas, was shot early Saturday morning in front of the National Guard Armory in Manassas.

Listed in good condition at the Prince William Hospital, Young sustained two wounds - one to the upper arm, which went through his body, and one in the mouth. A spokesman for the Prince William County police said that the other shot, fired from a .22 caliber revolver, entered Young's upper lip. The bullet, he continued, hit a tooth, shattering both the bullet and the tooth. Young was left with a mouth full of fragments.

Larry Layne, 26, of Herndon, presented himself to the Peace William Barbee about 15 minutes after the shooting. Barbee said that he reported having shot the man. Barbee made out a warrant on Layne for attempted murder and released him on bond. A preliminary hearing date has been set.

County police said that the shooting, which occurred at approximately 1:30 a.m., was the result of a disagreement between the two men following the Friday night dance at the Armory.

Phone company official to retire after 41 years

Woodrow N. Vetter, vice president in charge of personnel for Commonwealth Telephone Co. of Virginia, retires Friday after 41 years in the telephone industry.

The company also announced this week that Earle G. Bellamy, area manager for both Commonwealth Telephone and Piedmont Telephone Co., has resigned and is returning to Knoxville, Iowa, where he will be associated with Community National Bank and Trust.

Vetter started with Central Mutual Telephone Co., Inc., Commonwealth's predecessor, on July 1, 1931, as a lineman earning $50 per month and worked his way up the ladder.

From 1936 to 1945 he was manager of the Lorton Telephone Co., and he continued as manager for six years after Central Mutual purchased the company.

Vetter became a director of Central Mutual in 1946 and in 1955 he was appointed personnel manager. In 1968, the year in which the company's name changed to Commonwealth Telephone Co. of Virginia, he became a vice president. He continued as vice president and director after the company's merger with Continental Telephone Corp. in July, 1971.

After 41 years in the industry, Vetter and his wife, Christine, hope to enjoy their leisure time doing some extensive traveling throughout the United States.

Bellamy came to Commonwealth Telephone in 1971 soon after its mid-year merger with Continental. He had started his career in the telephone industry 26 years ago, spending most of that time as president of Bellamy Telephone Co., a family-owned business in Knoxville, Iowa, which became a subsidiary of Continental in 1969. In 1970, he transferred to Grand Bahama Telephone Co. Ltd. in Freeport, Bahamas.

Drug Fair, Inc. sales reach all-time high

Milton L. Eisberg, president of Drug Fair Inc., has announced that sales for the fiscal year ending June 30 reached an all-time high of $158,590,112, an increase of 10.7 percent over 1971.

Net earnings after taxes were $2,175,787 or 9.2 percent increase over $1,993,227 for the previous year. Net earnings per share amounted to $1.42 as against $1.34 per share in 1971.

The rate of increase was affected by poor weather during the fourth quarter which seriously affected seasonal business, along with flood damages and the continued severe competitive conditions that prevailed in the D.C. area.

Board of Realtors sets buying guide

One of the most useful guides for a family when the decision is reached to purchase a home, is a chart of wants and capabilities, says the Prince William Board of Realtors. Should the family: 1) build, 2) buy in a new subdivision, 3) buy a new custom-built house, 4) buy a house a few years old, or 5) buy an older house?

Head up columns on paper for each of these, then list the factors important to the family down the side. The family now has the basis for a chart. By factors are meant such considerations as nearness to work, shopping, transportation, size of the house, modern conveniences, maintenance, low price, financing, and others.

Using a scale of 1 to 5, the lowest number the most desirable, rate each factor within the five types of housing. "Nearness to work" might rate a 1 in an older house, but 5 in a new subdivision. The subdivision house, however, could rate 1 in "modern conveniences" with the older house rating 5.

When the ratings are entered, added and compared, the family has at least a rough idea of what type of house would best suit its wants and income. Then a decision can be reached as to what is possible.

If income is limited to financing a $20,000 home, a family cannot choose to build on a close-in lot for $40,000, no matter how desirable the chart says the more expensive house will be. Wants must be balanced against reality. Facing reality also helps when the family consults a Realtor. He knows what range of houses on the market, or coming on the market, might suit them.

As an added dividend, it heads off discouragement. New prospective homeowners sometimes set their hearts on a particular house, not really facing its shortcomings as far as they are concerned - shortcomings they often had not even considered. Then when they decide not to buy the particular home they had wanted, in reaction they sometimes decide not to buy at all. The situation is not really that bad.

It is rare indeed when a house completely satisfies all the wants of its owners. How many times has a person complimented a homeowner on his house only to hear something like: "Thank you. We like it, but we do wish it had a family room," or "If it were only a little larger!" or "It's too much house for us," or some other shortcoming?

The realistic approach is to seek a house that satisfies most wants without trying to satisfy all. Later, after the family has built up an equity, perhaps they will then want to sell, using the accumulated capital to have a whirl at finding a house closer to satisfying all of their wants.

This attitude also allows a family to abide by general rules of thumb. A rough rule, for instance, is that monthly payments should not exceed 20 percent of family income. Should the family ignore this and spend 30 percent because the neighborhood is good and income will rise later anyway, they could find themselves not able to afford the cultural pursuits, clothes, cars, and other niceties the neighbors take for granted.

More often than not this generates a feeling of not belonging, a situation especially hard on children who want to keep pace with the other children in their peer group. The whole family would have a considerably better chance at happiness where income levels are comparable. Later, if income does rise and they want to move into the more expensive neighborhood, they can.

A chart is only a helpful tool at best - a way of sorting out emotions. Buying a house is a very emotional experience. Why this is true is mixed up in memories, drives, desires and instincts. Whatever the reason, even a little idea that helps guide the emotions to high satisfaction is well worth trying, the Realtors board said.

Learning disabilities movie set tomorrow

The Northern Virginia Association for Children with Learning Disabilities will hold a meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the VEPCO building on U.S. 1 in Woodbridge. Parents and

There will be a presentation of slides entitled, "Introduction to Learning Disabilities."

It's there for all to see.

We believe an advertiser should know exactly what he's getting for his advertising dollar. So we tell him - and the general public - twice each week, right on the front page.

There are no "pie-in-the-sky" circulation promises involved. The paid circulation figure, an average for the most recent month available, is subject to verification at any time by the Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC), a highly respected self-regulatory national association to which the Potomac News belongs. If a copy of the paper goes unsold on a newsstand, it cannot be counted.

The second figure on the Front Page masthead shows the press run for the issue involved, which includes the distribution afforded by the vigorous sampling program of the Potomac News' circulation department. Since advertising rates are based on paid circulation, this is bonus readership for advertisers.

We are proud of the number of families buying the Potomac News twice each week, giving this newspaper the largest ABC paid circulation of any non-daily in Virginia. And we like to point out to advertisers that they don't have to pay a fortune in advertising rates to reach this big Potomac News Land audience.

O-W district progress eyed by Va. board

The State Water Control Board (SWCB) has unexpectedly set a hearing for Sept. 18 in Richmond to look into the situation in the Occoquan-Woodbridge Sanitary District. One of the specific questions to be answered is whether the District has a site for its proposed Potomac Treatment plant.

According to a letter from the SWCB, four interconnected plants in the district have had for the past three months an aggregate hydraulic loading in excess of 95 percent of their approved capacities.

The SWCB, the letter explains, has a policy that, where plant capacity is exceeded for three months, the controlling jurisdiction shall stop issuing permits for the beginning of construction and submit an expansion program.

Although an expansion program has been in the mill for this sanitary district for some time, the site for which it was designed is owned by the District of Columbia. The District was to sell the land to Prince William County in return for sanitary landfill privileges at Cockpit Point. Earlier this year the permit for landfilling was revoked by the Prince William County Board of Supervisors and the transfer of land became void. The Sanitary District has subsequently been trying to buy the land outright. Mooney said those negotiations will continue.

The district land is still first choice, Mooney said. However, he warned there will come a point in planning when it will be too late to change sites. The advisory committee is asking that the Featherstone site be certified so that planning can continue. If at the crucial point, the District site has not been purchased, then Featherstone will be where the plant will go.

Mooney said if the supervisors decide to accept the recommendation of the sanitary district committee, meetings will be held in the community near the proposed plant to answer the questions of citizens.

A second purpose of the Sept. 18 SWCB hearing will be to determine whether the district is engaged in an active pollution abatement program. If not, the letter warns, the SWCB staff may recommend that a special order be sent to the supervisors and the district requiring that they shall not build a new sewer or sewers, make connection to an existing sewer, or make extensions, without specific authorization from the SWCB.

With $4 million hanging in the balance, the Occoquan-Woodbridge Sanitary District Advisory Committee has decided to recommend that the Board of Supervisors certify property near the current Featherstone sewage treatment plant as the site for the future Potomac plant.

H. L. Mooney, the district's administrator said that the community simply cannot afford to jeopardize the $0 percent grant money (which could be in excess of $4 million) because of indecision on site location.

Hylton outlines Dale responses

Representatives of Hylton are still anxious to discuss with the Dale City Sanitary District Advisory Committee to discuss the committee's views of how the Dale City Sanitary District should assist in civic improvements.

A letter written to lawyer James Stevens, who represents Hylton, John Walvius, of the Hylton Sanitary District, has outlined the Dale City Sanitary District's responses to the committee's advisory committee.

Apparently the letter was to be read at a meeting between Hylton representatives, the Dale City Sanitary District's executive committee and the advisory committee members. Due to last minute changes, the letter was never presented.

Most of the responses are new but have been stated previously. Here they are:

Library site—The Hylton organization has offered the site and the Library has accepted one of them, with conditions.

Parks and Recreation—A site for Urban Park II and the space has been prepared. The appraised value of this property is in excess of $100,000. The ground for space and recreation, Walvius states, meets all county zoning requirements. (This is apparently in response to the request by the advisory committee that a certain percentage of the ground be "usable.") Walvius also says that "only the first edition of our sales brochure used for a short time in 1965 made mention of a golf course and bridge trails. The site where the course was shown at that time was partially decided to be used as a rest area along I-95. The balance of this property has not as yet been developed but the topography does not appear to be satisfactory for use as a golf course." Walvius says that a system of bridge paths could be used through the open space.

Conservation—Trees, Walvius explains, frequently must be cut in a volume construction operation. The organization is working now with the county on a sitation plan and storm drainage system.

Open space—recreation—although this is listed as a separate category, the answer is the same as given under parks and recreation except for the notation that Neabco and Godwin schools are nearby with ample recreation space.

Fringe parking—On this subject, Walvius suggests that the already-paved parking areas in the community be used, for example church lots. He states that Hylton's John McCoolle is working with Bob Gibbons of the bus company on this.

Teen Center—Walvius suggests that a center be incorporated into one of the parks. He reiterates an often stated stand that the original plan for playing area in Dale City was to utilize school sites and the sites were designed larger than school requirements to allow for this. He also recommends night lighting to get full use out of fields.

Traffic connections—Although the possibility of traffic connections between dales and exits out of the community other than Dale Boulevard are being looked into, the appropriate ground is not owned by the Hylton corporation.

Dale Boulevard—The Hylton organization has offered $325,000 to the State Highway Department to get the dualization of Dale Boulevard underway.

School sites—this item did not appear on the list publicized by the Sanitary District committee. Walvius simply explains that the School Board has an opportunity to select sites and the RPC zoning and Dale City master plan reflect the locations chosen.

Diversification of shopping—Walvius feels that this will be offered when the new Forestdale shopping center opens. Under this heading, Walvius states Hylton built the Marumco Theater for the Neighborhood Theatre Chain and that the lease for that theater stipulates that Hylton will not build another theatre within a 10 mile radius. Since most of Dale City lies within that radius, no theatre—unless the Neighborhood chain would agree to come in itself or waive the stipulation and that is what Hylton is asking.

Discount gas is also listed under shopping and Walvius says that so far no discount gas company has been interested in coming into Dale City.

The 1972 world champion, Robert Lange of Boulder, Colo.

Potomac News Sports
Wednesday, August 30, 1972, A-12

Local champ at Akron

Beville wins two heats, loses 3rd

Twelve year old Jimmy Beville, winner of the 1972 Prince William County Soap Box Derby on July 4, has done what other county champions have not been able to do at the All-American race in Akron, Saturday.

He beat somebody. And he did better than that. He beat two boys and found himself racing in the third heat before being eliminated from the contest. In the first heat number 66, he ran against a girl, 14 year old Anita Brisson of Boynton Beach, Fla., and 27 female champions representing other cities.

At the start both cars were even for the first 100 feet. Then Jimmy, in lane one, pulled ahead by a car length and one half the way down the 800 foot runway. Miss Brisson then began to pull up to the bottom of the hill and crossed the finish line a few inches behind Beville less than one half car length ahead. His time was 27.64 seconds, quite slow compared to the fastest time of the day of 27.30 seconds.

That number 161, Beville's 15 year old brother, Chris Dobson of Mobile, Ala., in which he had an early lead and unquestionably the winner of the heat, crossed the finish line some 27.66 seconds later by one car length and two inches.

The local champ's hopes were dashed in the second heat when he met Ronald Callendar, a fourteen year old Green Bay, Wisconsin, driver. Callendar's car was faster than Beville's. At the end of the race, Callendar was slipping up to Beville but a photo finish showed Callendar had won by at least three inches in lane

Steve, didn't leave by car until Monday afternoon and didn't see Jimmy until Wednesday.

That day, the family was reunited at topside, where both Jimmy and the clan had the chance to take a closer look at the 250 some-odd cars he was to race against. He was to race against to attempt to become the 1972 Soap Box Derby Champion. On Thursday the family toured Camp Ynoah to see what their daughter or son did before.

The next time Jimmy saw his family prior to Saturday's race was Friday at a party honoring parents of local champions where the derbyst were presented with watches, one of the many prizes which were given during his stay there.

Jimmy watched his car being gone over by inspectors on inspection day. The inspectors are trained to look for flaws in safety construction such as brakes and steering defects. Also at this time, the derbyist has a chance to make alterations or repairs for the last time.

The past week a decision to run two cars at a time instead of three per heat was a surprise and a first in derby history. According to a derby spokesman, the National Control Board had three choices concerning an engineering study of the track which discovered that the center lane at the race track (Derby Downs) was faster than the two outside lanes. The survey settled an old controversy that the lanes were unequal.

The board members rejected a plan to attempt to equalize the three lanes because there was not enough time before race-day to do an accurate and adequate job. Such alterations, it was argued, would throw off the equality of the two outside lanes. The two outside lanes were found to be within 1 1/2 inches of each other over the 953 foot course.

The board also rejected a decision against holding first round heats Friday afternoon because many people, arriving Saturday would find that their hometown champion had already been eliminated from the competition. Therefore, the first round heats were moved up from 1 p.m., Saturday, to 8 a.m. the same morning to accommodate the much longer racing schedule, (which lasted 8 1/2 hours).

Tuesday night the parents flocked to Cascade Plaza in downtown Akron to anxiously await the first round heat drawings. The Bevilles sat with two other Virginia families - Mr. and Mrs. John T. Smith of Charlottesville, whose son, 13 year old Don, is Charlottesville champ and Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Lohr of Fredericksburg, the parents of Fredericksburg champion, Mark. All three families combined for the loudest rooting section, cheering for each Virginia contestant announced.

Other Virginia entrants included Aurica George Sabau, 15, of Luray, who is the state's first girl representative to Akron; Michael Denton, 13, of Norfolk, the son of a naval officer who has been a POW in Vietnam for seven years; Willie Lillard, 15 of Orange; Phillip Rathbun, 13, of Maymeade; and Michael Biggs, 11 of Pulaski.

Pennsylvania had the most entrants this year, 24; with Ohio having 23; New York 21, Indiana and Michigan 12, North Carolina 10 and Texas 9. Virginia was tied with the Lone Star State with 9.

Guest appearances were made by Cazzie Russell, star of the Golden State Warriors professional basketball team, Robert Reed, head star of television's popular "Brady Bunch" clan, Lydia Ann Hobson, of Lexington, Ky., the 1972 American Junior Miss, Sid Collins, the "Voice of the Indianapolis 500 Mile Race," Jim Backus, the voice of T.V.'s animated "Mr. Magoo," a character which won him the coveted Oscar two times, and George Kirby, the star of the new T.V. show, "Half The George Kirby Comedy Hour."

At first, Saturday morning, a thunderstorm pelted the area and with a 70 percent chance of rain in the forecast it looked as though the race would have to be postponed. But by 7 a.m. the rain had stopped and the track was "ringed" off but not in time for the race to start an hour late by 9 a.m. Then under hazy partly cloudy skies, with temperatures in the middle 80's the race was continued in its entirety. Never has the race had to be postponed,

POW's son at derby

It seems kinda nice when a kid has a chance to meet other boys and girls his own age when he's away from home, and Jimmy Beville, this year's 1972 Prince William County Soap Box Derby Champion, had that chance this past week when he journeyed up to Akron, Ohio, to compete in the thirty-fifth annual All-American Soap Box Derby.

What I saw while there Saturday was over 250 youngsters from all walks of life competing against each other as individuals, yet cheering together as a team in their reserved section of the grandstand along the race.

These derbyists come from all over the country and from far away places as West Germany, Okinawa, and Venezuela. Even previous champions of past years come to watch the event and to meet the new contestants. Jimmy got to meet the 1968 world champion, Branch Lew.

Let me call your attention to some of the highlights of the derby. First of all, there were 255 contestants from 27 female winners from their respective cities. But the field was cut by one contestant when Richard Goudreaux's car (from Santa Ana, Calif.) went out of control at the finish line during the trial run on Thursday, and was wrecked and beyond repair. The twelve year old lad was able, however, to participate in all the rest of the activities of the Derbytown (Camp Noah) for the remainder of the week.

Then there was Mike Denton, a 13 year old from Norfolk. He was hoping that he could win the derby because it would make his father extremely proud. Mike's father is a prisoner of the North Vietnamese (American POW) whom Mike has not seen since he was only five years old.

"I wanted to win it for him, just like I won the local derby," he said. He won the Norfolk derby on his father's birthday but as far as Mike and his mother know, his father has not yet received the news, as the letters they receive from him are too infrequent and brief.

Virginia's first female made it to the All-American. Vicki Sabau, a 15 year old from Luray, claimed she had to give up dates in order to work on her derby-powered car. Then after awhile he started coming over to the house to give her a little friendly kiss.

Miss Sabau won Luray's first coasting crown and she plans to play basketball, swim, ski, travel, sew and dance. She claims to be a good painter and would like to teach art following studies at Ohio State University. I guess after winning the trip there she can't get away from Ohio.

For the past six years, Raleigh, N.C., has always had its entrant to the All-American there first, and for the first time that string was broken upon the arrival of Tim Lewis, of Bangor, Pa. He arrived at 6 a.m. the Monday before the race for the sole purpose of being the first derbyist to arrive at Akron for the week of activities there.

It has always been a tradition for the derbyist to hurl souvenirs into the crowd such as badges, buttons, and the like, from his hometown or state. Well, Genie Krueger, of Fort Pierce, Florida thought he would hand out something a bit different. Instead of catching buttons, the crowd found themselves chasing and dodging oranges. He was the fifth derbyist to arrive at Akron.

When the 250 youngsters were re-united with their cars on the following Wednesday, some showed off the new paint-jobs of their racers while a few met with disappointment. Several of the cars were damaged slightly (but not beyond repair). Some had the steering cables snapped during the bumpy transport while others reported that the bottoms of their cars had fallen out. One had its paint job badly scared. Anyhow, time was given to repair the cars and all made it through the trial runs with the exception of the wrecked auto.

Ken Holmboe, the 1947 champion, was on hand to watch his own 14 year old son, Eric, try to win the 1972 derby. History was made because this is the first time a son of a former All-American champ has raced at Akron.

On hand to watch the local champ at the derby besides his parents and myself was derby director and Dale City Jaycee member Bob Kalmin.

Duck hunting opens Nov 22 thru Jan 20

A 10-day duck hunting season beginning Nov. 22 and ending Jan. 20 with a basic daily bag limit of three ducks was selected for Virginia but the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries from among

Kagle takes 4th race

Reds Kagle lead from start to finish Saturday evening but had to squelch a last lap desperation attempt by Carlton Coleman as he won his fourth consecutive Old Dominion Speedway race for Limited Sportsmen.

In an evening that saw as much fender bumping and front-end smashing that is normally reserved for Demolition Derby Days, the ODS fans were treated to an exciting race card that never seemed to end.

Due to a Limited Sportsman washout two weeks ago, the Limiteds ran two feature races. Jim Boyer won the first feature while Al Daily took the second, just edging Mike Buel.

Old Dominion point leader Reds Kagle was unbeatable again as he took the lead away from Bobby Ballentine on the second lap and then sailed home unscathed. However, there were several attempts along the way to unseat the Lanham speedster. Carlton Coleman pushed Kagle the entire 25 laps and almost pulled even with two laps to go but Kagle was too quick as he gunned the "02" across the wire just one car length ahead of the frustrated Coleman. Ballentine was a distant third followed by Charlie Wiernan, Joe Westerman, Harvey Henderson and first time driver Danny Collins (Limited turned Late Model).

Heat races took place prior to each feature event. Kagle and Wyman Buel were the LMS winners while Mike Buel and Jim Breedon were victorious in the Limited sprints.

Excitement continues to mount as ODS continues to prepare for the "McDonald 200" on September 9. Talledega 500 winner James Hylton and Ronald McDonald of TV fame will be just a few of the many big names on hand. Pulsating NASCAR action will again resume Saturday night at Old Dominion Speedway. An evening of six big races, highlighted by a 20 lap feature for the Limiteds and a 25 lap LMS feature, will begin at 8 p.m.

Golf tourney still open

Punt, Pass and Kick sign-up closes Sept 29

Registration for Punt, Pass and Kick (PP&K) has begun at Cope Ford.

More than one million youths are expected to enroll for the fifth consecutive year. Aged eight to 13, they will make their opening bids for the Football Hall of Fame in less than two months. Six will make it — having their names inscribed at Canton, Ohio, as national PP&K winners.

The program is sponsored by U.S. Ford dealers and the National Football League.

Registration closes Sept. 29. Registrants must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

PP&K participants punt, pass and kick against others their own age. Any youngsters aged eight through 13 is eligible. There is no entry fee and no special equipment is needed. There is no body-contact during PP&K competition and participants do not lose amateur status.

Scoring is based on distance and accuracy. One point is given for every foot of punting, passing and kicking distance; a point is deducted for every foot off line.

Six levels of competitions produce six winners. Trophies are awarded to winners at all levels. Competition will begin Sept. 30 with dealer-level contests.

Starting at the fourth level, competition is held before the kick-off and during halftime of NFL games.

Six national finalists will represent the NFL's American Conference and six the National Football Conference Jan. 21 at the Pro Bowl Game in Dallas. Finalists, their parents and sponsoring dealers will be guests of Ford Division.

HERE WE COME! Gar-Field's Robert Weeks, an end, poses for the Potomac News cameraman as his picture, as well as others, were taken for the Fifth Annual Potomac News Football Supplement, the post and sponsor the baseball team. Reflecting on the team's record, he remarked that while the won and lost record was not the best, the players had learned team work and had been involved in something worthwhile. Both, he stated, were important now and would be more important later. He also presented Gary Stallard with a special award for being the team's leading batter with a .360 batting average. He concluded his part of the program by presenting certificates of participation to the players as well as Mr. Diefenbach, who also received a small gift, Marie Painter for her role as Secretary-Treasurer and certificates to George Staudinger, Alan Malz and Don Auman.

There were three other presentations made. George Staudinger presented a plaque to Mr. Overcash to show the posts appreciation for the sponsor's financial assistance. Gary Stallard was called upon to present a gift to Kerry Painter, the team's coach during the year. The final presentation was also made by Gary to the team manager on behalf of the team players.

Both the presentation and acceptance were brief. The manager accepted the gift almost in disbelief, started a verbal acceptance but after a very few words, accepted the congratulations of those members around him.

The next event to be sponsored by the Post will be a dance scheduled for September 16.

Marine griddler has great injury comeback

If 1st Lt. Joe Belasco, current pilot for the Quantico Marine football team's first offensive unit, can shake last season's shoulder injury, he wouldn't mind having a full time job.

The 5 foot 10, 190-pounder, used sparingly in 1971 at quarterback and halfback, suffered a major setback when he dislocated his shoulder in practice prior to the '71 clash with Prairie View A&M in the Houston Astrodome.

Since a Feb. 24 operation at Quantico's Naval Hospital he's been on an uphill rehabilitative road, working hard to be ready for the 1972 campaign.

"It still hurts, mainly when I throw," admitted the 23-year old Jersey City, N.J., native. "Until it's completely healed, I wouldn't mind sharing the quarterback job. After that, I'd like to be in there full time."

He went both ways for Villanova on the freshman squad, as a quarterback and safety. In his second season on the varsity he took over as the number one Wildcat field general and began working on a school record for most touchdown passes in one game — 14. That season he was named All-Delaware County, All-State (Philadelphia) and All-East Back of the Week.

After moving to halfback his senior year he set another school mark, most rushing attempts in one game. In that particular contest he lugged the pigskin 34 times for 199 yards.

He enlisted in the Marine Corps on March 19, 1971, graduated from Villanova with a B.S. in accounting in May.

Woodbridge American Legion pays tribute to own players

Members of American Legion Post 364 of Woodbridge gathered at the Post Home on Sunday, August 20 to pay tribute to players of their baseball team. The guest list included Mr. Oscar Overcash who represented the Piedmont Savings and Loan relating how the team was started, how the manager was tackled into taking over the team and the shoeing budget and low number of players the post had to start with. From this beginning the team was born. He concluded his remarks by reading a poem

Then reflecting on the record of the team during the just concluded season, he spoke of the possibilities of a much better team for next year. He then introduced the players who were in attendance —

Gary Stallard, Phil Welch and Don Easley.

One of the highlights of the evening were the remarks made by Mr. Overcash. He stated that it was a pleasure for his office to become involved with

Save Your Car

By WAYNE STOTLER

Proper setting of your carburetor is important not only to your car and to you but to the other people who inhabit your world. A tachometer is ideal for making sure the carburetor is operating correctly. A tachometer can determine the best gas-air mixture and the correct idling speed for your particular car. With a properly adjusted carburetor your car will not only run smoother but your gas mileage will be better along with acceleration potential. Also, by using up gas before it is released into the atmosphere, you'll be doing your part to curb pollution.

Cub Pack 1351 holds bike rodeo at Featherstone

Picnic blankets and folding tables dotted the grounds of Featherstone School during the monthly meeting of Cub Pack 1351 on a recent Sunday afternoon.

A bike rodeo, conducted by Officers Hawks and Smith of the Prince William County Police, was the featured activity. The Cubs first had their bikes inspected for safety features, then rode a zig-zag course and a straight line between rubber balls on stands. Brian McAllister won first place with 15 points, a perfect score. James Oien, David Spicer and David Cain tied for third place. Each winner received a trophy.

David McMaster received the Webelos Arrow of Light Award. Also earning the Arrow of Light, but not present to receive it were: Scott Watring, Joe Czul, George Gould and Geoffrey Budimlya.

Elmor Wilton was awarded the Artist and Sportsman activity badges. Geoffrey Budimlya earned the Citizen badge; Larry Fehrenback, Athlete and Showman; George Gould, Citizen and Joseph Hatchel, James Kersa, Craig Klopp, Michael Davis, Aaron O'Ferrell and Brian McAllister graduated into Webelos. Cubmaster Joe Hatchel took this opportunity to remind everyone that Webelos den leaders are now desperately needed.

Brian McAllister received the Bear Badge and a gold and silver arrow point; Edward Hatchel, Wolf and Gold Arrow; Jeffrey Hawkins, Wolf and Gold and Silver Arrows; Michael Laing, Wolf and Gold Arrow and Craig Klopp, Bear and Gold Arrow and four Silver Arrows.

Clifford Mallory was awarded a Gold Arrow, Wolf; Joseph Hatchel, fourth, fifth and sixth silver Arrow, Bear; Aaron O'Ferrell, fourth and fifth Silver Arrow, Bear; David Arrow, Bear. Steven Schnabel became eligible for his two year perfect attendance bar. David McMaster was received into Boy Scout Troop 1351 by Scoutmaster Roger Oien.

George Gould and Geoffrey Budimlya also graduated from Cub Scouts. At the September meeting it will be Round-Up time when a special invitation is extended to all boys between the ages of eight and ten and their parents to come and see what Cub Scouting is all about. Round-up will take place Sept. 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room at Featherstone School.

Air pollution may grow with auto population

Air pollution terms are not yet household words in Prince William, but may soon be if auto emissions and industrial wastes continue to pollute the area.

According to Dr. H. W. Coone, county health director, the citizens of Prince William and Loudoun counties really have no problem as our readings are negligible, especially compared to the heavily populated surrounding areas of Arlington, Alexandria and non-rural Fairfax. However, he indicated that next year could be a different story as the population and accompanying automobiles continue to grow.

During the metropolitan Washington alert this past weekend, Prince William County showed a reading for the first time in its history. The Gar-Field station measured the oxidant level at 0.3 ppm (parts per million) as opposed to the 0.1 ppm alert level in the metropolitan area. The highest level on record was taken at 0.2 ppm at Quantico, which produced noticeable eye irritation.

As a member of the National Capital Interstate Air Quality Control Region, Prince William is a participant in the air pollution emergency plan to which the statistics relate. This plan has been worked out in the greater Washington area by agreement among Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia with the Northern Virginia area in compliance with the State Air Pollution Control Board. This is an outgrowth of the Federal Clean Air Act of 1970 which made mandatory that each state submit a plan to combat air pollution before last January. Virginia's regulations became effective on March 17. Direction to the states has subsequently come from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The emergency episode plan is set in motion in the forecast stage by the local Weather Bureau, which reports an "air stagnation advisory." This is sent directly to the episode control center in the Metropolitan Council of Governments offices in the District of Columbia. Their advisory role is to relay the warning to the regional directors. The Virginia office, located in Falls Church, notifies County Health Departments of the weather conditions approaching the inversion state. That occurs when hot air containing pollutants is trapped close to the ground instead of dispersing into the upper air.

Dr. Coone then instructs his staff to begin taking observations of the pollutants; the type of testing depends on the nature of the pollutants.

Testing for gaseous pollutants is conducted by an instrument known as a "bubbler train." This past weekend the level of oxidants or poisonous auto emissions was the item ordered for testing, according to Frank Osegueda, assistant regional director of the State Air Pollution Control Board. These automobile fumes are especially dangerous when the heat of sunlight increases the photo-chemical action. The bubbler train can also test for levels of sulphur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide which result from fuel burning in the winter time. This equipment at Manassas is presently being checked to verify the reliability of its data, Osegueda said. He indicated the tests run at Gar-Field and Quantico are valid.

A second kind of test called a "high volume sampler" is a test run for "particulate" or solid matter, such as dust. These tests are conducted on a year-round basis for 24 hours every third day at Gar-Field, Manassas, Occoquan and Quantico. If the bubbler train tests reveals an oxidant level of 0.1 ppm, the plan goes into the alert stage. At this point, persons with heart or respiratory conditions are cautioned to remain indoors. Unnecessary automobile use is discouraged.

Osegueda regretfully states that requests for voluntary citizen control have gone unheeded. "There has been no appreciable reduction in driving during the alerts; the pleas for car pools go unheeded." If the oxidant level reaches 0.4 ppm, the warning stage would be reached. Then compulsory traffic control would be invoked, especially on official vehicles, while personnel would be advised to stay at home or travel at staggered times. The emergency stage would be declared only by the governor when the oxidant level reached 0.6 ppm. Air pollution officials aim at preventing the level from reaching 4 ppm.

In Prince William County, ordinances compatible with state requirements keep pollution in check. VEPCO's Potomac Point power plant has employed an expensive air pollution control device to hold its potential polluting to a minimum. VEPCO had received a variance through the course of a public hearing. This is a temporary authorization to be out of compliance with Prince William's regulations due to the unavailability of fuel oil with a lower sulphur level. Quantico Marine Corps base also must comply with county and state ordinances as must all military installations, Osegueda said.

In a county which has been predominantly rural, open burning was formerly a widespread practice. Dr. Coone emphasized that the county Air Pollution Control Board has become most stringent in this matter, insisting on the alternate use of certain equipment known as "air curtain destructors," in the case of large land clearances. Three such burners are available in the county and several others nearby. A large land developer such as Hyton Enterprises has found it practical to operate its own air curtain destructor, stated Dr. Coone.

The air pollution control activities in Prince William are conducted on a voluntary basis by the Health Department. Dr. Coone estimates more than 1200 services in air pollution were performed last year. Although requests have been made for personnel and funds in the last two budgets, the items have been cut by the Board of Supervisors. By contrast, Fairfax has an air pollution agency staffed with 11 full time people; predominately rural Loudoun County Board of Supervisors voted against establishing a board or adopting an ordinance. The target date for bringing all industry and automobiles into compliance with national standards is June 30, 1975. By that time, air pollution experts expect motor vehicle manufacturers to reduce automobile emission to a negligible point; presently only California and New Jersey have laws requiring owners to install specified control devices.

In the meantime, the State Air Pollution Control Board is attempting to register all manufacturing plants, retail and wholesale stores, offices, schools and church schools, hotels and motels, hospitals and labs, warehouses and apartments as to fuel, refuse and manufacturing burning. To date, 2500 have responded with 2,000 remaining to be heard from including Prince William County's School Board.

The regional office in Falls Church under the directorship of Daniel J. Gaston, has films and literature available for schools and civic groups. An anticipated increase in personnel bringing the staff level to 10, will enable Gaston and assistant, Osegueda, to speak on request.

Reds and blues may be either happy or dignified when used as color combinations in a home. Of course, since both red and blue are strong colors, you must be careful how you use them. In a large room, the bright values of these colors help to make the room cooler. In a small room, use very bright shades sparingly, or else you will begin to feel crowded. Spend some time thinking about the colors you use in your home: they're what make the decorating difference.

Then spend some time at WOODBRIDGE PAINT SHOP, 13624 Jefferson Davis Hwy, 494-6105, choosing just the right wallpaper and paint for your home. Serving your complete paint and wallpaper needs with personal service and quality, we feature Massey Paints, the quality name in paint with over 100 years experience in paint manufacturing. Emphasis is on entrances at The Knolls

Fifth Lake Ridge community, Knolls, now available

Urban Virginia developer Edward R. & Associates' fifth community, The Knolls, has opened in Lake Ridge.

The latest community will feature 104 contemporary homes sited from the upper end and individually sited on wooded lots, many with pools and many with the 1,700-acre inlet.

Homebuyers may select from plans that employ a variety of natural materials, wood, brick and expanses of glass. Features include 15 foot ceilings, interior overlooking living rooms and studies, a walk-in closet, convenience kitchens, a pantry and built-in breakfast room. Many bedrooms have been designed to have a balcony and a ceiling closet. Master suites with built-in closets feature such treatments as a raised platform. Dining rooms feature seemingly extended gardens and patio.

The architects, Kohler and Daniels, AIA, placed considerable emphasis on entrance design. One of the models is entered by a unique bridge ramp spanning a sunken moat while the remaining three models utilize walled gardens and trellised entries to enhance individuality.

The Manors of Lake Ridge, a community of over 200 comparably priced traditional homes is also under concurrent development by the Carr firm.

A look back Eight months of tumult

By BETTY CALVIN

Eight months have now passed since a fateful Jan. 1 meeting in which Prince William entered a new era under the county executive term of government—eight months which found the county embroiled in a political tangle unmatched in memory.

But beneath the smoke of the political infighting can be found, perhaps surprisingly, a growing list of actions which combatants on both sides acknowledge fall under the label of "accomplishments."

The hard 4-to-3 political alignment under which the new form was ushered—an alignment which in itself turned Prince William into two warring camps—has also undergone at least a partial transition.

Neabco Supervisor Don Turner, originally an unreconstructed member of the 4—a grouping quickly dubbed the Four Horsemen—shifted to more of a swing role. Now there is some talk of a "New Majority"—Turner and the erstwhile three-member minority, on some board issues.

Board Chairman C. Scott Winfield, one of the "Horsemen," and one of only two board members who were carryovers from the previous board, was asked for his interpretation of the eight months. It was his feeling that the board had made "great progress since Jan. 1 for the benefit of Prince William taxpayers."

A fellow supervisor and newcomer to the board, Charles Colgan, a member of the minority three, came up with a somewhat different summation. The Gainesville District supervisor said: "The board is more concerned with personalities than with running the government. When they begin to look at what is involved, instead of who is involved, they will become a better board of supervisors."

Winfield's co-horsemen in the majority, besides Turner, have been Roy Doggett of Manassas District and Ralph Mauler of Brentsville, both new faces with the new board. The minority bloc, with Colgan, have included another freshman supervisor, Vernon Dawson of Ocoquan; and the board's "old-timer," Dr. A. J. Ferlazzo of Dumfries, a fifth-termer.

Winfield, in his review of the board's accomplishments, listed 17 actions he considered important.

The first of these was an independent audit "by the best possible auditing firm with an international reputation" (Peat, Marwick and Mitchell). Colgan acknowledged that the private audit was a good move. "I believe we will maintain better control over county funds by instituting the recommendations made by the auditing firm," he said. "This firm has been pointing out certain deficiencies...they have covered items that have never before been audited, as far back as 1914," Winfield explained.

Both supervisors also cited a six-month residential zoning moratorium as another favorable action—"to catch up on the provisions of schools, sewage, etc., for the better welfare of the county," said Winfield.

"The moratorium...was a necessary one; (it) gave the Planning Department an opportunity to catch its breath and to take a detailed look at the county's planning problems. Prince William needs a comprehensive master plan," Colgan said, "and I personally would be in favor of possibly extending the zoning moratorium for another six months. However, I do have some reservations about the legality of zoning moratoriums."

Participation in the Upper Ocoquan Sewage Authority was another positive step the supervisors mentioned. "We joined...but only after we had held out to get the concessions the county needed," Winfield said. (He referred to certain changes in placement of lines and other agreements between the counties and towns involved.) In reality, membership in the Authority was for all practical purposes forced on the county by the State Water Control Board, which threatened a court battle if the county did not join the Authority and in other ways update its inadequate sewage treatment facilities.

On this topic, Colgan noted that "one of the greatest problems the county faces today is the need for sewerage facilities...and I believe that this step was one in the right direction, although the Board had great difficulty in making the decision to go with the Authority."

A third area of agreement related to the emergency created by tropical storm Agnes. Winfield pointed out that the county had requested the Corps of Engineers to make a study of the Ocoquan watershed, relative to flood control.

Colgan said he felt the Board had done an excellent job of providing every possible assistance to the victims of the flood, even though "the help the county can offer to flood victims is limited."

Other accomplishments mentioned by Winfield include: —Retention of "the best possible financial advisory firm (Wheat, First Securities) with 600 employees, obtainable in Virginia, to build a solid management team to work for the taxpayers of this county."

—Hiring of a county attorney, Floyd Bagley, to "give full time and attention to the affairs of the county and to advise the supervisors." This has freed the commonwealth's attorney "to give more time and effort to the prevention of crime and the prosecution of criminals."

—Retention of a legal firm to act as bond counsel. "This firm (McGuire, Woods and Battle) has 76 attorneys which will allow the county the best legal advice in Virginia on bond counseling."

—The setting of "a livable real estate tax."

—The lowering of apartment density from 20 to 16 units an acre.

—The purchase of nine additional voting machines "to facilitate ease of citizen voting."

—Raising teachers salaries "substantially."

—Raising full-time county employees pay, effective Sept.

1, by $445 each. (does not include school employees).

—Construction of an interim sewage treatment plant in the Ocoquan-Woodbridge Sanitary District "to help abate pollution in the area."

—The decision to rejoin the Metropolitan Council of Governments "to continue to gain the benefits of the technological expertise of their advisors and planners."

—The "catching up" on accounting matters. "When this board took over on Jan. 1," Winfield said, "The county was 45 days behind in posting records."

—Development of "a better mutual understanding" between the Board of County Supervisors and the School Board and school administration.

Grover Manderfield

No better epitaph describes Grover P. Manderfield, who died on Saturday at 71, than the words of his son: "He liked to see things grow."

As a businessman, Manderfield made things grow. He was associated with several enterprises identified with the days when Woodbridge was awakening from a rural slumber. His major commercial monument was the $100-million Bank of Virginia-Potomac, which he helped steer to phenomenal growth from his original interest as majority stockholder in the little Bank of Ocoquan, a $2 million institution in the late 1940s.

As a public servant, Mr. Manderfield also felt a fierce pride in the community's growth. There are some today who criticize Prince William County's growth over the past decade—during a period in which Mr. Manderfield wielded considerable influence—as producing more problems than progress. And few would deny that growth, indeed, has created some king-sized headaches. But by the same token, Mr. Manderfield did much to place the growth in eastern Prince William on a sound footing, and the community, as a whole, has prospered. His particular concern was the Ocoquan-Woodbridge Sanitary District, which was able to meet the sewer and water demands created by the growth while remaining on an extremely sound financial foundation. His unrealized dream was that of a water and sewer authority serving all of Prince William east of the Ocoquan.

While one of Prince William's major financial and political powers of the 1960s, Mr. Manderfield remained gracious and approachable to friend and critic alike. He was an honorable man, and when it came to the Prince William County Board of Supervisors, on which he served for eight years, his votes were the votes of his conscience.

Prince William lost a valued servant with Mr. Manderfield, but he left behind many monuments.

Q I responded to a cosmetic company special for which I was to receive an electric hair curler set. I sent my $8.99 but haven't received the hair setter nor have I had an answer to my follow up letter.

Troubleshooter contacted the company and has since been advised that the company has been in contact with you and that you are to be sent a new hairsetter.

Q In November 1970, I responded to a newspaper classified ad for World Field Research. The company was looking for correspondents to test products. In reply to my letter, I received information from the company regarding its function as a test market for consumer projects. I had done this kind of work previously and thought it would be an interesting way to supplement my income so I returned my required $10 fee for enrollment as a correspondent. There was a guarantee that if I was not satisfied with the situation that I could receive a refund of my enrollment fee at any time within the first year. The only product ever sent me for testing was a rectal cleanser. I wrote and asked for my money back—nothing.

Troubleshooter has learned that the company has been out of business and in bankruptcy for one year. Company officials have been indicted on one count of mail fraud. It doesn't look like you'll be getting your $10 back.

Getting keys to a guided death missile

Great Grandma had it made when it came to raising her youngsters. Her main desire was that her girls walked down the aisle in a pure state of innocence and as far as her boys were concerned, she was satisfied if no irate parents came knocking at her door.

Modern mothers have one crises after another. While Great Grandma wasn't too upset if her daughters didn't finish school—after all, she reasoned, all they really needed to know was how to make beds, cook, and sew—we "moderns" know that everyone, male and female, benefits by as much education as they can get. The one big plateau Great Grandma didn't have to climb was the one almost all of us have today and that is—the driver's license!

Personally, I have four down and one to go, and she has her learner's permit. A couple of weeks ago I went with my son to Manassas to obtain his license which, according to Virginia law, is next direct to the Court to be issued, "with due ceremony," by a judge. This law is for drivers under the age of 18. I know the judge was supposed to lecture the recipients of these licenses and that a parent must accompany the new driver to hear it. Over 100 of our young men and women were there that day.

Frankly, I was quite disappointed in the "lecture." The judge went back 70 years to explain how this law came about as though he were talking to third or fourth graders. It was a fairly interesting history, but I was hoping he would, as Grandpa used to say, "put the fear of God" into them regarding this new guided death missile they were going to be operating.

Perhaps statistics relative to teenage drivers as being the cause of the high cost of insurance could have been cited. I wish they could have been shown a couple of the movies available showing what happens when speed, daredevil antics, and outright flaunting the law takes over. These films are pretty gory. I've seen quite a few of them and made sure my youngsters saw them, too. If anything will make a driver, young or old, think twice about reckless driving, it is the memory of these films. What's that, you say? Our young people shouldn't have to be exposed to such horror films? Look, folks, better they see them on film than experience them in real life....

Little Johnny will never walk again because a souped-up car was dragging down the street and Johnny misjudged the speed. A vehicle going 25 mph could have stopped. Johnny's fault? Perhaps, but a 7 year old boy is hardly liable and yet he was old enough to cross the street on his way to school.

Sally, Jimmy, and Wanda no longer have parents. Why? Because a carload of teenagers, smoking pot, had difficulty telling one side of the yellow center line from the other. Two sets of parents, from the same accident, no longer have their sons and one set has a daughter who will never see again. Windshields don't save, either, how pretty is the face that hits them.

Robert was a promising athlete, especially bright in school, a leader among students and a potential leader among men. Robert is doomed forever to a wheelchair, paralyzed from the neck down, able only to talk. A brilliant mind in a handsome head, chained to a mechanical chair because the "sicks" on a teenager's car didn't hold the road in the rain and the collision from the skid wiped out his car.

Jenny is a beautiful girl, about 16. For over two years she has lain in a hospital bed in a semi-coma, unable to voluntarily move a muscle. She was riding a motorcycle behind her boyfriend. She had her helmet on—when a car of joyriding teenagers ignored a stop sign and ran into them. Her head struck a tree and the back of the helmet evidently did something to her neck for she was unharmed otherwise. It would break your heart to see her, this beautiful child, so helpless. I saw her and I'll never forget.

Without exception, I am sure, the culprits in each of these cases wish they could undo the damage they did. Surely, no one could blithely throw off their guilt by saying "Johnny shouldn't have been in the road" or "pot never affected my driving before—it was a freak accident", or "anyone can skid on wet pavement", or "I just didn't see the stop sign—it could happen to anyone."

Yes, I know, we humans are funny. We live by saying "it couldn't happen to me"...and we die by it. But, somehow, we have to impress upon our new drivers that they are obtaining the privilege of driving a vehicle of transportation. A car is supposed to get us from one point to another...that is its only purpose. If you want a race car, fine, have one. But race it on a race track. Racing slicks are for the race track, not our highways. Keep them there.

Before I hear a hue and cry from teenagers that most drunk drivers are adults, let me say this. I know it and I think this is one area where you have a legitimate gripe. If you can think of a way to keep them off the road, be my guest. The whole world will build a memorial to you. But don't rationalize that just because some adults don't have the sense God gave a pinto pig it's

Chain fences

To the Editor:

What are we as Homeowners in Marumco Hills supposed to do when some of our neighbors have installed and intend to install 42 inch high chain link fences in their front yards?

Our Restrictive Covenant clearly states that no fence, or wall, other than a retaining wall shall be erected, placed or altered on any lot nearer to any street than the minimum building setback line. (Which to my understanding is 35 feet.) I called Hylton Enterprises and was told that we have to handle this matter on our own. Which means that we'll have to take our neighbors to court. I think Hylton Enterprises should stand behind our Covenant or find some means of enforcing it for us. I rode around the Hills and saw several chain link fences. Are we supposed to take all five parties involved to court? It's ridiculous!

These people know very well that it is illegal, yet they go ahead and dare their neighbors to do something about it. I am very concerned about this matter, because we have our investment in our home to protect. If everyone decides to defy the Covenant there will be businesses in the homes, trailers and junk cars parked everywhere and there won't be a thing that we can do about it, simply because people don't like to get involved.

I suggest that every homeowner in the Hills who has installed or intends to install a fence in the front, get out their Restrictive Covenant and read it!

County had voted for. We have restructured all departments of the county functionally according to the executive form, to the state code says must be done without any assistance from the Board, who said the new Board could do nothing until they had no money," Winfield charged. But perhaps things are looking up. Colgan said he felt the supervisors should emphasize adopting a comprehensive master plan, and constructing adequate sewage disposal systems to meet current and future needs, including needs of the residents of the York, Gainesville and Haymarket areas. "These residents have been paying taxes to the county for many years, and far as priorities on sewerage are concerned, their needs should come first."

passing through a residential area and will permit the construction of a high rise office building and eliminate the need for removal of the Myers-Hill office building," Colgan added. "Both will contribute substantially to the county's tax base."

Colgan observed "I would be less than candid if I did not tell you that I have been disappointed with the progress of this Board of Supervisors during its first six months in office."

But perhaps things are looking up. Colgan said he felt the supervisors should emphasize adopting a comprehensive master plan, and constructing adequate sewage disposal systems to meet current and future needs, including needs of the residents of the York, Gainesville and Haymarket areas. "These residents have been paying taxes to the county for many years, and far as priorities on sewerage are concerned, their needs should come first."

"The Dale Boulevard traffic problem must be solved," Colgan went on, "with the widening of Dale Boulevard. The Board should keep this problem constantly before them, until it is solved."

He concluded: "We need a courthouse complex, which should include a new jail and a juvenile detention center. All of these needs should be incorporated into a master plan for the county."

In reviewing the actions of the Board, the Potomac News found other major areas where steps have been taken in addition to those already mentioned. Among these:

-The attempt, admittedly after pressure from minority groups, to establish a Human Relations Commission. This move ran into a stumbling block but presumably efforts will continue especially in areas of equal opportunities in the way of jobs and county services.

-The granting of a site for a library for eastern Prince William, on a parcel of the Potomac Hospital land in Woodbridge, and the approval of a referendum in November for library construction purposes.

Yet major areas remain in which intense feelings of bitterness persist.

One of these is status, present and future, of County Executive Bobby J. Hansen, who submitted his resignation in May after finding he could not get support from many county employees, and for whom support on the board determined to find a replacement.

Another is the indecision over the future of the Parks and Recreation Authority, which has been kept virtually unfunded since its creation last fall. The board also has refused to revive the County Historical Commission, created by the previous board.

Yet another open sore is the status of the School Board. A pre-1972 board continues to function, by court fiat, through the Four Horsemen on Jan. 1 ramrodded through the appointment of virtually an entirely new board which included Doggett's son as Manassas District member. The Virginia Supreme Court has yet to decide which of the two boards is to be the real one.

The accomplishments turned up in an eight-month review were sandwiched between bitter flaps over a variety of episodes.

Clearly the one which most brought emotions to a boiling point was the "change of command" itself—the New Year's Day meeting, before a packed chamber, in which the new government was ushered in.

N. C. Sharp, executive secretary under the old board, had been assured in a public statement by all the incoming supervisors that he would be retained as county executive for at least six months to help with an orderly transition.

Instead, in a surprise to at least two board members, Sharp was replaced—without notice, without severance pay. Named as his successor, without any apparent effort to compare his credentials against those of 42 applicants, was Bobby J. Hansen, president of the Prince William Federation of Civic Associations and a close Winfield ally. The same meeting saw the ouster—or attempted ouster—of the old School Board, as well as the old Welfare Board and much of the Planning Commission. Two supervisors were named to the Welfare Board, though the law seemed to spell out that only one could be named.

The scenario was one implying that the Four Horsemen who were taking over the power expected to find serious evidence of scandalous goings-on by the unseated governing establishment. Locks on the courthouse door were changed, former County Treasurer C. N. Kincheloe was not allowed into his office, and the private-firm audit was ordered to supplement a state audit then in progress. Some sloppy examples of bookkeeping and fund-transferring were uncovered, but few have contended that the results have indicated wrong-doing for personal gain.

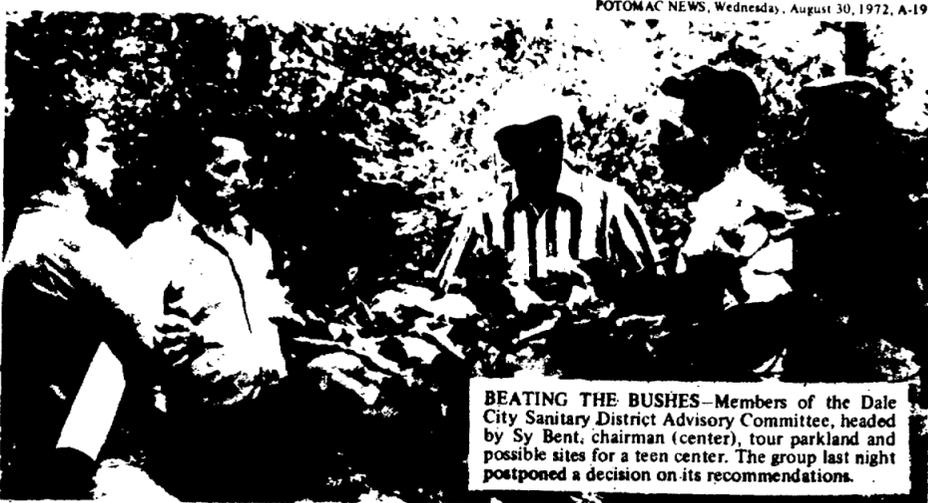

There were again intimations of wrong-doing concerning the Cockpit Point Non-Profit Development Corp., when debate centered on the future of the corporation's industrial tract, and some supervisors demanded a study. But suspicions never materialized and the study never came to pass.

Then came the so-called "Mystery Man" episode. Douglas Murray, an unemployed former security guard, after being in contact with Hansen and Winfield, appeared before the supervisors with word that he had information harmful to the county, particularly to Police Chief George Owens. Hansen's role in the affair drew strong condemnations from the board's minority members and there were a couple of tense board meetings at which tempers reached the polemic stage. Those who said they heard privately what Murray had to say discounted its substance; Murray faded from the public spotlight and so did the controversy.

But by this time—mid-spring, tension and distrust had become pervasive within the county administration, bringing with it almost a wholesale exodus of heads of departments, some by dismissal, others by resignations.

Today, though some personality conflicts appear to remain sharp—particularly between Supervisors Muller and Doggett and other board members—some observers detect a changing atmosphere—a growing realization on the part of various board members that, if the county is to move ahead, compromises must be made by both factions and realistic looks must be taken at the county's problems.

Hansen future pondered

Contract that can't be broken for any reason is a bad thing. It emphasizes "due cause," sometimes in a year a man has made progress but hasn't made a damn thing. He's got a contract and he's on the verge of being fired. The contract is an odious thing.

He added that any new man has a chance to perform. He said the Potomac News that he thought the industrial director's post would be better than any other job in the county. He noted.

He told the press that he signed a contract for Hansen's new post. He added that this full Board discussion next Thursday. "We're not assuming him (Hansen) of anything at this point," Turner stated.

Colgan said he definitely would not agree to a two-year contract for Hansen in the new job. Concerning any kind of contract, Colgan said he would "have to think about it."

Of the 37 county executive applicants, about 10 are retired military men. At least one has a doctor's degree, several have master's degrees, and their ages begin at 31 and range up to 71. Turner said that some of the younger men have impressive backgrounds for their ages.

One of the applicants, it was revealed, is from Vancouver, Canada. It was reported that an applicant from the West coast indicated that he would pay his own expenses to come for an interview.

In the Board session, Ferlazzo said since the supervisors were on the subject of personnel, he was "concerned" about a cost of living increase for crossing guards, maintenance workers, and others who work part time for the school system. He suggested that these people be given the same types of raises as had been granted county personnel—a 4.45 percent increase for full time workers, a 2.25 percent for those on part time.

Dawson called for a "point of order," saying that the Board met merely to discuss the county executive post.

Turner said that this was in order if the Board wanted to pursue it at that time because the subject came under personnel. He asked that this be placed on the agenda for the Board's work session for Tuesday and suggested that they find out how much more revenue the county would need in order to implement the added raises. The work session is to also cover whether banks hold escrow for county funds and insurance risk management.

Special Olympics had its problems

To the Editor:

I decided to write this letter after reading the letter from Mrs. Lee Lawrence regarding the Special Olympics for Retarded Children.

First of all, I apologize to Mrs. Lawrence and all the organizations she mentions, which have helped in one way or another for the Olympics to take place. The information which accompanied Maris Nohrden's picture in last week's edition was given by me to the reporter who wrote the story. (Maris is my sister.)

But, there's a story behind my lack of information, and I'd like very much to tell it. If I didn't acknowledge anyone else's contributions to the event besides that of the Kennedy Foundation, it was because of the lack of organization and the information which went along with the National Olympics was atrocious and unbelievable. I have never heard of any other event of the size of this one handled in such an amateurish fashion.

Maris was a gold medal winner in the State Competition and I was told that only a few could be picked out of all the winners as there wasn't enough funds for all the winners to go to California. I understood that if Maris was chosen I would be informed by mail, and that any information I needed could be obtained from the office of Mrs. Dallas Francis, principal of Independent Hill and Northern Virginia District Coordinator.

Well, after weeks of not hearing a word, I called and talked to Mrs. Francis. This was the first week in July. A source unknown to me had informed her that Maris was in Puerto Rico for the summer and would not be able to go to California; unfortunately, she said, the alternate had not been notified so she could put Maris' name back on the list, and that she would mail me immediately, all the information pertaining to the coming event. To this day I have yet to receive anything at all from anyone.

It was only through the tireless efforts and perseverance of Mrs. Karen Smith, director of the Maris Humphrey School, that four days before the team was to leave for California, I learned that Maris definitely was going

To the Editor: Saturday evening my

(even though the alternate had been notified) that she needed some special clothing and the time and date of departure.

Mrs. Smith herself had only found out after numerous calls to the office of Mrs. Beatrice Foster, one of the officials and chaperones.

Before closing, I would like to say that I found the lack of more television and D.C. press coverage at the time of the events unfortunate. These very special children deserve a bit more recognition for their marvelous effort and spirit.

Credit is definitely due to all the organizations Mrs. Lawrence mentions, but personally and publicly, I wish to thank Mrs. Karen Smith for the unselfish effort, time and interest she gave Maris. She is a remarkable person.

Gate fee was a surprise!

husband and I, a proud grandmother, an aunt, one uncle and a little brother all trekked to the Woodbridge Senior High School Stadium to watch our eldest son take part in the Eastern Prince William Sports Club Football "kick-off."

When we got to the bottom of the steps we met the first indication that this event was not free. To get in we would have to pay a dollar each for the five adults and 50 cents for the little brother. I was advised that the "boys," meaning the football players I presume, had gotten in free.

I was not only horrified but outraged. I also refused to pay it.

We walked back up the steps and waited on the grass until the ceremonies and the games were over. Except for the humiliation and disappointment it would have caused our son I would have gone out on the field and taken him out of the program.

While we waited we watched quite a number of people trudge back up the steps after being faced with the admission fee. I am sure many people didn't think to bring any money and some probably couldn't afford it.

My objection to the admission fee Saturday night is based on the fact that there had been no advance notice of the charge and such an event as the official opening should not carry an admission fee. If it is necessary to have extra money for the opening or the games the boys play, an additional charge should be made at registration or some other provision made.

Before the angry answers begin, let me say that I am very much aware of how expensive it is to run such a program. I am also quite willing to pay for our son's participation and to help raise funds for the program.

We have been very pleased with the football program. This is my son's first year in football, the team is great, the coaches are great, our son is great—everything is great—but be fair, no more surprises such as the one we faced Saturday night.

Yours truly, Leslie Scott Dumfries, Va.

Richard Hill of Buffalo, New York complained to county police Thursday that someone removed the windshield, two saddle bags, a toolbox and the front wheel of his motorcycle while it was parked in the yard behind 547 A Melrose Ave., Triangle.

Hill was visiting his sister at an address. He estimated the value of the stolen articles to be worth $250.

The Weas of 404 Broadway St., Quantico told police someone broke into his home and removed clothing valued at $72 on Thursday.

James Fitzgerald, 19, of 5500 Old Triangle Road, Triangle was arrested on Friday and charged with failure to stop at the scene of an accident.

According to police, Fitzgerald allegedly struck a car belonging to Columbia Gas Co. at 8900 Mathis Ave., Manassas, then jumped from the vehicle, failing to make his identity known.

Someone stole tires and rims from a Corvette while it was parked overnight for service at a lawns Chevrolet in Woodbridge. The tires and rims were valued at $340, according to the owner of the vehicle George A. Messier, of Quantico Marine Corps Base.

Two Woodbridge juveniles, aged 15, were charged on four counts of statutory burglary and one count of grand larceny of a U-Haul truck from Lynwood Gulf station between Aug. 18 and Aug. 23. The burglary victims were Lynwood Gulf, Marumco Phillips 66 Station, Jims' Cheap Gas, and Arton Mobil, all on Jefferson Davis Highway, according to county police.

Eggplant

Stuffed, fried, baked in a pie or served as an appetizer and called a Poor Man's Caviar, eggplant, that purple beauty that doesn't often make it to the dinner table is nevertheless a versatile vegetable.

The fruit of a plant which is a native of southern Asia, eggplant has been known for centuries and some of the ancients believed it to be poisonous.

In fact, it was known as mala insana, (mad apple) in the belief that it caused insanity. A carry over from that fear is the idea of soaking eggplant in salt-water before cooking. The eggplant is baked in its skin or cooked in oil or broiled to conserve its flavor from Greece to Asia Minor.

Eggplant is good many ways and some of the various recipes follow. For best results eggplants should be heavy and firm of uniform dark color and not soft, flabby or shriveled which shows a sign of old age.

FRENCH FRIED EGGPLANT

Peel eggplant and cut into slender sticks, about 1/4 inch thick. Dip in beaten egg which has been seasoned with salt and pepper and then rolled into crumbs, about one cup or more. Fry in deep hot fat two to four minutes, or until delicately browned and crisp. Serve hot.

FRIED EGGPLANT

Peel eggplant and cut in half-inch slices. Dredge in seasoned flour or crumb with egg and crumbs and fry in oil or other shortening until well brown on both sides.

STUFFED EGGPLANT

1 good sized eggplant
3 slices bacon, diced
3 tbsp. finely chopped green pepper
2 cup finely chopped celery
2 egg

2 cups soft bread crumbs
1-1/4 cups partly drained crushed pineapple
1 tbsp. butter
dash of paprika
salt
water or stock

Boil or steam eggplant, unpeeled, until tender, about 1/2 hour. Cut in half lengthwise and remove pulp leaving a shell about 1/2" thick. Cup pulp in small pieces. In skillet cook bacon until fat runs freely. Add pieces of eggplant and brown well. Add pepper and celery until celery is clear. Add crumbs and beaten egg, one cup of pineapple and seasonings and fill eggplant shell with mixture. Spread remaining pineapple over surface, dot with butter. Place eggplant in pan, adding little water or stock to prevent sticking. Bake in 350 degree oven, 35 minutes, serve hot, slicing with sharp knife.

EGGPLANT CAVIAR (POOR MAN'S CAVIAR)

1 medium eggplant
2 medium onions
2 medium cloves of garlic
3 medium tomatoes, peeled
1/2 cup olive oil
salt and pepper

Wash eggplant, but do not peel it. Wrap tightly in aluminum foil. Place in baking dish and bake in 350 oven about 30 minutes or until soft. Chop onions and tomatoes into small bits. Crush garlic with 1/2 teaspoon salt. Unwrap eggplant and peel. Chop eggplant into small bits. Continue chopping while adding slowly, onion, tomato, oil and garlic. Continue chopping until mixture is blended thoroughly and pieces are size of caviar. Season to taste with salt, pepper, chill thoroughly. Serve as appetizer with melba toast and crackers.

Quarry blasting has increased, say residents

Citizens of Occoquan said that blasting at the Vulcan Materials Quarry has increased in intensity last week and some said they are completely "fed up" with it.

On Tuesday the "top blasting" hit with such force that some were said to have shaken off the shelves in Lynn Street and Mrs. Charles Pugh said that an antique clock which hadn't worked in years started with the impact.

Unfazed, storekeeper Carl S. (Buddy) Lynn marched over to the quarry and had a few words with the people there. When leaving, his son Donny slammed the quarry door with such emphasis that the glass cracked. When one of the men came out and said, "Look at the crack you made in my window," Lynn was quoted as replying: "If you think that's a crack, you just come and look at the cracks in my store!" and walked off.

And there are cracks in the Lynn's store ceiling. The Snyes are keeping track of them as they happen. After each blast, they said they put a mark at the site where the crack ends. The cracks down in the basement are worse, Donny said, and he wondered what other structural damage is being done.

The Pughs recently remodeled their home and wallpapered most of the walls. A young son preferred to keep his room painted and plastered, and damage from the blasts is especially apparent in that room, growing every time a heavy blast goes off, Mrs. Pugh said. She said she didn't know how one could actually prove such damage in court but the house is 40 years old and has certainly done its settling, she remarked.

Citizen calls were made to the Fairfax Clerk of the Board of Supervisors after the heavy Tuesday's blast and Wednesday after the terrific blast the office was called again.

On Thursday, Lynn went to Fairfax to talk to county supervisors about the blasting, Donny said.

What's new in shoes for this fall?

COMFORTABLE AND SPORTY—Although they may look like sneakers, these shoes are all sturdily made with multi-colored suede and soft leather. All are perfect for wear with casual slacks and jeans. (Shoes courtesy of Leggett's of Westgate, Peebles of Marumaco Plaza, and Brown and Sons of Featherstone Plaza.)

FOR THE JEAN'S LOOK — Bold colors and comfortable structure mark the casual footwear for young women. Most of the new fashions make use of the tie front, while the others buckle on the side. The boot in the center may be worn by either men or women, and is called a "wafflestomper," because of the design on the sole.

POTOMAC TEENS

OLD STAND-BY — Always available is the ladies slip-on, no longer called a loafer. They come in varied shades, and several heights of heels.

MEN'S HIGHER HEEL—Suitable for longer, flared slacks or jeans, these shoes have chunky heels designed both for comfortable walking and good looks. The multi-colored shoes are available in suede and suede, suede and plain leather, and suede and patent leather.

Shoes for the fall and winter seasons are geared to the jeans look, say shoe dealers and manufacturers, and offer a bolder accessory to a casual outfit.

The main emphasis in women's footwear is on suede and soft leathers, both in solid colors and contrasting shades. Styles resemble the old saddle shoe, with the tie front and higher sides.

To compliment the longer pants leg, jeans shoes have again this year the larger chunky heel, both on men's and women's shoes. Men of all ages will be able to find the higher, sturdier heel that goes well with flared slacks and jeans.

Both men and women will be wearing the same style shoe for walking long distances on campus. The new unisex shoe is called a "wafflestomper," so named because of the waffle pattern on the sole that resembles the design on a waffle. The sides are high to support the ankle, and made of a sturdy but comfortable suede.

Colors for women's footwear will be bolder than those for men, as men's shoes will tend to remain with the conservative dark browns, blues, and golds of fall.

Boots for men are still popular with the 16-and-over crowd for use with both casual and dress outfits. For this season, the familiar chukka boot has been replaced by a similar style made of split leather instead of suede. The soles are of plantation crepe, a durable and comfortable material. As in women's jeans shoes, the sole extends beyond the toe, and is termed a "bumper sole."

Dango boots may be worn in a variety of heights and materials. Decorated leather and buckles are prevalent in many of the higher boots, and in all styles, the "moot toe" is essential. With this, the toe is more or less chopped off and tilts up slightly.

Dressier shoes for both men and women will remain fairly traditional, with just a few changes. Men's shoes will have a higher heel, and may be multi-colored in preference to the usual solid coloring. Combinations of golds and browns, reds and rusts, and grays and blacks will be acceptable for dressier outfits.

A higher heel is essential for women's dressy footwear, but it is a slightly slimmer heel than that used for the jeans look. Materials still include patent leather, peau de soie, soft leathers, and dress suede in a variety of colors. A special style has been added expressly for use with pant suits.

Comfort is stressed for the fall season, so the old familiar styles have been retained for those people who do not like change. For women, the slip-on — no longer called a loafer — is available in both higher and lower heels. The ever-popular Hush Puppy look will also be in stock for men who prefer a shoe of sueded pigskin.

BOOTS FOR ALL OCCASIONS — While boots for women have remained basically the same, boots for men have evolved from the old, cowboy-type boot to a good looking dressy boot that can be worn anywhere. Decorated, multi-colored leather is popular for fall, as is suede and soft leather.

BUCKLES ARE IN — Still popular this season are the lower cut boot (right) and the slip-on buckled shoe. These can be worn with dressy outfits or casual wear. The boot is made of a soft, pliable leather.

FOR DRESSY OUTFITS — Patent leather (left) is still popular for evening affairs, as is gold or silver-tinted material. Dress sandals are suitable also for night dances. The white, buckled shoe (right) is designed expressly for pant suits.

HELPING THE LESS FORTUNATE
July 23, Terri Goodie of Florida Avenue put on a carnival for Muscular Dystrophy. Helping Terri were: Denise Goodie, Cindy Cook, Brenda Bergquist, Cindy Bergquist, Kim Roman, Brian Roman, Dianna Ottinger, Karen Ottinger and Jeff

Kaplinger.
Terri Goodie and Dianna Ottinger took turns being the target for the "sponge toss" game. This game calls for someone sticking their heads through a hole and letting another someone throw a wet sponge in their face. Both Terri and Dianna report that most sponge tossers had amazing accuracy in hitting the target. There were many other fun games and lots of tempting refreshments. The youngsters made a profit of $45 which they donated to help find a cure for MD.

Another carnival which catered mostly to the toddlers was sponsored by Les Crouch of Indiana Avenue and her friend Ruth Luckette last Friday. Many wee ones and their parents showed up for the event and enjoyed the games and the cookies and kool aid. Another $7 was added to the fund to find a cure for MD.

SMALL DEEDS COUNT
Sometimes in our topsy-turvy world when everything seems to be out of perspective and wrong, we often overlook or easily forget the small, but beautiful and meaningful, acts of kindness and consideration that one human being bestows on another.

A good example of this are the many carnivals for muscular dystrophy that have been held by many youngsters in Woodbridge East and other communities. Whether the profit was $2 or $200, the thought was the same—helping others. I'd like to pin a bright, shiny gold star on each youngster who took the time and effort to plan one of these carnivals.

However, I'm sure they don't really need or want a gold star. When they turned in their profits, knowing what the money would be used for, I'm confident they felt 20-foot tall—and they should have because their deed was not to help themselves but to help others. Isn't that what true happiness is all about?

HAVE A HAPPY WEEK
With the beginning of school, new things begin to happen. Don't forget to keep me informed about what's happening in your community. News about you or your club or organization is what "Woodbridge East" is all about!

Sept. deadline set for flood loans

The Small Business Administration will continue to accept applications for disaster loans until Sept. 30. In announcing the expiration date, Thomas F. Regan, SBA District Director, stated that 2,553 applicants totaling $29,549,698 had been received since Hurricane Agnes created widespread flooding June 21-22, 1972.

The maximum direct loans remain the same—repairs of physical damage to homes up to $50,000—repair or replacement of household goods or personal property up to $10,000, a combination of both may not exceed $55,000—business loans up to $500,000.

A Manassas loan office will continue operating daily, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

Mail, stamps taken from Haymarket mailbox

Richard K. Jones of Haymarket said that someone knocked over his mailbox and removed mail and 96 cents worth of U.S. postage stamps and a nickel on Monday. Two pieces of mail was recovered from Chestnut Creek later. A toolbox containing assorted tools valued at $600 was taken from a truck belonging to Terrence Gene Shown of Quantico Marine base on Wednesday.

Watch out for school children

With the return of more than one million children to Virginia's schools this fall, motorists are urged to exercise the utmost caution when approaching school buses and when in the vicinity of schools. John T. Hanna, director of the Highway Safety Division of Virginia and R.A. Dymun, supervisor of pupil transportation, State Department of Education said recently.

"Last year two school children were killed getting on and off school buses," Hanna said. "These tragic deaths could be prevented if all motorists observed the law and took extra precaution when approaching a halted school bus."

On a rural highway or city street divided by a physical barrier or unpaved section, motorists are not required to stop if the bus is on the opposite side, according to officials. However, the stop is required when the motorist is approaching the bus from the rear on a divided highway or street. On all other roads and streets the motorist must stop when approaching from either direction. Motorists must remain halted until the road is clear of children and the bus is again in motion.

Also bus drivers now must load and unload pupils on the same side of divided highways on which the pupils live.

"Children 14 years of age and under are involved in a high percentage of pedestrian accidents," Hanna stressed. "Last year in Virginia 24 percent of the pedestrian fatalities were children in this age group. Fifty-four children age 14 and under died in traffic as pedestrian and eight were killed on bicycles. An additional 1,157 were injured as pedestrians and 526 on bicycles."

Studies of school-child accident peaks indicate they follow closely the hours when children are going to and from school - morning, noon and late afternoon.

Hanna pointed out that parents can help reduce the dangers their children face in traffic on their way to and from school by helping them select the safest route. "Choose the route with the fewest streets to cross and let them work out the reasons why it is better to cross at one corner than another," Hanna suggested. "Encourage them to face traffic when walking on roads without sidewalks, and to wear something white or carry a light at night. Impress upon them that when the 'coast is clear' they should walk, not run across the street. Also help them to become familiar with the new international signs."

Government checks are stolen

Government checks in the amount of $144 were taken from the apartment of Malcolm Lawton Purdee of 231 4th Ave., Quantico on Wednesday while he was sleeping he told police.

Paul's Foreign Car Service at 18505 Jefferson Davis Highway, Triangle reported that sometime Tuesday or Wednesday someone removed a 40 horsepower Volkswagen engine from his lot. It was valued at $250.

ARCHITECTURAL COMMITTEE

There will be a meeting of the Architectural Committee tomorrow evening at the Kitters' home, 16608 Gaddy Ct., 8 p.m. The committee will hold an election for chairman at this meeting. Phil Moore, acting chairman, encourages anyone who has ever expressed an interest in joining the committee to come to this meeting. The committee has work to do and it needs residents who are willing to work. Phil says it would be an ideal opportunity for residents of Section 4, particularly, to have a say in this important aspect of the community's work. Phil says they welcome all help although they realize that not everyone has the time to help in community activities. But, he added, don't stand back and criticize if you're not willing to work.

The committee now has a secretary and they hope to begin work on simplifying the various AC forms which are in use.

STORK DELIVERY

Congratulations to Bob and Frances Lawrence whose third child, Barbara Ann, was born Aug. 26 at DeWitt Army Hospital. Frances had the baby "naturally" and Bob stayed with her even during the delivery. He said it was quite an experience. Barbara Ann weighed in at 8 pounds, 13 ounces.

ANIMAL WORLD

The Humane Society of the United States has been looking for claims by the manufacturers of all-meat canned dog food. According to the HSUS News it now seems pretty certain these manufacturers are exploiting a common misconception that dogs and cats need a large amount of meat in their food. The Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Assn., in an editorial warned that veterinarians are treating an increasing number of dogs for "nutritional deficiencies" resulting from the consumption of all-meat products.

According to Roger Carns, a long-time opponent of all-meat diets for pets, "It is a mistake to think that either dogs or cats are meat eaters. They are not; they are animal eaters. In the wild, felines and canines eat the entire carcass of their kill. This inevitably includes vegetable material which is digestible matter. They eat skin, bone, fur, sinew, etc. You can give a cat or dog maintenance by feeding him choice sirloin steaks."

On the basis of information now available, it appears that an all-meat diet, even if fortified with minerals and vitamins, is not the preferred food for dogs and cats and, in fact, it may be harmful. HSUS recommends, therefore, that pet owners not use all-meat pet foods as an exclusive diet, but rather use such products to supplement other foods.

THE FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL

Monday morning was a Red Letter Day at our house. We send our last child off to first grade. She was eager to go although she didn't know what she would teach her after they taught her to write on the first day.

However, she was willing to go back on Tuesday and give them a fair chance to impart all their knowledge to her. As she stepped out the door to go to the bus stop more than 20 minutes before it was time for the bus I could not help but compare her first day in school with that of my oldest children. Natalie will have a nine to three day school whereas Robin was on the afternoon shift at Occoquan with six teachers in her first year. And she continued on split shifts for part of the next three years at two different schools.

Now that she is in high school she is still on shifts and unless there is some miracle, such as the new high school being ready on time, she will probably finish school on shifts. I know all the money is being spent on high schools now in an effort to catch up but I wonder if in a few years we will be back on the same old treadmill in the lower grades as before or if by then they will have found the good sense and courage to put the entire system on the 45-15 plan. Only time will tell.

LABOR DAY PICNIC

The Park at Alexis Road will be the site of the last picnic of the summer for the Belmont Civic Association. We hope you can attend and meet your neighbors. We want you to attend even if you are not a member of the Association. We want all residence to come on out. The picnic will begin at 12 noon and continue till dark. We will have our cake walks, and our food and drink games. This year we will also have a Magic Show. Balso the Magician will travel all the way from his home on Regency Road to demonstrate his slight-of-hand. Come join in the fun.

CAKES NEEDED FOR PICNIC

Anyone who has ever attended our picnics has seen how popular the cake walks are with the younger children.

If you can make a cake, or brownies, or breads for the walk please do and call me and I will have them picked up or if you can drop them off at my house. If the weather is hot we will take a few at a time over to the park to keep them fresh. Hope to hear from you.

POTOMAC HOSP. AUX. HAPPENINGS

The hospital will need many volunteers to make it an asset to the community and the Auxiliary knows that many women who work would still like to give some time to the hospital. For these women the Auxiliary has set up a night Orientation Program. It is the same orientation given at the August meeting which will be required of all volunteers. The Orientation will be given by Miss Joyce Fletcher, Director of Nursing at Potomac Hospital. The night program has been scheduled for Sept.

19 at the Vepco Building starting at 8 p.m.

If you work but still want to help in the hospital or if you missed the August meeting make plans to attend this meeting. Volunteers will be needed to assist in the rooms, as receptionists, in the gift shop, or taking the pictures of the new born babies. Whatever your inclination there will be a place for you in the Auxiliary program. For more information call the hospital office and they will put you in touch with the Auxiliary Officers.

SCOUTING NEWS

Cub Pack 1192 may have to fold its tent and cease being. The reason for this is lack of adult participation. It would be nice if a scout pack could exist with one or two adults but it simply won't work. To make a pack work in the manner needed to benefit the scouts takes many adults. If you can help please call the school now or when they hold School Night for Scouting Sept. 29. The Belmont Troop will no longer exist, for that night is the deadline to get the troop organized and set for the school year.

BRIDGE NOTES

The Belmont Bridge Club met at the home of Maxine Milton on Friday evening.

Maxine took high score, I took second high. Joan Geyer won low prize and Goryellon Hedges won the traveling duces prize.

ANNIVERSARY GREETINGS

My parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Eslevy, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary Aug. 27. Home for the cook out were 8 of their 12 children, 15 of their 23 1/2 grandchildren, most of the sons or daughters in law and one of my mothers sisters. Gifts ranged from a new lounge chair for dad and a new vacuum cleaner for mom to shaving lotion for dad to jewelry for mom.

BELMONT BIRTHDAYS

Sandy Milton was 10 years old Aug. 29; Susie Wamson

POTOMAC NEWS, Wednesday, August 30, 1972, B-9

celebrated her 11th year Aug. 9 while vacationing in Hawaii. Her father, Frank, had his birthday Aug. 14 all alone while his family was in Hawaii.

HOME FROM HAWAII

Denny Wamson has returned from a two month stay in Hawaii and Shirley and Susie are back after a one month stay. They were there visiting Shirley's sister Ruth Schwieckert. While there Shirley had a short visit with former Belmonters Dean and Peggy Kelly. All of the children Dean, Gary and Debbie have graduated from school and are either working or in college. They were doing fine and not interested in trading Belmont for Hawaii.

Lorton 'watch dogs' survey landfill site

On Saturday morning members of the "watch-dog committee", of the Lorton Area Citizens Action Committee made a routine survey of the Lorton Sanitary Landfill facility. They arrived at the site at 7 a.m. Nine trucks laden with trash entered the facility within the hour and seven of the nine were grossly over loaded.

The maximum legal weight for a five axle truck is 70,000 pounds. Those arriving held 84,500 pounds, when they passed through the scales. These trucks traveled on state roads from Washington, with this excess weight.

Members of the committee contacted local state police only to be told that the portable scales used in these cases were in another part of the state. When it was pointed out that the weights could be verified on the landfill scales, committee members were told that this was federal property and could not be used.

The committee also observed drainage problems at the site; water was not draining as specified in the plans and work was being done to arrive at a solution at the time. No hard surface has been applied to the entrance road and large clouds of dust can be seen during heavy traffic hours. Water trucks are being used to keep down dust but are not entirely effective. A fence which was to be erected to catch blowing debris and protect homes nearby has not as yet been installed.

Members of the committee came away very much dismayed at the whole procedure. They feel the interests of the people of the community have been totally disregarded in the matter from the beginning of the project and that the Federal ownership of the land is continually evoked and used as a weapon when ever it is convenient.

Advisory Board hears rec facility findings

William B. Parnell, of the Dale City Sanitary District Advisory Board, presented his findings on possible sites for a youth center and other recreational facilities for Dale City Wednesday and the members voted to visit two prime sites on Saturday morning.

Parnell said that the sanitary district plans to provide the youth with facilities for recreation and an active full-range recreation program for all citizens.

Included in plans, he said is an all-purpose youth center building with a basketball court, fold-up bleachers on two sides, and a stage at one end which converts to an exercise area.

Next to the gym would be a "fair sized" meeting room, administrative offices for the center, and offices for the sanitary district. There would also be a game room, rest rooms, and dressing rooms to serve both the gym and the swimming pool. A sauna was also suggested.

The swimming pool Parnell proposed would be Olympic size equipped with a removable cover so that it could be used year-round for school swim programs and swim teams. A concession restaurant for short orders, snacks, and hamburgers which would be leased to private enterprise was part of the plan.

Lighted playing fields, courts with bleachers and playground equipment nearby are also planned, he said. Revenue producing projects such as a driving range, train or sky chair, merry-go-round, stocked fishing pond, boatrides, and a baseball betting practice machine were also suggested.

An amphitheatre, theatre and concert area and a picnic area with pavilions, restrooms, and grills, with playground equipment nearby, are proposed, as well as an all-purpose green field. A trail system would ideally wind throughout the area for "passive" pleasures such as walking or bicycling and separate mini-bike trails with "torture tracks" were proposed. These are being considered for the power-line areas, Parnell said.

Parnell said the sanitary district plans to contact with the Prince William County Recreation Department to provide qualified staffing to supervise, maintain, and police the area at all time and to provide active programs for the families, especially for the youth.

The initial cost of the program would be $2,700,000 for construction and land acquisition. Another $1,000,000 would be allotted for basic operation. Funding should be available under an HUD program grant for up to 75 percent of construction and land acquisition. The local portion is 25 percent of total cost.

A bond referendum would have to be passed to assure operational funds, Parnell said.

Members of the sanitary district favored two sites—one which Hylton has offered to give as open space and one which would have to be purchased from a private party but which is available.

The Hylton site is between Minneville Road and Dale Boulevard and is being called "Minneville Park" for identification purposes.

The other site is "the Fian property" between Hillendale Drive and Glendale Road which is quoted as selling for $4000 an acre. Each site encompasses approximately 40 acres.

Parnell seemed enthusiastic about the proposed swimming pool saying that he had talked with several contractors who assured him that once the site was prepared the pool, with cover, could be completely installed in 190 days. The pool he suggested was a 104 by 80 foot Collegiate pool estimated to cost $280,000, complete with decking and accessories. A mechanical room and shower facilities would cost an additional $100,000.

Members of the sanitary district plan to make a final site selection Saturday after visiting both sites.

Public hearing deferred concerning amendment

The Fairfax Co. Planning Commission has deferred the public hearing scheduled for Sept. 7 at 8:15 p.m., on a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance which would establish controls for the regulation of carnivals, festivals, fairs, horse shows, Christmas tree sales and the like.

The deferral was at the request of the zoning administrator to allow interested persons and groups additional time to meet and study the proposed amendment. The hearing will be rescheduled as soon as possible after additional study and meetings of interested groups.

Copies of the proposed ordinance may be viewed in the Office of Zoning Administration and inquiries relative to the proposed ordinance should be directed to the Assistant Zoning Administrator at 691-2351.

When Robert Dawson (right) went to move his crane Monday, he discovered it contained a bird's nest with baby birds in the process of hatching. He and his wife, Carol, called the Audubon Society which sent JoAnn Polk to rescue the birds. The crane had been located on the south side of Neabasco Creek at the time the nest was made. # McGovern forces hold farm picnic

His 1 1/2-year-old son atop his shoulders and his wife, Maria, at his side, Robert Elliott of Gainesville surveyed the back pasture of the O. R. Hersh farm near Manassas, where Prince William County's McGovern forces were having a picnic.

"I think this is a typical gathering of McGovern workers for Virginia," Elliott said. "It's not very big."

Then he went on quickly to add: "But it's going to pick up. Nationwide, it's going to be a lot closer than people think."

Elliott, a lawyer in Washington, heard about the fund-raising picnic ($4 per adult) just a few hours earlier, and decided to come. He said he counted himself a McGovern supporter because "he's a sound leader" and because "the country needs a president who is more concerned about domestic affairs."

Once at the picnic, however, he said he noticed most of those attending were campaign workers, rather than rank-and-file voters. "I don't know if that was their intention or not," he said.

Lynn Lang of Dale City, chairman of the Prince William Friends of McGovern, seemed outwardly pleased with the turnout. Better than 100 adults and youngsters milled about the five canopies under which could be found everything from McGovern bumper stickers to grilled hamburgers and watermelon slices. Other persons had come and gone.

Invitations had been sent to over 2,000 Democrats who voted in last June's party primary, including county officials and the party's congressional nominee, Fairfax Commonwealth's Atty. Robert Horan. The county officials didn't come, and Horan, while promising to try and squeeze in an appearance between other scheduled appointments, didn't show.

One of Horan's opponents, former Del. William Durland, did show, and was warmly received. Durland, running as an independent, although he says he considers himself a "progressive" Democrat, was introduced by Gary Crawford of Manassas, a McGovern delegate at the 1972

Democratic convention, as "the next U.S. congressman."

Richard Brodsky, in charge of issues and the press for McGovern state headquarters, was on hand, as was Alless Goodman, musical advisor for McGovern's national headquarters ("This is a song of social protest, social protest, social protest...sing along with me.")

Mrs. Lang did not appear dismayed by the slim chance given by media experts for McGovern to unseat President Nixon in November. "My reaction is that McGovern last January was the underdog by several percentage points, and he came up and far surpassed his competitors to get the nomination. This is his position again now," she said.

Mrs. Lang said Sen. McGovern had behind him supporters "who are really dedicated to him, and to his position on the war and on poverty, and I personally think he will move into the forefront." She said in Prince William alone there were "perhaps 150 hardcore workers" to get the campaign rolling.

McGovern's groundswell will grow, Mrs. Lang felt, when voters learn more about his feelings on the economy, the Southeast Asia war and other issues "and realize he is going to benefit them."

Police officer injured

Officer E. M. Barrett of the Prince William County Police Department was injured Saturday night when struck by an unattended vehicle which police said was left with the motor running and in drive gear by a motorist.

Leroy Edmund Boyd, 47, of 1633 ... returned, ... being drunk in public and failure to secure the hand brake on his vehicle.

According to a police report, Boyd left his vehicle parked in front of a business on the Southwest corner of U.S.-1 and Rt. 642 with the motor running and in "drive". The vehicle crossed U.S.-1 and pinned Barrett, who was standing near his car, between the car and the door when it struck the police vehicle.

Barrett later said that he was just hanging up the microphone in his car after talking to an investigator and when he stood up he saw the car coming towards him. He said he attempted to pull himself up on the top of his own vehicle, but the car struck the door and pinned his legs between the door and the car. He said the car door actually latched with his legs in it.

County Police Sgt. J. K. Sullivan and Pvt. David Weaver of the Quantico Marine Corps Base freed Barrett and he was transported to National Orthopedic Hospital in Arlington by OWL Rescue. It was learned that his leg was not broken but severely bruised.

Barrett has returned to work and is taking desk duty for a while.

Help prevent home burglaries

A few common sense practices can prevent a household from joining the statistics of those burglarized over a holiday weekend which soon approaches. The National Council on Crime and Delinquency shows an estimated 20 percent of all breaking and entering cases occur because people simply leave doors unlocked.

According to Prince William County Police Chief George Owens, "Double checking to see if all doors are securely locked will not deter the determined thief, but he may be less apt to take the time necessary to break in." Owens cautions against leaving valuable possessions such as bikes and lawn mowers out in the open. He further advises to cancel or make other arrangements for deliveries such as mail, newspapers or cleaning.

The practice of leaving a light or two burning while away is considered an excellent deterrent, electrical timers on the market automatically turn the lights on and off at predetermined times. An additional safeguard is to position a broom handle or rod at the base of all sliding glass doors to prevent a forced opening. It is also suggested persons keep an inventory of all possessions of value. Serial numbers of major appliances, television sets and guns is helpful, too.

Notifying a neighbor of your absence and asking him to keep a watchful eye may prevent a problem before it occurs. For a vacation of a week or more, notifying the local police department will alert the patrol in your area to take note of your property in your absence.

Adopting a more thoughtful and protective attitude can reduce burglary and make for a more relaxed holiday, is the advice given by the Insurance Information Institute.

Black market cigarettes discovered
 A Brooklyn, N.Y., truckdriver was charged by state troopers with a transporting untaxed cigarettes through Virginia and failure to have a State Corporation Commission $3 tax stamp on his vehicle Thursday night at the weighing station near Woodbridge.
 According to Justice of the Peace Donald O'Connor a tractor trailer driven by John Joseph Haggarty of Brooklyn, N.Y., was found to be lacking a FCC tax stamp and the State Corporation Commission examiner who was working at the scales decided to have a look inside the truck. They found 9,900 cartons of cigarettes which should have been taxed 25 cents per carton in the state of Virginia.
 The driver was supposedly taking the cigarettes to New York to be sold on the black market where the state tax is much higher than it is in Virginia, he said.

A grand prize for Potomac News carriers!

This Honda Trail 70 minibike will be given away in September to a hard-working Potomac News carrier in a climax to the Potomac News' biggest circulation drive of the year. A $50 salesmanship award and nine $25 savings bonds—one for each region in the Potomac News circulation area—also will be given as prizes to the young carrier-businessmen who already have added hundreds of new families to the Potomac News paid circulation roll in the past few weeks.

display at the dealership are, from left, Boyd Watson, the Potomac News' assistant circulation manager; Lester Lauber, circulation manager; and Ben F. Hoffheimer III, president of Town & Country Dodge-Honda and a proficient Honda rider in his own right. Carrier boys and girls can see the prize, which will be drawn Sept. 18 from among eligible carriers, at the dealership, 1108 Homer Rd.

When one of the young Potomac News carrier-salesmen comes to your door, we hope you give them a smile, a subscription, and help them qualify for one of our circulation campaign awards. You'll be glad you did.

Holton to address group at training center site

Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton will deliver the major address at ceremonies dedicating the state-supported Northern Virginia Training Center for retarded children to be held Sept. 25 at the facility's Fairfax County site. The center is located on a rolling, wooded 95-acre tract at the intersection of Braddock and Burke Station Roads in Fairfax County's Springfield district. A regional facility, it will serve the counties of Arlington, Fairfax, Fauquier, Loudoun and Prince William and the cities of Alexandria, Falls Church and Fairfax. Construction of the first phase of the hospital, which will house some 400 residents when completed, began under Holton's administration, although it was authorized during the tenure of his predecessor, former Gov. Mills Godwin.

Announcing Holton's participation in the ceremony was Mrs. Henry O. (Virginia) Lampe of Arlington, Northern Virginia member of the State Board of Hospitals and Mental Hygiene. Also speaking at the dedication will be Dr. Philip Ross, executive director of the National Association for Retarded Children since 1969. Master of ceremonies will be Robert M. Gettings of 5921 Seabright Rd., Springfield, executive director of the National Assn. of Coordinators of State Programs for the Mentally Retarded, Inc., headquartered in Arlington.

BUSINESS, PROFESSIONAL, AND OCCUPATIONAL LICENSE TAX ORDINANCE

Division 1 Generally

Sec. 1 - Definitions
For the purpose of this article, the following words and phrases shall have the meanings respectively ascribed to them in this section:

GROSS EXPENDITURES. All expenditures incurred in connection with the acquisition or lease of real property, including cash, credits, fees, commissions, brokerage charges and rentals, and all expenditures incurred in connection with the improvement or development of such property, including the cost of all labor involved in such improvement or development, cost of materials and supplies, equipment rental or an equivalent charge therefor if equipment is owned by the builder or developer, and any other expenditure of whatever description incurred in connection with the improvement or development of such property. The term "gross expenditures" shall not include amounts expended for interest on or payment of principal of debt incurred in connection with such improvement or development work.

GROSS RECEIPTS. The gross receipts from any business, profession, trade, occupation, vocation, calling or activity, including cash, credits, fees, commissions, brokerage charges and rentals, and property of any kind, nature or description from either sales made or services rendered without any deduction therefrom on account of cost of the property sold, the cost of material, labor or services or other costs, interest or discounts paid or any expense whatsoever, and such term shall include in case of merchants the amount of the sale price of supplies and goods furnished to or used by the licensee or his family or other person for which no charge is made; provided, however, that the term "gross receipts" with respect to manufacturers, wholesalers, merchants and retail merchants, manufacturing or dealing in articles upon which there is levied a direct excise tax or gasoline tax by the United States or the State shall not include such excise tax or gasoline tax by the United States or the state governments.

The term "gross receipts" when used in connection with or respect to financial transactions involving the sale of notes, stocks, bonds or other securities or the loans, collection or advance of money or the discounting of notes, bills or other evidences of debt, shall mean the gross interest, gross discount, gross commission or other gross receipts earned by means of, or resulting from such financial transactions, but the term "gross receipts" shall not include any amount received as payment of debt.

The term "gross receipts" shall include the gross receipts from all sales or services rendered or activities conducted within the county, both to persons within the county and to persons outside the county; provided, however, that the term "gross receipts" shall not include dues collected by trade, business, professional, service, or civic associations, or other similar organizations.

In this connection, the word "person" shall be construed to include government agencies.

The calculation of gross receipts shall be on either a cash or accrual basis, determined by the accounting system of the taxpayer.

PERSON. Any individual, firm, copartnership, corporation, company, association or joint stock association. Such term shall include any trustee, receiver, assignee or personal representative thereof carrying on or conducting a business, profession, trade or occupation, but shall not include an appointed trustee, receiver or personal representative, in the liquidation of assets for immediate distribution or a trustee or sheriff or any deputy, selling under authority of process or writ of a court of justice.

Weakland chased him down Old Triangle Road. Fitzgerald had tried to get away from Weakland, but lost control of his auto, wrecking it. Despite the wrecked auto, Fitzgerald kept going, finally managing to elude Weakland.

The arrest of Fitzgerald was made at 2:45 Friday morning at the residence of Fitzgerald's sister, who lived in Stafford County. Assisting Arnoldi was Trooper H. F. Fitzgerald and Stafford County Sheriff's Deputies.

The accused is in the county jail pending preliminary trial in county court on Sept. 19, on the murder charge.
