DEATH CLAIMS JUDGE LIPSCOMB

Over Three Score Years of Service to County in Highly Honored Positions of Public Trust Brought to a Close at an Early Hour Sunday Morning.

Judge William E. Lipscomb, clerk of the circuit court of Prince William county, died, after an illness of two weeks, at his home in West street, in this place, at an early hour Sunday morning, following an attack of paralysis.

JUDGE LIPSCOMB AS HE APPEARED AT GOLDEN WEDDING.

Friday night, in the 76th year of his age. The funeral took place, under the auspices of Manassas Lodge No. 182 A. F. & A. M., from Grace M. E. Church, South Monday afternoon, Rev. W. T. Gover, pastor of the church, assisting, and interment was in the Manassas cemetery. The pall-bearers, all of whom were intimate friends of the deceased, were: Messrs. John J. Davies, H. Thornton Davies, O. D. Waters, Frank

OLD HOMESTEAD BURNED SAD FATE OF JOHN LEWIS

"Dumblass," the home of the late Dr. Jesse Ewell, near Hickory Grove, together with nearly all of its contents, were destroyed by fire on March 17th. Only a few books, a small quantity of chinaware and a few pictures, including that of the family group, were saved.

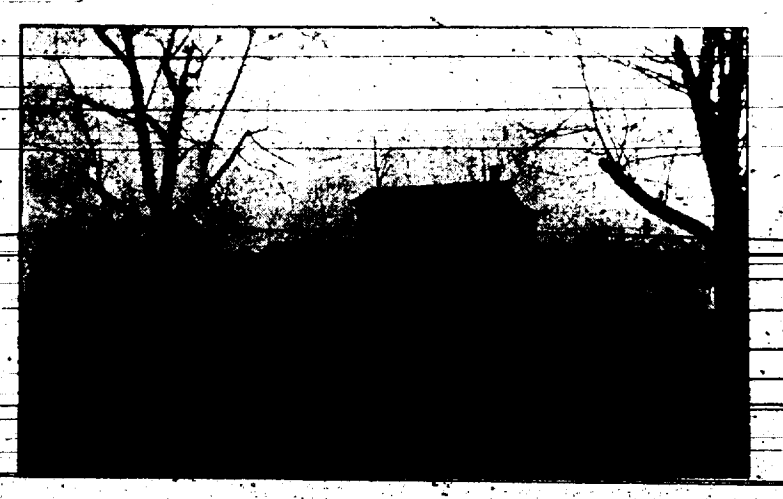

Mr. John Lewis, who for a lengthy period, was in the employ of the W. R. Myers cigar factory, in this place, as cigar maker, died in the Huntington, W. Va., hospital Sunday, of gangrene, resulting from injuries received some months ago, which necessitated the amputation of both his lower limbs. Mr. Lewis was shut up in a box car last winter in bitter cold weather and remained there several days while the car was in transit and was severely frost-bitten, an account of which appeared at the time, in THE JOURNAL.

The information of Mr. Lewis' death came in a recent letter from Mrs. Mable Wilson, daughter of Mr. George Muddiman, of Manassas. The property had recently been greatly improved, mainly through the efforts of Miss Alice Maude Ewell, and was one of the most charming and interesting homes in Prince William county. The fire originated from some unknown cause in one of the back rooms on the second floor and was extinguished by men who were working in a nearby field. The fire had evidently been burning for some time, for in a very short period after the alarm was given, the flames reached their height and were extinguished. The loss greatly exceeds the insurance.

ANOTHER BIG FIRE IN MANASSAS

Property of the Value of $20,000 Destroyed on Friday Night - Three Buildings, Including the W. N. Lipscomb Store, Reduced to Ashes.

On Friday night, about 7:45 o'clock, when Mr. Weatherly J. Adamson was turning on the gas lights in the department store of the Austin Waters, Wright & Hickey, at the corner of Main and Centre streets, he discovered fire between the ceiling and second floor of the building. By the removal of the Hastening to the upper room, he was met with a volume of smoke and playing the hose on the rear that came near overpowering him, but no blaze was apparent. As soon as he could reach the street, he gave the alarm, which soon brought the fire department to the scene. The engine was hurried to the Southern Railway Company's standpipe, at Railroad avenue and Main street, but owing to some mishap by which water entered the gasoline tank, the engine failed to perform its functions and the water was greatly delayed in reaching the burning building. In the meantime the hook and ladder and bucket brigade were brought into service, with a bright prospect of getting the fire quickly under control. It was soon apparent, however, that the fire had reached the north side of the building and was shooting its flames rapidly upward between the studding to the attic, where it soon spread over the entire upper portion of the structure. By the time the engine was

The heat was so intense on the opposite side of Main street that it required wet blankets to protect the establishments of Hyson & Co. and Maddox & Byrd from injury. The wooden structures burned so rapidly that scarcely a half hour elapsed before the huge flames were leaping skyward, casting their vivid glare over a large area. Mr. Austin, abandoning all hope of saving his place of business, summoned help to remove his stock to a place of safety, until the following morning, when it was returned to his store. Mr. W. N. Lipscomb, who owned the building in which the fire originated, had his office in a small room on the lower floor. By cutting away the jams of an gotten into proper commission, the building was a seething mass of flames from lower floor to garret and hopes of saving it were reduced to a minimum. Efforts were then directed towards saving the restaurant of Mr. Ira C. Reid, and the restaurant of Jordan & Thomas, colored, on Main street, and the harness establishment of Mr. Karl J. Austin on Centre street immediately in the rear of the building in which the fire started. The efforts to save the two restaurants proved futile, though the greater portion of their contents were removed with more of less damage. Through the strenuous, aided by

JOHN A. NICOL APPOINTED CLERK

Judge Thornton Names Him on Monday Morning to Fill Out Unexpired Term of the Late Judge Wm. E. Lipscomb - Appointment Meets Approval.

Judge Thornton, on Monday, appointed Mr. John A. Nicol schools of Brentsville, Dumfries and of the circuit court of and Occoquan districts. Prince William county to fill the. A singular fact in connection with the appointment of Mr. Nicol is that the county clerk's office has the highest honor conferred by the will of the late Judge Wm. E. Lipscomb.

JOHN A. NICOL, CLERK CIRCUIT COURT.

for the position, his appointment will doubtless meet with general approval. During the two years of his father's service as a justice of the peace, Mr. Nicol had charge of the office as deputy. Mr. Nicol was born in Brentsville, the former county seat of this county, and was educated in the public schools and at William and Mary College. He was, for a number of years, justice of the peace for Brentsville and of Manassas magisterial districts and has a good knowledge of law service.

CELEBRATES HIS BIRTHDAY

Col. John T. Leachman, of the Nineteenth Mile Stone on His Pathway of Life.

Col. John Thomas Leachman, who was guide for the Confederate forces at the second battle of Manassas, celebrated his ninetieth birthday on Saturday, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Bessie Elliott, in North Main street, at the family reunion. A sumptuous banquet was spread, and the afternoon was spent in happy converse relating both to the past and present. Col. Leachman, in spite of his advanced age, was able to pay the said order possession of his mental faculties, and a delightful conversation. His narratives relating to the civil war are full of interest and his memory of the fearful carnage of the two conflicts which raged in the vicinity of his home is vivid.

Those present were: Thos. R. Leachman, Lynchburg, Va.; Mrs. C. C. Leachman, Washington; Miss Katherine Leachman, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dogan, Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Buck, Mrs. R. L. Lynn, Mrs. Will Bradley, Orange, Mrs. J. E. Alexander, Alexandria, Mrs. Nannie Under, Manassas, Mrs. Alice Leachman, Manassas, Miss Eleanor Payne, Manassas, Miss Wm. Leachman, Manassas, Miss Elizabeth Constance Leachman, Manassas, Miss May Leachman, Manassas, Miss Andrew, Manassas, Miss Bartlett, Manassas, Miss F. M. Leachman, Manassas, Miss Alice Leachman, Manassas, Miss Elizabeth Constance Leachman, Manassas.

DEATH CLAIMS JUDGE LIPSCOMB

(Continued from First Page.) Lipscomb was being conveyed to the altar at which he had so often and so recently communed, every heart present was touched with sadness. Many eyes were dimmed by tears prompted by tender recollections and close association, both in public and private life, with the deceased.

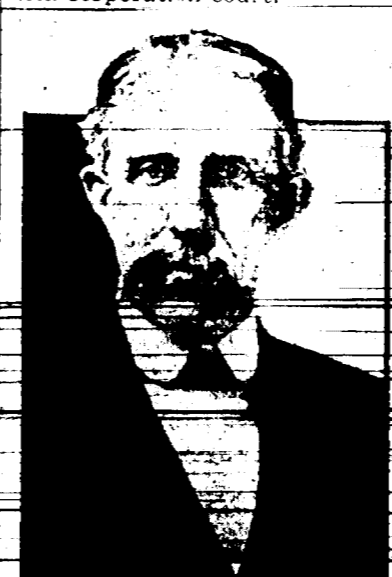

dependent Order of Good Templars bench and bar in him can be seen in the statistics, a lodge of made than the fact that nearly that order was in organization in all the chancery causes were referred to him. For some time Judge Lipscomb was born in the town of Brentsville, this county, April 4, 1830. He was educated at home and at the tender age of fifteen years entered the county clerk's office, as deputy, under County Clerk Philip D. Lipscomb. While continuing his duties as deputy clerk, he lost no opportunity of studying and gaining a practical knowledge of the law. In his ambition to gain legal knowledge he was aided by the reading of the clerk's office of Prince William county, not only of the Prince William county bar, but of those throughout the state, who had cases in the Prince William county court. That youth will be one of the leading lawyers of this county, as the well-founded prophecy of a celebrated lawyer, before the young deputy clerk had attained his eighteenth year.

At the outbreak of the Confederate war, Judge Lipscomb, then scarcely twenty-eight years of age, was in full charge of both the county and circuit court offices. In the spring of 1861, he obeyed the call of his native Southland and enlisted in her service as a private in Company F, 49th Virginia infantry and was shortly thereafter promoted to first lieutenant of that company. In 1862, he resigned from the service and resumed his official duties in the county clerk's office, continuing in such capacity until 1863, when he re-enlisted as a private in Company H, 15th Virginia cavalry. In this command he served in the army of Northern Virginia until he was captured in 1864. His prison life was spent in Fort Delaware, where his subsistence was both scanty and unwholesome. While there he suffered many hardships and indignities at the hands of tyrannical prison officials, the details of which he related to those who were shocked to the instincts of humanity.

After the close of this trying experience and the war being over, he returned to his home and until 1870, busied himself in agricultural pursuits. Again re-entering the county clerk's office, as deputy, under T. C. Cabourne and the late Capt. L. A. Davis, he served until 1876, when he removed to Manassas and engaged in law and the publication of The Manassas Gazette. While thus engaged he also entered the mercantile business which business he successfully conducted for a lengthy period in the old Manassas Hotel building. Having been admitted to the Prince William county bar in 1870, he was in 1884, elected by the Legislature, to the position of judge of the superior court upon the expiration of the term of the late Judge John C. Weedon, which position he held by successive elections until the county court system was abolished, under the new constitution, in 1904. His reputation as an able and fearless jurist during his long service on the bench, is well known throughout the county and state. He presided at the trial of Ben White and Jim Robinson, which was one of the most stormy trials that ever occurred in the county, and it was through Judge Lipscomb's good management in calling for troops to guard the prisoners both in court and jail, and from the Alexandria jail, where they were placed for safe keeping, that a lynching of the accused was prevented. Upon the abolishment of the county court system, he was appointed deputy clerk of the court, under Capt. Edwin Nelson, which position he held up to Capt. Nelson's death, when he was appointed to fill out his unexpired term. He was appointed one of the commissioners in chancery for the circuit court, in 1889, and 182 A. F. & A. M., and was also an active member of the Independent Order of Good Templars

MEETING OF TOWN-COUNCIL REPORT ON DEFUNCT BANK Grants Permit for Erecting Concrete Block Building on Main Street. At the regular monthly meeting of the town council, held Monday night, the following business was transacted. Numerous bills were examined and ordered paid. On motion, the request of the merchants and others, for a night watchman was referred to the committee on public safety, with instructions to investigate the necessity and report. On motion, it was ordered that the fire chief replace M. Lynch's rope used at the recent fire and take possession of old rope. It was ordered that the sergeant pay the note of $300 due on fire engine, and all other notes due. A permit was granted Ira C. Reid to erect a two-story building of concrete blocks with metal roof, 20x60 feet, on his lot on east side of Main street, to cost approximately $1,300. The matter of macadamizing West street, between Centre and Railroad crossing, was referred to street committee. The matter of removing the bridge at the junction of corporation and county road in Lee avenue, was referred to street committee for investigation and report. The matter of connecting North Battle street with northwest Manassas was referred to street committee. The petition of Daniel Lopez and others, with reference to Berry Hall, was referred to committee on public safety. The street committee was authorized to place a street lamp on Battle street at the south side of the railroad, near Manassas Hotel. Section 32, of the town code, was so amended as to include private property. The fire chief was empowered, in conjunction with the finance committee, to purchase necessary supplies for the fire department. The matter of placing boxes or pipes under the Southern Railway tracks for use in carrying hose across in case of fire, was referred to committee on public safety. DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE. Blackville Minstrel Keep Audience in Uproar of Applause on Saturday Night. The Blackville Minstrel, written and staged by Mr. C. Maurice Hopkins, of Manassas, was presented to a large and appreciative audience, in Conner's Opera House, Saturday night. The play was scheduled, also, for Friday night, but owing to the fire only a few persons were present, to whom the admission price was refunded. To say the boys did well in their respective roles would be putting it rather guardedly; the performance throughout was well worthy of highest praise. The comic numbers and plantation songs were well rendered and the impersonation of the darkeys of ante-bellum days were true to nature. Kirby, the banjo wizard, and the male quartette came in for their full share of applause and Hopkins, Germaine and Lewis kept the audience in all uproar with their jokes. The concluding farce, by the same author, entitled "The Picnic of the Blackville Stars," so convulsed the audience with laughter that no physicians will be needed to prescribe a good laugh for health for weeks to come. Taken altogether the author and the local talent supporting him deserve much credit for the success of the entertainment.

C. JONES RIXEY

PUBLIC SALE Valuable Real Estate. Beginning with September 1, 1904, and ending with September 1, 1910, semi-annual dividends of 6 per cent (6 per cent per annum) were paid to all stockholders. On Aug. 27, 1906, and again on Aug. 24, 1908, it appearing that "undivided profits" account showed a balance insufficient to pay the dividends, resolutions were adopted by the board of directors instructing the treasurer to "charge off the expense account" and pay to the stockholders the semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. "It appears from the books that the aggregate of dividends amount to $99,890, and it is extremely doubtful if any of the dividends were actually earned." The burden of the blame for the collapse of the corporation is placed upon C.
