Senator Clay's Seven-up Story.

This incident occurred away down in Georgia a number of years ago, and is one of the persistent memories that stick through life because well-remembered friends have found it an amusing tale.

A negro was being tried for assault and battery, for striking another negro in the face. The prosecuting attorney was Charlie Hill, a son of former United States Senator Hill from Georgia. The presiding judge on this occasion was Judge Clarke, a gentleman of the old school of the South.

The negro stood up promptly and said, "Yes, Suh, Mr. Judge."

"Proceed," said the Judge.

"Judge, did yo' ever play sebben-up?"

When the case "Go on with your statement."

"Well, Judge, he begs, and I gives him one—that puts him five. Now, yo' see, Mr. Judge, yo' begs at sebben-up when you has a pore hand, and that nigger how he did fool me! After he begs, he fling his ace at me, and I put on it my troy, an' he cotch it. An' then he fling his king at me, an' I put on it my ten. An' then that nigger, after he done begged me, fling his queen, an' he cotched my jack, an' had the denze left. An' Mr. Judge, I hit him in the face jes' as hard as ever I could."

The Judge straightened himself upon the bench and said after profound meditation, "Great provocation, you had great provocation! It is ordered and adjudged by this court that you pay a fine of one dollar, and that my Solicitor General, Mr. Hill, pay that dollar, and that thereupon you be discharged."

The negro bowed three times and scraped the floor. "Thank yo', Mr. Judge. Yo' sho understand sebben-up."

OUR NATIVE BIRDS.

[From the Philadelphia Ledger.] The United States division of ornithology has proved, in figures that do not lie, that the ravages of insects are costing the farmers and fruit growers of this country some $200,000,000 every year.

The diet of our native birds, it has been shown, is made up to the extent of 75 or even 90 per cent. of these destructive insects.

On the other hand, that "rat of the air," the English sparrow, in his menu is only 3 per cent. insectivorous, and even on this small proportion many of the bugs he eats are of the beneficent kind.

It is not more English sparrows that are wanted—for they disrupt the homes of useful birds—but our own native-born feathered citizens.

The protection of these birds is an issue closely connected with the preservation of the trees.

In the cities particularly, on an enlightened system of park superintendence and scientific forestry, there will be constant cooperative effort to save the native birds and the trees at once, and to eliminate that pest.

GOES FOR HON. R. E. BYRD

Southern Planter of Richmond, Makes Attack on "A Defender of the Constitution."

The suit of the Associated Lime Burners to test the constitutionality of the State lime grinding law has brought to light some things that are sure to interest the farmers of the State and members of the Farmers' Union in particular. It is the fact that Richard Evelyn Byrd is the principal counsel for the lime burners. This simple statement is, in itself, not so startling. He most assuredly has the right to choose his clients for himself. But he is also counsel for the Farmers' Union. At least the letter heads of that organization carry a legend to that effect.

The Farmers' Union desired to render assistance to those defending the Lime Grinding Act against which, by the way, Mr. Byrd voted. Now the Farmers' Union has been forced to look elsewhere for legal assistance in its time of need. Perhaps Mr. Byrd can square himself with that organization. But what does he really think of this Constitution which the farmers of the State are ruthlessly seeking to trample under foot? Let us see. On March 16, 1910, the following act of the General Assembly became a law:

"The Governor shall have the power to employ an attorney by contract at any time to represent the State or any department of the State, and the agreed compensation of such attorney shall be paid out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated not to exceed five thousand dollars in any one year.

Sept. 20th, 1910 - Fraudulent Fraternal Ins. Co. before Bureau of Insurance - R. E. Byrd. $250.00
Dec. 27, 1910 - Radford Normal School Case - R. E. Byrd and W. D. Cardwell. 500.00
Jan. 9th, 1911 - State Female Normal School vs. Mary E. Burger - R. E. Byrd. 500.00
Oct. 3rd, 1911 - Radford Normal School Case - R. E. Byrd. 500.00
Jan. 2nd, 1912 - Case G. V. Carrington vs. S. R. Donohoe Auditor Public Accounts - R. E. Byrd. 250.00
Thus we see that this law, after all, is apparently "to take care of Byrd."

attorney and then "turning to read them" at the financial investigation of a handful of greedy manufacturers who prey upon the farmer until he staggers at the heavy lime tax they lay upon him. This incident is quoted to emphasize the great necessity for farmers to refuse their votes to men who are not supremely loyal and to drive from public life those hostile to the farming interests, which are the greatest assets of the State. Since the above was written Speaker Byrd has announced his retirement from public life. His friends suggest a possible return at a future date to political activity. If we mistake not the temper of the Virginia farmers, a political St. Helena rather than a trip to Elba awaits him. MR. BYRD'S STATEMENT. Mr. Byrd's statement in full follows: "On my return from Winchester my attention has been called to an attack made upon me by the Southern Planter in relation to the so-called lime bill. The facts are these: (1) The lime act provides that the State shall erect two lime grinding factories in different sections; that these factories shall be controlled by the Governor, the Commissioner of Agriculture and the Superintendent of the Penitentiary, and that convicts who cannot safely be worked on the roads be used in the factories. I was opposed to this bill on principle and as a matter of policy on principle because it commits the State to the policy of engaging in private enterprise; as a matter of policy because I do not think that three hard-worked State officials in Richmond can conduct two factories at distant points, even with the assistance of dangerous convicts. Being of this opinion, I said so, voted against the bill, and am so recorded.

"(2) During the last session of the General Assembly I was designated by President Gannaway as attorney for the Farmers' Union. I received no retainer, am entitled to no salary, made no contract. No duties were designated, and, in fact, under such appointment I have no duties. Any employment for the Farmers' Union would necessarily be a matter of contract. "(3) When the lime bill was before the Legislature I attended a caucus of the members of the General Assembly who were also members of the Farmers' Union and stated frankly that I could not support the bill. They were satisfied with my position. OFFERED TO RETIRE. "(4) The suit to test the constitutionality of the bill is not against the Farmers' Union, but against the State officials who are designated to carry out the provisions of the act. When I was employed by the plaintiffs in the case, out of abundant caution, before the suit was brought, I asked Mr. J. B. Clinchard to say to President Gannaway, upon the occasion of a meeting in Richmond between representatives of the union and the Federation of Labor, that though I could not accept employment from the union to support the law, I would withdraw from the case entirely if it embarrassed the officials of the union. Mr. Clinchard reported to me that the officials were satisfied that I had acted with perfect frankness in the matter and saw no good reason why I should withdraw from the case. Again, on June 4, 1912, at Lynchburg, at the convention of the Federation of Labor, I met the officers of the union, explained my position and offered my resignation in case my attitude was not satisfactory. "(5) At the session of 1910 the General Assembly appropriated $5,000 to enable the Gov-

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

For some time the consumer has been facing a steady advance in prices, especially in articles of food. Indeed, the country has awakened to the fact that this thing of living at all is an expensive job, and some are demanding the reason why. There are at least three factors involved: First, labor has been increasing its wages and shortening its time. Second, the middlemen have been squeezing on a little more profit.

Third, we are living too expensively. There is no dodging the first proposition. What did your father pay for a good farm hand and what was the hours? How does that compare with what you pay?

We are not questioning labor's right in the matter. We are merely stating an indisputable fact. We are establishing a fundamental proposition—that the vital element of original cost has increased on the farm. Moreover, it has increased everywhere in spite of machinery and improved business methods. The farmer, too, is facing this same high cost of living and the cost of high-living.

In the second place, there is not a really economical distribution of products. More middlemen have squeezed in, and there being no absolute statutory prohibition, the dealers, all the way from the factory down to your local merchant, have added on about "all the trade would stand."

They are not in business for their health. They have no real interest in you, but every one of them is very much interested in self. Moreover, there are not only big trusts but there are little ones as well. Factories of allied interests have their associations, besides assort of "gentlemen's agreement" not to knife one another. It does not pay, and that is what they are in business for—the profits. This is also true of the jobber, the wholesaler and the retailer. In some instances, the latter start as independents, but they very soon "get together on prices" and if it still what "the trade will stand."

THE HOT WEATHER. During the past week old Sol has been getting in his work, which with humid conditions, has made the heat exceedingly oppressive. A light shower Wednesday afternoon afforded temporary relief, but soon again humidity was sweltering. The rest of the country has been just as uncomfortable, if not more so. In Boston the mercury descended to 84. In both Chicago and Cincinnati the temperature was 91. Des Moines sweltered under 93 degree weather. In New York City the heat reached the 92 point, and in Philadelphia similar weather was experienced. Omaha, Nebr., holds the heat record with a temperature of 100. Up in Portland, Me., the thermometer registered 92.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear little nephew, Maurice Willard, only child of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brindwell, I pen the following: He was born December 12, 1900, making his stay on earth 2 years, 5 months and 22 days. His life was so short, yet he had endeared himself to many who sadly miss him.

As a loving father and mother, he leaves two grandmothers, four uncles and one aunt who feel their loss deeply. Little Maurice was sick but a short time and his death was a great shock to his relatives and friends.

Darling Maurice, how brief thy stay, Short and hasty was thy day, Ending soon thy sojourn here, Pain or grief no more to bear.

The little bird is empty now, His little clothes laid by; A mother's hope, a father's joy In death's cold arms they lie. Our little darling has gone to that happy land of peace and joy and rest. He's singing the songs of the heavenly band.
