HAYMARKET WINS OVER NOKESVILLE

Last Minute Spurt by Nokesville Falls Short By Two Points.

The Haymarket Basketball team journeyed to Nokesville last Friday, where they defeated the boys team of that school, after a hard struggle.

The game was fast and thrilling throughout, with both teams exhibiting a good brand of basketball.

Nokesville took the lead at the start, but Haymarket soon passed them, and was leading at the first half, 11-7.

The Nokesville team then rallied, and played on even terms the next quarter, the score being 16-11.

The last quarter was the hardest fought eight minutes of basket ball played by either team this year. Nokesville held the visitors scoreless, however, in spite of their hard last minute effort, they were only able to gain within two points of the leaders. The final score being 15-13.

VIRGINIA CROPS LEAD FORECAST

Total Value of Crops Will Be Somewhat Larger Than In 1928.

Most crops have yielded better than had been expected earlier in the season, according to reports on yields from a large number of farmers throughout the State. While the production of nearly all crops will be less than last year, prices have averaged higher and the total value of crops this season will be somewhat larger than in 1928, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture. Farm work progressed quite satisfactorily during October as weather conditions were favorable for harvesting and seeding fall grains.

The corn crop has yielded much better than had been expected, because the damage from the dry weather was not as serious as growers had estimated. The average yield is reported to be 29 bushels per acre, compared with 27.5 bushels last year and 26.8, the average for the previous ten years. Yields are lower than last year in the Northern and Eastern counties where the crop was damaged by the summer drought, but in all other districts the yield is considerably better than last year. In the Southwest the corn crop has turned out especially well, and in the Southern district, although some crops on the river low grounds were injured by floods, the yields are better than last year. September rains and the late growing season caused late crops to yield above expectations. The total production is estimated to be 44,312,000 bushels, which is slightly less than last year's crop of 44,715,000 bushels, and slightly above the five-year average of 43,704,000 bushels.

Tobacco Yields Good.

Preliminary estimates of tobacco yields show that the crop has turned out about as expected on October 1st. The season was generally favorable for the growth of tobacco, although in a few sections there was too much rain at certain seasons for the best development. Yields cannot be estimated accurately before the crop has been sold. However, the average yield for the State will be considerably better than last year when the crop was unusually light. The estimated production of the various types is as follows: Fine-cured tobacco, 85,540,000 pounds; fire-cured, 24,300,000 pounds; burley, 6,240,000 pounds, and sun-cured, 4,850,000 pounds. The total production is estimated to be 120,930,000 pounds, compared with last year's short crop of 104,894,000 pounds and the five-year average of 136,373,000 pounds. The average quality is reported to be 83 per cent, compared with 64 per cent last year and 79 per cent the ten-year average. All types are above the average in quality, and the sun-cured crop is reported to be one of the best crops for many years, as weather conditions were very favorable for curing this type.

Sweet Potatoes Better.

The Virginia sweet potato crop has turned out much better than had been expected, especially on the Eastern Shore where more than one-half of the crop is grown. September rains and favorable weather during October resulted in considerable improvement in the crop. The average yield is reported to be 139 bushels, compared with 144 bushels last year. Shipments from the Eastern Shore to November 3rd amounted to 5,934 cars, compared with 4,994 cars to the same date in 1928. Prices received by commercial growers have averaged higher than last year.

The yield of late white potatoes varies considerably throughout the state. Some growers report a yield as low as 70 bushels and others 200 bushels per acre. In the Northern section dry weather injured potatoes considerably but in the Southern and Southeastern sections the yields were better than last year. The average yield of late potatoes is reported to be 101 bushels per acre, compared with 95 bushels in 1928. The total production of both early and late potatoes is estimated to be 16,700,000 bushels, compared with the large 1928 crop of 15,500,000 bushels.

High Clover Seed Crop.

The clover seed crop was one of the largest ever harvested in the State. Weather conditions were quite favorable except in a few Eastern counties, and many growers who seldom save any seed, have harvested large crops. The production of soybeans and cowpeas cannot be accurately estimated at this time because few crops have been threshed. Preliminary reports indicate that the yields are very poor except in the Norfolk section. Soybean production for the United States is now estimated to be 9,450,000 bushels, compared with 8,662,000 bushels last year.

Practically no peanuts had been threshed by November 1st, so growers could not accurately estimate their yields. The Eastern counties of the peanut district have better prospects than other sections. The dry weather during August damaged the Spanish crop considerably. The production for Virginia is estimated to be 145,600,000 pounds, compared with 138,320,000 pounds and the five-year average of 120,804,000 pounds.

Labor Supply Ample.

Contrary to the usual decline during October, milk production improved during the past month and on November 1st the average per cow was reported to be 12.0 pounds, compared with 11.5 pounds on October 1st and 12.5 pounds on November 1, 1928. Improvement in pastures is responsible for the increased production of milk.

Egg production declined during October as is usually the case, and the November 1st average of 184 eggs per farm was slightly less than the average of 14 eggs a year ago. The average number of hens per farm was 84 compared with 88 last year.

The supply of farm labor is reported to be practically equal to the demand. In most sections of the State there has been sufficient farm labor for all requirements throughout the season. There are some sections, however, in which farmers still have difficulty in securing the necessary labor.

VIRGINIA WAR VETERANS MAY LOSE THOUSANDS

Failure to Apply For Insurance Bonus Means Big Loss To All World War Soldiers.

Richmond, Nov. 14.—Thousands of dollars which may be secured by the mere asking will be lost forever to Virginia veterans of the World War and members of their families after January 1, 1930, unless application is made prior to that date.

The World War Adjusted Compensation Act (so called Bonus) provides for the granting of a paid up insurance policy to every man or woman who served honorably in the military forces of the United States during the World War, below the grade of Captain in the army and lieutenant in the navy. The value of the insurance policy is computed by allowing a dollar per day for domestic service and one dollar and a quarter per day for foreign service and applying same as premiums on a 20-year endowment insurance policy plus 25 per cent. In many cases the face value of the insurance equals more than fifteen hundred dollars.

If the veteran has died, application may be made by the widow or widower, if unmarried, children if no unmarried widow or widower, mother or father if no children or widow or widower, in the order named.

Forms for making application may be secured from the Veterans Service Division, Department of Public Welfare, 709 Grace Securities Bldg., U.

U. Veterans Bureau, Richmond, Va., Charleston, W. Va., and Washington, D. C., or the nearest American Legion Post.
