NO INCREASE IN TAXATION

"I am happy to testify to the wonderful progress North Caroina has made since the adoption of Statewide prohibition. Leaving out entirely the moral and religious side of the question and looking at it purely from a standpoint of dollars and cents, the that confronts us?

Shall we look ourselves in the face? progress of our State during the last six years of Statewide prohibition has been scarcely short of marvelous. During this time our bank deposits have increased nearly a hundred per cent, being fifty-three million in 1908 and a hundred and one million in 1914. The value of our personal property has increased from a hundred and seventy-four million in 1908 to two hundred and eleven million in 1912. The land in our State, not including, of course, corporations, is assessed upon an average of $8.00 per acre, while I am informed that authentic reports show that Virginia's land is as-

Every citizen of our State gets the great benefits which have flown from Statewide prohibition, and I do not believe that you would find two per cent. of our population who would vote to reinstate the open saloon. With kind wishes.

Yours very truly, E. Y. WEBB, M. C." "Ninth North Carolina District.

There is no better time than right now for a united and organized "boost" for our town. Let us get together and enlist every citizen of the adjoining community—for that which benefits the is proof positive that a family jar is about the worst brand of scrap town benefits the community—to assist in the cause, and we will on record find that the results will justify the action and meet the anticipashoulder to the wheel and help push it along.

COMMERCE AND GUNS

The press and commercial associations of the United States are the commerce of the United States because of the business paraly- this country who is not willing to trade jobs with him. sis of Europe. Whole pages of the metropolitan dailies are filled with the wonderful opportunities ahead of us as a nation.

The ascedency of the United States to a world predominating power is hailed from all sides as an accomplished fact. We are pictured by the optimists as a nation at peace with the world and with not a ripple in the skies.

The possibilities are indeed great—provided we approach them with some degree of wisdom.

We must not expect foreign governments to quietly submit to our absorption of their commerce. They will unquestionably seek means for regaining that which they have lost and we have gained possibly even to the extent of involving us in a war in an endeavor

o cripple us. And there lies our menace.

We are not in position to face such a war. We have neither the cuns nor the amunition for equiping a large army such as would be equired for repelling an invasion by a first-class power.

Foreign governments can place millions of troops in the field at we can arm and equip only a few hundred thousands

Is it reasonable to suppose that these governments would submit the loss of their commerce without striking back?

If we were to build up a merchant marine we must have the means of protecting it once it is affect.

We do not need a large standing army, but we do need guns and ammunition for use in emergency, for without these we would be Congress should supply arms and equipment sufficient for at least a million men, for with a less number than this we would have no assurance whatever of safety. Our trade expansion might even prove the boomerang that would eventually plunge us into a long and costly war.

LOOK YOURSELF IN THE FACE

The reaper of death sweeping over Europe brings to our mind'a thought worthy of more than casual consideration. Let us look ourselves in the face, and think—think for the benefit of humanity, for the weal of posterity. In all parts of the country schools are opening for the fall and winter terms, and much of the future will depend upon the training of the vouth of today. Never in our history was there a time when it was more imperative that hasty passions and vindictive temperaments be curbed and eradicated. Never was there a time when the inculcation of brotherly love and a consideration for others are more argently required

The youth of today will be the men of tomorrow, and as we train hem now so will they be then.

The burden rests heavily upon us. We expect the teacher in the school to transform our child into vider that more depends upon the parent than upon the educator?

The one cannot succeed without the co-operation of the other, but the two working earnestly and jointly will accomplish wonder-

We should think before speaking. Harsh words and family jars in the presence of a child gives it its first lesson in unruliness and puts a sharp edge to an awakening temper. It is natural for the infant to copy the example of the As we expect much from the teacher, let us give equally of our Infancy demands kindness, gentleness and sympathy-not the austere aloofness of age, or the coldness of indifference. A child is susceptible to training, but when it reaches man's es-
