Old Barn To Be Demolished

The old Ben Lomond Barn at the entrance into Sudley will soon be torn down to make way for a community center. The new center itself will take on the appearance of a barn. Bids for the new facility were opened this week and groundbreaking is expected to take place by the end of the month. There had been a prolonged fight by many to save the old barn and convert it into the center but structural problems prevented it from being converted into use as a community center.
