Slave Quarters' Relics

Kurt Carr of the Virginia Research Center for Archeology displays some of the relics found near the former slave quarters on Sudley Manor Drive outside Manassas. The relics, which were unearthed last week, include a .58 caliber Civil War bullet, two Indian spear points, pieces of a spoon, cup handle and jar. The VR-CA group dug three trenches during its two-day stay. The slave quarters is scheduled to be moved soon to make way for a driveway to the Westover Baptist church now under construction.
