Architectural description (Note significant features of plan, structural system and interior and exterior decoration, taking care to point out aspects not visible or clear from photographs. Explain nature and period of all alterations and additions. List any outbuildings and their approximate ages, cemeteries, etc.)

This is a frame house covered with imitation brick asphalt shingles and resting on a high basement. Kitchen and living area in basement, bedrooms above.

Large fireplace in basement of 1½-story section closed up for wood stove. Large stone fireplace in basement of main house, still in use.

Mid-19th century mantels and stairs in main house. Narrow, winding stair and board & batten doors in 1½-story section.

(c. 12' x 15')
Log outbuilding near house, now used as a meathouse. Several barns and other outbuildings on farm, including demolished barn.

This farmhouse allegedly had the first tin roof in the county.

There were slave quarters on the farm, now demolished.

Interior inspected? Yes.

Historical significance (Chain of title; individuals, families, events, etc., associated with the property.)

Old Deseret is part of the 6,000-acre Bull Run Tract patented by Robert "King" Carter in the name of his son George, who died in 1741. John Armistead acquired the 1,000-acre parcel that once included this farm from George Carter's estate in about 1755, and passed it to his son John, who died in 1785. Bernard Hooe may have purchased the farm in about 1785. Luther Lynn purchased the farm in about 1855 and lived here during the Civil War. The Hoffmans have owned the property since about 1870.
