Manassas Footwear Corporation Plant to Cease Operation

Operations of the Manassas Footwear Corporation will cease approximately two weeks. The machinery will be removed to New York and the plant will be re-absorbed in Lar Shoes, Inc., the parent company.

Announcement was made by W. A. Lewis, manager of the local plant, who said that after a 14 months' trial, construction of this locality had not been propitious for launching a shoe factory here. The plant which has operated since 1918, was only a temporary unit for employees for operation on a larger scale.

Operation of the plant was considered to be profitable. Preparation for the operation of the plant, employing 300 employees, beginning in October of this year. Building costs, however, had been considered, had against proceeding with construction at this time was favorably im-between 45 and 50 are employed. He said that the plant machinery will be immediately after completion of shoe processing now in progress.

P.T.A. To Stage Adult vs. Children Spelling Showdown

The argument over whether schoolchildren of today are learning to spell as well as previous generations is going to be brought to a showdown in Manassas. The Manassas Parent-Teacher Association is inviting ten civic organizations to form a team which will go on against a team of 10 outstanding high school students in a public spelling match Thursday evening, October 9.

Announcement of the coming spelling match was made to a record-breaking P.T.A. gathering Thursday night of last week by Mrs. B. Higgs Lewis, vice-president and program chairman. Over 200 attended the meeting, which was the opening meeting of the year and which included a reception for the faculty of the Manassas schools. Invited to name representatives on the adult team for the spelling match, are Kiwanis, Lions, Chamber of Commerce, Woman's Club, Junior Woman's Club, American Legion, V.F.W., and Auxiliaries, Bethlehem Good Housekeepers Club and the Manassas Garden Club.

An important innovation in the P.T.A. program, which will be included at each meeting this year, was a review of international developments affecting world peace by Dr. Floyd Riddick, chairman of the committee on World Citizenship. The Marshall Plan, the Rio Conference and the present meeting of the United Nations Assembly, the recent

M. Bruce Whitmore's Sudden Death Shocks Community

The Manassas community was shocked and saddened this week by the loss of one of its outstanding business men in the sudden death of Martin Bruce Whitmore on Monday morning. Mr. Whitmore had gone to his office as usual. Shortly after arriving there about 10 a.m. apparently in good health and spirits, he suffered a heart attack from which he succumbed before medical aid could reach him.

Born in Parnassus, Augusta County, July 27, 1868, the son of Martin F. and Susan Myers Whitmore, Mr. Whitmore came to Manassas 28 years ago to become one of the county's successful farm-owners and businessmen. He entered into the real estate business now operating as Whitmore and Hixon and for a number of years was a member of the Manassas Town Council as well as the local representative of the Federal Land Bank. He was also a charter member of the Manassas Kiwanis

"Dogan House" To Be Preserved In Battlefield Park

Through the public-spirited cooperation of the Prince William County Chamber of Commerce and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dogan, owners of the old "Dogan House," this famous historic landmark of the War between the States, last week passed into possession of the Chamber of Commerce to be built for donation to the United States government as an outstanding feature of the Manassas National Battlefield Park. The ancient log and stone structure, standing at "Groveton," crossroads in the northwest corner between Lee Highway and the Groveton-Sudley road, has been long threatened with ruin through decay, or possible purchase and exploitation by private interests owing to its conspicuous location. It is the intention of the Chamber to so far repair and stabilize the building that it will remain in good condition for a complete restoration by the National Park Service when it is turned over to the government.

Built by an earlier generation of the Dogan family soon after the turn of the nineteenth century on land purchased from Mann Page which was originally part of Robert ("King") Carter's Big Bull Run tract, the house was erected as a home for an overseer. But after the destruction by fire early in 1861 of the family residence, "Peachgrove," the Dogans themselves moved into it and lived there during the war. On August 29-30, 1862, it was in the vortex of the fighting of the second battle and changed hands several times.

There is a local tradition which unfortunately cannot be confirmed, that Generals Lee and

Victory Closing Discussion

A discussion was evoked at the Prince William County of Commerce meeting by the announcement of the imminent closing of the Manassas Footwear Corporation.

Mr. Brown, Jr., stated that his associates were still disheartened by the matter with footwear on executives and that at lost hope of securing consideration of their decision. He said, incidentally, he had been informed that the pilot plant experience costed a loss of $75,000 company in capital out-aiding employees.

A general discussion was held on the footwear plant. Mr. Gothwaite said that he and his associates in Manassas had done all possible to cooperate with the company and further its interests here. He, together with George B. Cocke, Edgar and Carl Kincheloe had organized a local corporation and

Longstreet ate breakfast in the house on the morning of the last day of the second battle. But there is no question that artillery fighting was intense around this critical point, nor of the fact, attested by members of the family and many others, that after the conflict the fields of the Dogan farm, sloping up for half a mile from the crossroads to the old railroad grade held by Stonewall Jackson's corps, were so thickly covered with Union dead, killed in vain assaults on the Confederate position, that it appeared possible to walk on bodies the entire distance without stepping on the ground.

The precarious condition of the historic structure and its importance as a battlefield memorial having been called to the attention of the Chamber by Custodian Joseph Mills Hanson of the national park, the organization resolved to do something about its preservation, if possible.

Through the initiative of the National Park Committee of the Chamber, composed of Dr. George B. Coker, chairman, and Paul J. Cooksey, Eugene Davis and E. R. Conner, together with R. Jackson Ratliffe and Judge C. Lacey Compton, the needs of the situation were determined. The owners of the property, Mr. and Mrs. Dogan, who had been long concerned about the future of the old building, gladly agreed to sell it at an exceedingly modest figure, considering its location for incorporation in the park. The amount necessary for the transfer of ownership was at once made available. That which will be required for the work of stabilization will be produced as needed.

The Dogan House and lot will be the first real estate donation to the battlefield park since the latter was established in 1940. The action attests the interest of the people of Prince William County in this memorial of great events in the building of the American nation.
