Roger,

Here are two outside pictures of the old house I was telling you about. I'm ~~am~~ still sorting the pictures of the inside of the house. The following is a description of the house taken from a reality ad:

Address 18905 Fuller Hights Rd
Triangle, Va. 22172

"This home built in the early 1800's features exposed hand hewn beams and random width pine floors throughout. Fireplaces in the Living Room, Dining Room, and both second floor bedrooms add charm to this home. The kitchen was once the old smokehouse. The brick floored veranda off the first floor is topped by a large porch which runs the full width of the home..."

Local historian said the house was built before the 1800's.

Owners are currently thinking of selling house but the builder who wants to tear it down. Is there anything we can do to preserve it?
