Dear John:

Yesterday we had a very interesting telephone conversation with Captain Albert Petrasek, Route 2, Nokesville, Virginia, who has recently purchased an eighteenth-century house in the little village of Greenwich, Prince William County. It is believed that Charles Green was the original builder and that the house served later as a manse to the nearby Presbyterian Church. During the War between the States it served as a tavern and was visited on several occasions by John Singleton Mosby. Later it was owned by the commander of the famous Great White Fleet. At your convenience if you would arrange to telephone (754-4591) Captain Petrasek and arrange to survey his property, which includes numerous outbuildings, it would be appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

J. R. Fishburne
