Gambling Ship Creditors Act to Collect Debts

Creditors of the gambling ship, Enterprise, at Freestone Point, Va., last week voted to take over its operation until they can collect more than a half million dollars in claimed debts. Meanwhile, four suits have been filed in Arlington Circuit Court against the Freestone corporation. They ask for judgments totaling more than $88,000.

At a meeting here last week, creditors approved a plan to take control of the controversial riverside amusement place in Prince William County until the debts are satisfied. The plan is subject to approval by the stockholders.

About 165 claims, ranging from $75 to $210,000, are involved.

The move voted at the Washington meeting calls for a series of debentures—bonds backed only by the general credit of the enterprise—to be issued to the creditors.

The debentures, carrying an interest rate and payable at various dates up to five years, could be converted into stock. The corporation will have the privilege of paying off in advance.

Plan New Company

The creditors would take immediate control of the board of directors. Meanwhile, a new company would be set up with new stock which would wipe out the Freestone Corporation stock. The creditors would maintain board control of the new financial entity until debts were paid off, with the debentures having priority over stock dividends.

Final details now are being worked out for submission to the stockholders. At the creditors meeting, there was no opposition, although a few abstained from voting.

The SS Freestone, a former excursion ship, opened for business last July. In addition to about 175 slot machines, the resort offers whisky by the drink, along with such summertime attractions as swimming and wading pools and a picnic area.

Virginia law forbids both the gambling and the liquor sales. However, the ship is moored in Maryland-owned waters, up to the high-water mark of the Virginia shore. The licenses were issued in Charles County, Md.

Governors Protest

The Governors of both States have protested the opening of the Freestone enterprise, which joined six casino piers built out along the Virginia shore.

In Arlington, three business concerns filed motions for judgment, claiming unpaid bills for material and labor. They are Bernard H. Putziger, Paddock Co., $48,648, for swimming pool work; Eugene W. Zimmerman, electrical contractor, $35,270; and Powell & Co., $2,212, for kitchen work.

A fourth suit was filed by John L. Albright, 403 Fairchester drive, Fairfax, claiming that Freestone owes him $2,500 for wages and expense money under a contract as promotion manager.

Freestone's chief promoter and major stockholder is J. Carl Hill, an Arlington attorney.
