

Linton Hall welcomes first mascot

By BENNIE SCARTON JR.
JM Assistant Editor

For the first time in its 73-year history, Linton Hall School will have an official mascot.

At a pep rally Tuesday, the new mascot, a lynx, was introduced to the school's student body.

The mascot's outfit was made by Linda Gulden who teaches the outdoor conservation, ecology and wildlife course at the school.

Gulden said the lynx was picked for the mascot because she and her students wanted a Northern American animal that the students had studied and one that wasn't a mascot at a lot of other schools. Gulden said the mascot was introduced as part of Catholic Schools Week, Jan. 30-Feb. 3.

The mascot will be making many appearances, such as the basketball game this week between the faculty and the student teams. It received a rousing welcome at the pep rally for the upcoming game, coming back to even take a bow after prancing twice around the gym.

In addition to the pep rally and basketball games, a number of other

See MASCOT on A2

BULL RUN REG LIB

Linton Hall's first mascot in its 73 years of existence was introduced on this week. The mascot, a lynx, poses in front of the school. (JM Photo)

*Journal Messenger
Feb. 2, 1995*