ATHLETIC AWARD TO MAURY WELLS

Citation Made at Recent Student Banquet.

As has been the custom in recent years, the Athletic Association held its annual banquet for the purpose of honoring the athletes of our high school by the presentation of letters and monograms and also the giving of the Oliver Lynch Award. On the evening of Thursday, May 22, the high school gymnasium was the scene of this affair. Present were members of the Manassas High School Athletic Association and their guests. The principal speaker of the evening was Mr. Staff Cassell, director of athletics at American University, in Washington.

As usual, the Oliver Lynch Award was made by Mr. R. C. Haydon, division superintendent of schools for Prince William County. Engraved this year in our athletic Hall of Fame will be the name of Maury Wells, who was considered the most outstanding athlete for 1941. Maury, who has participated in athletics since his first year in high school, will receive a medal and his name will be engraved on the plaque which hangs in the high school auditorium.

Mr. Cassell's talk was on the subject "What Athletics Contributes To The Athlete". He particularly stressed the fellowship which a boy (or girl) receives from participating as a part of a team. He also emphasized the contribution to personality which working with teammates gives the athlete.

The presentation of the letters was made by Coach Charles J. Litwin. Letters were awarded in basketball, both boys and girls, football, and baseball. Monograms were given to the members of the girls softball team. This marks the first time which a monogram has been awarded in a minor sport.

A sport quiz was given following Mr. Cassell's talk in which a group of sports picked from the letter names was contest against the winners of an elimination from the rest of the contestants. The contests were defeated by a close margin. All participants received prizes so everybody was happy.

The dinner was served by Mr. Eugene L. Mooney and was enjoyed by all. A huge steak and an imposing array of salads, with tomato juice, ice tea, and strawberries comprised the menu.

Prizes awarded by the following stores were distributed at the close of the meeting: Western Auto, Cocke's Pharmacy, Conner's Market, Rohr's 5c to $1.00, Gene's Theatre Grille, Seeley's hardware.

CHAMBER COMMERCE PLEDGE CO-OPERATION

Resolution passed by the Manassas Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon on Tuesday, May 27, 1941.

WHEREAS, within the past few months we have seen the Axis powers of Germany, Italy and Japan occupy by invasion many sovereign states, and

WHEREAS, such invasion has resulted in the suffering and destruction of many of the people of these countries, the limiting and destruction of their liberties and the reduction of such people to a state of practical serfdom, and

WHEREAS, all these acts are intolerant to our American way of life, as these invasions are always accompanied by indiscriminate bombing of the civilian population, and

WHEREAS, our country may at any time be subjected to such attack, and

WHEREAS, our government has initiated a comprehensive plan of coordinated reporting in sectional units for the purpose of informing proper authorities of the approach and operation of a possible enemy;

MOVIE SHOW STUDENTS AT WORK AND PLAY

An elaborate motion picture, in color, was shown for student activities of Bennett and Osbourn High School this afternoon through the courtesy of the management of Pitt's Theatre.

The pictures were made during the year now coming to a close by the local superintendent of Manassas Schools, Prof. R. Worth Peters. Every phase of the schools at work and at play was on the screen.

The recent spring play at Bennett featured prominently, as well as many other outside shots, showing the students at play and in outside class work.

Minute care was taken to get in something of every class and branch of study. There were the classes in animal husbandry, poultry and stock judging, etc. Even the supervised luncheons and drill work were shown. The library came in for its share, as did the office of the division superintendent of schools.

Much laughter and quite a bit of applause echoed throughout the showing. It is a permanent record of the past session and reflects credit on the painstaking care to afford the school such an excellent resume of the students and faculty.

HOME SOCIETY CARES FOR MANY

County Organization Assists in Raising Needed Funds.

A total of 15 Pr. Wm. County children have been cared for by the Children's Home Society of Virginia, since this organization 40 years ago and the records of the Society show that four children from this county were cared for during the past year. Funds for the support of these children have always been raised by public contributions and the local campaign now in progress under the leadership of Mrs. Paul Cooksey is in an effort to raise Prince William County quota for the 1941 budget of the Society.

Among those who are assisting Mrs. Cooksey are: Mrs. Mabel Petaliet, Occoquan; Mrs. John Harpine, Nokesville, and Mrs. William Marshall, Woodbridge.

The Children's Home Society is a State-Wide organization. It cares for children from all section of Virginia and the local campaign is part of the State-Wide Campaign to raise the budget of a little more than $90,000 required for the minimum operating expenses of the Society for the current year.

During 1940 a total of 432 children were cared for by the Society of whom 358 children 152 were in adoptive homes where they had been placed by the Society with the expectation that within the next year or so all will be legally adopted. Ninety-seven children were in the Society's boarding homes at the end of the year where they will be cared for until adoptive homes can be found for them or in some instances they may be returned to their own families. There were also 81 children in free foster homes. This included for the most part children who for some reason cannot be placed for adoption. Many of them are older children accepted in past years by the Society. A few additional children were under supervision with their own families or relatives.

Last year a total of 69 new children were accepted, which the largest number of children accepted in any one year since 1931. If the proposed budget for 1941 is raised, it will provide for all children now in care and permit the Society to rescue during the year more than a hundred additional children.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, De-nounced" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 1.

The Golden Text will be "There is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the Lord" (Prov. 21:30).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass. For evildoers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth" (Ps. 37:7, 9).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Science goes to the bottom of mental action, and reveals the theodicy which indicates the rightness of all divine action, as the emanation of divine Mind, and the consequent wrongness of the opposite so-called action,—evil, occultism, necromancy, mesmerism, animal magnetism, hypnotism" (p. 104).

THERE'S MAGIC IN MUSIC UNUSUAL COMEDY MUSICAL Considering that most musical films are of the backstage genre, it must come under the heading of stop press news that Paramount Studios produced a musical film which has nothing whatever to do with going backstage for its theme. The film is "There's Magic in Music", featuring Allan Jones, Susanna Foster, Margaret Lindsay, Lynne Overman, Grace Bradley, Richard Bonelli and Ira Petina, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and five youthful musical prodigies, in the supporting cast of players. The picture opens next Friday, May 30, at the Pitt's Theatre. Andrew Stone who produced and directed the opus, is the gentleman mainly responsible for the non-backstage musical. He uses as the background for his photoplay the national music camp for youth, Interlochen, located at Interlochen, Mich. Interlochen is a remarkable place, it appears. It was founded in 1928 by Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, professor of radio music at the University of Michigan, as a place where extremely talented teen age musicians and singers might receive further training from world famous music and voice masters. To the camp each year come 360 boys and girls from all parts of the United States for eight weeks of instruction. Capable of anything from the Beer Barrel Polka to Bach, the young symphony and vocal group render Sunday radio broadcasts over the major networks, and eventually return home to further spread the gospel of music—both classical and popular—as a means of individual expression. Mr. Stone's story is basically simple. He takes a brash young lady, Miss Foster, who is doing nicely singing opera in a cheap burlesque theatre—with the invaluable aid of a strip-tease dancer who performs her artistic undulations simultaneously with the operatic renditions—to the camp after-the theatre is most effectively and hilariously raided by the police. Even though this scene does not go into the backstage details that have become so routine in musical pictures, it is terrifically exciting and very funny. Miss Foster is regenerated at Interlochen, but in the course of the regeneration, Mr. Stone finds ample opportunity to develop high comedy, romance and gobs of melody. The top point of rollicking slap-stick comedy is reached when pert Susanna, as the brat who practically disrupts the music camp, finds herself on the receiving end of a thoroughly "on-the-level" spanking administered at the hands of Allan Jones and Lynne Overman. The music, it will be observed, comes normally and naturally to the story since the business of the camp is music and song. For Allan Jones the film is certain to be another step in his gradual advancement as both actor and singer. Jones portrays the gentleman who runs Interlochen in the film, and the fellow who falls in love with Margaret Lindsay, the efficiency expert at the camp. Another interesting fact is that Richard Bonelli, the Metropolitan Opera tenor and Ira Petina, the coloratura soprano of the same musical smelter, make their motion picture debuts in "There's Magic in Music". In addition to this impressive array of talent, there are five young musical prodigies making their film bows in this Paramount production. They are Heimo Haitto, 16, regarded as Scandinavia's greatest young violinist; Patricia Travers, 13, considered the best young violinist in the United States; Dolly Locher, 14, violinist and singer, and William Chapman, 17, singer.

flaring with hate against six false accusers, five of whom were responsible for the evil betrayal of his sister, directs the gorilla in wreaking horrible vengeance against the six. LAS VEGAS NIGHTS' A JAMBOREE OF COMEDY With Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra, and a group of swell entertainers and comedians "sendin' solid", "Las Vegas Nights" turns out to be a piece of screen amusement that ought to please practically anybody looking for a happy time. Heading the grand cast are Bert Wheeler, an everwelcome comedian; Constance Moore, a lovely young, talented personality; handsome Phil Regan, with a first-rate singing voice; Lillian Cornell and Virginia Dale, two lovely singers and dancers coming along fast towards stardom, and young Betty Brewer. Ralph Murphy did a grand job of megaphone-handling on "Las Vegas Nights". Told against the background of the gaming tables and night clubs of Las Vegas, Nevada, called "America's last frontier town", the film's story is spiced with interludes of singing, dancing and plenty of smart comedy, all proceeding at a merry clip. The story concerns a vaudeville troupe consisting of Wheeler, and the Misses Moore, Cornell and Dale, which arrives in Las Vegas to collect an inheritance left to several of the girls. Miss Moore brings luck to singing rancher Phil Regan, and together they made a clean-up at the that are as plentiful as cows on the range in Las Vegas at this very moment. That is the start of their romance and also the beginning of a series of hilarious, exciting and musical situations. Incidentally, there are four songs definitely slated for the hit class, which are heard in the picture. They are "Moments Like This", "Dolores", "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" and "I Gotta Ride". Lively, tune-filled and bright with funny comedy situations and crisp with smart dialogue, "Las Vegas Nights" is a picture that can be set down as highly amusing and entertaining screen fare. DOUBLE TROUBLE HIGHLIGHTS 'ROMANCE OF THE RIO GRANDE' That lovable rogue, O. Henry's Cisco Kid, is back again in another of his exciting adventures—and this time there's twice the intrigue as Cisco meets his "double". It happens in "Romance of the Rio Grande", the 20th Century-Fox picture which opens next Wednesday, June at the Pitt's Theatre with Cesar Romero again seen as the romantic Cisco. "Romance of the Rio Grande" is loaded with action. Dashing, colorful and capable Cisco and his ever-present side-kick Gordito, again portrayed by Chris-Pin Martin, interrupt a stage-coach hold-up, only to find one of the victims is an exact double for Cisco. Deciding to take the place of his injured counterpart, Cisco appropriates his clothes and rides to meet his "relatives" at one of the richest ranchos north of the Rio. There he finds that a cousin, with the assistance of a gang of vaqueeros, plans to do him out of his acquired inheritance. How Cisco outwits these schemers makes for exciting screen entertainment. Feminine pulchritude is ably represented in "Romance of the Rio Grande" by lovely Patricia Morison and luscious Lynne Roberts. They are cast as rivals for Cisco's hand—and their battle for his favor is a high spot in the thrilling film. Completing the well-rounded cast of "Romance of the Rio Grande" is Ricardo Cortez. Herbert I. Leeds directed the picture from a screen play by Harold Buchman and Samuel G. Engel. This was based on the novel, "Conquistador", by Katharine Fullerton Gerould. Sol M. Wurtzel was executive producer.

'MONSTER' FILM TENSE, SWIFT-CHILLER-DILLER Bringing with it a bumper crop of goosepimples, Paramount's new thrill-chill picture, "The Monster and the Girl", opens next Wednesday, June 4 at the Pitt's Theatre. An ingenious shocker, it features in its excellent cast Ellen Drew, Robert Paige, Paul Lukas, Joseph Calleia, Onslow Stevens, George Zucco, Rod Cameron, Phillip Terry, Marc Lawrence and Gera Mohr. Although the players and the script writers are to be commended for exciting acting and trenchant scenes, it is to Director Stuart Heisler that we are indebted for giving the picture its swift pace, the tenseness of the scenes and the building of the most suspenseful sequences. Heisler, incidentally, will be remembered for his megaphone-wielding on his memorable film of a boy and his dog, "The Biscuit Eater". Piling eerie thrill upon thrill in staccato fashion "The Monster and the Girl" tells the story of a man unjustly executed for murder, whose brain, kept alive by a brilliant scientist, is transplanted to the skull of a gorilla. UNLIMITED EMERGENCY

Proclamation by the President of an unlimited emergency has been expected for some time and its stimulating effect upon national defense will be immediately felt, unless its verbiage is not followed by appropriate action.

We have nothing to fear from extra powers which the President may exercise in an unlimited emergency, but much to fear in a failure to use these powers sternly to suppress the subversive influences which are surely paralyzing the defense program.

While administering noticeably more stinging castigation upon capital and the employer, he did voice disapproval of strikes in defense work. But if the administration, and particularly Secretary Perkins continues to coddle radical labor agitation, the whole effect of the President's message and action will be worse than negative. The reaction to continued neglect of basic safeguards of the national safety will then really endanger all of us and hasten the day, when like so many other countries, we will find that it has indeed become too late to save our Nation.

BATTLE OF GIANTS

Although important details are lacking a titanic battle among giants of the sea has just culminated favorably to Great Britain.

Modern battle-cruisers of the Hood and Bismark types are not designed to fight each other but have sacrificed defensive armor for speed and long range hitting power. When they encounter one another it is through accident or miscalculation and the one skillful and luck enough to place a fifteen inch shell in a vital spot of the mark won and the twenty year older, but equally powerful Hood went down, apparently with thirteen hundred men on board.

But there was no luck or miscalculation in the quick reprisal and the running down and sinking of the powerful German battle-cruiser is a truly great accomplishment and will serve as a stern warning to Japan that Uncle Sam will not have as yet to withdraw from the Pacific to protect the life-line to England.

CONGRATULATING MR. JAKEMAN

This week the government has approved lease for another year of the property in Manassas now occupied by the N.Y. A. Resident Center and State Vocational School, insuring continuation in our midst of this important educational and defense project, and thus bringing nearer the ultimate accomplishment of its permanency, as title to the property itself becomes vested in the public school system.

We extend congratulations to Professor Jakeman upon the great progress made. Both he and his capable staff, and the student group, deserve the utmost praise in the efficient manner in which they have restored the physical aspect of the premises and put into operation a functioning educational institution.

It is also most gratifying to note the friendliness and cooperative spirit manifested by this rapidly growing school and the pleasant and helpful way it is moulding into our local community life. Already we feel the helpful presence here of the talented personnel of the school faculty and we are quite sure that as permanency of the school becomes assured that we will have the pleasure and gratification of witnessing great expansion and increased service of this institution to the Nation, the State and to the community.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ENTITLED "Christian Science: The Truth about God and Man Which Produces Peace"
by Gavin W. Allan, C. S. B. of Toronto, Canada
Member of the Board of Lecturership of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

Peace is a subject in which everyone is interested. It is one of those subjects about which many people say much, but, unfortunately, do little. Most persons think of peace as a cessation of hostilities between nations, as an absence of war. Peace may have, however, a more intimate significance. Peace, like charity, begins at home. There may be, for example, individual peace, peace of mind. In this connection Hastings' Bible Dictionary tells us that the word "peace" in the New Testament refers in nearly every instance to heart-peace. Is not this what our Master meant when he said, as recorded in John 14:27, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you. . . . Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid"? Heart-peace. Also, was not this what Eliphaz had in mind when he said to Job, "Acquaint now thyself with him (God), and be at peace"?

Is such a peace a human need today? Ask anyone. You will be told that, because discord in some form seems to have come into the experience of everyone, peace is unquestionably a human need. Every human being has a problem, and the person with a problem on his hands is the one to whom Christian Science makes its appeal. The person with a problem is looking for something which will help him to solve it, and the more pressing the need, the greater his effort to find a remedy.

If, as I have said, we all have problems, and if we admit our helplessness to solve our problems by human methods alone, then there is a place in human affairs for an understanding that shall be equal to the human need.

The student of Christian Science is convinced that the Principle by which any human problem can be solved has been revealed through Christian Science. So, whatever the discord may be, he devotes himself to the gaining of a better understanding of God through a diligent study of the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, and so doing he finds his way out of the tangle of his troubles just as fast and as far as he obeys the truth he sees.

The omnipotence and omnipresence of God, understood, is the remedy for every human discord; and to the one who is struggling with any phase of error Christian Science offers relief, and healing, and peace.

But let us go back a bit. We were speaking of the evils which seem to invade human experience. Where do they come from? What is their source? Where do they originate?

Origin of Evil

Let me illustrate. Suppose, for example, that a friend rushed into your house some night and besought your protection and help. You saw that he was flushed and trembling and evidently fearing some pursuer who was not in sight; and upon inquiry as to what was his trouble, he told you that he had been chased by a ghost up in the park. Now, what was his trouble, and what will set it right?

If you know there is no such thing as a ghost, you will be in a position not only to detect his trouble but to help him. You will see that his plight arose from supposition. True, he may have seen some reflected moonlight or a newspaper, but he is not afraid of either of these. He supposed it to be something else. Then he believed that something had come to chase him, intelligence to follow him, and power to harm him, or he would not have run. Then he became afraid and ran, and at the time you saw him he was manifesting some of fear's effects, which might have resulted in sickness, or even death.

In this story we have an illustration of the whole process of evil's supposed inception and development. First, a supposition: a supposition that there is something beside God and His good creation. Second, a belief: a belief that that something has life and intelligence. Third, a fear; a fear that it can harm us. Fourth, the effects of that fear.

Now, before we go any farther I should like to ask, How would you heal this friend of yours? He is evidently quite disturbed. How would you pacify him or heal him? Would you go about it this way? Would you wipe away his perspiration, paint his face a normal color, and attempt by some mechanical means to adjust the beating of his heart? Would that heal him? Remember his disease is not perspiration or palpitation. It is a belief in and fear of ghosts,

No, that treatment will not heal him. But if, through your knowledge of the truth about ghosts, your desire to help your friend, and his desire and willingness to be helped, you assist him to see and accept that which is true, he will be freed not only from the false belief, but from the effects also.

Another question. How long will it take to heal him? The very moment your friend really accepts the truth about the event he will be healed. Just so it is with the healing of sickness. It can disappear as readily as darkness before light. When under the light of Truth one sees the folly, the unreality of his false belief, turns from it, and wholeheartedly accepts in its place that which is eternally true, he can be free. I have known it to occur. I know a number of people who have been healed within a few minutes, even after the disease had been pronounced incurable.

It is true that in many instances healings have been slow, due possibly to a lack of receptivity on the part of the patient, or a lack of understanding on the part of the practitioner. Such failure should not be attributed to Christian Science. It is due to our lack of spirituality, of spiritual growth. Every delayed healing, however, urges us to press on; for as our textbook points out (p. 368), "When we come to have more faith in the truth of being than we have in error, more faith in Spirit than in matter, more faith in living than in dying, more faith in God than in man, than no material suppositions can prevent us from healing the sick and destroying error". However meager may be our present perception of the great truths about God and man, does not this statement urge us to press diligently on?

"The Christian Scientist has enlisted to 'lessen evil, disease, and death' (Science and Health, p. 450). Mrs. Eddy does not say the Christian Science practitioner. She says, 'the Christian Scientist'. Every Christian Scientist 'has enlisted to lessen evil'. How can this be done? In only one way: through a knowledge of the absolute truth about God and man. You remember in the illustration we used a few moments ago you were able to help your friend through your knowledge of the truth about ghosts, your knowledge of their unreality. So you will be able to help your fellow men to overcome their fears of disease through an understanding of the absolute truth about man, an understanding of the unreality of disease, in a word, an understanding of Christian Science.

You see there may be a vast difference between what men appear to be, and what man really is. Appearances are deceptive. Let me illustrate. Suppose that you were out for a stroll with a group of children, and came to a pond out of which slanted a straight stick, partly in and partly out of the water, and the children exclaimed: "Oh, look at the stick. See how it is bent just at the top of the water!" And you say, "Yes. It appears to be bent". "Appears to be", they say; "don't you see that it is bent?" "Yes", you say; "it appears to be; but I have been studying a science which deals with just such an occurrence, and I know that the apparent bend is not in the stick". That is to say, you reach your conclusion not from the appearance, but from the standpoint of the science you have been studying; and you could stand before that stick with all its apparent bend, and say, "I know you are a straight stick". In other words, you saw the straightness of the stick, not in the appearance, but in the natural science that related to the situation.

Now you and I are going to judge men in either of these two ways: either from appearance, whereby we may conclude that they are material beings, discordant, diseased, and mortal, or from the standpoint of the Science which relates to man, the first Scriptural statement of which is, "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them".

You do not doubt that Jesus knew this, knew that man is the very image of God. Was it not through just such knowing, such righteous knowing, his healing work was done? Hear this statement from our textbook (p. 476, 477): "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick".

Health, happiness, and peace are normal conditions for man; and because this is true they can be brought into the experience of each one of us. Someone has said, "All the water in the world cannot sink a boat unless it gets inside the boat". So all the evil in the world cannot sink a person unless it gets inside his mind. In this connection how pertinent is Mrs. Eddy's admonition (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 210): "Beloved Christian Scientists, keep your minds so filled with Truth and Love, that sin, disease, and death cannot enter them. It is plain that nothing can be added to the mind already full. There is no door through which evil can enter, and no space for evil to fill in a mind filled with goodness. Good thoughts are an impervious armor; clad therewith you are completely shielded from the attacks of error of every sort. And not only yourselves are safe, but all whom your thoughts rest upon are thereby benefited".

God's Will
You may have heard it said regarding some difficult experience, whether it was an illness against which the person had been contending, or an inharmonious environment which had been wearing on his sensibilities, "This is God's will, and I must resign myself to it". How did it ever come about that distressing situations were attributed to the will of God? Was it because that which is difficult to endure is supposed to be good for one? As a child said about some medicine he was told to take, "This must be awfully good for me, it tastes so bad". Or, was it because that which could not be satisfactorily explained, was attributed to God?

In this age Mary Baker Eddy has revealed God's will clearly. Let us review briefly her experience. Those of you who are acquainted with the events which attended the beginning of the Christian Science movement may recall that on the evening of Thursday, February 1, 1866, Mrs. Eddy was on her way, with a group of friends, to a Good Templars' meeting in Lynn, Massachusetts; that she fell upon the icy street and was severely injured; that the doctor who was called by her friends found her injuries to be internal and of a serious nature; and that she was removed to her home the following day, though in a very critical condition.

On Sunday she called for her Bible and began reading the account of the healing, by Jesus, of the palsied man, and as she read she had a great spiritual experience—the realization then and there of the presence and power of God. In that moment all pain vanished. She rose from her bed, dressed, and walked into the parlor where her clergyman and a few friends were waiting. In that moment, Mrs. Eddy did more than experience a relief from physical suffering. She received a revelation of God and His will for which she had been fitting herself for many years.

During a number of years previous to this time Mrs. Eddy had been at times quite ill, and had tried in various ways to recover her health. But when she found herself in a condition which "neither medicine nor surgery could reach" (Retrospection and Introspection, p. 24), she turned to the Bible to study the healings of our Master. There was the record of Jesus' healing "all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people", and the question doubtless arose in her mind, In thus healing the sick was Jesus acting in defiance of or in accordance with God's law? She thought this question through to its logical conclusion, and has given us the answer in our textbook. This is it (p. 168): "Because man-made systems insist that man becomes sick and useless, suffers and dies, all in consonance with the laws of God, are we to believe it? Are we to believe an authority which denies God's spiritual command relating to perfection,—an authority which Jesus proved to be false? He did the will of the Father. He healed sickness in defiance of what is called material law, but in accordance with God's law, the law of Mind".

When the truth about God and His will dawned upon Mrs. Eddy, it revealed the infinite goodness and love of God, and dispelled any false belief that God was the producer of sickness, or that it was any part of His plan. It revealed also that evil of every kind is not of God, and is therefore destructible, unreal. Mrs. Eddy then accepted the spiritual face about herself that she was well; and the result was, as she tells us in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 24), "I rose, dressed myself, and ever after was in better health than I had before enjoyed".

Mrs. Eddy then began to put her new-found understanding of God to the test. One of her earliest demonstrations was the healing of a boy of what was called a bone felon. Shortly thereafter she healed a young man of fever, and a little later a woman who had not walked for sixteen years. If you would like to read about these you will find them in "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy" by Sibly Wilbur. She proved that health and peace are natural and normal conditions for man.

God's will concerning man is not, then, something terrible from which we should shrink, but something glorious toward which we should aspire. To one who is equipped with an understanding of God and man as revealed

TELL THE TRUTH ABOUT LIQUOR

(Reprinted by Request)

Governor J. Frank Hanly, one of Indiana's chief executives, and one of the greatest writers and orators in history on the dry question, once wrote concerning the drink traffic: "Let us tell the truth about it, aye, tell the truth!

"Until its wickedness shall be laid bare;

"Until the poverty it creates shall cease to be;

"Until the pauperism it produces shall disappear;

"Until its wrongs to womanhood and its injustice to childhood shall be exposed.

"Until almshouses and hospitals shall be no longer needed to house the defectives it creates;

"Until jails and prisons shall be emptied of its victims;

"Until the insanity it begets shall cloud the intellects of men no more;

"Until the crime it impels shall no longer be laid upon the souls of men;

"Until murder shall stop its riot and arson its carnival;

"Until men shall see it with the blood upon its naked, knotted hands;

"Until fathers shall cease to neglect their offspring;

"Until mothers need fear no more for the children they bear;

"Until childhood, robbed no longer of its birthright, shall receive a fair chance and a square deal from every man and woman beneath the flag;

"Until this corrupter of boys, this ravisher of girls, this despoiler of the young, this destroyer of the sentence of death pronounced against it, arrayed for execution;

"Until the Nation shall hear, and hearing, be convinced;

"Until the public conscience shall cry out;

"Until dumb tongues speak and dead feet start;

"Until men shall feel anew the Cromwell fire, the Lincoln consecration;

"Until the race shall stand forever freed of its curse;

"Until this republic shall become a saloonless land, this flag a stainless flag". - The Dry Legion.

ARMY OFFICER DESCRIBES PARACHUTE PRACTICE

"Like popcorn spilling from a bag" was the way one Army officer recently described the sight of members of the 501st Parachute Battalion at Fort Benning, Ga., dropping one after another from a low-flying transport plane to carry out their missions on the ground.

His simile was apt enough, Leland W. Skaggs, Lt. Col. Inf., Recruiting Officer, U. S. Army Recruiting Station Parcel Post Building, Richmond, said this week in discussing the "daring young men" of the battalion. But behind the ease and expertness with which the young parachutists perform their thrilling duties, he added, are months of training, study and special preparation.

Leland W. Skaggs, Lt. Col. Inf., Recruiting Officer, pointed out that the 501st has been undergoing intensive training for many months, its 34 officers and 412 enlisted men working forty-four hours a week to develop their technique, for parachute jumping has been one of the world's least known arts.

Long hours were spent in learning the new and unfamiliar nomenclature of the parachute as the student jumpers assembled and disassembled their packs time and again until they were thoroughly familiar with them. Finally they were able to pack their "chutes so they could trust their lives to them with confidence.

Meanwhile, more long hours were devoted to arduous physical exercises, designed to increase their agility, sharpen their reflexes and put them into excellent physical condition. They went through a seemingly endless course of scientific calisthenics,

MARINES PROUD OF NICKNAME

Some persons think that the U. S. Marines are called Leathernecks because their skin has been tanned and toughened by the heat and sun in the tropics. But this deep brown color has nothing to do with their nickname.

They are called Leathernecks because years ago their uniforms included stiff leather collars, or stocks. These stocks were of heavy leather about three inches in height, which encircled the neck and were fastened at the back by a buckle.

For many years the stock compelled the sea soldiers to hold their heads erect, although there was no more need to tell the Leathernecks to "keep their chins up" in those days than there is today.

It is known that the stock was a part of the uniform in 1798 and that they remained in vogue until about 1880, when they were abandoned. They were very uncomfortable and the Marines were not sorry to see them disappear.

Up until a few years ago there were a number of retired sea soldiers who could remember the time the stocks were worn during all military formations. Today their memory survives only in a nickname of which most of the Marines are rather proud.

tumbling, parachute packing, suspended-harness exercises and lectures that continued for many weeks before they were deemed ready for their first jump from an airplane in flight.

The never-to-be-forgotten first jump, made at a comparatively high altitude by the novices, showed that all this preparation was important. They quickly found that a parachute can be guided by an expert so that it is not easy prey to any idle breeze that seeks to take it off its course. They learned that it can be guided to the right and to the left, that it rate of fall can be quickened and lessened by an expert.

It was only then that the 501st was able to tumble out of planes "like popcorn spilling from a bag" at only 750 feet of altitude, landing on the ground swiftly but carefully and taking up their weapons in practice assaults from the air.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

(continued from page 6) to the world today through Christian Science, "They will be done" becomes no longer a sigh of resignation, but a challenge to anything and everything which would attempt to preclude its realization.

But to return to the subject of "peace". We human beings do not live unto ourselves. We live with others, in families, in communities, in nations; and in such groups peace is a requisite. So much so indeed that our Master left this definite command, "Have peace one with another".

In the past warmakers have been praised and honored for their defense of home and fatherland, but it is the peacemakers more than the warmakers who defend the community or the country.

Religion is not confined to the family, the community, or even the nation. It overleaps them all. Even nationalism is not humanity's ultimate vision.

In our relationship with each other today, what a need there is for vision—vision of what is eternally true. That alone can save us from belief in the discordant and untrue. The writer of the Proverbs warns us, "Where there is no vision, the people perish".

In human relations, strange as it may seem, the way to peace is frequently by warfare, true warfare, warfare with evil, warfare with self. In this connection Mrs. Eddy has written (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 118), "Be of good cheer; the warfare with one's self is grand; it gives one plenty of employment, and the divine Principle worketh with you, and obedience crowns persistent effort with everlasting victory".

Jesus said, "A man's foes shall be they of his own household". This does not mean that his foes shall be the other members of his family, but that his foes may be found in his own mental home, in his own mentality.

The "Rule for Motives and Acts" (Church Manual, p. 40), which is read in all Christian Science churches once a month, urges us to resist the temptation to judge erroneously, to criticize destructively. But this does not imply that we should stop criticizing. To criticize means to estimate, to choose, to separate. So criticism rightly exercised is a good thing. It is essential to progress. Indeed you might as well as a man to stop thinking as to stop criticizing, because every idea that comes into the realm of consciousness must and does pass before the judgment seat of the human mind.

We human beings have been educated to believe that good and evil are personal; that good belongs to some persons, and evil to others. So a few individuals are thought of as little less than gods, and others as something akin to devils.

Every human being must deal with the belief that evil is present in human consciousness, and he must deal with it either from the basis that it is true or that it is false. Many people deal with evil as something that is real and true. The Christian Scientist has chosen to deal with evil as something God did not make, hence neither real nor true.

But someone may say, Did not our Master say quite definitely that he "came not to send peace, but a sword"? Yes, as our textbook points out (p. 19), "His teaching set households at variance, and brought to material beliefs not peace, but a sword".

This reminds me of a story told by a well-known writer. Two young sisters were having an argument about which was the last book of the Bible, and one was heard to exclaim, "Barbara, I tell you the Bible does not end in Timothy; it ends in Revolutions".

But to continue our discussion of the necessity of peace between individuals. Our word "family" is derived from a Latin word meaning "servant". May not this imply that a true sense of "home" rests upon mutual obligations, and their fulfillment through love? In dealing with errors which claim to disturb our homes, the utmost tact may be found necessary. Tact does not imply, as many people believe, deceit or flattery.

our understanding of Christian Science, will enable us to "deal with others without giving offense". In other words, we shall prove our God-given ability to promote harmony and peace in our own homes.

"Ask God to give thee skill In comfort's art; That thou may'st consecrate be And set apart Unto a life of sympathy. For heavy is the weight of ill In every heart; And comforters are needed much Of Christlike touch".

The interest of the individual should, however, extend to an even wider circle—the nation. However distant he may be from his country's capital he may be informed these days by newspaper or radio not only of national but of world events. Today the thoughts of the individual encompass the world. Too seldom do we recognize that world affairs are only an expression of humanity's thoughts.

If you were asked today, What are the causes of war? you would not likely say, guns, planes, and bombs. Rather would you say fear, greed, pride, jealousy, or hatred. These are mental qualities. So the question comes home to each one of us: Am I in any way contributing to the causes of war? Am I guilty of war?

Before I thought of this I could complacently blame someone else, and feel that I could not possibly be held responsible for what they did, but now I must set about fitting my own house in order—a task that will give me no spare time. Guns, battleships, airplanes and shells could cause no war if there were no war-thoughts in existence. But while such thoughts continue to exist there may be wars, with sticks and stones, even though all other weapons had been destroyed.

Because there are boundary lines between countries they need not necessarily bristle with bayonets, or be lined with fortifications. The North American continent has proved this. Between the United States and Canada there is a border line of nearly four thousand miles without fortifications or gunboats on either side.

Disputes over boundary lines, especially between farms, have been frequent in newly settled districts. This reminds me of such a dispute between two farmers some years ago. It had been a source of bitterness and loss to both of them for years.

Finally one of the farmers decided that he would obey Jesus' admonition as recorded in Matthew 5:41, "Whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain". And further he determined that he would no longer continue to harbor any ill will toward his neighbor. The next day they chanced to meet at the line fence, and the neighbor again demanded that the fence be moved.

LEESBURG FLOWER SHOW

The Leesburg Garden Club will hold its sixteenth annual Flower Show on Thursday, June 5, at "Belmont", the home of the former Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick Jay Hurley. Proceeds will, as always, go to the maintenance of the vegetable garden and grounds of the Loudoun County Hospital.

Opening at 2 p.m. the exhibits will include eight specimen and eight arrangement classes, as well as non-competitive exhibits by distinguished growers. All entries for specimen classes must be grown by the exhibitor.

Belmont, on Route 7, thirty miles west of Washington, was the home of Ludwell Lee, bought from him in 1836 by Miss Margaret Mercer, daughter of Governor Mercer, of Maryland. She used it as a girls' school until her death in 1846 and built the chapel which still stands on the estate.

GEMS OF THOUGHT SERVICE Gain Through Loss

Our bravest and best lessons are not learned through success, but through misadventure.—A. Branson Alcott.

What is taken from the fortune, also, may happy be so much lifted from the soul. The greatness of a loss, as the proverb suggests, is determinable, not so much by what we have lost, as by what we have left.—Boeve.

He that has no cross will have no crown.—Quarles.

The loss of earthly hopes and pleasures brightens the ascending path of many a heart. The pains of sense quickly inform us that the pleasures of sense are mortal and that joy is spiritual.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Adversity makes a man wise, though not rich.—Thomas Fuller.

Adversity is the first path of truth.—Byron.
